Russians Accuse U.S. of Kidnapping Missing Diplomat

Believe Man Has Been Given Political Asylum

TOKYO (AP) — A Russian spokesman today accused the United States of kidnapping the missing second secretary—an intelligence agent—of the defunct Soviet mission in Tokyo.

An American source who refused to be identified told the Associated Press that the missing diplomat, Huri Alexandrovich Rastovorov, had asked the United States for political asylum and had been granted it.

The break in the long silence of the cloak-and-dagger story of Rastovorov stirred speculation that the largest spy ring in Asia may have been cracked.

The affable 34-year-old Russian diplomat disappeared from the Soviet embassy Jan. 24, on the eve of his scheduled departure for Russia.

The American source said it is almost certain Rastovorov has left Japan and that he is now under the United States.

There was speculation that the Russian had been flown Saturday to Okinawa, a huge U.S. base 700 miles south of here.

S. I. Romov, spokesman for the Russian embassy, in a statement released by Japan—called in Japanese reporters and issued a prepared statement accusing "the American espionage organ in Japan" of seizing and holding Rastovorov.

FREE BIRD OF JAPAN'S

The U.S. state department and the Far East command had no comment on the case.

Rastovorov was known to be an intelligence agent. The Russian diplomats had free run of Japan and have been in a position to gather information on U.S. bases.

Tokyo's news agency reported earlier that Rastovorov was being returned to the Soviet Union to explain how he bolched a spy assignment.

Rastovorov was one of several dozen Soviet diplomats who stayed behind after the Japanese peace treaty was signed in April, 1952. Since the Soviet Union has not signed the peace treaty, the action has no official status as it did during the occupation.

HAPPY" TO RETURN

The Soviet statement said Japanese police, who were asked by Romov to search for Rastovorov, had not been able to locate him. It also said Rastovorov was "very happy" at the prospect of returning to the Soviet Union.

"When the facts . . . are compared together with the data on Rastovorov regarding the special interest which the American espionage agents had in Rastovorov, then the mysterious disappearance of Rastovorov becomes clear," the statement said.

All this forms the foundation to bolster the charges which have been seized and is being detained by the American espionage organ in Japan with the aim of provocation of the Soviet Union."

The Russians' report of Rastovorov's disappearance was unusual. Previously they have ignored the police and the government. The mission asked for help and said Rastovorov was suffering from a "nervous breakdown."

U.S. FIGHTERS REPEL MIGS NEAR KOREAN COAST

Reconaissance Bomber Attacked 10 Days Ago

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States air force said today U.S. planes and MIG-15 jet fighters fought a sharp engagement near the Korean coast only 10 days ago, after a U.S. reconaissance bomber was attacked.

No American aircraft were lost, but one of the Russian-made jets was shot down. An air force spokesman here, who had only terse information on the incident, said so far as he knew it occurred on Japan there were no U.S. casualties nor plane damage.

As for the nationality of the MIG pilots, he said only "it is safe to assume they were Communists."

This was the first known clash between U. S. and Communist planes since the Korean armistice was signed July 27. Whether by coincidence or not, it occurred on the day after considerable tension-Jan. 22 was the day on which United Nations officials released to civilian status prisoners of war who refused to be repatriated to Red-held territory. The Communists had insisted they must be kept under military custody. However, no serious incident developed.

A BRIEF ENCOUNTER

The air force gave this account of the plane incident:

A U.S. RB-45—a light, jet-propelled bomber fitted for reconnaissance—was on a routine reconnaissance mission Jan. 22 over international waters northwest of Sok-to island, off the west coast of Korea, when "a large formation of MIG-15 jet fighters" attacked it.

F-86 jet fighters guarding the bomber opposed the attack and in the ensuing fight shot down one MIG.

Caught in Storm, Seeks Shelter In Den of Bear

Caught in a heavy snowstorm while taking a shortcut home through the woods, Whalen crawled into the den of the hibernating bear. The bear didn't notice him.

Word of the rescue reached here Sunday. Reston is on the eastern shore of New Brunswick, about 40 miles north of the rail hub of Moncton.

Centre May Form New Coalition To Rule Italy

ROME (AP)—The badly battered Christian Democrat party hoped today to form a centre group coalition in the wake of its loss of political crisis and keep it facing the west.

There seemed no other possible solution to the rising challenge of the Communist left and the Fascist-Monarchist right which has upset three Premiers' cabinets and lasts in six months and plainly worried other NATO capitals.

The centre party, still Italy's biggest and in control of the government since the war, seemed likely to call its grizzled old warhorse, former Premier Alcide de Gasperi, back to the helm.

President Luigi Einaudi began consultations with senior statesmen and party leaders this morning, seeking a man who could form a new government.

Helicopters Guide Snowplows In South England

LONDON (Reuters)—Snowplows guided by helicopters were clearing tiny drifts of up to eight feet deep in southeast England to clear a way for five villages cut off by blizzards during the week-end.

Continued low temperatures throughout Europe started February out on a cold note. Snow blocked all fresh roads to Eastling and four smaller hamlets were guided by helicopters which spotted deep drifts and guided the plows along the clearest routes.

The temperature in London was 22 degrees—coldest in six years. Many trains froze up. Snow still fell on the capital at noon.

The Thames froze over at Windsor for the first time in seven years. Meteorologists said there will be no let-up for at least two days.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Skies are clear to partly cloudy in Ontario ahead of the warm Pacific air advancing eastward from the Prairies. There is forecast to continue in the northern regions today and Tuesday whereas in the southern regions only a few flurries are expected this morning and again Tuesday afternoon. Southern regions will be mild today and Tuesday, but colder air spreading southward from the Arctic will reach the north country Tuesday morning.

Gunmen Tell Tots Bedtime Stories While Waiting to Rob Their Father

CHICAGO (AP) — Two gunmen acters to allay their alarm over told bedtime stores to keep three small children quiet Sunday night while they waited to collect one of the tots' father to rob him of $4,325 in cash and jewelry valued at $30,000.

The baby-sitter, who admitted them, Mrs. Marian Schmidt, 36, said the gangsters were telling the youngsters about Goldilocks and the three bears, the three little pigs, and other fairy tale char-the presence of strangers.

"I don't know them, men," Mrs. Schmidt told the children—Christine, 3, Fred, 4, and Louis Jr., 5, when she supposed all were back in bed.

When Fahrberger walked in, he told police, one of the robbers seized Christine and said, "I'll shoot her if you don't get your hands up and keep them up."

The robbers locked Fahrberger, Mrs. Schmidt and the youngsters in a closet before leaving.

U.S. Courier Plane Kills 35

Plunges Into Icy Waters Off Hokkaido Is.

TOKYO (AP)—A United States air force courier plane with 39 militates from landing plagued 35 persons to death today by icy waters just south of Hokkaido island, the air force said.

There were no survivors among the 30 passengers and 5 crewmen of the twin-engined C-46 "Commando," an air force spokesman said.

The plane crashed at 1:45 p.m. (1:45 p.m. EST, Sunday) in the frigid waters of the strait between Hokkaido and Honshu, Japan's main island.

It was on a regular run from Tachikawa air force base near Tokyo to Chitose, near Sapporo, principal city of the big northern island of Hokkaido.

The air force spokesman said only some open parachutes and an oil slick were spotted by search planes at the scene, about 20 miles from land.

"It's bitter cold up there now; they had a big blizzard on Hokkaido day before yesterday," he said.

Passengers on such flights customarily wear life jackets and parachutes. However, a man could stay alive only a few minutes in the icy waters of the strait.

Names of the victims were withheld.

Charge Driver Of Stalled Truck After Three Die

MANIWAKI, Que. (CP) A charge of criminal negligence Saturday was laid against Eugene Julien, 24, of Val d'Or, Que., in connection with a two-truck crash on the mountain here Friday night in which three persons were killed.

The charge was laid against Julien following an inquest attended by Coroner J. T. l'Ecuyer of Maniwaki.

The three men were riding in the cab of the truck, loaded with 20 large hardwood logs, when it smashed into the rear of a stalled truck driven by Julien.

Hiroshima Victims Plan Suit Against U.S.

TOKYO (AP) — The Hiroshima atom bomb victims association said today it plans damage suits against the United States in American courts as soon as possible.

The association said it would call on the courts to award $1,777 to families of each Japanese who died when the U.S. dropped an atom bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Tokyo news agency said leading lawyers here say the suits would not have a chance in American courts.

Snarling Wolf-Boy Cowers in Bed As Hundreds Converge on Hospital

The boy was found naked, heavily scarred and walking on all fours in a wood near Sapoora 10 days ago. He was ravenously hungry.

Dr. N. Sharma, medical superintendent of the hospital, said the boy, named Ramsa by the hospital staff, now accepts boiled meat and drinks milk, but remains terrified of civilization.

Ramu is constitutionally normal but still moves about on all fours and has the double set of upper incisors of a wolf.

Villagers in the foothills surrounding Lucknow are believed to have killed the boy's wolf pack and put him aboard a train, knowing he would receive care in Lucknow.

The hospital found that, though Ramu has the body of a normal boy, he has many animal tendencies.

"All this led us to believe that Ramu was brought up as a wolf as a baby and mothered since by she-wolves," Dr. Sharma said.

"It is not the first time such a thing has happened, but this is the first time a boy has been reared by wolves over such a long period."

The most celebrated boys raised by she-wolves, were Romulus and Remus, the legendary twins who founded Rome. Rudyard Kipling's character Mowgli was a human child brought up by wolves.

West's Plan Said Designed To Stop German Aggression

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

BERLIN (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the Big Four conference today it is "our purpose to associate Germany so closely with other peace - loving states that she will neither seek nor be able to use her regained strength for aggressive purposes."

Eden's speech ran parallel to a declaration at the conference by French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault demanding free elections as the No. 1 fundamental for unifying Germany.

Statements of the two western foreign ministers were made at the first session held in the east sector of Berlin under the chairmanship of Vyacheslav Molotov, the Soviet foreign minister.

In his declaration, Eden said it was his government's belief that Germany can best be united with peace - loving countries through membership in the European Defence Community.

TRIES TO ALLAY FEARS

Eden pried once more to allay Moscow fears about EDC in his comments to the parley today.

"The treaty which sets up the European Defence Community lays down that the community is designed to contribute to the maintenance of peace, and that its purposes are exclusively defensive," Eden said.

"The Soviet government," Eden continued, "may say that mere verbal assurances are not enough, and that more concrete guarantees are needed. If the EDC treaty contained nothing more than verbal assurances, I should have some sympathy with such an objection to it. But of course it does contain much more."

Eden then emphasized that the six member countries of EDC would hand over control of their forces in Europe to a "supra-national authority."

"There will be no national armies, and the individual countries will not have the power or the means to engage in war on their own. This is a revolutionary conception. It is the heart of the whole matter."

DECISION UP TO GERMANY

Bidault said "It would be up to the German government itself to decide whether it wants to assume the international obligations contained earlier either by the Federal Republic (West Germany) or by the German Democratic Republic (East Germany)."

"I should like . . . to point out that the only basis on which we can come to an agreement on the subject is for all of us to leave the decision up to the German people. France does not demand as a condition for unification that Germany should enter a European community. She wants to make it even ecually clear that we will not permit our partners (obviously the Russians) to require as a condition of German unity that Germany should not enter into the European community."

The conference began its second week today after a Sunday recess.

Australian Navy Takes Over Care of Queen on Sydney Trip

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)— The New Zealand navy handed over the care of the Queen to the Australian navy at noon today in the Tasman sea.

Millions of Australians heard a description of the "changing of the guard" for the royal liner Gothic, which is taking the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, to a two-month tour of the Australian continent.

The men of the New Zealand cruiser Black Prince gave three cheers for the young monarch as they handed their responsibilities to Australia, and the ship's band played the traditional Maori farewell, then

PROGRESS REPORTED

It was reported that the plans for the addition to the new hospital were progressing satisfactorily and it was hoped that building would start towards the end of the summer. A letter had been received from the board of health requesting that consideration be given to the health department being accommodated in the hospital after the addition had been completed. The matter was referred to the property committee for their study with the new plans.

A vote of thanks was extended the Women's Hospital Auxiliary for the operation of the Coffee Snack Shop which was recently opened in the hospital. It was felt that this was providing a much needed service for visitors in the hospital.

A vote of thanks was also extended to Miss Staig for the excellent service that he had given to the hospital and the community while serving as a member of the board during his term of office as mayor.

Consideration was being given by the Board of Governors to the establishment of a two-year training course for student nurses with a one-year internship. The Toronto Western Hospital has a course at the present time, and it is felt that it would be more attractive for girls to enter the nursing profession.

W. J. Bean Plans To Rebuild Block Razed by Fire

The owner of the Front Street block which was swept by fire last Wednesday, W. J. Bean, said today he would rebuild on the site of the fire. Mr. Bean said, at his present plans go, the new building will be of two-storey construction with two stores and 10 apartments. He indicated the new building would be of steel and concrete and fully fireproof.

In a telephone conversation, Mr. Bean revealed the building was insured. However, he said there was not nearly enough insurance to cover his loss and he added, "there never is." He said the fire represented a loss of 35 years of "hard work." "Some others might not feel it as badly as I would," the owner continued "but when you work up the hard way, the loss appears of much greater magnitude."

Mr. Bean said not say when reconstruction would begin.

Alfred G. Cooper, Master Mechanic of CNR, Retires

A onetime watchmaker's apprentice who turned to railroading and rose to 30-year stint "on the road" became master mechanic at the Belleville division of the C.N.R. has retired from the service.

He is Alfred G. Cooper of Lewis street who has been railroading for close to half-a-century since he started as a call boy with the Great Western Railway in England back in 1904. Mr. Cooper retired as master mechanic on January 31st.

Born in Reading England Mr. Cooper left school at the age of 13 to become apprenticed to a watchmaker. But he decided watchmaking was not to his liking and two years later became a call boy with the English railway. He worked as cleaner and fire-builder hostling engines before coming to Canada and man until Canada beckoned in 1913.

IN CITY SINCE 1913

So he quit his job with the English railway and the next day settled in Levis, Liverpool. The day after he landed in Montreal he hired out with the C.N.R. and came to Belleville as fireman. That was June 13th 1913 and he has lived with his home in this city.

After five years as fireman he was promoted to locomotive engineer and ran in all classes of service until 1941, when he became master mechanic at Belleville, a position in which he remained until his retirement.

"I don't know why they call the job "master mechanic". There is nothing mechanical about it. It is more of a supervisory and instructional position," Mr. Cooper said.

The position calls for supervision of trains and locomotive repairs, engineers and also being on the job, when auxiliary crews are sent out to clear up railway wrecks.

ACTIVE IN LODGES

Aside from his railway career Mr. Cooper has taken an active part of fraternal affairs. He is a member and past president of Challenge Lodge, No. 66, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers; and is a member of Belleville Lodge, No. 81, Railway Conductors, No. 29 IOOF; Quinte Rebekah Lodge; Moira Tent, No. 11, K.O.T.M. and Ivanhoe Friendship Chapter No. 227; R.A.M. and is past patron of Minerva Chapter, No. 28 O.E.S.

Tonight Mr. and Mrs. Cooper will be honored by relatives and friends at a social evening.

In retirement Mr. Cooper is looking forward to more time spent in his large flower and vegetable garden. He has a home work shop in the basement where he expects to spend more time than in the past.

The Coopers have two sons, Jack who lives in Toronto, and Ronald of Cobourg. There are two grandsons.

Several Minor Motor Accidents Are Reported

Investigation of minor motor accidents took up considerable time for members of the city police department over the week-end as over a half dozen such mishaps were reported. No one was injured but property damage in two of the accidents was quite considerable.

Three cars were damaged late Saturday night as a result of a collision at the corner driven by Everett Wilson, Simcoe street, Oshawa, struck a parked vehicle head-on. Wilson had been parked on the north side of Victoria facing west when he started up his car crossed to the opposite side of the street and then turned and parked auto owned by Murray Ritchie, 235 Victoria, causing about $200 damage. The vehicle driven by Wilson moved back into another parked auto owned by Cecil Courtney, 24 Dundas street, at the scene of the accident. He was later apprehended and charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

Another car accident on Moira street, west, a car driven by Clara Hoskins, Stirling, reversed veered to the right side of the street, caught in a snowbank and crashed into a telephone pole doing about $300 damage to the car.

On Sunday street autos driven by Charles Wood, North Park street, and Cecil McFee, R.R. Belleville, collided while proceeding in opposite directions. McFee was said to have applied his brakes and his car skidded into the other vehicle. Damage was about $75 to each auto.

Provincial officers reported a comparatively quiet week-end with only two minor accidents being reported.

Cars driven by Ronald Saylor, Bowen street, and by Earl Hill R.R. 3 Belleville, collided in Hillcrest doing about $200 damage to both vehicles. Another very minor accident was reported at Lonsdale.

Curlers Enjoy Friendly Games At Kingston

Two rinks from the Quinte Curling Club journeyed to Kingston on Saturday for a friendly game at the Kingston Curling Club and thoroughly enjoyed every minute of their stay. One eight-end game was played with the men, and then the Belleville rinks were broken up to enjoy the game of eight ends with the women members of the club in a mixed rink competition.

At the conclusion of play the women arranged at potluck supper, set in a delightful manner at the club and ample justice was done to the many good things provided, after which a social hour was spent before departure home.

Despite the fact that some of the Quinte members had lived in Kingston all their lives, it was surprising to see how quite they became acquainted with the ice.

The ice was lightning fast, the competition keen and comradeship at its best. It was a delight for the members to enjoy their favodite game in such pleasant surroundings and an invitation back at anytime was readily accepted. The games were played on the Kingston Curling Club's permanent curling facilities in the city, good rinks back and sent out to the many hospitels now under way.

A rink of Don McKinnon, J. Demess, Claude D. Tice and J. McArthur tied with a rink of Carl Bedal, Warden Dick Allen, W. Sparling and "Flat" Wark. Another rink of Mrs. Burrell, Sid Dennis, W. Sharpe and Stan Hall defeated Bob Galway, Jr., Jack Miller, A. R. Wallbridge and William Gault by one shot in a close game. A curling cord was kept of the mixed rink competition.

The thanks of the Belleville curlers were expressed by Mr. Gault, president of the Curling Club, and Jack McArthur, a former resident of Kingston and now manager of the Royal Bank in this city.

Curlers will start in the Memorial Arena just as soon as hockey gets out of the way and all prospective curlers are asked to get in touch with Mr. Don McKinnon at the court house.

Activities of Health Dept. In '53 Outlined in Report

During 1953, the city's board of health, acting on a recommendation of sanitary inspector, Robert Westlake, closed down a local restaurant. The establishment was closed through lack of cleanliness. This along with a number of other important activities was revealed in the annual report of the health officer of health. Dr. A. M. Brule, D.P.H.

A total of 83 milk samples was taken from producers shipping milk to city dairies and 272 samples of pasteurized milk were tested. The sanitation department also took 172 samples from glassware, cups and utensils. These were submitted for bacteriological examination at the hospital. Other activities of the sanitary inspector included investigation of complaints, inspection of schools, swimming pools, bathing beaches, sewerage rooms, funeral homes and refuse disposal.

Robert Westlake, 230 Pine street, is also a sanitary inspector in April. According to the report, this permitted the development of a greatly improved sanitation program in which sanitary inspection was made a restaurant survey. The sanitary inspector, after a considerable number of visits to the premises, Tweet well, recommended it be closed until a degree of cleanliness was discovered. The well was duly closed.

SERIES OF LECTURES

A series of lectures for expectant mothers was instituted by Miss C. Bell, R.N., public health nurse, and public health nursing, with the co-operation of the Y's Mothercraft Club of this city. This venture proved to be highly successful and was well received by those who attended. Brule provided a course of lectures on communicable diseases and a preventive medicine for the school of nursing at the hospital during 1953. A large quantity of medical supplies were dispensed during the year. A total of 499 field nursing visits were made to newborn infants; 860 visits to other infants; 190 to pre-school children; 94 visits to school children and 13 visits to adults. Sixty-one prenatal visits were made and 563 visits to new mothers were made. Fifty visits were made to persons suffering from tuberculosis. Hamilton Fireman Suffers Injury

HAMILTON (CP) — A fire official suffered injuries to his left ear when he rushed to the melt shop at the Dominion Foundries and Steel Company, on Depew Street, early today. A fireman was injured when a metal object struck him on the head.

L. Leonard L. Reid was reported in fairly good condition, suffering from concussion.

Fred Redburn, chief security officer at the plant, said the building was said to contain electrodes for the furnaces, and bricks fell when the Donald Easter found smoke pouring from the building while making his rounds about 6:40 a. m.

St. Bernard Races to Get First Aid After Spaniel Pal Is Hit by Car

For "Toby" is a hero in the eyes of his little black cocker spaniel pal "Don."

The spaniel is the family pet of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sills, neighbors of son, Jack.

"Toby" never has been inseparable pals for over a year, a friendship that was broken up the other day when an accident laid "Don" low.

The two dogs were crossing the road with "Toby" leading the way when a car roared by. He heard a whimper of pain, turned and saw his pal lying bleeding in the road.

"Toby" never hesitated. He grasped "Don" by the neck and carried him back across the road, up the path to the Sills house, then decided to go for help.

He raced to where Jack Sills was working and tugged at his arm then walking away turned to get him to follow. Three times he did this before Sills went to where "Don" lay dying.

The spaniel was not seriously hurt, and will recover. "Toby" still misses his little chum. In fact every morning he goes to the window of the room where "Don" is recovering and scratches at it in an invitation to "come on out and play."

RCSCC 'Quinte' Members Enjoy Port Hope Visit

In an enjoyable departure from the syllabus of training, fifty-four officers and men of the 223 (The RCSCC "Quinte" Sea Cadets Corps spent Sunday at Port Hope in conjunction with the RCSCC "Skeena" Corps of the lakeside town.

The joint corps attended morning service at St. John's Anglican Church, where the Rev. T. Powell delivered a fine address based on the Bible as it applies to sea cadet training. He stressed honor and loyalty, drawing on the Scriptures for illustrative phrases.

Following the service and luncheon the corps enjoyed a sports program. In a basketball game the "Skeenas" defeated the "Quintes" 36-35 and in a second tilt the officers of both corps joined in defeating the other ranks 24-20. Also in deck hockey games, the leading seamen and able seamen of the two cadet corps defeated similar teams from the "Skeena."

The recruits' corps was transported to Port Hope via army transport under the command of Lieut. Garth Harding of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. Transport vehicles were made available thanks to the kind permission of Lieut.-Col. H. R. Widdifield, commanding officer of the regiment.

The "Skeenas" corps was under the command of Lieut. E. M. Creighton. His officers include Lieut. E. H. Budge and Sub-Lts. G. Brown and Mrs. Pasden. Lt. Harry Mackenzie commanded the "Quinte" corps and with him were the corps officers, Lt. R. Watson and Midshipmen E. Richards and Neil Judge.

Chief Petty Officer S. Shandraw, who has been long associated with the Sea Cadet Corps has severed his associations due to the age limit. The appointment of Leading Seaman Pat Brown to acting chief petty officer has been announced by Lieut. Mackenzie.

Sweden Sends Pope Medicine For His Hiccups

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Sweden has sent the Vatican a new medicine that Swedish doctors think might help Pope Pius XII end his hiccups bothering him for more than a week. But it is not known whether the medicine would be used.

Vatican sources reported the 77 year-old Pontiff is continuing to improve slowly. The hiccups resulting from a nervous stomach spasm almost, but not entirely, vanished, they said.

The drug is used to deaden the throat. It is not known definitely why this can cure some cases of hiccups.

Surgenor was taken to hospital suffering a fractured pelvis and fractured jaw. He was standing on the wing of the plane when the seat was ejected.

Could Settle France's Quarrel With Britain

MADRID (Reuters)—Gen. Francisco Franco's quarrel with Britain over Gibraltar could be settled if Spain will grant the lease of a naval dockyard at the rock bastion, a Madrid newspaper said today.

Writing in Hoja Oficial del Lunes, editor Pedro Gomez Aparicio said: "Gen. Franco in 1939 suggested a generous formula in an interview published in the London Sunday Times.

"This suggested Gibraltar should continue to be a free port and there should be negotiation for temporary leasing by Britain of the naval dockyard. Franco's offer showed the same sense of responsibility towards the western cause as did the agreements with the United States for the use of Spanish bases.

"With these agreements Spain has not hesitated to put her resources to those of other nations in the common interest in order to ensure the defence of Spanish sovereign territories which remain completely Spanish even though as could be the case in Gibraltar—geographically separated from the peninsula."

Franco has long demanded Gibraltar, held by Britain since 1713. Spain has made demonstrations—one made by students in Madrid, Barcelona and other Spanish cities last week.

Maj. Armstrong Jumps or Falls From Apartment

His body was found on a third-floor balcony.

It was learned the note expressed regret over his way of death, and stated his love for his wife.

Suspect Arson As Aged Man Dies In Edmonton Fire

EDMONTON (CP) — Suspicion of arson has resulted in an investigation of a 5-storey rooming-house fire early Sunday which claimed the life of an elderly man and sent at least 15 persons to hospital.

Provincial fire authorities and city police continued their search today for clues which might determine the cause of the fire which caused about $30,000 damage to an old wooden building on Jasper avenue.

The two upper floors were believed occupied by approximately 30 persons while the bottom floor was used by Reed's Auction Mart.

Fire Marshal Jack Booth said the fire had the "appearance of being of an incendiary nature."

William Lamont, 64, was asphyxiated.

Some occupants escaped through smoke and flame-filled halls to a rear fire escape. Five were reported to have been carried out unconscious.

RESIDENTS OF PARKWOOD HEIGHTS

THE FOLLOWING IS A LETTER RECEIVED FROM THE CITY SOLICITOR REGARDING THE RESIDENTIAL AREA OF PARKWOOD HEIGHTS

January 27th, 1954.

Alderman Arthur Keegan,
Chairman of Building,
City Hall,
BELLEVILLE, Ontario.

Dear Mr. Keegan:

With reference to your inquiry as to the possibility of Messrs. Black and Siegel building a Hotel on the Lots purchased by them recently from the City, I wish to advise that this area is restricted to one and two family dwellings and the block between Humewood Drive and the City Boundary to one and two family dwellings and Apartment Buildings.

From my experience with the Ontario Municipal Board, I am convinced that this by-law cannot be changed to allow a licensed hotel, or in fact any hotel to be erected on this property.

YOURS VERY TRULY,
ROBERT A. PRINGLE
City Solicitor.

A SENSIBLE SUGGESTION

Elsewhere on this page appears a letter from W. A. Watson containing a suggestion which deserves careful study and action.

Mr. Watson urges that the Belleville Board of Parks Management be given control over all city-owned lands between the harbor and the eastern city limits.

If his advice is followed, future generations of Belleville residents may rise up and call him blessed.

Mr. Watson is sensible to have Belleville avoid the necessity of facing, in the future, problems similar to those today confronting such cities as Toronto and Detroit.

It is easy to reply that Belleville is not as big as Toronto or Detroit and that it is extremely doubtful whether it will ever attain the present size of these cities. But it will ever attain the present size of these cities. But it will ever attain the present size of these cities. But that easy answer is not an adequate rebuttal of Mr. Watson's case. Most Belleville citizens will admit that this city is likely to grow. The amount of its growth may not be sufficient to elevate it to metropolitan status. But it will almost certainly be sufficient to create, unless we act now, problems similar to those now facing Toronto and Detroit in connection with their waterfronts.

While city ratepayers having authorized the construction of a sewage disposal plant, it is inevitable that Belleville will eventually have to take remedial action. When these plants are in operation and pollution of the waters of the Bay of Quinte is eliminated, it would be possible to provide Belleville residents with ideal summer playgrounds along the bay shore here. True, the Board of Parks Management already controls Zwick's Island and Victoria Park, as Mr. Watson notes, but this control will be nullified if the remainder of the waterfront is permitted to grow, like topsy, in some totally unrelated manner.

In one sense, of course, Mr. Watson's suggestion comes much too late. The sizable Belleville residents to derive the greatest possible benefits from the city's fortunate location. Any city planner, starting to lay out a new community, has such a plan almost certainly reserves a large shore-line for residential and parks purposes. But the location of the CPR line has ruined the shorefront as far as its development as a first-class residential area is concerned.

Similar handicaps face city planners in every Ontario community. Their existence, far from deterring them from seeking to prevent a multiplication of existing errors, ought to be regarded as additional evidence of the pressing necessity for clear-visioned action to build as well-planned a future as possible within the unavoidable framework of past errors.

In Belleville, we suggest, one of the first steps to assure a pleasant community in future years is to take some action regarding waterfront properties, after the pattern advocated by Mr. Watson.

THE TERRIBLE EQUATION

How much does a $500,000 a year man make? Silly question isn't it? And it deserves a silly answer—$22,400.

Unfortunately the joke is all too true. In Great Britain this year the $8 $500,000 a year men whose take-home pay is $22,400. In other words, these men keep about 2½ per cent of what they earn. The rest of it goes to the British treasury in taxes.

Several thousand people earned more than $36,000 last year but only 36 of them kept more than $16,800. Presumably they were the same 36 with the half million a year earnings.

This is abolishing the class system with a vengeance and making equality with a vengeance. It is hardly to be considered that a government is so impoverished that it must penalize its most gifted men in such drastic fashion.

One of the best investments any country can make is to encourage energetic, able men to work at the peak of their ability. These men will earn considerable in salaries and a wise government can collect, through them, will, if the taxes are imposed, reap a reward that ultimately will surpass the revenues to be obtained from exorbitant taxation for a short period. There are not many few men earning $500,000 a year who will continue to put forth their best efforts for $22,400. If the best efforts are not put into the top management and production departments of industry—and we presume that many of the top earners are in this group—then the businesses will decline with a subsequent loss to workers, supplies, and the country as a whole.

It is not for nothing that the business world pays top executives top salaries. They are worth it on a dollars and cents basis or they soon disappear. It is time that the government to tell an executive that he should produce $500,000 worth of service a year so that he can keep $22,400 is the surest way to stifle incentive and equate ability with mediocrity.

BELLEVILLE SKYSCRAPER MENACE

Tall buildings are always an additional hazard in the event of fire. If a bungalow burns, it spreads itself nearly over a comparatively small area, with probably no more than a brick or two venturing past the borders of the home grounds. But a skyscraper, if it fails, may fling parts of itself down many yards from home base.

Wednesday Belleville fire-fighters, both professional and amateur, realized that the skyscraper hazard has reached our city.

Skyscrapers in Belleville? Yes, not only in Belleville but in all communities, even hamlets, which lie within "telesight" of the peaks of major cities or of the U.S. border. Television aerials, towering from rooftops, add a new danger to the age-old, terrible hazards of fire.

"MONEY, MONEY"

It don't take long for a child to shout
That grandpas have money they carry about.
And it doesn't take long for the children to learn
That grandpas are soft when their parents are stern.

When father and mother have answered them: "No!"

The old fellow's easy. Beyond a doubt

After "mama" and "daddy" the next week they learn
Is "money" and for it to whom they may turn.
And it doesn't take long before grandfather knows
He must always have nickels when calling he goes.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

February 1, 1934

Forty years ago today Mr. Frank C. Sharpe entered the service of the Bank of Montreal here as messenger and he is still discharging his duties to the public and highly satisfactory manner. At the time he entered the service the bank office was situated at the corner of Hotel Street. (which is now Victoria Avenue) and Pinnacle Street. The late Robert Richardson was manager at the time.

Mr. O. H. Scott, manager of the Belleville Utilities Commission, has been elected a director of the Association of Municipal Electrical Utilities at a recent meeting in Toronto.

Mr. William Lafferty well-known resident of this city, has purchased from Mr. Norman Hall his billiard and tobacco business on Bridge east.

One permit for the alteration of a store on Front Street at an estimated cost of $300 saved the month of January from being a total loss as far as building permits issued by the city engineer is concerned. The month of December was a total blank. Not since January, 1925 has any construction in the city fallen to such a low level.

During January 1930 not a permit was issued and the previous months were very slim in permits. Highest total for the month of January during the past ten years was recorded in 1932 when a total of $2,500 was issued in permits. For 1933 the total was $600.

30 YEARS AGO

February 1, 1924

At the annual meeting of the Belleville District Rebekah-Prize-lan Club the following officers were elected: president, P. S. Dyer; vice-president; first vice president, A. T. Siretl, Brighton; second vice president, Mrs. Sidney Dempsey, Annaliasburg; secretary-treasurer, F. R. Mallory, Frankford; finance manager, J. A. Caskey, Madoc.

Mr. Geo. F. Ostrom has been elected a director of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce to succeed Mr. Jamieson Bone, who has resigned owing to his inability to devote sufficient time to the work of the board.

Mr. Hugh Middlemiss left today to spend some time in Toronto and Brantford.

Mrs. Benford and daughter, Violet, are visiting friends in Galt.

40 YEARS AGO

February 1, 1914

Mrs. William Mather of Stirling is visiting friends here.

Mrs. W. H. Bunnell of Marmora is visiting her sister, Mrs. B. Mallory, in this city.

Col. Rathbun of Deseronto was in town today.

Mr. Thomas Cox of Hamilton, formerly of Belleville, is spending a few days in town.

Mr. W. B. Northrup, K.C., M.P. will return to Ottawa tomorrow.

50 YEARS AGO

February 1, 1904

Belleville hockey team in an intermediate series game here defeated Picton, or the "Pea Canners" as they are some times called; the score at half time was 12 to 4 in favor of Belleville and the final score was 18 to 9 in favor of the Belleville boys. Probably the largest crowd of the season witnessed the game which made the Belleville team the champions of group 2. The boys will now put up a stiff fight for the provincial championship, leaving Picton and Peterborough to play off for the other medal.

The Rev. S. J. Shorey of Picton was in town today.

Walking Stick Tax Is Axed

(Montreal Gazette).

That warm gust that melted the snow yesterday wasn't a monsoon. It was a breath of relief given by millions of Englishmen when the tax on walking-sticks was cut to 5p per cent.

Why they went out of vogue here is not quite clear. The likelier explanation is that they're a little difficult to handle in snow or ice. And if you don't exercise your swagger twirl for months at a time it takes a lot of practice to get back into the swing of it.

The Englishman, of course, uses his stick all the year round. It is not the sign of a broken leg to him, any more than a monocle is a sign of myopia. His stick goes back, through the sword-cane, to the day when gentlemen were swords and fell undressed without them.

Ceylon Makes Stand Known

(Milwaukee Journal)

Independent Ceylon, the island at the tip of India, has been shipping rubber to Red China the last year in return for rice it desperately needs. It entered on the deal only after trying three times to effect similar arrangements with this country.

The trade agreement apparently gave the Chinese hope that Ceylon was "soft" toward communism. They probably saw a chance to break the ranks of free world unity. Peiping recently proposed sending a good will and trade mission to Ceylon.

The Ceylonese government said "no" — and didn't even add "thanks." Prime Minister Kotalawala of Ceylon announced publicly that the government would welcome no mission of any kind from Red China.

"I have sent a reply to the Chinese government stating clearly them that we have only a trade agreement," he declared in a public speech delivered in the London Times. "I said to the Chinese: 'We have not taken anything free from you. We sell you rubber and you sell us rice in return. Ceylon does not have any other friendship or dealing with Communist China, nor does she want to.'"

If there has been any doubt in the free world about what side Ceylon's sympathies are on in the struggle between freedom and communism, these words should quiet it.

Robin Flies Atlantic

(National Geographic Society Bulletin.)

The robin, that's the front lawn friend that delights in turning up in improbable places, now surprises us by a new and more surprising feat to its achievements: flying the Atlantic.

One arrived in the British Isles, where there was a mistaking it as an American robin, far bigger than its British namesake. It was sighted by an expert at the Lundy bird observatory, off the southwest coast of England.

No one can be absolutely sure how this American visitor got there, It could have hopped an easy ride on a ship.

But, robins have been found in odd places before. One once nested in the tail of a Navy bomber and survived a 1,700-mile flight. Robins have built homes atop a merry-go-round, in travelling toilets, on fence rails, gate posts, window ledges, and even on trolley wires.

Redbreasts are also capable of long flights from Newfoundland, Northern Quebec and Alaska to Southern United States.

Circumstances lend support to the theory that this robin actually spanned the ocean under its own power. It is 3,800 miles from Newfoundland to Lundy by a down wind route that existed on the day the bird was sighted there. Such a trip is considered within the capability of a migrating bird. Wind speed was 35 mph and, added to the 30-mph speed of the robin, means the winged wanderer could have arrived in about 54 hours.

It could have been a young bird, hatched in Summer and migrating for the first time. Young birds often prefer to follow their elders, and may lose contact and become confused.

What causes birds migrate and exactly what steers them are baffling questions. But understanding of the bird's direction-finding ability may explain the wrong-way journey.

It is now up to English bird watchers whether to list officially the Lundy visitor as one of the seven species recorded in Britain in isolated cases. These have included the American pectoral sandpiper and black-billed cuckoo, American duck-hawk, blue-winged teal, lesser scaup duck, American widgeon, ring-necked duck, buff-breasted sandpiper, American bittern, and many North American song-birds.

Dr. Bourne assumes the American robin will win such recognition.

Furthermore, the American Ornithologists' Union has recorded 21 American robins have been sighted in Cuba, Bermuda, and Atlantic Islands in the Bering Sea, Germany and Vienna. It does not contend that the birds always flew to these places.

There are records of two previous appearances in Britain: In western Kent in 1937 and on Dogger Bank in 1947. However, some observers have doubted that these birds flew all the way from their home-land.

Letter to the Editor

Timely Recreational Area Planning Urged

Ontario Intelligencer,

On Saturday last the Ontario Architects were invited to a distinguished gentleman, in the person of Mr. Clair W. Ditchy, president of the American Institute of Architects. Coming from Toronto he did on a panel discussion "Civic Centre Design," a red-hot topic in Toronto and other centres. Now in the central part of the city are all the buildings, which have to do with the voice of authority, because for a generation or two, the city has been planning of the heart of Detroit.

Can Belleville not take a page from the book of Detroit as well as from that of Toronto and look forward to the time when Belleville will need and can have these buildings, but avoiding the costly and in some cases irremediable mistakes of other large cities. Detroit is spending huge sums to recover only a portion of the waterfront, now of little interest in many ways to the people. The Belleville Board of Parks Management now has under its wing Zwick's Island and Victoria Park.

An extension of this authority over the waterfront as a civic auditorium and a recreational centre with ample parking and present necessities which time will make indispensable for a growing municipality.

W. A. Watson.

PLEASE MAKE IT PLAIN

A few evenings ago I went to a highly-advertised authority in a certain field of religion speak to a large group of students. He had been invited and introduced as one who is able to interpret Christianity to the student mind of this generation.

For an hour I watched a vain, pompous little man strut to and fro, and throughout the hour fail to say practically anything that would have commended Christianity to anybody. In that address he never once mentioned Jesus Christ. The only hopeful aspect of the evening came when the students appeared as bored and disgusted as did their elders. Had I had the talent, I could think only of one thing: "Jesus make His message so plain to His hearers; His messengers sometime make it so complicated and difficult."

The generation to which Jesus spoke had its full share of self-righteous Pharisees as long back as they could remember, and then were utterly sick of the whole stupid performance. When they first heard Jesus they acted out in exhilaration saying, "He speaks as one having authority, and not as the scribes."

Jesus' Lord's simple stories and practically put lessons have outlasted all the lofty talk of philosophers. Through the ages Why in heaven's name cannot people who talk and write about religion take a page out of the Gospels for their guidance?

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SMILES AND SMILES

A genuine smiling face is somewhat like a universal ambassador of good will, no matter whose face gives it expression. But there is one smile that is contagious. In the town where I live a fellow has been mercilessly kidded. He's called himself "The Smiling Irishman" and has lived up to it. Now you feel a desire to do business with him.

There is there is the maternal smile —something unique—that only a mother can create. A smile that comes right out from the heart, just like the unfolding of a flower in the sunlight. Dogs don't smile but they have a substitute—a bark that expresses joy. Cats don't. The world of meaning is each.

It is recorded nowhere that Jesus ever smiled, but he must have done so when he said: "Suffer the little children to come unto me, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." And from all the portraits and photographs of Lincoln I have yet to discover one of him smiling. But he was fond of quoting various humorists that it should be impossible for him to read graduate smiles into the laughter that he must have known him on to have told about.

There is a smile that is none too —the smile of the defeated. It belongs to all those who have done their best and failed. And what is the true sportsman's smile. Not only does it contain some of the spirit of a smile, but also on the faces of the defeated. It is the smile of courage and spiritual wellbeing.

Personal Health Talks

SOMETHING TO HELP THAT WINTER COUGH

Any one with winter cough or chronic bronchial trouble should do hope this won't spoil the but, knowing you as I do, I'm afraid you'll regard it as a wild-eyed radical effort to protect bronchial tubes or any "weak lungs" if you never got beyond the fifth grade, should make it a rule of health to wear only enough clothing for comfort under any and all circumstances, and never wear a stitch more than is necessary for physical (not mental) comfort under any circumstances.

No, I decline to argue with you about this. I'm the doctor, and I'm telling you. Just take it or leave it. And that starts the old almanac delusctions about "exposure" to cold and dampness, or some chance a ray of light has penetrated the dark recesses of your cerebrum and the solution enabled you to see the humor in the pantics of the fashion plates dodging drafts and worrying about dampness or dress in weather and all that twaddle.

There is one more remedy, and effective as well as palliative, I prescribe for every house, apartment, office, store, church, auditorium, room, hotel, restaurant, shop or other room or building where people congregate, or homes live, congregate, play, work, eat or sleep. It is humidification. The average room is guilty of moisture to the artificially dry air. And it is definitely true that everybody wherever any kind of artificial heat is used suffers from the difference whether the place be heated by coal, wood, oil or gas furnace, stoves, or radiators, and whether the method is hot air, hot water, steam or radiant heating, although radiant heating is always the method of choice as far as health and hygiene are concerned.

James Muir, president of the Royal Bank of Canada, has achieved widespread recognition as one of the following remarks which have been republished widely all over Canada and also in the United States and Britain.

"Nothing could be more dangerous than the bland assumption that as a people we Canadians are finished the world with the superiority of our character and economic position. Have we not, perhaps, our situation is akin to that of the heiress of old, after he sure that she is admired for herself and not merely for her wealth. One of the penalties of natural resources is an inheritance which, like all unearned income, is evidence of good fortune than talent. We have still to prove that we can make the most of these natural resources by the building of character. Still we prove ourselves, it is safer I think to proceed on the assumption that our popularity abroad is based on what we are as on what we have."

This is a very shrewd comment. It is also extremely timely at this portant point. I have frequently met hundreds and know of many thousands and possibly tens of thousands, of Americans, almost all English, Scottish, French, Belgian, Italian, German, especially Germans who know more about Canada's wealth of resources and who have the highest respect for the character and accomplishment of Canadians, and who think this opinion for forty long years.

It is true these men of other lands are not interested in the level of bankers and big business-men, economists or even politicians. Perhaps most of them are on the humble side of affairs but they are the men, the countless men of those nations abroad whose opinion of us is most widely shared with the rest.

They are the men of two generations who fought with or against us in war. And with all modesty it is a traveller rather than as a fellow soldier, I must declare that these men, by their name, sometimes I think even a noble name far richer than the world's wealth have before we became involved in our recent ten year business boom.

Price Selves Out of Market

(Philadelphia Bulletin).

Bricklayers in the St. Louis area are belatedly discovering that they have priced themselves out of the market. Builders there are turning to substitutes, particularly in factory construction, because of the high costs.

Since the end of the war St. Louis bricklayers have been able to insure wage hikes. As a result there was much overtime, and restrictive practices were put into effect which, for example, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reports, a bricklayer told any 200 bricks a day, though the average for the area is about 1,000.

Metal, plastic and corrugated asbestos are being used as brick substitutes on many jobs. Several large home builders are likewise employing substitutes.

The wage rate in St. Louis is $3.90 an hour for commercial work; for the steady worker it is only 35 hours, the bricklayers have been putting in nine hours daily, six days a week. Saturday work now is double time, the nine hours for that day bringing a man $70.20. Take for six days would be $385.

Mystery Slasher Attacks Two New Victims

MONTREAL (CP)—Police say that the latest victims of the slasher, furtive figure who cuts women's legs with a razor, have been complicated by crackpots and publicity-seekers.

Four of the attacks were reported during the week-end, but police said they considered only two of those "authentic."

In all, the unofficial count of slasher' attacks since 10 days ago—when they began—is 12. But police attribute only 12 of them to the man they describe as "a maniac." Medical authorities have expressed the opinion he is a "sex deviate."

During the week-end, two women reported they had been attacked for the second time, but the police said that is highly unlikely.

They said some persons even have surrendered to the slasher, leaving to be the slasher in the hope of striking another victim.

"We have to investigate these so-called second attacks," said one officer. "But it is most unlikely that of all the women in Montreal the slasher would attack one, let alone two, for the second time."

Police Detective J. Albert Langlois made a radio appeal Friday night asking for a "wave of calm" sweeping the city. In line with his statement, officers in charge of the case said they will no longer give the names of the victims.

HORN INTRUMENT

Women and girls of all ages have been targets of the attacks in many widely-separated parts of the city. Police have said at least one other assailant has been at work besides the slasher. Also, many of the injuries were trivial, easily self-inflicted, for "publicity purposes."

Most of the attacks occurred at streetcar stops, women being cut about the legs as they boarded the vehicles.

Wounds sometimes have required more than 20 stitches to close, but most were much smaller. Several times women have said they were knocked brutally to the ground, but the attacks are usually swift and silent. At least twice the assailant has laughed in the face of his victims.

Four Severely Injured Near Peterborough

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A Guelph automobile went out of control on the Peterborough-Port Hope highway Sunday and was hit broadside on by a Peterborough car.

Nine persons were injured, four severely.

Police said the Guelph car was driven by Wesley Pavy, 44, who suffered broken ribs but was discharged from hospital after treatment.

Douglas Holland, 23, of Guelph, suffered a fractured pelvis and concussion, while his 20-year-old wife, Irma, also suffered a fractured pelvis, a fractured collarbone and concussion. Condition of both was described as "serious."

CHILDREN INJURED

Injured in the other car were James Cook, 38, of Peterborough, his wife; and their children, David, 7, Judy, 4, and Peggy, 3. All suffered concussion and other injuries and Mr. and Mrs. Cook and David were reported in serious condition.

Police said the crash occurred on Highway 28 at Scott's Corners, about five miles south of here. They said there was two feet of snow on either side of the road but the surface was centre-bare.

Investigators said the Cook car apparently was bound for Peterborough while the Pavy car was headed away from here.

Train Engineers To Drop Fight Against Seaway

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Guy L. Brown, head of the International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, announced Saturday night that his union is dropping its fight against the St. Lawrence seaway.

"For 25 years our brotherhood, along with other units of railroad labor and the railways themselves have opposed the seaway" Brown said.

"Now I am convinced that it is a futile battle and we will spend no more time or money on a lost cause. Instead we will work and seek to get the railways to work to take advantage of the development and to profit from the changes in business which are bound to result from this new service."

Emanuel Bloch Found Dead In Apartment

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawyer Emanuel Bloch, who led the long, bitter and futile defence of atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, was found dead Saturday in his Manhattan apartment.

An autopsy fixed a heart attack as the cause of death. A friend discovered the body after Bloch had spent the night alone.

Proceedings had been brought by the New York State Bar Association for his denouncement of President Eisenhower and other government officials who refused to stay the executions of the Rosenbergs last June 19.

Bloch, who often in his career found himself pleading cases involving civil rights and occasionally the defended of "left-wingers," represented the Rosenbergs throughout the litigation that preceded their deaths.

Five Countries To Start Work On New Cartridge

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada and four other countries of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization have agreed to start production of the 30-calibre cartridge, adopted earlier as a standard round.

Belgium, Britain, France and the United States joined Canada in the agreement. The cartridge fits the Belgium-made FN-3 automatic rifle which Canada is expected to approve soon as standard infantry weapon instead of the .303 Enfield rifle.

The defence department announced Sunday the agreement was signed here Friday at a meeting among representatives of the five countries. They agreed to technical specifications, tolerances and minimum performance characteristics of the cartridge. However, manufacturing techniques were left to individual preference.

Canadian Dollar Climbing Again

By ARTHUR MERIDIS

NEW YORK (AP) — Canada's currency is climbing again. Not since Canada's dollar was worth more than the U.S. dollar at the foreign exchange counter, but the premium has been rising steadily since the first of the year.

Last week Canada's dollar advanced to more than a three-cent margin when matched with an American bill. It's the highest premium since mid-December of 1953. Some financial experts wonder if it will soon challenge the nearby record of 104 11-32 cents, set Aug. 13, 1952.

What's behind the rise in the value of the Canadian dollar? Basically, it's due to the huge and growing influx of United States capital into Canadian industry, New York financial circles say.

Many U.S. companies have set up subsidiaries in Canada. Especially since the start of the Korean war, U.S. oil and mining concerns have wanted to ensure a ready supply of raw materials in the Northern Hemisphere. Other fields of U.S. investment include wood and pulp industries, food processing and autos. Just recently, Ford Motor Co. of Canada, began a $70,000,000 dollar expansion program.

U.S. institutions diversify their investments by purchasing Canadian securities. Three U.S. mutual funds purchase solely Canadian securities. Their managers must go to the foreign exchanges, where dollars are traded like stocks or commodities, to purchase currency.

Strike Is Averted On Busiest Railroad

NEW YORK (AP)—Service on the Long Island Rail Road was normal today after a last-minute hour a greement Saturday night which cancelled the threat of a strike against the world's busiest commuter line.

Some 1400 members of the Independent Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen had set a strike deadline of 4 a. m. EST Sunday over a wage-labor dispute with the bankrupt road.

The walkout would have crippled transportation facilities for 150,000 weekday commuters to and from Manhattan. The line operates 600 trains daily.

British Soldier Tarred, Feathered Chained to Post

BELFAST (AP)—Irish Nationalists tarred and feathered a British soldier here Saturday night and chained him to a lamp post.

The soldier, Walter Mercer of Belfast was home on leave from duty in Britain's east African colony of Kenya.

"Black and Tans" is the name the Irish gave British soldiers sent to Ireland during home rule riots in the 1920s.

Mercer was released by police and taken to hospital for treatment and removal of the tar.

The Irish Republican Army, an outlawed organization which demands independence for Northern Ireland from Britain, admitted "full responsibility" for that attack in letters to Belfast newspapers.

BOY SURVIVES ORDEAL

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — An eight-year-old boy, missing in a blinding snowstorm for almost 24 hours, was dug out from under a six-foot drift Sunday—unconscious but alive. Masahito Kobayashi's body temperature was reported down to 78.9 degrees but he recovered quickly.

CUT BY BEER GLASS

TORONTO (CP) — Thirty-two stitches were needed to close wounds police said were caused by a broken beer glass that was rammed into the face of Robert Hipkins during an argument Saturday night between Hipkins and three other men in a west-end tavern. MARMORA

St. Andrew's W. M. S. Elects 1954 Officers

MARMORA — The annual congregational meeting of St. Andrew's United Church was held on Thursday evening under the presidency of the pastor, Rev. K. J. Crawford, B.A., B.D. The meeting was opened with a Scripture reading and prayer. W. F. Tupper took the minutes.

The report of Session, due to the illness of S. Sandham, was not forthcoming. The pastor gave in its place such information as was known to him, mentioning that the membership was around 200.

There had been four administrations of the sacrament of Holy Communion and 20 baptisms had taken place in Marmora.

ELDERS RE-APPOINTED

The retiring elders were reappointed for a three-year term, namely: H. O. Loveless, A. Sweet, T. Hannah, J. Sproul and W. Tupper. Regretting to Stewards, D. P. Marelt and V. Glover received re-election and Earl Blinch, Harold Olsen, George Osborne and Granville Meikljohn were elected for a three-year term.

The treasurer's report as given by A. W. Drew was most encouraging. Receipts for the year reached almost $7200 and with obligations being met, close to $500 remained as a balance.

J. Sproul reported for the Missionary and Maintenance Fund. With total receipts over $1139, the year's allocation, which was ten per cent over that of 1952, had been met.

The question of fire insurance was introduced. A. W. Drew reported that more had been placed on the church and made the suggestion that more should be placed on the parsonage contents.

E. Stubbs spoke of the responsibility of having the church evaluated.

S.S. REPORT

The Sunday School report was given by E. C. Prentice, its superintendent for the past twenty years. He said that there were 93 members on the roll, and the average attendance each Sunday was 69. He paid deserving tribute to the staff of loyal teachers. He said he had tendered his resignation to the Session, but was not adverse to working for the Sunday School in case of emergency. The question of his successor was left with the Session.

Mr. Prentice was accorded a hearty vote of thanks on motion of Dr. Sandham, seconded by W. Sabine.

Mrs. T. J. Bateman and Mrs. F. R. Wells shared the reporting for the Women's Association. The former mentioned the operation of the four circles and said the Association was a whole for the monthly meetings last year. She referred to the fact that membership had sustained in the death of a valued member in the person of Mrs. T. Hannah.

Mrs. Wells touched upon the financial side of the work. Receipts were shown to be well over $2000. Two main expenditures were the wiring of $600 to the church board and slightly over $300 was allocated to the manse.

Mrs. W. Tupper gave the report of the Women's Missionary Society, which has thirteen members and two associate members. It had met its allocation of $105.

Rev. K. J. Crawford gave the report of St. Andrew's Y.P.U.

EVERY FAMILY PLAN

It was decided to use the Every Family Plan in connection with the United Church Observer for another year, it being regarded as a worthwhile investment.

The meeting was concluded with the minister's report. He said he had made 560 pastoral calls in the whole charge, which includes Cordova and Zion churches in addition to St. Andrew's during the 18-month period he has been on the charge. In 1953 he had officiated at 14 marriages, 13 burials and 28 baptisms.

The meeting, having closed with the benediction, refreshments were served.

Comedian Gleason Suffers Severe Injury to Ankle

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedian Jackie Gleason suffered a severe injury to his foot and ankle Saturday night when he slipped on a wet spot on the stage during his Broadway-televised show.

A medical report showed he had a fracture of the right foot, and all ligaments in the ankle were torn, with "separation of the ankle joint and fracture of the posterior lip of the tibia, causing a haemorrhage of the ankle." A cast was placed on his leg.

A CBS spokesman said Gleason slipped because the stage floor was wet, from melted dry ice, which had been used to create steam for one of the sketches in the show.

At the time of the accident, Gleason was about to play a practical joke in a skit called "The Wedding Present," a satire on the old silent films.

JOSE—MESSER

White chrysanthemums adorned the altar of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville, on Saturday, January 30, at 2:30 p.m., when the Reverend Canon Robinson, rector of the church, united in marriage Miss Elizabeth Hope Messer, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Messer, to William Carlton Jose, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jose.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her floor-length bridal gown of white nylon net over white satin accented by inserts of French lace. Her fingertip veil of white illusion was held in place by a corsage consisting of white roses and bugle beads, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Miss Maxine Hall, of Point Anne, was maid of honor, attired in pink nylon net over pink satin fashioned in floor-length. She wore a matching headdress and carried a nosegay of pink and white 'mums.

The bridesmaids were Miss Alice Jose, of Belleville, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Sheila Turner, of Picton. Both wore floor-length gowns; the former in yellow nylon net over satin, with matching headdress. They carried nosegays of Sweetheart roses and white baby 'mums.

Little Carol Michael, niece of the bride, was flower girl, sweet in her floor-length frock of pale mauve organdy with matching floral headdress, and carrying a tiny nosegay of Sweetheart roses and white pom 'mums.

Mr. William R. Messer, of Belleville, brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom, while Mervin Jose, of Picton, brother of the bridegroom, and Albert Wallbridge, both of Belleville, acted as ushers.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held in the church parlors, which were prettily decorated for the occasion with pink and white streamers and white bells.

The bride's table was appropriately appointed with white damask, centred with a three-tiered wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom, and flanked by tall, white tapers in crystal holders and vases of red roses and white carnations.

The bride's mother received, wearing navy crepe with white and navy nylon accessories; corsage of pink and white carnations. In the receiving line assisted the bridegroom's mother, who wore navy crepe with white nylon and red and navy accessories and corsage of white and pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to Toronto, Niagara Falls and points in the United States, the bride chose a blue dress with navy accessories and light blue topcoat. Mr. and Mrs. Jose will reside in Belleville upon their return.

Small Flower Prints, Short Skirts for Paris Fashion Show

By NADEANE WALKER

PARIS (AP) — Blue and pink multi-color small flower prints and short skirts—there 'you have a thumbnail sketch of what is promised at the new Paris fashion shows opening today.

Chanel's contribution is the big news of the spring season. At nearly 70 she refused to retire, defeated champion, to offer the first serious competition for the world's fashion crown since Dior won it in 1947 by a knockout — the new look.

Although Fath and Heim lead off with the first openings today, fashion fiends are eagerly awaiting next Friday when "Coco" Chanel will show her wares after 15 years in retirement.

Dior promises "round the world" fashions, the same just-below-the-knee length he showed Paris with last season, a waist at the waistline but with eye-fooling fullness in everything but satin; shades of blue and pink.

Fath — simple, shortened shirts with illusion effect, a silhouette which moulds the figure from bust to hip and then lets itself go. Pinks and blues.

Balmain has dreamed up two lines "keyhole" (tight fitting) for daytime and "double doors" (just the opposite) for evening. It's all in the interest of making women look tall and slim.

Desses has whispered to somebody that some of his hems will measure about 9 yards in circumference. But because they go in for eye-fooling, they'll look slim, while some straight models will look full. Things are not what they seem"- might be the new motto.

In general, nearly everybody is expected to fall in line with Dior's new length. Necklines are expected to be generously low.

designer claims this will do wonders in slimming not-so-wonderful figures. Pale wine, shiefly blue, pink and beige, will be featured.

A 'REVIVAL' LOOK

Heim—has a trumpet line up his sleeve which sounds something like Fath's. Lots of sudden fullness below the hips; long bodices and jackets; loose, collared necklines widened towards the shoulders; multi-colored pastel flower prints; flowered coat linings matching dresses.

Ballerina Dances Around Sick Issue

Ballerina Eva Von Gencsy of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet troupe, was reported to have a "48 - hour flu" which prevented a presentation of the ballet at Sudbury, Ont., under the sponsorship of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' Union.

Miss Von Gencsy answered questions on her health by saying if the managers of the ballet "say I have the flu, then I have." But union officials say the ballet wished to avoid the Sudbury presentation because of pressure from the U.S., where the union is labelled as Communist. — Central Press Canadian.

Fashion Flashes

ONE OF THE STARS of the spring fashion show is sure to be the good silk coat done on fitted lines. Store buyers are ordering it in all price ranges. Navy blue ribbed silk makes a handsome coat on fitted princess lines. A high-waisted look is achieved by a flange under the bustline.

SOMETHING OF A NOVELTY is the sleeved bathing suit. It appears in several versions in a few of the high-waisted fashions and is getting a few buyer-nibbles. Elasticized wool jersey in a basket weave is used for one swim suit made with deep, curved neckline and short sleeves. It has a white elastic belt with a gold buckle and comes in navy.

THE MISTY BEAUTY of Norwegian blue fox makes it particularly right for spring wear. Some of the newest skins are smartly combined with fabric, such as a straight fur stole matched and bordered with silk taffeta. The fur is pointed at the ends, where there are pockets.

WE DON'T KNOW how our manufacturers do it, but they certainly manage to turn out wonderful clothes at bargain prices. A complete ensemble, including jacket, skirt, blouse or sleeveless top vest, adds up to a spring wardrobe package priced at less than thirty dollars. Such ensembles will be a feature of spring promotions and are grand buys.

HANDS OUT for a new crop of cold weather gloves now in the stores. A handsome shortie is of white wool jersey finished with black, with three bands of washable black velvet trimming the back. Nice for wear right into spring.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IT TAKES TWO REASONABLE PEOPLE TO MAKE A HAPPY MARRIAGE

There are so few people in the world who are sensible enough to look ahead and consider a possible marriage in the light of the future, that it comes as something of a shock when someone actually does this.

The person I have in mind at the moment is a young woman in her early twenties who is engaged to a young man of the same age. They do not plan marriage for another year or so, and this seems to me very fortunate indeed. For she has a problem, and the commonsense to recognize it, and, as I see it, her only chance of ever solving it, is to take plenty of time to think it over in the light of what her young man is likely to do about it; being his problem first, and hers second.

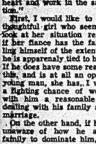
Her statement on the problem is this:

"My fiance has lived all of his life at home with his parents, who are now elderly but in fair health, hemmed over him. They own their own home, have their own income, and have three other children to rest in home no older than my fiance, and two other members of the family are my fiance's grandmothers.

"All of the family dote on this man I am engaged to. When anything is to be done, or any care to go where it is up to him to see that they are taken where they want to go and called for at the time they set. Nothing is ever said to me as to what I'll be convenient for me or fits in with our plans for the evening.

"We are planning—to build our own home within the next few years, but I am afraid to build only a short distance from his own home. They say that my home is in another city gets no consideration whatever. I don't mind this too much, since I would rather not be too close to my home anyhow. Don't misunderstand me, my parents and I get along fine. It's just that I've been away from home making my own living for quite some time.

TOO DEMANDING FAMILY



"What worries me is the fact that my fiance's people are so demanding of his time, considering my fiance's time and life. Do you think I should speak to him about it, or just that he break all family ties within reason and give him up entirely? It wouldn't be easy to give him up, but I don't want to marry him and then have everything end in a divorce. We are of the same station in life, go to the same church, have the same interests at height and work in the same vocation."

First, I would like to ask this thoughtful young woman able to look at her situation realistically, if her fiance has the faculty of taking himself of the extent to which he is apparently tied to his family? If she does have some realization of this, and is at all an open-minded young lady, she would say, a fighting chance of working out with him a reasonable plan for dealing with his family after their marriage.

On the other hand, if he is quite unaware of how he allows his family to dominate him, and is not the type of person who might be unwilling to see it after a reasonably deepish resent it, if the fact was presented to him, then I can see nothing but discouragement and unhappiness if these two were to marry. In that course, would be especially true if he insisted on having their home built so near to his own family home. The fact that he seems to be set on this makes one suspect that he may be the second type of young man rather than the first.

There seems no doubt that the young woman is considerably more mature than her fiance. She has been independent of her own family for some time, while he has remained subservient to his. She, therefore, is fully ready to enter upon the business of setting up her parents, which is as it should be, while he evidently is not.

If this chap is truly in love with his girl; if he has the ability to grow up; and if she is diplomatic enough all the same to help him see what a mistake it would be for them to live close by his family and for him to continue the kind of relationship with them that he has always had, their marriage should have a good chance of working out successfully. But, if after a reasonable period of consideration and discussion he shows no signs of changing his attitude, then I feel sure she had better let him go his own way, and find a reasonable people to make a happy marriage; one cannot do it alone.

Dinner at Peady's

By Mary Moore

In a certain city far, far away from where we are lives a lady who writes that she reads this column faithfully—not to read my words of wisdom (?) so much but for any chance reference I might make to my sister, Peady.

In our family there are a variety of opinions about being quiet as guinea pigs for my food experiments, and cozy for my columns. Peter and Marianne do a minimum of cooking and a maximum of tasting, and get into the act often, much to their delight. Peady does a maximum of cooking but seldom is mentioned here because—well she doesn't want to be a character in print that is.

Today is Peady's birthday and I am taking liberties.

This lady to whom I refer—Initials R. Mc—would love to know about the dinner Peady served to us last night, because it was a year ago when they both lived in Montreal often she was a guest in Peady's gracious home. There is always candlelight, a crackling wood fire, excellent food—the best of all—music.

It was zero last night outside but inside we were warm, mellow and starving hungry, for it was 7:30 p.m., and none of us had relished our work in time to dine earlier.

When we sat down to dinner it was certainly worth waiting for.

Oyster Stew
Smoked Fillets Haddie Baked in Cream Sauce
Baked Potatoes
Winter Salad
Applesauce Coffee

Simple-sounding isn't it? But when Peady cooks a meal you get the simplest foods become elegant.

OYSTER STEW

To serve four heat in top of double boiler 2 1-2 cups whole milk with 2 tablespoons very fine cracker crumbs to gelding point. Add 1-2 pint oysters and their juice (or 1 whole pint if this is to be the main dish of your meal) and 2 tablespoons butter, 3-4 teaspoon salt, shake of pepper, and heat until oysters are fully plumped.

FINNAN HADDIE BAKED IN CREAM SAUCE

Buy finnan haddie from the thickest part of the thickest fillet you can select in the fish store. Two pieces Peady bought cost 70c and must have weighed between 2 and 3 lbs. She makes a white sauce by melting 3 tablespoons butter, stirring in 3 tablespoons flour, then 1 1-2 cups milk until thick. Add pepper—no salt. Place finnan haddie cut into four generous thick pieces in baking dishes for which you have a cover. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. about 1 hour. The potatoes had been put in oven previous to the haddie and at a higher temperature.)

WINTER SALAD

One small carrot finely shredded, 1-2 head lettuce coarsely shredded, 1-4 cup grated pared and finely chopped, about 1-4 of a small cucumber unpeeled but sliced in wafer-thin slices. Mayonnaise.

APPLESAUCE

Because all of us try to reduce perennially Peady makes applesauce from Spy apples; seasons it with a little cinnamon and sweetens it with 2 scanty tablespoons of sugar to a tablespoon warm water. We love it.

How's that for a little dietetic feast of Peady's, Eva?

GET RID OF THAT SPARE CHIN

The woman who has an extra chin, for whatever reason she has whatsoever and for which she has a hellingder kind, should not feel that her good looks have vanished forever. She can, if she will, rout those two chins into one. What a normal chin is about to take unto itself is a matter of wariness—in the form of a little crossbow fortified with a bit of fullness of flesh just below it. That is the time to start the fight against a double chin.

After a face-washing to bring the blood to the face, and after a thorough drying, spread on a heavy coating of cream. Use the lower part of the neck upward, sweeping the finger tips along the jaw line. After that, with the fingers curled, roll it firmly between thumb and fingers. Keep working to reduce those budding fat cells into a pliable, workable mass.

So far, so good. But more must be done. Throw the head back, and, with the palms the muscles of the neck, slap the flesh briskly to and fro. Continue this to avoid a flabby condition that might ensue, and then, as the muscles of the neck will give tone to the tissues and fibers. Chin straps help if they are worn to reduce the number of layers of gauze that have been dipped in an astringent. This treatment should be given just before retiring. In the morning have a cold water rinsing, apply an astringent and let it dry. In half an hour a light cream can be applied and make-up high lights on.

There is a simple exercise that will strengthen the interlacing fibers that extend downward from the jaws to the throat. Stand tall, chest lifted. Throw the head back. Open the mouth wide, dropping the lower jaw as far as you can, then bring the head upward with a hard muscle pull.

HOW DO YOU FEEL RIGHT NOW?

If you never know what it is to feel off-colour and "dragged-out" when this message is not for you. But if you are like most of us and suffer those days when it's just plain drudgery to keep up that same pace, the first thing to remember is that those dull, weary, under-the-weather days are probably unnecessary. The first thing to do is to find the real cause of trouble lies in a sluggish system that needs some help. That's where Kruschen can help. Kruschen Salts are based on the principles similar to those of well-known Mineral Springs and are just what lazy kidneys need to stimulate action. Kruschen is mild and sure for common constipation too. So altogether they are just the ticket for you the very next day you wake up feeling seedy. Just a tiny dose in your morning coffee. About as much as will heap on a dime.

GET RID OF THAT SPARE CHIN

The woman who has an extra chin, for whatever reason she has whatsoever and for which she has a hellingder kind, should not feel that her good looks have vanished forever. She can, if she will, rout those two chins into one. What a normal chin is about to take unto itself is a matter of wariness—in the form of a little crossbow fortified with a bit of fullness of flesh just below it. That is the time to start the fight against a double chin.

After a face-washing to bring the blood to the face, and after a thorough drying, spread on a heavy coating of cream. Use the lower part of the neck upward, sweeping the finger tips along the jaw line. After that, with the fingers curled, roll it firmly between thumb and fingers. Keep working to reduce those budding fat cells into a pliable, workable mass.

So far, so good. But more must be done. Throw the head back, and, with the palms the muscles of the neck, slap the flesh briskly to and fro. Continue this to avoid a flabby condition that might ensue, and then, as the muscles of the neck will give tone to the tissues and fibers. Chin straps help if they are worn to reduce the number of layers of gauze that have been dipped in an astringent. This treatment should be given just before retiring. In the morning have a cold water rinsing, apply an astringent and let it dry. In half an hour a light cream can be applied and make-up high lights on.

There is a simple exercise that will strengthen the interlacing fibers that extend downward from the jaws to the throat. Stand tall, chest lifted. Throw the head back. Open the mouth wide, dropping the lower jaw as far as you can, then bring the head upward with a hard muscle pull.

POLICE STRIVING

Guy Cote, Montreal.
Rita D'Amato, 45, Montreal.
Gaston Bourgon, 28, Trois-Rivieres.

Cedile Comeau, 22, Trois-Rivieres
Monique Gendron, 21, Montreal.
A 12th victim, Miss Gertrude Masson, 25, of Montreal, was identified by police. The coroner, however, withheld positive confirmation until the arrival of relatives from Montreal.

ON STRAIGHT ROAD

The accident occurred on a straight stretch of road, cleared in the centre and icy on the sides. It was a clear night.

The auto - transport, travelling light from Quebec to Cornwall, crashed into the front left hand corner of the Quebec-bound bus, ripped along the side and came to rest against the emergency door. Flames engulfed both vehicles almost immediately.

Many of the passengers were trapped in their seats or knocked unconscious by the collision. Their charred remains were found when the rubble was emptied at the morgue in Trois-Rivieres, where the bus was taken.

Others died, frantically trying to force open the emergency door.

Plante, the driver of the transport, said he couldn't explain the cause of the crash.

"I don't know if it was the bus or my transport that was at fault," he told reporters from his hospital bed. "I don't think I took too much of the road."

WENT INTO SNOWBANK

Bruneau, the bus driver, said he remembered seeing the truck veer towards him and ram the bus.

"The bus was swung partly sideways and went halfway through a high snowbank on the right of the road," he said. "There were two or three deafening explosions, then the whole place seemed to be in flames."

"I was reading when suddenly I felt something crash into the side of the bus," Jacques Auger, 46, of Rosemount, Montreal, said. "The bus crashed into the ditch and I saw smoke spurting from the dead."

"I was in the second seat from the back of the bus. I got out by feeling my way along the seats bordering the aisle. I couldn't see. I was blinded with smoke and blood from a cut on my forehead. I finally came to the front door and fell into the snow."

SCREAMING STOPPED

Claude Paquette, an ambulance driver on his way from Trois-Rivieres to Berthierville, west of here, was following a short distance behind the auto-transport when it crashed into the bus.

"There was a blinding sheet of flames and the roar of an explosion. Black, oily smoke poured up and the screaming voices stopped one by one. The driver was sobbing with the pain of being pinned behind the wheel.

Brother Alfred Marcel of the Roman Catholic seminary at nearby Pointe du Lac, Que., pulled two persons from the wreckage. He was in a second coach following a short distance behind the doomed vehicle.

Other passengers aboard the second coach doused the flames with snow in time to save Bruneau and pry him loose from the steering wheel.

All through the afternoon and evening grim-faced little bands then passed along the tables where the bodies were laid out. At intervals sobs of grief echoed through the one-storey building, signalling the identification of another victim.

In some cases the blackened, dismembered torsos were unrecognizable and identification was made through jewelry or fragments of clothing recovered from the bus.

Civilian Spending Is Major Headache of Budget Balancers

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A rise in the civilian portion of government spending has turned into a major problem for federal experts trying to find ways of balancing next year's budget.

Defence requirements for the 1954-55 fiscal year may be less, perhaps down as much as $100,000,000 from the 1953-54 allotment of $2,000,000,000.

But this decline, which might otherwise be passed along to the taxpayer in the form of some tax concessions, likely will be eaten up by heavier civilian commitments.

With Canada's population rising, the number of babies and old folks are increasing, causing heavier outlays for family allowances and old-age pensions.

Inflation, rooted in the Korean war, brought with it higher interest rates, boosting interest charges on Canada's public debt.

The cost of maintaining the federal-provincial tax rental agreements is increasing, causing a heavier drain on the treasury.

Pay boosts recently have been granted for Canada's fighting forces and federal civil servants. These also will require heavier outlays in 1954-55, augmented by prospective indemnity increases for cabinet ministers, members of Parliament and senators.

Adding to budget-planning headaches is Premier Duplessis' proposed Quebec provincial income tax which, if implemented, will cut into federal revenues by, perhaps, $15,000,000 in the next fiscal year.

Thus, treasury officials have been urging departmental heads again and again to cut their 1954-55 money requirements as much as possible.

A few departments anticipate reductions. The defence production department, for example, is tapering off its capital assistance for defence industries. In the last budget, it asked Parliament for some $59,000,000 for this purpose. The amount it will ask in Finance Minister Abbott's 1954-55 budget will be vastly smaller.

But the experts are finding it hard to steer around the evident rise in civilian spending. And thus they anticipate another $4,500,000,000 budget for the next fiscal year, at least as large as the one for the current year, and perhaps even a little larger.

PETES ON TOP!

The flags are flying high in Perdueville; the buttons are bustin' off Jim Ellis' shirt; forgotten for the nonce are the Trail-ermen changes of copping their third Memo Cup in a row and even the long-delayed construction of the new community centre is tossed temporarily into the discard.

For the flaming Petes, who have been riding the crest of a feet-game winning wave, reached the heights Saturday night with a 4-3 defeat of the heretofore pace-setting Oshawa Truckmen, who for the second time this season have been relegated to second slot.

Yup, the Petes are stillin' pretty atop the group ladder, two points ahead of the Truckies. Prior to the game the teams were deadlocked with 34 points each. And by the same token there is a tie for third spot with the Orillia Pontiacs and Kingston Goodyears locked with 31 points.

The Peetes, always a tough nut to crack in their Lake Ceeachslug lizon, handed our Memos a 9-4 going-over Saturday night thanks to a third-period upheaval that netted the Indian Heads no less than four goals. They led 2-2 at the end of the first bout, then the Memos flashed some of their Friday night hockey and whittled the lead to 5-4 come the end of the second chukkah.

The loss puts the Memos back 11 points behind the Goodies and Pontiacs, and with eleven games left to play they must needs flash some winning hockey from here in if they are to get into the coveted playoff circle. They meet the red-and Brantford Seniors here tomorrow night, and will have to produce the brand that defeated the Truckmen and Goodyears if they want to hand the Petes their first setback in six starts.

POINT ANNE – HAVELOCK TONIGHT

We have no gloating to dole of the Trent Valley Hockey League and we are assuming that the Point Anne squad is leading the pack with a record of eight wins, two losses and one tie in eleven starts. Earle Anderson's sprightly squad meets the Havelock team in Memorial Arena tonight in what should be quite a lusty tussle since the Havelockers are one of the two teams to make them say "uncle" thus far in the schedule. They tell us the visitors are garnished with hockey faces that used to sport the old Peterborough Eagles colors, and that should make for an interesting puckfest. The Marmora Millionaires will be the guests of the Ox Painters here Wednesday night.

BASKETBALL

A battle for top spot in the Bay of Quinte Senior Basketball League will get under way in the BCI gymnasium tomorrow night when Bill Stafford's Belleville Crawfords tangle with the Trenton RCAF Ghosts, a right merry crew of hoopsters who know a lot of the answers.

The Crawfords and the Ghosts are the two top squads in the league and, we are informed, the leadership hinges on the result of tomorrow night's game. It is basketball at its best, and with both teams going all out to grab the laurels, basketball lovers are in for a treat.

TELL US WHERE?

Call out the horse marines, the gendarmerie, the reserve army and the football team. Somebody has done us dirt.

Here all this time when other communities have been building half-million dollar arenas nobody noticed his Belleville and built one here. Told nobody about it.

It was officially opened here last Thursday night with the Montreal Canadiens aiding in the opening ceremonies.

We may have been wandering around in a dream but we will swear by the sacred bones of our ancestors that that Canadiens' tilt was played in Memorial Arena, plus posts, 'n everything.

But if you believe what you see in the papers it was played in a new arena.

A Toronto evening paper sportswriter came out with the statement last Thursday night.

"Canadiens move to Belleville tonight to open a new arena." That's what the bloke wrote.

After reading that statement, we wondered if the Canadiens actually defeated the Maple Leafs 2-0 the night previous, or was it a football cup tie played over 'ome?

PIPE DOWN!

There was one scarlet-hued countenance in Memorial Arena last Friday night. It happened between the second and third periods.

Johnny Kelly, announcer from a Kingston radio station, while taking a respite from his play-by-play chores and allowing Der Maxie Jackson to air his dulcet tones, looked down from the press box. There, scattered on the ice, were the fragments of an expensive pipe.

When he went back on the air, the announcer commented about the excitability of Belleville hockey fans. He didn't forget to take their pipes from their mouths when they start to cheer, he grinned.

Later, being a confirmed pipe-smoker, he looked around for his favorite dudeen. It was nowhere in sight.

You guessed it. In his "excitability" he apparently had knocked the paddy from the press box desk.

Suggest OBA 'Private Eye' Playoff Games

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The executive of the Ontario Baseball Association Sunday decided it may have to take "police action" of some kind. Some of these "cheating the OBA" bit of its share of gate receipts from playoff games.

Nature of the suggested "police action" was not defined. One representative suggested that members of the executive attend playoff games to "keep an eye on things."

Secretary-registrar Tommy Rowden of St. Catharines reported that a number of teams have failed to send in the OBA's portion. One executive member said:

"We'll just have to take police action of some kind. Some of these teams have been cheating the OBA for years."

Boost Lead to Eight Points With Twin Wins Over Hawks; Leafs Split; Blues Trim Habs

By AL COLLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The victim-leaving hockey thrown to the lions, there was little to pick off the bones today.

Detroit's Red Wings, in a great stretch drive to nail down their sixth straight National Hockey League championship, shewed up the downtrodden Chicago Black Hawks in a home-and-home week-end series 4-2 and 5-1.

Chicago now has lost 13 of its last 14 games.

Detroit added four points to boost their league leadership to eight over the runner-up Canadiens, who bowed to the Rangers 3-1 on Forum ice Saturday night.

Toronto Maple Leafs split a week-end series with Boston Bruins, winning a rough-and-tumbler 4-3 but bowing to Sugar Jim Henry's sterling effort 20 in Boston Sunday night. Then the Maple Leafs just a point behind Montreal while fourth-place Boston is a battle for the final playoff spot, stayed three points ahead of the rangers.

LEADERS SLIP

It didn't take long for the Red Wings to settle their second encounter against the Black Hawks in Chicago Saturday night. Gerry Toney Leswick and rookie Earl Reibel put Detroit ahead 2-1 in the first period and the Red Wings added three more goals in the third period to finish off the Hawks for the night and Alex Delvecchio and Glen Skov added two more. Lou Jankowski scored the Chicago goal.

A fight between Detroit's Marcel Pronovost and defenceman Larry Zeidel of the Black Hawks, Two linesmen, George Hayes and Cliff Thompson of March, were struck by the irate Zeidel as they attempted to restrain him. Zeidel broke away before, finally getting at Leswick to drop him with a right before the players could restore order. Zerwick and Zeidel were given major penalties.

In Detroit Saturday night a near-sellout crowd of 13,602 watched the Red Wings' attack get off to a slow going into the third period on goals by Ted Lindsay, Delvecchio and Marcel Pronovost.

The Black Hawks managed, to click twice in the final minutes. Bill Mosienko and Pete Conacher scoring with Lorne Wilson assisting both times. Chicago pulled out goalie Al Rollins in a final attempt to tie the game but Glen Skov snuffed the rally by sliding the puck into the open net.

FIRST SINCE APRIL

At Montreal, Dean Prentice and Paul Ronty got the Ranger goals in the first two minutes of the second session and Floyd Curry scored the Montreal tally at 13:04.

It was Henry's first victory in Montreal since April 1950 in a playoff game and their first in regular season play since February of the same year.

At Boston Sunday night third-period goals by Johnny Peirson and Cal. Gardner Mickett gave the Bruins their shutout win over the Leafs before 13,911 fans.

Harry Watson, Eric Nesterenko, Ron Stewart and Rarky Ridley gave Toronto their victory at home on Saturday night. Mizgay's tally came in the final second of play on an empty net after Boston coach Lynn Patrick removed Henry during the final 45 seconds. Dave Creighton and Doug Mohns counted for the Bruins.

The crowd at home was 13,715.

Dutchies Win Twice Over Week-End, Grab Four-Point Lead Over Mercs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The two top teams in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series are pulling away from the pack.

And Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, never ones to turn down an opportunity, did just a solo possession of first place after playing see-saw with Toronto Marlcurrys.

The Dutchmen took advantage of the idle Mercurys during the week-end for a four-point lead on Owen Sound and a two-point advantage on the third-place Windsor Bulldogs.

Kitchener collected four points by defeating Hamilton Tigers 3-2 in Kitchener Saturday and downing the Bulldogs 5-3 in Windsor Sunday.

Saturday's other game had the last-place Cataracts holding the sixth-place Canadian Marcons to a 4-4 overtime tie in Niagara Falls.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Saturday North Bay Trappers took a 5-3 beating decision from Pembroke Lumber Kings and Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds defeated Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians 9-3 in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Sunday the Indians took an 8-2 victory over the Greyhounds in the Sault, Mich.

Ken Laufman's goal six minutes before the end of the game in Kitchener gave the Dutchmen their first victory of the week-end. The win was Kitchener's fourth in five days.

Joe Schertzl and Howie Lee counted for the other Kitchener goals. Bill Hammond and Bud Kemp tallied for Hawks.

At Stratford, Bob Mader, Mickey Roth, Merv Dowler and Murray Aitken were the Indian snipers. Gord Haley tallied for Windsor 27 seconds of the second period faceoff.

Chatham netminder Hank Bassen stopped 44 shots, held the Marcons together long enough for their 4-4 draw with the Cataracts in Niagara Falls.

Ken Laufman and Joe Schertzl, who each fired single goals for Kitchener Saturday, repeated against Windsor Sunday, Art Hurst, Gerry Theberge and Jack McKenzie also scored one each. Earl Keyes, Gord Haidy and Lyle Winman got the Windsor goals.

Chatham plays at Hamilton during tonight's only OHA game. North Bay meets the Wolves in a NOHA contest at Sudbury.

Guelph, Waterloo Merge Teams In Intercountry

ST. THOMAS (CP) — A hasty merger of the Guelph and Waterloo Senior Intercounty Baseball League teams Sunday ensured a six-team league this year.

At a meeting of club owners, Kitchener, St. Thomas, Galt, London, Brantford and Guelph-Waterloo decided to play in the league. Oshawa, a member of the league last season, was voted out at a previous meeting.

Waterloo, Guelph and Brantford appealed for an extension of time for filing an entry for 1954 but the meeting refused.

After a brief conference Ernie Goman representing Waterloo and Jim Kendricks of Guelph announced the merger of their teams and Mike King filed an entry for Brantford.

John Gillies of London was reappointed commissioner of the league for a three-year term.

The league will play a 96-game schedule starting May 21 and ending Aug. 21. Each club is expected to have 20 home games. Some home will be twilight-night doubleheaders.

A new plan for playoffs was introduced. The top team will have its choice of opponents in one semi-final series while the other two of the four qualifying teams will clash in the other. All finals and semi-finals will be best-of-seven.

DISPUTE OVER GALT

Before any entries were filed a dispute arose over the status of the Galt team. The Galt Baseball Club, holders of the franchise, has leased the players and equipment to Mike Pontarelli, a businessman who plans to operate the team with the help of an associate from Chicago.

The club owners stated Pontarelli to post a bond of $2,000 as evidence of his good faith. The matter was ironed out when Walter Reid, representing the franchise holders, agreed to the bond and will be responsible to the league for the team.

Jack Blakeney of Brantford, who acted secretary for the baseball association, said the Galt series last year said he must give up one of the ports.

Blakeney said commissioner Gillies told the club owners they have reached the maximum with the Intercounty Umpires Association. Hold-up in "duplicate mileage"—an auto allowance for each umpire even if they ride in the same car. The officials received the allowance in other years but the league this year has refused to pay.

The club owners threatened they might hire their own umpires. Another meeting is planned with the umpires' group.

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec teams made a clean sweep of their interlocking games during the week-end—both on home ice and in Ontario. Ontario Hockey couldn't earn a point in the three games but the gate receipts were good.

In Montreal Sunday 14,000 fans watched the Royals of the Quebec Senior Hockey Association junior league defeat Galt Black Hawks 5-3.

In Toronto, 12,569 fans, the largest junior hockey crowd of the season, turned out to see Montreal Canadiens defeat Toronto St. Michael's College 5-2.

Saturday action in the Ontario loop produced two upsets. The seventh-place Hamilton Cubs defeated St. Catharines TeePees, who also have a share in first place, 6-4 in Hamilton and the last-place Guelph Biltmores downed the fifth-place Barrie Flyers in Barrie.

Orillia Pontiacs Gain Third-Place Tie With 9-4 Victory Over Memos

Ponties Score Four in Third After Memos Cut Early Lead; Penalties Prove Big Factor

ORILLIA (Special) — Belleville Memos, boasting successive victories over Kingston and Oshawa, Thursday night dropped Saturday night before 1,000 fans, as Orillia Pontiacs whipped them 9-4. The win for Orillia put them into a third place tie with Kingston Goodyears while the loss for the Memos put a crimp in their chances of making the playoff. The win however for the Pontiacs was far from being a walk away with the Memos trailing by a one-goal margin going into the final period.

PENALTIES, COUNT

The chief factors leading to the Belleville loss were the brilliant netminding of Bobby Shropshire and the penalties, especially the two-minute misconduct and the match misconduct for the Memos in the third period.

Clary Payne notched two goals and one assist, Richardson, Deacon and MacDonald each collected one goal and two assists with Aiken Wood, Hall, Farrell, Sherbuck and Pearsall collecting one each. Ragay Ab Rayes added three assists and Ron Nelson two. Ed Duncan, Duke Doran, Vern Goyer and Ted Degray took the penalties for committing punch with one marker apiece. Jake Wade, Wardhaugh, Richardson and Doug Day added assists.

A tripping penalty to Ed Duncan at 1.21 of the initial period gave the Pontiacs the chance to use their vaunted power play before Ed retrieved Clary Payne and Rusty Aiken had each deposited a puck behind Rolly Sarrault with Payne coming the end to end via Payne and Bowman. While playing two men down due to Pearsall's interference penalty, Orillia got two breakaways, one by Jerry McDonald, who checked Sarrault, then fired across the goal mouth and on to by Grigg, Richardson and MacDonald and again Sarrault was master.

Clary Payne notched his second goal of the period on assists at 9.12 when he fired from the faceoff and the puck caught the top left hand corner of the net. The Memos came back with two quick goals, Duke Doran from Jake Wade at 11.46 and Ted Degray from Vern Wardhaugh at 12.00 to make the score 3-3 for Orillia.

SALLY'S GOAL TOPS

The Pontiacs retaliated with two equally fast ones, Richardson from Bowen and MacDonald at 12.27 and Macdonald from Richardson and Bowen at 13.33. Rolly Sarrault, Memos goalie, was penalized at 17.35 for going behind his cage to beard Payne, who slashed back at him but received no penalty. Sarrault's penalty was served by Ed Duncan.

The middle period was all Belleville as they scored twice to none for Orillia. Vern Goyer shot one Shropshire caught tagged, then dropped in at 13.11. Then Ed Farrell rifled from brother Erwin and Degray at 16.44.

Orillia pulled away in the third when Al Shewchuk scored his second of the season at 6.12, and Lloyd Pearsall got his second of the campaign at 8.26. Pearsall's goal came from behind the net and bounded in off a Belleville defender with Ed Duncan sitting out a two-minute misconduct plus a minor. Ron Nelson got a breakaway, passed to Johnny Wood in the clear, who picked the top left hand corner and McCrone notched his second goal of the season from Nelson and MacDonald at 13.55 to break the game wide open.

Doug Day was banished from the game with a misconduct, plus a match misconduct for using profane language to Referee Ken Black at 16.35. The Memos stormed the Orillia cage in the dying minutes but the closest thing to a goal was a drive by Duke Doran that hit the goal post with ten seconds left.

The line-up:

Orillia—Goal, Shropshire; defence, Pearsall and Shewchuk; centre, Payne; wings, Aiken and Favero. Subs, Bowen, Richardson, MacDonald, Nelson, Wood, McCrone, Vasey, Deroches and Griggs.

Belleville—Goal, Sarrault, defence, Wade and Goyer; centre, Ed Duncan; wings, Erv Duncan and Degy. Subs, Barado, Parsons, Wardhaugh, DeGray, Semple, D. Doran, R. MacDonald, B. Doran.

MARMORA

Millionaires Nip Wellington 4-2

MARMORA — Wellington were defeated by the Marmora arenas on Friday evening and a fine game of hockey resulted with the homesters victors by the score of 4-2.

Neither team scored in the first period. K. Trumble opened the scoring in the second, scoring unassisted after six minutes of play. He was followed a minute later by Brooks, assisted by Mantle.

Wellington retaliated and Garnation beat Killkin on Pettingill's assist. K. Trumble got his second goal for Marmora at 0.35 in the third and he was followed by Joiner who accepted Brooks' pass to baffle Letman.

With about two minutes to go Pettingill reduced the lead, scoring unassisted. The game was refereed by D. Free, of Campbellford, and H. Hunter, of Havelock. was marked with thirteen penalties, seven of which went to the visitors.

Naylor, of Marmora, and Mowat, of Wellington, provided a fight toward the close of the game, which earned both a five-minute penalty.

Frank Leahy Notre Dame Coach Resigns

CHICAGO (AP)—Frank Leahy, second only to Knute Rockne as a Notre Dame football coaching legend, Sunday resigned as head head coach because of ill health.

Leahy, 46, who collapsed between halves of the Georgia Tech game Oct. 24, said he was advised by his doctors to quit. He had two years remaining on his current 10-year contract.

The resignation of Leahy, whose Irish teams had won 87 games, lost 11 and tied 11 since he took over in 1941, was announced at South Bend, Ind., by Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame.

Later, Leahy talked to an Associated Press reporter at Chicago confirming his decision to "quit football entirely."

"It's a tremendous weight off my mind to get out of the game, as much as I love it," Leahy said, "I will weigh three or four business offers but pro football definitely is out."

FEARS FATAL ATTACK

Leahy said he was told by his doctor that another attack would be fatal. His ailment was described as "nervous exhaustion." The 46-year-24 first was described as a "stomach muscular spasm."

Leahy was the highly-succeeded Irish coach, who had his sixth unbeaten season in 1953 with Capalgus, was mounting with each season.

Last season's Irish finished second to Maryland in The Associated Press poll. Leahy's wife, Eleanor, Oklahoma, which was defeated by Notre Dame, 14-0, whipped Maryland in the Orange Bowl 7-0.

Leahy left a bachelor uncle Hoodoo whose Notre Dame team was defeated a 1931 plane crash after he had coached it to a 17-0 victory. He lost and three-tied record.

Remember When

Hughie Jennings, who won the American League pennant with Detroit the first year he managed a baseball team, died 24 years ago today at Scranton, Pa. Jennings led Detroit from 1907 to 1920, winning the league title in 1907, 1908 and 1909, but losing in the world series each time. He was succeeded at Detroit by Ty Cobb.

United States, Canada Football 'War' Simmers Down to Propaganda Fight

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — The threatened "war" between professional football leagues in the United States and Canada appeared to be simmering down to a propaganda barrage with a few skirmishes between individual clubs thrown in.

Wallie commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League insisted Saturday that the "war" is still on, club officials made it clear at the close of the NFL's annual meeting here that they are interested only in occasional local action.

New York Giants, still breathing fire over the loss of all-star tackle Arnie Weinmeister to British Columbia Lions, were among those trying to file a breach-of-contract suit against the Rhein, Sask., native.

Two clubs indicated they are considering forays into enemy territory for playing talent.

General manager Nick Kerbawy of Detroit Lions said his club plans to look over the Canadian field for prospects and has a couple of players in mind. Owner Vic Morabito of San Francisco 49'ers said his club also plans to inspect a list of the most promising Canadians furnished by Bob Snyder, coach last season of Calgary Stampeders.

Neither official gave any indication of specific players he has in mind.

Officials of Los Angeles, Pittsburgh, Washington and Chicago Cardinals also say they aren't planning to enter the Canadian market.

Marlene Loses Tough Golf Battle To American After Eight-Hour Duel

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Rhonda Grace DeMoss Faulk of Monahans, Tex., staged a stirring comeback to tournament golf after a five-month layoff Sunday by whipping Marlene Stewart, British amateur champion, 1-up in the finals of the Helen Lee Doherty tournament.

In two days the Coral Gables, Fla., housewife disposed of both the American and British champions. In Saturday's semi-finals she upset Mary Lou Faulk of Thomasville, Ga., queen of the American amateurs, 2 and 1.

Playing in her first tournament since the women's amateur last August in Providence, R.I., the 26-year-old Mrs. Smith showed no signs of rustiness as she moved down five straight opponents with greater power off the tee.

Marlene, 19-year-old Rollins College student from Penfield, Ont., reached the finals Saturday with a 3-and-2 victory over Vonnie Colby of Jacksonville.

MARLENE 'TOUGH'

She rushed to a 5-up lead over Miss Stewart in the morning's 18-hole match, lost it on the 31st hole as her grim little Canadian opponent fought back with a four-hole winning streak, then won the 36th hole in a tough eight-hour duel.

"Marlene was tough," said Mrs. Smith said as she walked wearily off the final green. "Marlene is the toughest fighter I've ever met and she made it a battle right down to the wire."

Arvida Rink Wins Quebec Curling Crown

By PETER BUCKLEY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—A mass exodus during the week-end ended an 11-day curling spree that annually sets this city on its ear.

Most of the more than 500 rock-and-broom enthusiasts had left by today for homes from the mid-west United States to Nova Scotia's Atlantic seaboard.

On the back seats of cars and on baggage racks in trains were the spoils of two of curling's biggest yearly events—the Province of Quebec championships and the famed Quebec international.

The first was closed affair which ended its four-day run a week ago, nine teams contesting the provincial championship and emerging with the right to represent Quebec in the Dominion finals was the rink from the Lake St. John district city of Arvida.

WEEK-LONG CLASSIC

The second was a week-long free-for-all in the classic tradition. Some of the best of ice from busy brooms had cleared, Quebec and Ontario rinks had waged a battle of the 14 first-place awards in the various curling events.

Top prize, the Lieutenant-Governor's Trophy, went to a Montreal rink skipped by 62-year-old Skip Earle L. Gallagher.

The (Scoop) Gallagher-led Kirkland Lake rink captured the next two biggest awards—the Seagram's grand aggregate, for most games won, and the "A" section's Chateau Frontenac trophy.

Of the other trophies, six went to Montreal rinks, two to Arvida and another to the Maritimes.

Besides Gallagher, Lake, Ottawa West skipped by Ed Robertson was the only other Ontario winner. He took the City of Quebec International Cup.

Canada's Lyndhurst Walloped 11-2 By Expatriate Canadians in Opener

PARIS (Reuters)—Toronto Lyndhurst, Canada's entry in the forthcoming world hockey championships at Stockholm, gave a disappointing performance in their first game on the continent as they were trampled 11-2 Saturday night by a team of expatriate Canadians who play pro hockey for several clubs in England.

A crowd of 15,000 fans had crowded the Palais des Sports expecting to see some top-grade hockey.

Members of the team said they thought the pro team was good enough to take on the world champions but have been suffering from the effects of seasickness in the ocean crossing and a party which they attended on board ship the night before they landed Thursday on the trip from Canada.

The "Paratroops" took a 4-0 lead in the first period, scoring twice while Toronto players were in the penalty box. They added four more goals in the second period and then outscored the Canadian entry 3-2 in the third period. Earl Cresswell and Norm Gray were the Toronto scorers.

The game was the first of an 11-game exhibition series in which the Canadians will prepare for the championships beginning in Sweden Feb. 27. Lyndhurst's next exhibition will be at Neuchatel, Switzerland, Feb. 2.

Win Top Honors In Badminton

STRATFORD (CP)— Woodstock and Hamilton players won four of five events in the annual Western Ontario badminton championships Sunday as seeded players swept every bracket in the week-end tournament.

In the men's singles Bill Parkes of Woodstock, a former champion, defeated Ted Barker of Windsor, 15-8, 15-7, 15-7. Parkes had trailed 10-15, 15-12, 15-8.

The powerful team of Bunny Hepworth of Woodstock and George Thorpe of Hamilton won the men's doubles championship in straight games 15-10, 15-6 over Bill Parkes and Howie Hansom of Woodstock. Hepworth and Thorpe won the same title in 1953.

Marg Raymong and M. Cunningham of Kitchener took the ladies doubles crown with a 15-1, 9-15, 15-12 win over Miss Hepworth and Helen Wake of Stratford.

Dorothy O'Loughlin of Hamilton and George Thorpe also went three games to take the mixed doubles championship from Muriel Steely of Hamilton and Brewster 15-8, 10-15, 15-12.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was watching ma sewing to herself in her room, and I suddinly remembered I forgot something, and I said, Aw, gish shang the black, holey mackerel, heck.

What now? ma said, and I said, Darn it all, I dont know what's a matter with me, I'm always forgetting something.

What's exactly what's a matter with you, I tell you that 20 times a day for land sakes, ma said, and I said, Yes good nite, ma, I wont to remember. I decided a dozzen times, and I even kept on reminding my self just to make sure I wouldn't forget, and then what did I do but go and forget after all. Aw crumberries, how could I be so dum? I said.

What's it all about, is it too late now? ma said, and I said I Sure it is that's the trubble. Heeeve me this will be a good lesson to me about not remembering things. I said.

Well at least that's a consolation to me for a silver lining, ma said. If it was something you wanted to do for your own selfish intirist perhaps it really will be a good lesson. What do you want to remember so exter especially? she said, and I said, I wont to make a New Year resolution to save 5 cents a week out of my allowance, so by the end of the year I'd have [illegible] Christmas money no-body would bother knickknicker me, and now it's over 2 weeks past New years, darn it all, I've let my resolution go and all rite, I said.

Next year for lands sakes, why dont you start rite now, the principal is the same, isn't it? ma said, and I said, Sure it is, but I wouldn't be leetching myself a lesson, so it wouldn't improve me very much, say, heck, a whole year to wait, I said.

And I went out feeling sad, and ma stayed there shaking her head.

We're going to have new wall paper in our living room on account of ma claiming the old paper is all wore out from being looked at so much and hasn't got any surprize left in it, and after dinner she said to pop, William, the wallpaper man is coming tomorrow with his book of samepels.

Good, as long as he's here why don't you kill 2 birds with one stone and choose the paper for the living room? pop said, and ma said, Well for land sakes, what other 2 birds did you suppose I meant, sense you are so William. I want you to give the matter a little serious thought and tell me just what kind of paper you think would be best, she said.

Well, a paper with a border mite be nice, pop said, and ma said, Now dont sound like a man that takes about as much intirist in wallpaper as a bird's last year's nest. Now be a little definite, she said.

Well, a plain paper with conservative stripes, or maybe one with conservative [illegible] is going to go in for stripes, or stripes with a little pattern, or no stripes with a big pattern, or perhaps a plain paper that leaves everything to the imagination, pop said, and ma said, Oh, that's about as definite as a fog. What I want is a helpful suggestion, satchy as a figured paper with pattern that would go well with the rest of the room, she said.

Oh I see, pop said. Well, when it comes to that, I think you ought to take the rest of the room into consideration. I'd say something on the plaidish side, with small flowers in some tasty design, he said, and ma said, That's very good, William, when you put your mind to it you have very good ideas.

Always at your service, my dear, pop said, and he got in back of the sporting page and stayed there.

Sealing Industry Seems Near Death

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The Newfoundland sealing industry, sick for the last five years, will not die this year but death has never been so close.

Sealing companies here Friday announced plans for the annual hunt and unless there is a sudden change, only one vessel will sail from this port. She's the Terra Nova, carrying about 200 men.

Two Halifax vessels are planning to join the hunt. One may leave Port Union, Nfld. This is a far cry from 1949 when about 25 vessels put some 3,000 men over their sides. Last year five ships sailed.

SHIPPING STRIKE BEGUN

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Five thousand Indonesian employees of the Royal Dutch Navigation Company—KPM—began a three-day, nationwide seamen strike today. The shipping line is the major means of passenger and freight transport for this island republic. The workers, members of a non-Communist trade union, are asking higher cost-of-living bonuses and family allowances.

Bisons Extend Lead With Two Victories

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons increased their commanding lead of the American Hockey League with two victories during the week-end.

The Bisons defeated Cleveland Barons 3-2 at home Sunday after edging Pittsburgh Hornets 2-1 Saturday, to take an eight-point lead over the fifth-place Syracuse Warriors Saturday.

In the only other game Sunday, Providence scored three goals in second period to hand Providence Reds a 4-3 victory over Hershey.

Dunc Fisher's overtime goal Saturday in Hershey was the crowning touch as the Bruins defeated Providence 4-3.

7,500 Workers At Roe Plant Postpone Strike

TORONTO (CP)—Some 7,500 employees at the A. V. Roe Canada Ltd. aircraft plant in Malton, producers of the CF-100 all-weather jet fighter, voted Sunday to postpone a threatened strike over layoffs and job reclassification.

The men, members of Local 787 of the AFL machinists union, voted to accept a union executive proposal to withhold strike action while a new agreement prepared by the union and the company is submitted to a conciliation board.

The executive was instructed to seek an immediate meeting with A. V. Roe officials to demand a solution to the dispute. G. F. Schollie of Montreal, vice-president of the machinists union, was named to join the local union executive in the meeting.

Union officials said about 500 employees are affected in the dispute and about 307 have been laid off so far.

They said the reclassification was being used by the company as avenues of levying skilled employees not immediately needed on the company payroll.

Hands that are easy to bid are not always easy to make. In the play there is the element of surprise division. An unexpected split can work almost any normal plan.

For this reason, experienced players are not always smug about their expectation of unseen cards. If they anticipate what may happen if there is a bad break in a normal suit.

Take the case of the deal shown here:

South was the declarer at a contract of four spades. Opening lead from west was diamond jack. Dummy queen and east king followed. They all fell to the diamond ace as the first trick for south.

Following the usual best procedure, south cashed trump king as a preliminary to taking a later finesse. He then got to dummy with a club and returned a trump that revealed what spades west held.

Most tables in the tournament fell down playing it in this way. They gave up two trump tricks from lack of easy entries to south.

At least one south player made it by anticipating four trumps in west. He did the same as others with the opening lead. But his next play was not the obvious first cashing of a trump top.

Instead, he entered dummy with a club and finessed the first trump round. West took with spade queen and cashed a diamond. His next diamond lead was not ruffed by south who shuffed a club.

West then led a club that dummy won. Heart queen return was covered by east king and won by south ace. A small heart was won by dummy ten. A trump return was taken by south and he pull the remaining spades. South heart jack was good for the final trick. Declarer thus lost only a trump and two diamonds. The west treasure a safety measure.

'Copter Picks Up Wrecked Plane, Taken to Base

The plane, a trainer owned by Thunder Bay Flying Club, crash-landed six miles from the nearest road. Officials of the club could not figure out how to salvage it.

Jack Godsby, owner of the helicopter, offered to try to move the plane. He said he would to the job without charge as a test of the helicopter.

The wings of the training plane were removed and strapped to the plane's body. Then, as the helicopter hovered overhead, four cables were attached to the training plane.

The helicopter then lifted the plane into the air and took it back to the airport without incident. An emergency release would have let the trainer drop if serious trouble had developed on the way.

The Fort William Aerosea went down two weeks ago when its two pilots members ran into bad weather. Both men were uninjured but damage to the plane prevented it being flown out.

An official said the flying club has five other aircraft down in various unapproachable districts. It is hoped to repeat the helicopter salvage operation to save all five planes.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, FEB. 2, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You are now sitting in a favorable position for business and professional ventures if you study facts, keep impartial. The margin between success and failure is fine at times so look sharply, think.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — This club be a busy and productive day for all well-conducted efforts. Sooth things that look questionable and bear in mind that others are aiming for the same gains and goals that you are.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — The will to make the grade is essential, and the Gemini native generally has it—but is often too hasty. Study and analyze situations more thoroughly. Do not be abrupt with others.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Illusions may throw you off balance if you are not alert, awake to situations. There are many opportunities, but careful thinking and hard work are needed to win goals.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — "Old fashioned" ideas can often be refreshing, made with surprising results. Be specific, consistent and, above all, neither underestimate nor overestimate your capabilities.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Some retrenching — at least reviewing—is in order now. Less hurry might bring better results. Pause, reflect, then proceed calmly.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Stimulating rays for mental alertness, developing new ideas, trying new fields. Use your innate good judgment and, after due consideration, go forward confidently.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Grant no quarter where questionable matters or persons are concerned. Aspects warn against being "taken in"—especially in moral and money deals.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—You may have to forget yourself in order to do more for others who depend on you, but you enjoy this. The change in pace, action will ultimately give greater impetus toward progressive gains.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—A.M. may give you some concern, especially in business matters. Avoid a take-it-for-granted attitude. Put your best efforts and resources to work, and, above all, don't give up!

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Optimism should increase, which, in turn, will draw others to you. Don't assume an important attitude; it reacts unfavorably. Be observant in new situations.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—An upward trend in matters close to you will manifest itself now. Emphasize initiative, thoroughness and cheerfulness to work for the top results you can obtain. Heart interests rate attention.

YOU BORN TODAY: Two cultures confront you now: One healthily progressive, with many possibilities for you who follow your better side and will keep striving consistently; the other producing a lack of incentive, restlessness and a tendency to fall for speculative schemes. Your planet Uranus endows you with inventiveness, intuition, adaptability. 1954 action is marked; make it tops. You can! Birthdate of: Nell Gwyn, English actress; Fritz Kreisler, noted violinist.

CORRESPONDENT DIES

SINGAPORE (AP) — Dickson Brown, 55, veteran southeast Asia news and financial correspondent, collapsed and died at his home here Sunday. A huge Jovial man who covered the Pacific war and general MacArthur's headquarters in Australia, Brown came to Malaya from Scotland after the First World War and became a financial writer for the Singapore Straits Times and correspondent for the London News Chronicle.

Illegal Immigration Rampant Says Lehman

NEW YORK (AP) — Senator Herbert H. Lehman (Dem.-N. Y.) said Sunday that while immigration from Europe and Asia has been limited by the McCarran-Walter act, "the Mexican and Canadian borders offer simple access for almost unlimited illegal immigration."

Lehman, speaking at the annual meeting of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Society, said that while all alien visitors, sailors and immigrants land at Ellis Island, the most gruelling interrogation and examination, "persons who "swarm" across the Mexican and Canadian borders "get in without so much as tipping their hats to a single United States official."

EDITOR DIES

NEW YORK (AP) — John H. Griffin, 55, editor-in-chief of the Boston-Post, died Sunday night in Polyclinic Hospital. He underwent surgery for an ulcer condition Monday.

Royals Whip Saints 4-1; Senators Lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals continued their front-running leap in the Quebec Hockey League Sunday, defeating Sherbrooke Saints 4-1. The victory kept the Royals tied for first place with Chicoutimi Sagueneens who won a 6-1 victory over Ottawa Senators Sunday.

The third-place Saints suffered a 3-2 defeat in Ottawa Saturday in a game that moved the Senators within one point of the Sherbrooke team.

Smiths Falls Rideaus Fold; No Support

SMITHS FALLS (CP)— Smiths Falls Rideaus have become the second team in the New York Ontario Hockey League to fold "from lack of fan support."

E. C. Smith, chairman of the Smiths Falls parks board which operates the local arena, announced the team was through Saturday night at the end of its game with Gananoque G-Man. The Rideaus, who were tied for first place in the senior B loop with Brockville Maedonas, won their last game 5-4.

The reason given for the Rideaus' failure was poor attendance with a resultant deficit in team finances. Average attendance at the last 18 home games was 308 fans.

Ikkerman rockets were the first team to leave the league, for the same reason. They operated there were quiting last November.

22 DIE SKATING

LANCASHIRE, England (Reuters) The frozen millponds, canals and abandoned coalpits which surround industrial town in Lancashire took a staggering toll of 22 lives this week-end as carefree children went out to frolic on ice provided by the current cold snap. Of the 22 victims only one was an adult.

Minor Hockey

Twelve teams saw action in the BMHA bantam and peewee leagues at the arena on Saturday morning with the Maple Leafs and Black Hawks winning in both divisions. Rangers were victorious in the peewee while Canadiens and Rangers fought to a 4-4 tie in bantam.

BANTAM

Dennis Kerrulak was the top point getter for the Rangers with two goals and one assist. Dave Coe and Don Deacon also scored. For the Canadiens Lee Daniels, Lucas and Hall scored in that order. Deveren from Dolan claimed the one Wing scoring play while Weeks was the payoff man on a three way passing play with Pointer and Plain for the other.

Gary Rowbotham scored the winning goal in the Bruins 3-2 win over the Leafs. Larry Wellman got the other with Rowbotham helping. Goalie Hart was the lone Bruin marker man.

PEEWEE

The Rangers won 9-1 over Canadiens with goals going to Pringle and Laidlaw; assists to Hall and Pringle. Jim Lloyd hit the hemp in a losing cause.

The first place Black Hawks took the measure of the Bruins by a 4-1 count. Gary Duggan had two goals while Ehlner got the goal and one helper. Tom Brawly also scored with assists going to Pointer and Wilson. Gary Marshall from Bob Yorne was the Bruin scoring play.

PILOT AVERTS DISASTER

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An air force pilot nearly fainting to bail out of his crippled plane and have it crash in crowded metropolitan Pittsburgh, put the ship down safely on a hillside a few miles northeast of here Sunday. Capt. Herbert O. Brennan, 27, of O'Neill, Neb., and his copilot, Capt. Jerome Allen of Louisville, Ky., escaped without a scratch. The plane, a twin-engined C-45, was considerably damaged.

POOLS BILL DEFEATED

LONDON (CP) — Britain's football pools, a £68,000,000 business last year with anywhere from 10,000,000 to 17,000,000 customers, appear to be as far as ever from having a legal finish to their account.

A private member's bill seeking to make pools publicity manipulatory, was "talked out" Friday in a House of Commons debate as removed from party lines that a Socialist put the skids under the bill proposed by a fellow Socialist.

The bill seeks to enforce some of the recommendations made by a royal commission on gambling. Steering wide support in the House and from newspapers, it was held up from second reading and the indications are that it won't appear again for a while at least.

Mark Hewitson, who represents Hull, talked out the pools bill. Hewitson was tried to get bingo struck from the list of illegal gambling games last year, objected that the bill was badly drafted and would reduce local dividends to betters.

As he talked the bill into the ground, some members of his party got up and angrily stalked out.

Fred Mulley, Labor members for Sheffield Park, who was bill's sponsor, said the proposed legislation was an attempt to control pool betting. It would make pools publish their accounts. As private companies, they are under no obligation to do so.

COUTURE SUSPENDED

CHICOUTIMI (AP) — Gerald (Doc) Couture, veteran right winger, was suspended by Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League Saturday for refusing to report to Quebec Aces of the Quebec Hockey League.

Couture, 29, said the suspension resulted from an effort by the Hawks to use him in a trade with Montreal Canadiens.

Couture was tabbed for a minor league assignment by the Canadiens in the deal but had a preference for Calgary of the Western League and this caused negotiations to collapse.

Hawk president Bill Tobin then ordered Couture to report to Quebec since he refused to do. Couture broke into pro hockey in 1944-45 with Detroit.

ROSBURG WINS TOURNEY

BRAWLEY, Calif. (AP) — Bob Rosburg, Chicago professional held his start-to-finish lead in the $5,000 Brawley open golf tournament Sunday as he won with a final two-under-par 70 for a 72-hole total of 283.

Rosburg posted a pair of 68s and a 69 on his first three rounds of the 5,800-yard Del Rio Country Club course. He won $1,000 of the money divided among the top 10.

Bill Collins of Great Neck, N.Y., and Fred Hawkins, El Paso, Tex., tied for second and $650 apiece at 285.

BASEBALL TRIO HONORED

NEW YORK (AP) — Freddie Hutchinson and Bill Kelly of Buffalo and Joe Boley of Baltimore Saturday were elected to the International League's Hall of Fame.

The trio was honored at a meeting of the International League Baseball Writers' Association.

Hutchinson, a former Bison pitcher, now manages Detroit of the American League. Kelly, onetime Buffalo outfielder and Springfield manager, now is an International League umpire. Boley, an Orioles' infielder, later played with Philadelphia Athletics.

COCKELL KEEPS TITLE

JOHANNESBURG (CP) — Don Cockell of England outpointed John Arthur of South Africa in a 15-round bout Saturday night to retain his British Empire heavyweight title. Cockell weighed 210½. Arthur 224½.

The fight was slow-moving and a disappointment to most of the 8,500 fans in Rand Stadium. The fans started clapping for action several times and cheered when the last round began, apparently welcoming the end of the dull fight.

Cockell did score all of the boxing but Arthur had him in trouble several times in late rounds.

Hatch Second At Lakeland

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Bob Luschenkoff of Detroit won the free-for-all race at the Orange Cup regatta Sunday and with it the Orange Cup Trophy for top inboard driver.

Art Hatch of Nannon, Ont., was second. No time was recorded, because the race was run five laps around the 1 3-5-mile course instead of the usual three laps.

PIONEER RAILWAY

Canada's first steam railway began operation in 1836 from Laprairie to St. Johns in Quebec.

John L. Lewis Busier Than Ever Despite 70 Years

By NORMAN WALKER

In fact, the president of the United Mine Workers, the man chiefly responsible for engineering the surge in labor union membership in the 30s, is busier than ever.

Lewis, who will be 74 Feb. 12, wears his years lightly. He is up to his fluffy eyebrows in a wide variety of affairs, some of which seem to have little to do with problems of the coal miners.

Four months have gone by without Lewis exercising his option to negotiate new wage rates for the miners. How long he'll wait before starting a new pay boost campaign, nobody knows. It may depend on whether there is any pickup in the lagging coal business.

There are some rumors that Lewis may team up with David J. McDonald, president of the mill-ion-member CIO steelworkers union, for a joint pay increase drive in the coal and steel industries.

Steel contracts expire at mid-year.

While bidding his time, Lewis is interesting himself in other affairs. One is his current backing of the International Longshoremen's Association in its New York waterfront war with a new AFL union with the same name.

CLOSE TO EATON'

A man often figuring in Lewis' plans is Cyrus Eaton, the Nova Scotia-born Cleveland financier. About six months ago, Eaton acquired a controlling interest in the West Kentucky Coal Company, the largest non-union coal firm in the United States. Now the company is negotiating for a contract with Lewis' UMW and an agreement is expected soon.

There have been rumors among some mine owners that Lewis put up money with Eaton in this venture, but there is no evidence and well-placed sources consider it extremely unlikely.

Lewis is chief trustee of the UMW health and welfare fund, financed by mine owners. When money began accumulating in the fund—the reserve now is $100,000,000—its investment became a problem.

So the UMW bought an interest and depositied a large amount of the fund's reserves in the National Bank of Washington. Lewis' brother, A. D. Lewis, and the UMW's chief counsel, Welly K. Hopkins, became directors of the bank. Barnum L. Colton became the bank's president.

The other day when Robert R. Young surrendered control over the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, a large coal carrier, the man taking over was Eaton. Named as a new director of the C. and O. in the shake-up was Colton.

Audience Shares Criticism With Casts of Plays

REGINA (CP) — The audience shared criticism with the cast Saturday night with the performance of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," third presentation in the Saskatchewan regional drama festival.

Graham Suter, British adjudicator, took the audience to task because some members were "selfish and a n g h t y" by calling "sweets" out of rustling paper bags during the three-act play.

He said an audience is a "cinema" could unwrap and eat candy without distracting too much. But it couldn't be done in legitimate theatre. Audiences also should remember not to squirm too much, even though the seats are hard.

Mr. Suter said part of the squirming was caused because Battleford Community Players, who presented the play, didn't provide enough variety. On the whole, the play presented "an interesting evening" and the players "did themselves proud."

The play, a difficult interpretation of everyday life in a small United States town, dispenses almost entirely with props.

British Coffee Same Price As Year Ago

LONDON (Reuters) — Coffee drinkers in North America may sneer at the way coffee is made in Britain, but they must admit British coffee has one good feature —the price.

The Londoner still pays the same price he did a year ago.

A top brand of coffee in Britain retails for about eight shillings ($1.) a pound in vacuum packed cans, a rise of six pence (10 cents) in the last 18 months. Cheaper brands sell at about four shillings.

Coffee is being drunk in Britain at the rate of two cups for every one consumed in pre-war years. But the rise in British consumption appears to have passed its peak. Further, the trend is toward quick-service coffee preparations which take less of the raw material.

Bulk-buying is the major reason for the stability of coffee prices in Britain. Britain buys most of its coffee from Africa under long-term contracts, most of it coming from Uganda and Kenya. The big increases in the price of Brazilian and Central American coffees have scarcely made a ripple here.

The Coffee Buyers Association here says there is no reason to believe basic retail prices for coffee will change substantially during the next few months. Long-term contracts made by the British ministry of food with East African producers during the war, at favorable prices, recently were adjusted and extended to next June.

DISASTER ON CANADIAN ROADS!

Every fifteen minutes, a Canadian suffers serious injury in a traffic accident. Every four hours a life is lost. Every two minutes a fender is smashed.

Insurance cannot restore life or mitigate pain. All it can do is relieve the financial burden of disaster. Even then, the bill comes high.

Last year, companies writing Automobile Insurance paid out more than $75,000,000 in accident claims — a part of the cost of carelessness and discourtesy in driving.

HOPES SMASHED FOR REUNIFIED GERMANY

College Student, Playing Prank, Is Electrocuted

Youth Planned to Cut Off Power in Part of London

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A young University of Western Ontario student was electrocuted in north London early today in a prank with a tragic ending.

The youth was found by a companion at the base of a hydro pole shortly before 3 a.m.

University officials said Wildman was a popular student and well known on the campus. His academic work was good. Last fall he played on the university's intermediate football team.

DIED INSTANTLY

Coroner Dr. A. R. Routledge said the youth evidently intended to open a 4,000-volt transformer box on the pole to put the district in darkness but suffered the shock before he could complete the act.

The coroner said the youth suffered burns to the palms of both hands and one to the back of his right knee where the current emerged. Death was instantaneous, he said.

Dr. Routledge said that with two companions, Bob Scott and Jim Murdoch, young Wildman had been studying until almost 2 a.m., then decided to go out for some air.

V. A. McKillop, PUC general manager, said that a Chesapido street resident called the hydro operator at about 2 a.m. and reported someone breaking street lights. Mr. McKillop said five street light bulbs in the area were smashed.

Shortly before 3 a.m., constable Neil Hathorn, next in the beat section, found Scott applying artificial respiration to Wildman and ordered him to St. Joseph's Hospital to summon aid.

Wildman was taken to St. Joseph's, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Dr. Routledge said no inquest is planned.

Defending Wife Proves Costly

LONDON (AP)—Cabaret entertainer Eddy Eden had to pay for his fistic defence of his wife's abilities as an actress.

Eden, husband of musical star Diana Decker, Monday was fined $25 for telling William George Canfer after the first-and only-night of the play "Thirteen For Dinner."

Eden said Canfer informed him his wife's performance was "poisonous" and "She should have been strangled at her birth."

Canfer didn't take it as a talking to the actress' husband.

Pope's Condition 'Unchanged', But Concern Deepens

VATICAN CITY (AP)—After a week of treatment for a strength-sapping stomach condition, Pope Pius' condition was reported "unchanged" today.

He passed a quiet and restful night, but the hiccups which have afflicted him since Jan. 26 have not gone completely, Vatican sources said.

Vatican press communiques have been reassuring and have termed the Pope's night "restful." But public concern over the 77-year-old pontiff's condition is growing in Rome.

The morning paper Il Tempo said he is "not out of danger" and not grave" condition.

In Rome today, the mass of the Feast of the Purification of the Virgin Mary was held, with the Pope absent for the second consecutive year. In 1953 influenza kept him from the Candlemas ceremony.

Toronto Child, 3, Falls from Bed, Is Fatally Cut

The girl, still in baby frame, cut her deeply under the right armpit, and about the chest.

Her mother called a doctor and then the police.

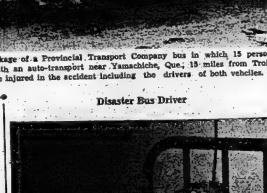
A patrol car picked up the child and the father and raced to hospital. The trip through slippery slush took eight minutes.

Little Margaret was unconscious when she was carried into the hospital.

While doctors worked over her in the emergency department, she died.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Air of Pacific origin has prevailed in late January thaw to the Prairies during the week-end. The mild weather progressed eastward into the western Great Lakes on Monday, and this moderating trend will continue in southern Ontario today.



Cold air over northern Ontario is pushing slowly southward, and it will bring cloudy skies and temperatures in the low 20s to the lower lakes regions on Wednesday.

MAJOR DRIVE BY VIETMINH IS UNDERWAY

Thought Seeking Gains Before Urging Peace

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI, Indo - China (AP) — Vietminh attacks in five separate sectors shaped up today as parts of a general offensive apparently aimed at overrunning enough territory to give the Communist-led rebels a powerful talking point for ending the Indo-China war by negotiation.

A new invasion of Laos threatened Luang Prabang, the royal Laotian capital, and Red leader Ho Chi Minh threw eight regular divisions, tanks and equipped by China, into the winter campaign. Vietminh radio Ho. No. 306, detached from the siege of Dien Bien Phu, crossed the border northwest of Nam Bac into northern Laos, overran French-garrisoned Muong Khoua after a 30-mile advance and headed on toward Luang Prabang, 85 miles to the south.

In central Laos, a war theatre for six weeks, other rebel troops struck within 15 miles of the Mekong river area north and east of Thakhek, a town of the Vietminh drive during Christmas week and then lost.

TV Strike Talk Said Unfounded

TORONTO (CP)—Canadian television artists and announcers today imposed a union blacklisting on programs from United States.

The ban has no connection with union negotiations with the CBC over an industry-wide working agreement which ends Feb. 14. It covers raises and other matters appearing on CBLT.

Bernard Cowan, president of ACTRA, said it has a membership of 1,500. He added that "any talks of strike action is completely unfounded and premature. We always talk things over amicably with the CBC, with the corporation providing the facilities and our association providing the artists."

Newfoundland Barber Still Shaves The Odd Customer With 6-Inch Spike

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—At the barber can give you a better shave here with a six-inch spike than most barbers would with a new-fangled safety razor.

In his Gower street barber shop, Fred Stiles still shaves the occasional customer with the improvised razor, now in use for 16 years and still providing a smooth shave for the toughest beards.

At one barbering in Bishop's Falls when he obtained the unique razor. The late Garnett Kelly of Gambo, near Gander, then a worker in a lumber camp, called in the shop one day to get his razor honed.

"Well," Al explains, "I didn't know what to say when he hauled out this spike, but I told him I would do what I could with it.

"I honed it down to the shape of the razor. He was working in the Labrador and had no razor. So he got a blacksmith by the name of Kelly to make one. He got a stock."

The spike, hammered part of the sides flat, hollow-ground it on one side and tempered it with pickle brine."

Kelly then shaved himself with the skeptical onlookers.

"When I, it shoe the razor," continued Al, "I was kind of fascinated by it, and when I was going to the United States the next year, I thought I would like to have it as a souvenir. So I made a trade with him, giving him a new razor."

After 16 years of practice Al knows how to use the implement and he has no trouble whisking off the whiskers. But give it to another barber and anything could happen.

The spike loses its edge faster than a factory razor and if Al doesn't strop it after every two or three strokes, the customers get that dental chair expression.

"That's its biggest fault," he says, "but if I put a handle on it, covered it with leather and sharpened it, it would lose its value."

SALARY BILL APPEARS HEADED FOR FREE VOTE

All Shades of Opinion Expressed in House

By PRESTON GROVES

OTTAWA (CP)—A government bill to double parliamentary indemnities appears headed for a free vote, members deciding according to their own feelings.

All shades of opinion on the issue were expressed Monday as the Commons debated the measure which Prime Minister St. Laurent has said should be decided on a non-partisan basis.

The widest differences appeared within the CCF party. All CCF members oppose raises for the Senate. Some reject any Commons increases; others support the entire $4,000 increase; still others want a smaller increase.

Debate was on a government bill providing for indemnity raises to $5,000 from $4,000, this in addition to a $2,000 tax-free expense allowance annually. A second bill proposing salary increases for cabinet ministers, speakers and Opposition leaders in both Houses, the deputy speaker and the government leader in the Senate, did not enter the discussion.

Opposition Leader Drew said there should be some increase and asked for a royal commission to study the matter. Howard Green (PC—Vancouver Quadra) said a doubling of the indemnity "is not justified" at any time and certainly not for the Senate.

NO LIBERALS OPPOSED

No Liberal member has opposed the legislation.

Social Credit leader Solon Low plans a "take-it-or-leave-it" proposal for members who oppose the indemnity increase. He said members should be able to reject or accept the bill as it is but later will move an amendment to cover that option.

Uphold Decision To Use Belgian Model Rifle

LONDON (Reuters) — Parliament Monday night upheld a government decision to discard a .303 rifle in favor of a Belgian model.

The House of Commons voted 262 to 232 against a Labor party motion censuring Conservative Prime Minister Churchill's Conservative government for choosing the calibre Belgian weapon in preference to the British-designed 7.62-calibre rifle.

Debate on the censure motion revolved around the rifle issue, particularly when Churchill, thumping the table, demanded: "Are you going to ignore advice from Labor MP Woodrow Wyatt for actual facts? I am not interested in saving the facts."

Churchill charged opposition members with anti-Americanism during the debate. He said Britain's allies were trying to find fault with the United States, "even to the question of the rifle."

Earlier, Wyatt, who moved the censure motion, urged Britain against trying to satisfy the United States and, in so doing, was completely abandoning British and reasonable British interests."

Health Dept. Accuses Federal Workers of Abusing Privileges

Would Ban Ban On Shirt Sleeves

ALBANY, N.Y. (CP)—The man who likes to shed his coat during the "dog days" of summer was defended Monday by New York State assemblyman Daniel B. Kelly.

Kelly introduced a bill that would make unlawful the "repressive practice" of restaurants' refusal to serve a coatless man on a summer's day "merely because he does not have the physical endurance to wear a jacket or coat over a business or sport shirt."

the civil service commission or advice of the health department's division of health division.

SHOW AGE, SEX

The recording system also should undergo change to show age and sex of employees so that the sickness rate in federal jobs may be studied.

Federal employees made 177,600 visits to health units in their areas in the 1952-53 fiscal year. Of these, 58,500 were by women and 49,500 by men. Leading complaint was respiratory ailments with digestive troubles second.

About one-quarter of the visits resulted from social, economic and welfare factors, including those relating to personal health and hygiene, nutrition and budgeting, family health problems, emotional problems and factors associated with the severely physically handicapped.

Misery Grips Europe's Homeless As Continent Is One Vast Icebox

LONDON (AP) — The worst winter in seven years today turned Europe into one vast icebox from the Urals to the Mediterranean, spread misery among the homeless in the big cities, and covered the play resorts of North Africa with snow.

Already more than 45 people have died of the cold, and lower temperatures are on the way.

In North Africa, many parts of Morocco had their first snowfall in 35 years. Near Mohene, three feet of snow was reported and the hills around Algiers were ice-covered.

London had its coldest night in seven years with the temperature at 22 degrees for 12 hours.

Nearly 100 villages were cut off by snow in the Italian highlands. A bowling storm with gusts of hurricane force lashed Trieste, injuring at least seven.

German officials predicted the Rhine river will be frozen solid from the North Sea to Switzerland by the end of the week if there is no let-up. River traffic already is at a virtual standstill.

Two Danish planes today flew a ton and a half of food to the island of Juist, where 400 children are marooned at a rest camp.

The lowest February temperature in 20 years—7.5 below zero—was challed up at Basle, Switzerland.

Britain, pipes frozen and many homes were without water.

Molotov Repeats Familiar Formula For Settlement

Plan Would Leave Germany Either Weak or Too Strong

By IAN FRASER

BERLIN (Reuters) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today if Germany were reunited under the Soviet plan, "it would be so strong it would threaten all of western Europe."

Dulles blasted the Soviet proposal unveiled to the Big Four foreign ministers Monday by Vyacheslav Molotov. Dulles was in the chair for the eighth session of the conference and the second to be held in the Soviet embassy in West Berlin.

Molotov had proposed a peace treaty permitting a reunified Germany to arm as a nation for defence purposes instead of under the western plan within the six-nation European army.

Dulles declared:

"The greatest danger to world peace lies in the fact that in some cases a vast military establishment can be made to attack by the decision of a single nation, sometimes inlced by the decision of a single man.

"That is a situation which is understandably terrifying.

"In the Soviet proposed German peace treaty, resubmitted by Mr. Molotov to the conference Monday, the United Germany would have land, sea and air forces for the terrestrial security, frontier defence and anti-aircraft defence."

Dulles said Molotov fell moved to intensify international tension by he made bitter accusations against France, Britain and the United States.

Manners Handicap Ottawa Bandit

He walked into Cleo Sales' grocery store, stuck his hand in his coat pocket as though it held a gun and announced: "This is a stick-up."

As he made for the cash register, however, a woman entered and stepped up to the counter ahead of him. He politely waited his turn, and when the woman took several minutes to make her purchases, he tied.

He is now sought by police.

Gas from Furnace Nearly Claims Lives of Couple

Coal gas escaping from the furnace nearly asphyxiated Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Wren, 152 MacDonald Ave., early today.

Mrs. Wren was overcome by the fumes and had to be given oxygen by firemen and was later taken to Belleville hospital. Mr. Wren also suffered ill effects from the fumes.

A pair in his back aroused Mr. Wren shortly before six o'clock. He said that his wife was "fidgeting" but as he tried to get out of bed he almost fell over. When Mrs. Wren attempted to get up she collapsed on the bed. Mr. Wren then called their doctor.

"I can't understand it," Mr. Wren told the Ontario Intelligencer. "I fired the furnace at the regular time last night and stayed up late. The furnace was all checked over last spring, and was pronounced in perfect."

At noon today Mr. Wren had recovered from any ill-effects from the coal gas fumes. But the doors of the house had been open all morning airing the house out.

Compensation Insurance Is Discussed

W. Lorne McDougall addressed council regarding workmens' compensation insurance for city employees. He quoted comparative rates for insuring with Workmen's Compensation and a private insurance firm. The matter was referred back for later decision by council.

In other business Alderman Bradford asked why the light in the city hall clock was turned off before daylight each morning. Told the light was controlled by a time switch council directed to have the switch adjusted.

Alderman Hyde asked for clarification on recent layoffs of men in the public works department. He wanted to know whether the men had been laid off or fired. Alderman Smith answered that the property men were laying off. "If works pick up and the budget warrants the men will be reinstated."

The city is contemplating no action with respect to meeting over rent controls when provincial regulations end on March 31st. Council was made clear following a question of one alderman, that it was noted that last year's council had voted to have no part in rent controls.

Alderman Keegan wanted to know why residents on the south side of Bleecker Ave. from Victoria to Pine Street were being called upon to pay local improvement charges on a watermain which was put in three years ago when residents across the streets were not being called upon to pay. The secretary will take the matter up with the public utilities.

System of Secret Ballot Causes Stir in Council

Objection to the system of the secret ballot used by city council in electing members to the various civic boards was heard in council Monday night from a number of ratepayers who said the taxpayers "had a right to know what was going on."

George DeVuyst, local restaurateur, said he would like to know why the 33 restaurant men in the city could not have representation on the board of health. He also said it was only logical, that restaurant operators should have representation on the board.

Mayor John Bush told Mr. DeVuyst that the name of a local restaurant man had been considered when appointments to the board of health were made.

A secret ballot had been taken and the candidate named from the restaurant men had been defeated.

"Why the secret ballot?" asked Mr. DeVuyst. "We should be let know who is who and they are entitled to know."

Mr. DeVuyst also wanted to know, why sidewalk snowplows were not out following last week's snowstorm, noting that the jeeps used for plowing had been bought by the taxpayers' money.

"The reason sidewalk plows were not out was because a number of councillors got economy minded and took the appropriation for sidewalk plowing from the budget," replied Alderman George Smith. "There will be no plowing until the appropriation for plowing is put in the whole budget."

"Maybe after tonight the snowplows will be operating," concluded Mr. Smith.

"I hope so, was Mr. DeVuyst's rejoiner.

Later in the meeting council voted to provide money for sidewalk snowplowing.

Negro Killed In Truck Crash

The identity of the dead man was confirmed at noon today, local police contacted the Detroit police who notified the man's employer, Samuel Molitz. Molitz, in turn notified McLean's son, who is on his way to Belleville.

An inquest will be held at 2:30 p.m., Tuesday afternoon.

A slippery highway was given as the possible cause of the crash which saw the empty stake truck go out of control, skid into the ditch and crash into the tree, completely wrecking the vehicle. The truck, owned by Detroit Live Fish was westbound at the time of the accident.

Provincial Constable Robertson investigated. The accident took place shortly before seven o'clock this morning.

Discrimination By City Police Officers Charged

Discrimination on the part of the city police officers in issuing parking tickets, was charged Monday evening by Ed. A. Kellaway, Bridge Street grocery store owner, when he appeared a personal complaint to council on the matter.

He said he had been given a ticket for parking in front of Frost street property while he unloaded some bathroom equipment for installation in an apartment block owned by him.

At the same time he charged that delivery trucks were double parking on Front street apparently without interference by the police.

Mr. Kellaway read from the motorists' manual claiming that unloading of merchandise did not constitute parking.

COMPLAINS OF LIGHTS

Mr. Kellaway also had a complaint to make that the traffic lights at Coleman and Bridge streets were operated. He said he had reported this matter to council before without any action being taken.

"A woman lost her arm because of the crazy way which those lights are operated," he said. "And I said before that someone will get killed."

Mr. Kellaway claimed the split phase operation of the lights held up eastbound traffic, while still allowing westbound traffic to move. "This made it dangerous for pedestrians crossing Bridge street," he said.

Alderman Robert Temple replied that the split phase method of operating the lights was used as a means to ease the traffic flow but left turns. He said if assisted in speeding traffic on the corner, that said he had nothing to do with the enforcement of traffic by-laws which was a matter for police.

East Is Changing Ministers Told By Missionary

The monthly meeting of the Belleville Ministerial Association was held Monday morning in Bridge Street United Church parlors with the president, Rev. Kenneth Daniel presiding. Devotions were conducted by the Rev. Ralph Smith. There was an excellent representation of the ministerial body present, which included two visiting brethren in the persons of Rev. Dr. Lee Gibson, Ph.D., associate secretary of the Canadian Baptist Foreign Mission Board, and the Rev. Ian R. West, B.A., General Evangelist of the Wesleyan Methodist denomination.

The highlights of the morning was an address on India which was given by the Rev. O. E. Daniel, a former missionary in that field. Speaking on the subject of foreign enterprises, Dr. Daniel said that missionary work did not stop when India became independent. He also said that there had been a tremendous transformation in India during the past few years.

"The East has changed and is changing rapidly. Important posts are being held also by Asians as being filled with men who are Christians, but these," said Mr. Daniel, "are vastly outnumbered by non-Christians. While the law says freedom of speech, yet these non-Christian and Christian people who hold key positions are pressurized to keep out evangelism. They are subjected to boycott," "prevents a grave situation and demands the attention of the Church and Christian people everywhere."

Rev. A. Strother moved a vote of thanks to Dr. Daniel for his interesting and informative, as well as challenging, address.

The housing situation on Groundhogville has been eased.

Following Ole Sol's refusal to co-operate with the powers that underground today, subterranean rodent saw no shadow.

For this is Groundhog Day—or it you prefer Candlemas Day, to any event, according to legend it is known as Candlemas Day.

It is the day, the old boys will have you believe, that hibernating animals such as Woodchuck (Fifth Avenue for groundhog) and Bear awake from the winter's snooze and poke their noses to the outside through the Earth, to see if the world is as wacky as it was last fall when they decided to call it a day and sleep it off.

Legend has it that if they see their shadow they hightail it for their warm underground boudoirs to finish out their winter nights' dream. If no shadow is appeared, then it is time to get in the mimeo to wake the kids, pack the family car and head south to enjoy life in the great outdoors.

OR WOULD THEY?

Which only goes to prove that hibernating animals are not overblessed with brains. No self-respecting woodchuck or bear would leave two months of warm sleep, and face the venture out into a world as soggy-sursy as this one. Dad, the fur-coated boys have no sense of appreciation. They give up a warm rent-free shack. They have no taxes, electricity, water or food bills to worry over. No neighbors do not intrude on good television nights, nor do they have their sleep disrupted by a male until Christmas.

Two bad they don't make their holes massive. We know a couple of newspapermen who would take over the vacated premises so fast, Brer Groundhog would think a squadron of jet aircraft had whirled past him.

In any event, if you believe in the legend, Old Man Winter "has had it".

Even if Groundhog could not have seen his shadow today under a 60-mile wind, with snow, sleet and spalling particles of snow at 20 below, we suspect that somewhere that way until noon, the legendary deadline for the sun to put in an appearance.

That means that spring is just around the corner, but don't start digging out the fishing tackle, casting rods, reels, matching golf dates, or extracting tropical suits from the mothballs on the strength of it. That is unless you are going south.

The only ones who are being fooled, outside of a lot of apprehensive rodents, are the Brer's, Groundhog and War.

Trucks Sideswipe Block Highway No One Injured

Traffic on No. 2 highway at Bayside was held up early this morning when two Smith's highway transports sideswiped, one overturning in the ditch and the other jackknifing across the road to partially block traffic. Drivers of both vehicles and a passenger escaped injury.

Slippery road conditions were believed to have been the cause of the accident. A tow truck enroute from Coburg to pick up the trucks, skidded into the ditch west of Trenton. Both of the transports were loaded and were extensively damaged when the trailers sideswiped.

The eastbound transport was driven by Joseph LeGrandeur, 37, Toronto, while the westbound vehicle was driven by William Bowen, 33, of Highland Creek. Passenger in the eastbound vehicle was Miss Dorothy O'Toole of Toronto.

The accident occurred at 2.45 a.m. and was investigated by Provincial Constable Robertson.

The exercises last Friday consisted of: Relay races and games; a variety of relay games on the floor; tumbling; springboard and pommel horse, and games.

Mr. N. A. Beach, chairman of the physical education committee, welcomed the parents on behalf of the members of his committee, and thanked the girls' instructors. He outlined the girls' program and instructional facilities.

After the gymnastic part of the pageram, the parents visited the swimming pool where they saw their daughters swim, and later joined them in the auditorium where refreshments were served by mothers of "Y" members.

Dancing and after each event of the gymnastic part of the program, the girls were kept busy and entertained in the games room, supervised by Y's Mentettes.

Batawa Bows To Marmora 7-0

MARMORA — Before three hundred fans Marmora scored a decisive seven-nil victory over their arena on Monday evening, the fine play of Killian in their goal bringing their first shut-out of the season. They won 7-0.

La Fort played his first game in goal for Batawa on the Marmora ice and stemmed many of the homesters' rushes in which the second half made the best contribution.

Marmora opened the scoring after two minutes of play. Mantle netted on assists from Hughes and Doyle, Ernie Trumble got through unassisted and Brooks also scored on assist from Doyle, all in the period before the first period ended.

Thelin batted in the third goal for Marmora in the third period when Jones passed to Mantle for the latter to fire a hard one.

Lavender got the last goal with Maynes and Darrah giving assists. Jones had hard luck in not scoring on an individual rush but was credited with three assists.

New Canadian Club Entertained By Dutch Group

Each month the New Canadians in this district meet together with anyone, who is interested to attend, in the Kiwanis Centre. The meeting takes the form of a party and is open to everyone, regardless of race or religion.

The Dutch people presented the January program and despite blustery weather, the attendance was large. Mr. Theyjeyer, the drafting teacher at Belleville Collegiate, acted as master of ceremonies and a fine performance he gave. From the greeting at the door by a charming maid tired in traditional costume of starched cap, colored skirt, apron, shawl and wooden shoes, to the farewell with Queen Juliana, "The Queen," the evening was a huge success. Each person was given a tulip, symbol of Holland, and then the actual entertainment began. The Canadians present in the opening song, "O Canada" was heart-warming because they realized the effort required to learn those difficult English words.

Accompanied by Mrs. Theyjeyer at the piano, the group then sang "Holland" Holland sang folk songs, anthems and even did one of their clog dances. Another Kiwanis centre echoed the laughter of the little audience as they sait "The Sleeping Chair" was enacted. The amazing thing was that no performer had memorized his lines—he just improvised as required, thus adding a natural flavor to the piece.

SHADOW PLAY GIVEN

One especially unique item was a shadow play and the hearty applause attested to its popularity. During the evening original games were interspersed with songs and dances. Mr. and Mrs. Theyjeyer rendered a duet. In addition to accompanying all the singers, Mrs. Theyjeyer gave several fine piano selections.

The evening was brought to a close with a bountiful Dutch lunch. The time, effort and hard work that preceded this varied program was deeply appreciated by each member of the audience.

The February program will be composed by the German group.

POLICE COURT

In police court today Oscar Baumbour, charged with breaking and entering a Dundas street service station, was remanded for sentence. A defendant who was given two days in jail and a third offence drunk was given three months.

Ray Cranston, formerly of Stirling, charged with theft of a cheque had his case enlarged.

Sidewalk snowplows will go back into operation as a result of Monday night's council meeting when an amount of $2,000 was voted back into the public works budget to take care of the expected cost of clearing sidewalks this winter.

During a preliminary budget meeting held a week ago council was in an economy measure voted to discontinue sidewalk plowing and voted down the $2,000 item during the week. The public works budget is still to be passed by council but whatever the amount it is will contain the estimated cost of snowplowing sidewalks.

Last week when a heavy snowfall was received in the city there was a storm of protest when sidewalks were not plowed as has been the custom for several years.

Alderman Countryman as chairman of finance noted that the cost of clearing sidewalks cleared would be about 34 cents for each taxpayer or approximately ten cents more per foot for the season.

There was a difference of opinion on the matter, however, with several aldermen as well as Mayor J. Bush declaring that the $2,000 suggested for the budget did not represent the entire cost.

Alderman Jack Safe said he had voted to discontinue sidewalk plowing last year because he felt the money would vote the same way again. He said the $2,000 was "the most ridiculous figure" and to this must be added liability insurance and other items. "From the standpoint of economy city residents could shovel their own walks," he said.

QUESTION OF LARGER FIGURE

Alderman Argue declared that sidewalk snowplowing was expensive, wasteful and completely inefficient," and suggested that $10,000 would be ten times more realistic estimate of plowing costs.

Alderman Bush said that if citizens really wanted economy they should be prepared to accept services which people are all for economy as long as it doesn't mean any sacrifice for them, he said.

Alderman Clarke declared that some consideration should be given to the 1,300 elderly people in the city who were unable to shovel their own walks. "We are here to save the cost of unemployment," he said, "and here we are saving $2,000 and then spending nearly $30, which it would cost to have walks shovelled."

Alderman Smith, as chairman of public works, said there were 25 miles of sidewalk in the city and $2,000 was the estimate for plowing them this year. He said that council's committee had voted the appropriation out.

"But that was before the snow came," was the timely rejoinder from one of the dissenters.

Mayor Bush claimed $2,000 did not represent the entire cost. "It would be at least two-and-a-half times that much," he said. "The original cost of the jeeps has not been considered."

City Engineer Gordon Mott was called to the council chambers and was asked what the estimated cost of sidewalk plowing was for the year. Mr. Mott said the figure at $2,000 had been arrived at, this covering gas and oil, operation and depreciation.

USED FOR OTHER WORKS

It was noted that the five city trucks would be used for sand for sidewalk plowing but were also required for other work in the public works department. As a result the entire cost of these units would not be charged against snowplowing.

The only outlet of council, George DeVuyst's west side restaurant operator, was also asked why sidewalk plows were not operating this year. He claimed the school children had to walk through ten inches of snow while pedestrians on the main city thoroughfares was remaining idle.

When the $2,000 appropriation for plowing was carried it carried 9-6. Approving were: Aldermen Argue, Clarke, Countryman, Hyde, Mozam, Reid, Smith, Temple, Thomas and Tice. Voting against sidewalk plowing were Mayor Bush and Aldermen Argue, Bradford, Duffy, Keegan and Safe.

Normal Garbage From Factories To Be Collected

Normal garbage from industrial plants in the city will be collected commencing March 1, Council decided on Saturday by city council.

Resolution of council to provide for collection of garbage from industry was made on motion of Alderman Duffy protects from industrialists that they were entitled to such service from the present time no collection of garbage is had with the exception of hotels.

Coupled with the recommendation to provide garbage collection was a further motion to increase the contract of the incinerator by $2,500 per year and to give him a five-year contract. This part of the resolution was also referred back for further discussion.

Alderman Duffy said the collection is to be made.

Alderman Duffy pointed out that industrialists were not asking that industrial waste be collected, only normal garbage would be plant sweepings and refuse from plant cafeterias.

Mayor Bush observed there were 40 industries in the city to which was receiving garbage collection at the present.

"We are asking industry to pay for garbage collection and can't they do something for us? Some thing they do not receive," he observed. "They should get some consideration."

He noted there were three industries in the city outside. One was to accept the offer of Mr. Smith, the garbage collector, to provide the collection, to get someone else to do the collecting for a lesser amount.

Alderman Countryman said the whole matter had arisen over a bill for slightly over $100 received for garbage collection. He could not see spending $2,500 for additional garbage collection, the extra industrial cost collection done for two dollars a week.

"That is beside the point," returned Alderman Smith. "The question is that 40 industries are getting no collection and are entitled to collection.

"I am not objecting to industry getting collection but I object to the method of paying for it that I am paying," replied Alderman Countryman.

He suggested that if the garbage collection contract was to be extended, then tenders should be called and the conditions clearly written in. In his opinion other trucks could be hired to take away the plant garbage and at a lower cost.

Mr. R. Sillitoe, representing city industrialists pointed out that under the law a municipality was bound to collect garbage from restaurants. Because a cafeteria was on plant property did not make it not a restaurant. He advised that the city by-law be "tidied" up with some of its conflicting clauses removed.

"We don't expect to get our money's worth in garbage collection but we feel we are entitled to something," he said.

He noted that local industry was paying over $4,000 per year for garbage collection and was receiving no service.

Ex-Mayor Haig Named to Serve Unexpired Term

Ex-Mayor A. McLeod Haig will serve out the unexpired term of Mr. F. S. Booth on the Belleville General Hospital board of governors. Mr. Booth, manager of the Northern Electric Company plant here, has been transferred to Montreal.

Two names were submitted to council for choice in appointing a member to serve out Mr. Booth's term on the hospital board. The other nominee was Mrs. Gerald McCabe, who was recommended as candidate for the board by the nominating committee acting in appointments to the various city boards earlier in the year. Council favored Mr. Haig as the hospital board member by a vote of 9-6.

There was a brief discussion in council as to whether the vote in the choice of the member would be by ballot or by secret ballot. Council voted to have the election by ballot as it had done in appointments earlier in the year.

Municipal Board Will Sit Here On March 4

Members of the Ontario Municipal Board will be in Belleville March 4th to consider an application for the annexation of the city's new building and zoning by-laws, councillors learned yesterday.

A communication from the Board was read in council, noting that the hearing would be held in the council chamber at 1.30 p.m.

City Solicitor R. A. Pringle said the board could give final approval to the zoning by-law, or could send it back to council to make amendments. Last year the Municipal Board had frozen the by-law for one year, the city-dele being May 31.

Jack Hughes, property owner in the annexed area in the east end of the city, appeared last night before council wanting to know if property in his area would be depreciated in value if a hotel was established in the area. He also wanted to know if a hotel could be built in the Parkwood Heights area where building lots were recently sold for development.

Alderman Keegan, as chairman of planning, said he could not answer whether or not property would depreciate in value in the area of a hotel.

To Mr. Hunter's second question, Alderman Keegan pointed out that under the zoning by-law a hotel could be built in the Parkwood Heights area. "The area is strictly residential," he said, "so permit other than for dwelling would be issued."

Minute Book Will Be Kept At City Hall

A minute book containing the minutes of meetings held by the various civic boards and organizations will be kept at the city hall in the near future.

This decision reached by members of council yesterday when it was pointed out that city clerk would be available to such boards and the city had a right to know what was being done by boards. Among the boards from which minutes of meetings will be obtained are the Hospital Board, the Board of Health, Parks Board, Recreational Commission, Library Board, and the Public Utilities.

Mayor Bush asked whether or the city could obtain the minutes of meetings of the Belleville Rotary club and elected members.

"In case at least ask," replied Alderman Countryman, who placed the recommendation.

derstand that as far as I'm concerned the manual is done," replied Alderman Smith.

Councillor Weaver held that because Supervisor did not have the personal qualifications or the knowledge of building would Councillor McNair did not know whether or not to blame the engineer, but I don't think the assessor knew his business. As far as I'm concerned I'm not satisfied."

"Would you like to move a motion to that effect," asked Mayor Burtt.

Burtt rather see the chairman of the Court of Revision do that," he replied.

Assessor Rogerson has been the town assessor for three years.

Alderman Smith: "That assistant assessor Baer can carry on until they have decided on a plan.

Council Must Approve Three More Budgets Before Tax Rate Can Be Set for Corporation

Although the 1954 mill rate has not yet been struck, payment of the first instalment of this year's taxes will fall due on April 3rd, the same date as last year, it was decided Monday night by city council.

Council voted that due date for payment of taxes would be April 3, June 3, August 3, and October 3.

At the same time, however, Alderman Wilbur Countryman as chairman of finance, pointed out there was no use approving of the above dates unless the 1954 budget was approved by February the 8th. "There is no point going ahead and having tax bills printed unless we are prepared to have the tax rate struck soon," he said. He favored Mr. Haig at the hospital board member by a vote of 9-6.

There was a brief discussion in council as to whether the vote in the choice of the member would be by ballot or by secret ballot. Council voted to have the election by ballot as it had done in appointments earlier in the year.

Alderman Reid spoke in support of the work of the recreational commission, noting that there was still too little being done for the children.

Alderman Keegan referred to the possibility of some artificial rink being done for the commission by present city hall staff. He said if this was the case it might influence his vote on the matter of the amount included in the budget for hiring of a secretary.

"I told Alderman Safe that the odd letter might be written on the committee," pointed out Clerk-Comptroller H. D. Bateman.

"It is not a case of the odd letter, it is the hours of clerical work involved in minor mimeographing forms," replied Alderman Tice. "As far as I am concerned it is just a case of plain arithmetic and financing," objected Alderman Safe. "I feel there is enough staff at city hall to do the work."

Mayor Bush, who is also Alderman Temple, "but the recreational director still has to spend hours on the job."

Council voted to include both amounts in the budget when approved the total figure of $17,-

The Traffic and Light budget of $38,450 was approved as was the city property budget of $15,-000. The property committee budget of $12,000 was passed from last year and the traffic and light budget is down slightly over $2,-000.

The planning committee budget of $1,000 was approved and $100 was approved the social and welfare budget of $112,350 and the Industrial commission budget for $10,000 was carried.

POLICE BUDGET UP

The budget for a $23,757 increase in the police commission budget stirred up a spirited discussion on the part of councillors. The request from the police commission included approval of a merit increase of $400 for policemen, an 8-hour week and hiring of four additional constables, together with other benefits.

Alderman Countryman was of the opinion that the increased budget was justified. His budget unless council and the commission could get together and solicitor R. A. Pringle said it was not necessary to have the increased amount in the budget but the city would be forced to pay any award given should the matter go to arbitration.

"This is a unique matter," Alderman Duffy said. "It is so serious that I agree aldermanic should accompany our mayor and try to explain just what their demand would mean to the city."

The alderman was against placing the increased amount in the budget and said that the city is in it is an indication that we are prepared to pay, when we do not have it.

It was agreed that the city solicitor, clerk-comptroller and three aldermen accompany the mayor to discuss the matter with the police commission.

Assessor Relieved of Duties After Lengthy Discussion

TRENTON (Special) — Assessor Charles Rogerson under severe criticism since town council's decision to hire a second assessor was fired yesterday a few minutes before midnight. His release therefore is effective February 1.

Mayor and Council 30 minutes behind scheduled closing at 11.00 p.m. ended this piece of legislation through in record time. Mayor and council went into a committee as a whole to decide upon the final decision in camera.

The resolution terminating Mr. Rogerson's services reads: Moved by Reg. Armstrong and "seconded by H. A. Nichols, "that Charles Rogerson is hereby notified that his services as town assessor terminate and that he be given one month's pay with its notice which terminate as the 1st February of this date."

Mr. Rogerson brought his family to Trenton when he was appointed to accepted the job of town assessor.

In April of last year council under Mayor Roly Whitley adopted the Manual of Assessment set out by Province of Ontario. Mr. Rogerson was instructed to use the manual as a guide as he undertook to reassess property values.

Last week when assessing the town in its entirety was considered too much work for the assessor and the reassessing the survey was completed within the year. It was suggested by Alderman Smith, "we with an assistant. On April 20 a Mr. Wm. Baer will be hired to assist to help Mr. Rogerson.

On schedule the two assessors will complete the reassessment according to the manual.

MANY COMPLAINTS

Many tax notices went out to the land owners. Then Commissioner Fred Hall of the Court of Revision until some 220 appellants asked for reassessment. In the result 14 taxpayers dissatisfied with their assessment notices took the matter to the Court of Revision announced intention to appeal from the latter court to the County Judge.

E. Smithers and James Mac-Donald are two councillors, who opposed disposing of the assessor Rogerson. They voted in opposition to the decision. Armstrong, Graham, McNair and Weaver were for it.

Discussion leading up to disposing of Mr. Rogerson's services opened with a question from Councillor Smithers: "We have two assessors. Is it necessary to have both of them?" he asked.

Clerk-treasurer O. W. Larry informed council that Rogerson was appointed by council and came under civil service jurisdiction. Before Baer was paid on a weekly basis and could be let out on a week's notice. It was noted that the extra man paid for himself assessing new properties which the assessor was tied up with his regular work.

Councillor Weaver wanted to know how long Trenton had been using the assessment law. "Since May," Mr. Larry replied.

Mayor Burtt suggested that council and court of revision meet with the assessor. Councillor Weaver thought that since there had been more appeals to the court of revision than in the last 40 years. "It shows that something is wrong," he declared.

RESIGNATION.

Mayor Ross Burtt felt that council should discuss Assessor's Rogerson's resignation while Councillor Arm-strong revealed he had been contacted by Rogerson regarding his resignation. Councillor McNair suggested that Rogerson resigns in lieu of both assessors and then if they wanted to apply for their jobs again with the council consider rehiring them.

Councillor Weaver: "Do you think we need two?" "I think we do," replied Mayor. "It's the new assessment," submitted Councillor Graham. "I think we do," echoed Councillor McNair.

Councillor McNair favored leaving the assessor question over until the next meeting. But the mayor pointed out that the assessor's contract with an agreement with this idea until the Mayor learned that Councillors Weaver and Graham had planned trips and would be away in town for the council session. It was decided to bring the matter up Monday.

Councillor Weaver continued: "I think it all boils down to this. If the ratepayers are satisfied with their (the two assessors) performance, Councillor Smithers expressed desire to decline from deciding the question because he had advocated bringing the assessors before council to discuss matters.

Mayor Burtt asked whether Rogerson was competent or incompetent men. Councillors Graham figured somebody didn't understand their job. Councillor McNair added: "I don't think our assessor is qualified for the job."

Councillor MacDonald maintained that Rogerson's assessment was all right. Mayor Burtt maintained that Rogerson was "failing" about the ability of the assessor to assess the town. "I want you to un-

THE VOICE OF FREEDOM

It is a happy coincidence that the appointed time for the presidential university of Toronto to make his annual report to the University's senate and board of governors should chance to fall a few days after a "book-burning" controversy had set in Victoria, the capital of the province of British Columbia.

Dr. Sidney Smith probably had created his dissertation on freedom of thought and speech many days before Mayor Claude Harrison and his supporters proposed that all subversive books on the shelves of the public library in Victoria be burned. Dr. Smith's remarks, however, could not have been more applicable to the Victoria situation had they been specifically written with that controversy in mind.

Mayor Harrison has now stated that he was misquoted and that his remarks on "book-burning" applied only to subversive books when he might own himself, and not to books in the Victoria public library. Vancouver newspapers have denied that their reporters misquoted him. In any event, it is doubtful whether anything that Dr. Smith said to say has any bearing on Mayor Harrison's new statement—but it can serve more useful purpose much nearer home. The controversy, after all, is one with which the citizens of Victoria must deal themselves. It appeared as if comment made in Belleville—or Winnipeg, Toronto or Ottawa—was not likely to do the cause of freedom of thought much good in Victoria and, much in the atmosphere of the times, might conceivably do the commentator considerable harm in his home community. Here was a seductive temptation to remain silent.

There, like a strength-bringing wind from his native northland searching out some lethargic sojourner in the morale-sapping lassitude of the tropics, came Dr. Smith's report.

Here were truths which we should all have been fearlessly voicing. They have now been said in words more powerful than those which we could let us, who agree with the sentiments that they express, at least have the courage to record publicly that agreement.

Let us give thanks, also, for one of our mighty champions whom Dr. Smith has called to our aid. Who would dare attempt to improve on Milton? "And though all the winds of doctrine were let loose to play upon the earth, so Truth be first field, we do injuriously by licensing and prohibiting to misdoubt her strength. Let her and False-hood grapple: who ever knew Truth put to the worse, in a free and open encounter?"

And how pathetically absurd are our modern-day attempts to prohibit any person from misdoubting the strength of Truth when Dr. Smith has stated that "loyalty oaths—to the honest are insulting, and with the dishonest are ineffectual" nobody will deny the truth of his assertion.

Nor ought we to deceive ourselves into believing that Dr. Smith's plea for a continued faith in the power of Truth conceives the restriction of this power to the habits and channels of colleges. It is true, of course, that he was speaking as the president of a great university, and as such was primarily concerned with academic freedom. It is true that he quoted Sir Robert Falconer, who in 1922 declared that "the question of Freedom is more vital in a university than in any other institution in our Western civilization." But it is not correct to infer from that Sir Robert's statement that the question of freedom of thought —and of freedom to read the thoughts of others—is not important outside the halls of universities. If it were true that only students and their instructors were fitted to endure the conflicts which ideas generate in individuals, then would we cease to call universities the light of the world. Assuredly in their purpose. But that free access to ideas which Sir Robert Falconer declared was essential to universities, that willingness to let Truth and Falsehood grapple, is as desirable outside colleges as it within them.

ATTLEE SHOULD BE HAPPY

Prime Minister Winston Churchill as expected, took charge personally of the budget debate which began the choice of a Belgian-designed rifle for the British Army.

The Labor Party is unhappy about this choice. It was while it was in power that the new British rifle was designed to the traditional Lee-Enfield .303.

Both Churchill and Clement Attlee, the leader of the Labor party, were speaking as experts, as well as politicians. Both have commanded on the battle-fronts of the battlefield. Both have commanded on the battle-fronts of the battle of the Belgian rifle, while Attlee has been critical of the time required to effect a bayonet.

It is possible to reason why this Labor fears are so disappointed about the switch, aside from the fact that work conducted while it was in power is being discarded, is that at one time Churchill ardently championed the cause of the British rifle. But he has been converted.

Instead of being so upset at this conversion, one might have expected Labor leaders to welcome the discovery that it is possible to win Churchill over to an opponent's point of view, providing a sufficiently strong argument is advanced.

But the Laborites probably recognize that no rifle—in fact not even the atom bomb—could convert Churchill into an admirer of Socialist policies.

NO DIFFICULT FEAT — FOR WOMEN

Harley J. Earl, vice-president of General Motors, and Dorothy Roe of the Associated Press have put their heads together. They have come up with the conclusion that women are wonderful, because they have been responsible for revolutionizing automobile design.

Sensible designs is an old trick with women. Long ago they accomplished this feat with the most important product in the world. Men.

PEOPLE

Boxed in flesh from head to toe
Yet the soul this world to know.
Made in fashion by God above:
Made to tell and hearts to love;
Unlike different, short or tall;
Three are people, one and all.

Mind to think and eyes to see.
Life to smile when trouble free,
Hope to comfort and to cheer,
Rare soft speech and song to hear,

Joy to know and grief to bear;
These are people everywhere.

Different? Yes, in many ways,
Choice of tasks and numbered days,
Traits and habits, bad and good,
Never clearly understood.
Strivers for the self-same goal;
Three are people, heart and soul.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SOMETHING ELSE THERE

I once read of a writer's statement about the portraits of Abraham Lincoln. I think it was Silas Parry. He said: "No portrait of Lincoln seems to have captured the real Lincoln. There was something else there."

In reading from one of the delightful books of David Grayson (Ray Stannard Baker) I came across this sentence: "I believe and love in America that does not get into the newspapers." So do I. People who live decently and honestly but who never have their names in any newspaper, those humble workers, but essential, and happy at what they do, keeping themselves, looking after the welfare of those near and dear to them, living life for life's sake, and trying to make each day a good day.

There is nothing far more important to life than the mere making of money, getting famous, or beating out the other fellow. Treating the human body for what it is—the greatest creation in all this world, and making of it a temple of health and beauty, rejoicing over life itself, and leading others to think likewise—what else could fill one's destiny so well?

There is always something else to make up for our losses, our discouragements, and our failures. These things are but temporary, or can be made to be such. Always is there hope ahead. Always there are other days. Always there is something new and startling to be discovered within each day to serve and our time.

Robert Frost was farmer, student, school teacher, and an occasional writer of poetry. But one day he wrote a poem, called "The Butterfly," at once asked that it be inscribe in one of his books (the first one, "A Boy's Will") a copy of the poem. That poem, and he remarked how extraordinary was my request, for he said: "It was after writing that very poem that I decided to devote my time to the writing of poetry." Today he is acknowledged as America's greatest poet.

Modern Furniture

Ornaments Can Be Deadly

By AL ROACH.
In The Windsor Star.

A little six-year-old Detroit boy is fighting for his life in that city's receiving hospital. He suffered a critical head injury in an automobile accident.

In many ways, it is the same pitiful story told many times each year in Canada and in the United States.

The little fellow, school bag in hand, dashed in front of an oncoming automobile as he was running across the street to catch a waiting school bus.

This accident has a fantastic twist. The impact hurled the boy against the ornament on the hood of the automobile. Shaped like a jet plane, with a long, spear-like nose, the ornament pierced the child's right temple and entered the brain.

The driver of the automobile told police he was proceeding at 25 or 30 miles per hour. He was released.

The question arises: "Who was responsible for this tragic accident?"

Will the fault of the little tyke? Can a small boy, no matter how hasty those actions, be expected to remember that he is not to run across streets? Is it too late for the driver? Can a driver, apparently proceeding cautiously, avoid a child who runs driving within the legal speed limits, for such incidents as a child suddenly darts in front of his car?

Will the blame perhaps more properly placed on a different design?

What about the manufacturer of the automobile? Is he partially blameless in this unfortunate episode?

What can we say in behalf of the manufacturer, who, in order to promote his sales, in a car, puts such a dangerous ornament on the hood? We cannot in all justice this act, when the manufacturer is willing to include in the price of his car the building of a small child?

Many persons are killed or maimed each year because of these entirely useless ornaments.

It is our difficult to justify the sincerely of automobile manufacturers who incorporate deadly safety features in their products and then add these dangerous daggers on the hoods?

Surely the automobile manufacturers, in the interest of public safety, could afford to ignore the sales appeal which such ornamentation lists this type of ornament on a car. There are other types of ornament which look just as smart and are not dangerous.

Perhaps Detroit has a good idea to banish hood ornaments from the automobile completely. The life of a child is worth more than the appearance of a car.

Rats Lead Tough Life

(Christian Science Monitor)

Consider the poor rat. What does he get but sneers and scorn?

A speaker at a recent symposium of the Universities Federation for Animal Welfare in Britain condemned that rats get a bad name. He said: "Rats are said another speaker, are intelligent and tractable, and make excellent pets for children, who have no natural prejudice against them. Many people who keep them in the house only if they are introduced as white hamsters.

Mice are another matter. The mouse has this much to be said in imagination by legend and poem —the mouse that lived in a house, the "wee sleekit, cow'rin', tim'rous beastie" of Burns, and a thousand other scampering, sharp-eyed little creatures of ancient and modern literature.

But what poet has reduced us to a friendship feeling for the mouse's lollopping elder brother, tough prowler in alleyways, denizer of Mickey Spillane's world rather than Walt Disney's? Kenneth Grahame in "The Wind pet.

Are TV Masts Necessary?

(Financial Post, Toronto)

In the age of electronic eyes and brains and supersonic speeds which can put you on England almost before you leave home, isn't anyone do anything about those unsightly television aerials, in this otherwise streamlined era?

Here certainly is a challenge to technology. Can anyone build a long-range gun for clear blue sky, every landscape, will be wrecked by monstrosities of wires and rods rising high above the rooftops?

Bath-Tub Bureaucracy

(Hamilton Spectator)

A little one-paragraph dispatch from the Channel Islands the other day, reporting the residents of Guernsey-cattle fame, has been ordered to limit their baths to five inches of water until the rains came, set us to meditating on the strange ways of bureaucracy and the vulnerability of man through his bath tub.

It is not clear why there was also the depth that Britons were required to fill their tubs to, but the painted Plimsol line during the wartime fuel shortage). For instance, of every householder possessing a tub of average size, the regulation of five inches means bath-depth that could be ordered. With only three inches of water (or almost cold) a man knows he isn't going to get clean. He becomes chilled. Nor are five inches enough for immersion of the body, cradled in the soft arms of the water, the head resting on the porcelain at the bottom of the tub, which is hard.

Furthermore, there is an appalling difference between a five and inch rule. Not all tubs are the same size. A man of greater than average displacement sexting into a small tub will cause the water level to rise considerably; he might overflow it. He is uncomfortable with five inches. A man of small displacement curling his bones into that depth in a large tub will remain exposed like a whale with only its back out of the water. Or in the case of "undo litem that hath shall it be done" Britons, who keep their bath tubs are rarely well-heated, it is conceivable that out of the sin of covetousness, its prime object is the tub possessed by the neighbor, which, in a small side-a very jerobeam in the embodiment, is a bath tub with an inside length of at least six feet and depth enough to fill the occupant clear of the bottom. For us, cursed by nature with an average tub, it is a matter of fact; we could submerge both our bodies and our troubles completely—something which never happens, for it seems to require more to live in houses in which the tubs, far from being magnums or better, are only splits.

GRAND-STAND MORTALITY

Up to the end of November last year four teen age boys, ignoring counsel of parents, teachers, physicians but responding to the urgings of the coach, were killed playing football. And that's the travesty on life's grown man's game that is staged in American high schools.

Dr.-Brady

Some sport enthusiasts argue that these boys might just as well have been killed crossing the street or falling off the roof, which doesn't console their bereaved parents.

During the Minnesota-Michigan football game in November, 300 three spectators collapsed and died of what the newspaper reports call "heart attacks"—all of them within 10 minutes or so. The victims were 25, 54 and 51 years of age respectively.

Some wiseacres will argue that these men might not have died from "heart attack" while playing golf, nodding in easy chair over the evening paper after a hearty dinner of lying abed. True but still it is reasonable to assume that the tense emotion excited by the game was more than their heart-artery system could stand, so something gave way.

I have condemned high school football and I still condemn the game for growing boys because it is a grown man's game (college and university) and too great a strain on the heart of a growing boy.

The sports people who exploit high school football can laugh this objection off because, after all, doctors can't "prove" that the players die of what the newspapers, coaches and lay-men doctors call "heart attack." In this little half-column it is not easy to make the average intelligent man stand that beartstrain, as a rule, merely impairs the efficiency or deficiency for years or perhaps for the rest of his life.

In my preachments against high school football I'm afraid I have inadequately presented the "gradual piling up of minute trauma" (injury) "to growth cartilages and joint structures," as Dr. L. Bruce Man, orthopedic surgeon. describes it, "from intense use under strain."

Dr. Lowman, director of education, Orthopaedic Hospital, Los Angeles, added that "The results of such trauma may not appear till later, years. Consequently, the necessary cart may be neglected."

Some parents not only do not object to the exploitation of their boys by the sportsmen, service clubs and other football enthusiasts but take pride in the feeling that their boys are somehow superior to the namby-pamby ones who are not such great football material.

High school football promoters and the physical education instructors, however, help us who do their bidding, will get a laugh over it by the statement of Dr. Lowman that "the family doctor should advise getting orthopaedist's opinion before a child is permitted to take part in concussive contact sports." This is wise counsel, but few parents will heed it. They will do their doctor after the boy has been injured or crippled.

Texas Man's View on Taxes

(Galt Reporter)

T. Coleman Andrews, commissioner of internal revenue for the United States at Washington, has a right to be crusty:

"A Texan who lived in a shack built out of his property and economy can bring a great fortune —an estimated $50,000 a week. Overnight, the Texan became interested in taxes, which amount to quite a pile on that kind of income.

The inquisitive oilman came all the way to Washington to find out (1) how much taxes he would have to pay on his income, and (2) what the government would do with the money. He asked specifically to see the internal revenue commissioner.

Andrews allowed the government collected $63,305,000,000 in taxes during last fiscal year, and then went on to talk about the budget.

"How much did you say you got in taxes?" asked the Texan.

"Sixty-eight billion 305 million dollars," repeated Andrews.

The oilman let out a low whistle. "Whatever God we don't get as much government as we pay for!" he said.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It appears that the physicists and atomic scientists are baffled by the atom. Once it was the smallest and smaller the more they pried into it. First they thought it was the atom—the final unitary constituent of matter—ten years ago. Then it had to be made up of a whole raft of smaller things to which they gave the new names. They chased these down to neutrons, protons and electrons, farther and farther into nothingness; and how they find each of these is beyond me, in a universe of number of smaller things.

Science is finding out that there is no such thing as nothing.

To fellows like you and me who have been in the habit, for years past, of lying on the dry grass looking at the stars of a summer night and trying to think infinity, it is not surprise that there is no such thing as nothing. If there is no beginning and no end to space or time, if we can't imagine space or time, or time or having no start and no finish, why shouldn't we unable to imagine nothing? It stands to reason. If there is infinite bigness, why shouldn't there be infinite smallness?

I bet you these scientists never will find nothing.

They will go on and on, dividing, re-dividing, searching, exploring into the spacelessness of nothing, and all as hopelessly as their brethren, a few years back, were exploring the outer way, the spaciousness of everything.

And all the while, characters like us will go on looking on the grass of summer nights, gazing at the stars and wondering what everything is all about.

How much simpler it was when I was a child, when one could lie on the summer grass and look at the splendor of the night sky, knowing that God was up there, behind that sublime curtain, on His throne, with His angels around Him, while in the angels those who had died stood round Him singing hallelujah. And one little black dog, Bonnie, who had only died, would be there, too, playing with me among all those stars. And when he got tired, just waiting.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

A SEED LONG PLANTED

Dr. Frederick G. Banting, who discovered insulin, a remedy specific for diabetes, is said to have come upon his world-shaking discovery after years of thinking an old, outmoded book on medicine. This book had been relegated to the stacks of practically dead books in a medical library. Perhaps the man who wrote it died feeling that his effort had been in vain. Nobody much had read his book while he was living, and perhaps before he died he saw it go out of print and out of the memory of his colleagues. But years later, as Dr. Banting read this old, forgotten book, he found a statement popped out and started a chain of thought in the mind of the Canadian physician, which eventuated in a great discovery.

Poets have loved to dilate upon the significance of a seed-sown by the wind. The words of the poet and the circumstances surrounding Banting's discovery mean to you and to me that personal lives, insignificant little circumstance in our lives, some words we have uttered, some line we have written, some friendly smile we have given, may some day change a whole section of the world's life. God is supremely indifferent to bigness. He appears to put no value on many things we consider very valuable.

Martin Luther has been the centre of great controversy for over 400 years. Alternately hailed by his supporters and damned by his critics, Martin Luther stands as a monumental figure among the history makers of the western world.

It can hardly be expected that a motion picture on the life of such a man could be portrayed without being controversial. It is too much to ask that it be all inclusive.

The picture was produced by an association of six Lutheran groups in the United States. It was filmed by the Louis de Rochemont Associates. Interpreted, he said mainly mostly on English and French stage actors little known on this continent, is headed by Niall MacGinnis as Luther; Annette Carell as Catherine Von Bora, the nun who became Luther's wife; John Ruddock as Victor Staupitz; Guy Verney as Melanchthon and Alastair Hunter as Carlstadt. Luther's senior in the Department of Theology at Wittenberg. Minor characters in the play were portrayed by Germans.

FILMED IN EAST ZONE

Actual filming of the picture took place in the eastern zone of Germany because the sites of the events of Luther's life are in the Russian occupied zone.

The picture, completed in 1952, is scheduled to appear in Belleville in the first week of March. A preview showing of the picture at the Belle Theatre last week was witnessed by about 100 persons. The agent for the distributor announced that a 20-per cent price reduction would be given church members attending the showing.

Special cards, identifying the bearer as a church member, will be distributed among church congregations in the district. Presentation of the card at the ticket window will procure a 20 per cent reduction in the ticket price.

To review "Martin Luther" fairly it is essential that the reader of the review deal with the content of the picture rather than with the technicalities of its production. And it is precisely in dealing with the content of the film that the reviewer stands in danger of being enmeshed in the Luther controversy.

Fortunately for the reviewer there is enough authentic historical material about Luther's life from contemporary accounts and from his own writings to make the task less hazardous.

The picture takes up the story of Luther in 1505 at a time when Luther was preparing to abandon the study of law at the University of Erfurt, in order to enter the Augustinian monastery. Subsequent scenes show Luther's confirmation and the taking of vows of obedience, charsity and poverty.

SPIRITUAL CONFLICT

The spiritual and emotional conflict that troubled Luther from his youth continues swelling within him, breaking out in scenes, when he tells his confessor, "I cannot love God, that is my unpardonable sin. God is good, I am evil. He condemns me," says the movie Luther. The picture shows Luther dwelling on the harshness of God and preoccupied with the sternness of judgment.

Despite these grave doubts about possible salvation from a stern God Luther is shown continuing his studies until he is named finally a Doctor of Theology. Luther's doubts finally crystallize around his objections to the supposed sale of indulgences, and he posts his famous 95 theses on the door of Wittenberg cathedral on October 31, 1517.

The picture points out the inertia of his monastic superiors, the German clergy and the laymen of the realm in meeting this challenge giving a picture of the state of laxity and deviation from ecclesiastical discipline in the German Church that Luther himself deplored.

The climax of the picture is Luther's statement to the council at Worms that he cannot recant and that "no man can bind my conscience."

There is only a suggestion in the movie of the violence that followed Luther's pronouncement and the bloodshed that split Germany asunder.

TRANSLATED BIBLE

The picture ends quietly showing Luther translating the Bible into German, the 28th translation into German according to historical record and peacefully instructing children in the home he made after marrying, in 1525, Catherine Von Bora.

The picture is prefaced by a statement that the events depicted were the result of careful historical research by historians of many faiths.

The picture cannot be appraised as a complete biography, failing as it does to include much relevant background information about the social, political and economic life of the times, and the results of Luther's work.

Hope Rising Polio May Be Beaten by Unnamed Vaccine

OTTAWA (CP)—Hope is rising in Canada that poliomyelitis may be beaten by an unnamed vaccine now undergoing tests in the United States. But it may be a year or more before scientists have absolute proof of its power.

Meanwhile, Toronto's Connaught Laboratories have been instructed to increase production of gamma globulin to be fed into areas hit by the crippling and killing disease.

Dr. G.D.W. Cameron, deputy health minister, said in an interview that the Toronto laboratories say that they produced about 20,000 doses of gamma globulin. Production this year might total as much as 150,000 doses. Distribution would be made on the basis of greatest need.

Dr. Cameron touched on the polio problem as he discussed a department report on the illness in the health department's 140-page annual report for 1952-53, tabled Monday in the Commons.

VACCINE REAL HOPE

The report said that while gamma globulin offers polio immunity, humanity's greatest hope is through active immunization by vaccine.

Gamma globulin wasn't the answer to the problem of polio prevention in large populations because of the "difficulty of producing a sufficient volume" and the "comparatively short duration of the immunity conferred—five weeks."

But the vaccine, now under test in the U.S., held promise, Dr. Cameron said he does not want to raise the hopes of Canadians too high, but some unforeseen flaw makes the vaccine a disappointment. Reports so far were "encouraging," but the degree of permanency was unknown.

The report agreed, but said before "one of the seed of "rigorous tests" before each batch of vaccine can be safely used, "it will be some time before these vaccines are available in any quantity."

But Canada is on the ground floor in the vaccine's production. The culture's first stages are produced at Connaught, where Canada's globulin is got the top men in the field, Dr. Andrew Rhodes.

TO RATE DOWN

The health report touched on other health matters.

The death rate from tuberculosis, once man's greatest killer, fell in 1952 to a new low of 18 for every 100,000 persons. But cancer has made new inroads on the human body. In 20 years the death rate had increased to 123.6 for every 100,000 persons in 1951 from 57.4 in 1931.

The fact that cancer campaigns have not reduced the death rate is "indeed a sobering thought," the report said. Attention must be given to critical evaluation of large and increasing expenditures on cancer control programs.

On the brighter side was the reduction in maternal and infant death rates. The maternal rate was reduced in 1951 to 1.1 for every 1,000 live births. The infant rate was 30 for every 1,000 live births. This still was high, but the decline was in keeping with changes in other countries with comparable medical care.

Man's life span has increased. The average life expectancy in Canada in the 19th century was 40 years. In 1947 it had increased to 65 years for men and 70 years for women. But longer life brought new medical problems. Trend in life expectancy, said the report, "calls for a new emphasis in our health program."

Forget Bygones, Resume Talks, May Be U.S. Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may call today on the Communists in Korea to let bygones be bygones and get on with preliminary peace talks, stalled now for nearly two months.

State department officials wrestled today with the problem of how to word a reply to the Communist demand that special ambassador Arthur H. Dean return to Panmunjom and resume conversations intended to pave the way for a full-dress Korean peace conference.

State Secretary Dulles was kept up to date on the efforts to draft a reply. He is in Berlin attending the Big Four foreign ministers meeting.

Dean, a former law partner of Dulles, walked out of the preliminary talks at Panmunjom Dec. 12, saying he had had enough of Red insults. He objected most strenuously to a Red charge that the United States had conspired with South Korea to release 27,000 anti-Communist war prisoners before the truce last summer.

READY TO RETURN

Dean said that he would not return until the Communists retracted a perfidy charge against the U.S. However, the U.S. government later said Dean was ready to return to Korea "on short notice."

So far, the Communists have given no indication of readiness to retract. Just last week they wrote Dean, demanding the resumption of talks but saying nothing about the issue that prompted him to break off those talks.

Ever since the Communist demand was received nearly a week ago, high-level diplomats have been drafting replies.

Their problem was how to get over an apparently insurmountable road block in a way that would leave face all around. In Orient, "face" is vitally important.

Japan Queries U.S. Embassy About Russian

TOKYO (AP)—Japan asked the American embassy today if it knows the whereabouts of a Russian diplomat-spy, the Soviet mission charges was kidnapped by United States intelligence agents.

The Japanese foreign ministry said it had not received a reply. A spokesman for the embassy refused to acknowledge receipt of Japan's request for information.

The delay in answering the foreign ministry took as an indication that the embassy may know the whereabouts of Yuri Alexandrovich Rastovorov, second secretary of the defunct Russian diplomatic mission here.

HAS ASKED ASYLUM

An American source who cannot be identified said Monday that Rastovorov asked the U. S. for political asylum and probably is no longer in Japan. He could be on the American military base of Okinawa or even en route to the U. S.

Rastovorov presumably has valuable information on Russian plans and espionage in the Far East. The Soviet mission charged Monday that an American intelligence agency had kidnapped Rastovorov. Today Russian officials went to

Woodcock Again Become Plentiful In Nova Scotia

Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP)—After two serious setbacks, woodcock again are becoming plentiful in Nova Scotia, a famous territory for the lively game birds.

They had been almost wiped out in 1938-39 because of bad weather on their winter grounds in the Louisiana swamps. In 1948, a weeklong cold snap froze their nesting grounds in this province. In thousands of woodland coverts in mid-April then there were unhatched eggs. The birds starved to death because their three-inch bills could not penetrate the frozen soil for worms.

BIG EATERS

Ordinarily a woodcock eats daily more than its own weight, about six ounces. Wildlife biologists estimated that 40 per cent of the tiny birds with deep brown feathers died on their feeding grounds in 1948.

Only about a quarter of the normal migration reached Louisiana and other southern states that year, after being hunted heavily in the second-growth woodlands of Nova Scotia, the New England states and Pennsylvania.

They've been staging a comeback since then and, with the help of mild weather, are rapidly providing good hunting for a growing number of rapid-reflexed sportsmen. But it's a sport that can easily become discouraging, like hupting grouse in heavy cover.

Protective coloring makes them virtually invisible. Their natural habitat is birch or alder thicket, usually near swampy or moist ground.

SPORTING TARGET

Woodcock sit perfectly still until you're almost on top of them. Then they whirr in straight upward flight to the thicket, making a whistling sound with their wings as they zigzag away. They fly only short distances, even when fired at.

Most hunters use a cylinder bore gun and shoot at a snake for a wider pattern. Shot shouldn't be larger than No. 8.

Woodcock whose broad, round wings seem small for their plump body, are sort of a cross-breed between the wading birds and the grouse, pheasants and quail. Here are, however, under the family of snipe and sandpipers.

Prime Minister Celebrates 72nd Birthday

He rose and bowed graciously in the Commons as Speaker Rene Beaudoin, amid energetic desk-thumping by all members, wished him "a very happy birthday and many happy turns of the day."

All opposition leaders joined in the salute.

Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said the prime minister looks "extremely well" and is a "comparative youngster when one compares his age with that of the very youthful head of another government of the Commonwealth with whom he will be lunching in a few days."

This was a reference to Mr. St. Laurent's trip on which he departs Thursday. His first date abroad is lunch with Prime Minister Churchill, 79, in London.

CCF leader Coldwell said: "I do want to say all I can, wished for us, irrespective of our political views, join with the leader of the opposition, the speaker and every one else in extending our good wishes to the 'prime minister.'"

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said: ". . . There must be many honorable members who hope that at 72 they will be as spry as the prime minister."

Accused Pleads Guilty to Charge Of Assault

WOODSTOCK (CP)— Henry Elliott of Lucknow, Monday pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with intent to rob—the last of 19 charges laid against him after a wild breaking and entering and shooting spree last fall.

Harry Birtch, 68, of Embro, said Elliott forced his way into his farm home, pointed a sten gun at him and demanded an auto. Mr. Birtch said he had no car.

Elliott then left and shot up the neighboring home of George McBurney with the sten gun. He was previously sentenced for this offence to six years in penitentiary.

On 17 charges of breaking and entering he was sentenced to three years.

On the charge heard Monday, Elliott was remanded to Friday for sentence.

Dear Mr. Keegan:

With reference to your inquiry as to the possibility of Messrs. Weddings

BOYCE—CALBURY

A pretty winter wedding was solemnized in Bethesda United Church, 2nd, at 1:00 p.m., at the home of the Rev. W. R. Merrick, 102 North Front Street, Belleville, when they united in marriage Ruth Amy Pearl Calbury of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Calbury, to Roy Benjamin Harry Boyce, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boyce. The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion with roses and ferns.

The bride was attractively attired in a medium shade blue suit with white fur hat, white accessories, and corsage of red roses, mingled with white hyacinth bells. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Lloyd Greenfield, of New Lake, Bancroft, who wore a suit of blue grey with black velvet hat, black accessories and corsage of yellow roses and purple hyacinths.

Mr. Karl Yateman, of Belleville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for the couple by the bride, which was adorned with pink and white streamers, white wedding bells, and a profusion of large yellow chrysanthemums and yellow snapdragons, where the bride's mother, wearing navy blue check jersey and corsage of pink roses, received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore rust shade taffeta and corsage of yellow roses and additional ferns.

The bride's table was exquisitely appointed with a madeira cloth centred by a four-tier wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom and tiny wedding bell which chimed. Tall tapers in cut glass candelabra added a pleasing accent.

Mrs. Glen Wright supervised the wedding supper, while the Misses Ruby Bateman, Jean Edwards, Shirley Frederick served.

The wedding trip centred around the eastern United States.

The bride's gift to her bridesmaid, a silver cake plate; to Mrs. Glenn Wright, a cut glass rose bowl; to those who served, home china cups and saucers. The bridegroom's gift to his bride, a rhinestone necklace with matching earrings; to his groomsman, gold tie pin with matching cuff links.

Guests were present from Markham, Toronto and Bancroft, and other nearby districts.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was honored by two miscellaneous showers, one by Miss Shirley Frederick, and one by the girls of the office staff of the Industrial Acceptance Co. in the home of Miss Jean Edwards.

Bridge St. Church W.A. Installs Officers

The first monthly meeting of the year of the Women's Auxiliary of Bridge Street United Church took place in the S.S. section on the clock on Friday, where a pot-luck luncheon was served to a large attendance of members.

The business meeting with Mrs. Harley Wray in the chair, was opened with prayer by the Rev. Miriam Collins.

Monthly and annual reports were given, showing that the society had had an active and successful year; the last $500 of the society's pledge for 1954 to the S.S. Renovation Fund had been paid, also the $500 pledge to the Hospital Building Fund, which will supply a Children's Ward Unit.

Miss Collins, in the chair, received the report of the obituary man of the nominating committee.

DUTIES OF W.A.

Mrs. Ralph Morden gave a short address on the purpose and duties of the society. One of these duties is the Devotional service: it should be regarded as an integral part of the programme; the society should regard itself as the 'hostess' group of the church; it should take concern of the physical aspects of the church—the church itself, its parsonage, its cemetery, its equipment and publicity' seekers. — (CP Photo.)

Skirt Lengths Down to Last Spring's Level

By NADEANE WALKER

PARIS (AP) — Stubbornly keeping skirt lengths down to last spring's level, Pierre Balmain today showed one of the most lavishly elegant collections of fashions seen this season.

While other designers favor sparse, discreet evening embroidery of flat crystal bugle beads, Balmain splashes his gauzy gossamer-like gowns with colored flowers in high relief, edged with multicolored beads and gold braid.

In general, he likes the same colors, blue, pink, navy, white, and beige, as other fashion houses, and the same lines, both the figure-line silhouette fitted to the hip and then full to the hem, and stem-straight skirts.

The rose is the flower of the day, appearing repeatedly in pastel-chalk silk prints and all kinds of embroidery. One of the nicest new notes at Balmain is a lacing of wide ribbon down the front of dresses and jackets and evening coats.

CAPE COATS POPULAR

A sort of lark-screen wool is popping up all over the shows, and so are cape coats. Bands of delicate fagotting for trim is Balmain's original idea, and he even uses it on thick woollen coats.

Jackets, always on the short side, are cut away in front in an inverted V for a weskit effect. Jersey, draped as Balmain says he "at the points of femality—the hips and the bust," is an easy winner as a daytime favorite, with soft silks coming into their own for late afternoon onward.

Frances Yeend, Soprano, Scores Vocal Triumph in Recital

By EUGENE LANG

The third concert of the 1953-54 series of the Belleville Community Concert Association enticed a large roster of music lovers to Belleville Collegiate Auditorium last evening to hear Frances Yeend, leading soprano of the New York City Opera Company, as she made her debut here in a recital of operatic excerpts, lieder and songs.

Her repertoire in the operatic field includes title roles in such favorites as "La Traviata," "La Boheme," "the Marriage of Figaro," "Carmen," "Faust," "The Tales of Hoffman," and scores of others. Her appearance in recital throughout Canada, U.S.A. and Mexico have met with wide renown, besides having been guest artist with both the leading symphony orchestras of the State's another proof of her continued acclaim. Last year she concertized extensively throughout Western Europe and England, winning new laurels for her finely textured voice, be it presentations of opera, oratorio or song. Again, this season she is heavily booked to appear throughout Canada and the U.S., signaling to her appreciative audiences as one of today's loveliest voices.

VARIED PROGRAM

The program selected by Miss Yeend for her initial appearance here was one that was not pedestrian varied, yet very well balanced as regards vocal content. She offered a taxing concert fare which after eighteen scheduled numbers from the operatic and song repertoire of the leading 19th and 20th century composers of Germany, France, Spain, Italy and the United States. Her appeal to the audience was shown by the fact that she had to add five encores to the repeated demands of her hearers.

Space forbids reviewing and evaluating each composition sung, but it is possible to select a few at random for literary interpretations of the singer's musical status and qualifications. Wagner's powerful and masterful aria "Dich, teure Halle" from "Tannhauser" was the opening selection chosen by Miss Yeend and here she projected the grandeur of this difficult number with a fullness of tone and depth of dramatic fervor that transformed the auditorium into the historic Wartburg Hall of Song for the duration of this number.

FOUR GERMAN NUMBERS

Her voice lent itself most admirably in her soulful renditions of four German Lieder of Franz Schubert and Richard Strauss.

"The heavenly "An die Musik" of Schubert was delivered with a feeling of personal love and affection as these immortally inspired phrases flowed effortlessly from the singer's lips. In direct contrast there followed three selections of Richard Strauss' "Kling" were given a forceful rendition with vigorous realities that Miss Yeend seemed to have a special flair for.

In the group of modern songs by living composers it would be hard to choose any one that could convey to any who were present the finer appreciation and emotional feeling that Miss Yeend imparted into each item. The softly and endearing notes of Samuel Barber's "Sure on This Shining Night" were a joy to listen to and provided a fitting contrast to the pagan ritual of the Selber opus, "Each Time, My Love, You Leave Yourself" the starkly bleak content of "Black song that required that ineffable 'personal touch' which Miss Yeend so fully realized in her singing of it.

Three totally different examples of Faure Fyeschmus (Debussy, Ravel, and Bizet) were a Rosey' by Sibelius was another treat in the vocal delineation that the artist of the evening portrayed. "Chanson" of Ravel, as a familiar song, was one that gave Miss Yeend a chance to show every possible aspect and attribute of her remarkable voice, in its impressionistic meanderings of curved and rounded tones. Bizet's familiar "Oeuvre ton coeur" is always welcome and was enthusiastically received in Miss Yeend's depiction of this favorite.

ENTHUSIASTIC TRIO

Came the Puccini! Here was the most moving and dramatic trio of selections of the entire concert. The two charming and singer arias of Mimi from "La Boheme" could not adequately be described in words—one had to hear it. Highly appreciate the highly concentrated emotionalities that Miss Yeend found into these numbers—and these were topped off with "Oh, but Ami" from "Madame Butterfly" — another out of this world performance. These above were worthy the price of the entire recital—never any more!

For encores the singer chose both old favorites ("Danny Boy" and "Indian" "Lullaby") and even added one little Gypsy Lament of her own composition, heavily spiced but very acceptable. Mozart's "Ah!dolci" from his "Zaide" a jubilant song also given a little too much Yeend and not enough Mozart, but let's not complain, it was sung very nicely.

FINE ACCOMPANIMENT

Mr. James Bennett, Miss Yeend's accompanist modelled his stylings at the keyboard in complete accord with the featured artist. He must be highly complimented on the fine job he did accompanist that his reviewer can recall in over twelve years who used no scores in his playing. This is much more difficult on the part of the pianist, but does give the player a great deal more leeway in his phrasings and pace runs with the singer. In his solo numbers he selected three chopin opi and gave an adequate accounting of each, but Mr. Bennett's finest hour was in Mimi that is for Horowitz or Rubinstein—they just love that fare, it's not for you. The Polonaise and Brahms' "Waltz" were much better in keeping with all the fine playing you had done along with Miss Yeend.

Following the recital a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Finkle on East Bridge Street to complete a most enjoyable evening.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

SPECIAL PROBLEMS ABOUT A TEA-PARTY

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

1. I am planning on making a trip to my home town later this Spring. This will be the first time I have been there in five years. Would it be all right for my mother to give a tea to which only close friends would be invited? Would it be best for her to give one tea when I first arrive, or should she wait until my husband joins me, which will be shortly after I arrive? He has not been there for over ten years and I do not very well acquainted with my friends.

2. My father and stepmother live in the same town with my mother, but they have practically no contact with each other, although relations are friendly between the families. I hear very rarely from my father, and when I have been home in the past my contact with him has been only when I was at his house, which seems to be considered a duty. In your judgment, as you think that under present circumstances, my mother should invite my father and stepmother to this tea she is giving?

M. F.

1. What a perfect plan...for your mother to give a Welcome-Home tea for you. In fact you will have the delightful opportunity to greet your close friends there! I think there's always an advantage in having ...this type of tea given as soon as possible after the arrival-in-town of the guest of honor, and particularly as only your warmest friends are to be invited. However, it really depends on personal choice and convenience whether or not the tea is postponed until your husband arrives; and I'm sure there will probably be another opportunity for him to meet your friends.

2. In my judgment, I think that, under the not-so-easy circumstances you put forth, it would be unnecessarily "forced" for your mother to invite your father and stepmother, and I think you shouldn't suggest this plan, or agree to it if your mother suggests it to you. The procedure most kind and thoughtful to your mother is to let the situation remain as it is, and for you to see your father at his home, if you and he so wish.

HOW TO ORDER FOR GUESTS

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My wife and I have lived in this medium-size town less than a year, and we still haven't been able to get the house or apartment we want. However, we'd like to give a few very informal little dinners at a very attractive inn quite near here, inviting some people who have been so good and hospitable to us. We plan to invite six or eight each time. The food is delicious at this inn, and the dinners are table d'hote. I don't suppose I could ask if each guest for his or her preference, or let each guest order?

Host-in-be

Dear M.I.B.:

What's the sense of wasting time trying to decide which of those boys you like best? Why not be friends with both of them? Has either one of those boys given you any reason to believe you have to choose between them? If you feel, like many others of your age, that you can have only one boy friend at a time, then it seems to me you'd better wait until one or the other asks you to "go steady," and in the meantime have as many boy friends as you can.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHE'S GETTING A DIVORCE; SHE'LL HAVE ANOTHER ONE SOON!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 24 years old, have a daughter eight years old and have a divorce pending.

About three weeks ago, I met and fell in love with a very nice young man, who is divorced and has two small children. Right now, he's in the army and about to go overseas. He will be gone 18 months.

When I met him, this young man was home on a three weeks' leave and while he told me that he had fallen in love with me, too, it seemed as though the last week he way home he was avoiding me. We talked about marriage, but he thought he should not ask me to wait so long for him to come home. I think we probably could have got married while he was here, though, except that my divorce has not come through yet.

Do you think I should wait for him to come home, or look for someone else? I am very lonely sometimes, and do want to get married again.—M. L.

Dear R.M.:

Isn't it your state of mind should even dream of getting married for awhile. You are obviously so emotionally confused, and so immature that you are apparently ready to marry anybody at all just for the sake of being married again. If you did such a thing, you would be getting another divorce in no time.

Hasn't your first marital failure taught you anything? Haven't you the faintest idea that you're talking childish nonsense when you ask if you should wait for a young man you have known just three weeks, and who, by your own admission, avoided you after two of the three?

If you really want a second marriage that will be happy and successful, and not just another mistake, you will pull yourself together, buckle down to building a life that will be full of interests, with or without marriage, and wait until you acquire some idea of what life is all about before you risk marriage again. If you don't do this, you are certainly going to be headed for a very unhappy young woman.

CAN'T DECIDE WHICH BOY SHE LIKES BEST—WHY TRY?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I like two boys and I can't decide which one I like best.

Both boys have been friends for only a short time, but I feel as though I've known him all my life. The other one I have known for a long time because his sister is my best girl friend. Both of them are very nice. The first one is 18 and the second one is 19. I am 16, too.—M. R.

Dear M.R.:

Has either one of those boys given you any reason to believe you have to choose between them? If you feel, like many others of your age, that you can have only one boy friend at a time, then it seems to me you'd better wait until one or the other asks you to "go steady," and in the meantime have as many boy friends as you can.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

FOUNDATIONS FOR THE AVERAGE FIGURE

To cut a pretty figure, a woman should ensure her svelte shape in a perfectly-fitted foundation garment. To be sure that she puts on a model that is suitable, she should seek the services of an experienced corsetiere. Shoppers are much too casual, so experts in this line tell us, about making fashion figure.

Let us this day, consider the average feminine figure. Circumference measurements are usually in proportion to height. Generally the figure is mature, with bust, waist and hips normally developed.

Moderate restraint and control are required if the flesh is firm. When tissue have softened, even so lightly, a garment that molds contour lines is needed. Since the body is well-proportioned, no one body point should be emphasized. For that reason, specialists recommend an all-in-one garment, which equalizes control.

The waist of the junior figure is more of a problem to those professionals who would correct the lack of the feminine silhouette by means of proper harnessing. Body measurements have not reached full development, proportions may be too short or too slim. Hips may be undeveloped, but under-developed. Or even the opposite may be the case. Then, too, often is the proper distribution of weight and firm holding.

The waistline needs definition. The abdomen must be kept flat and firm, which also would correct inclination to slouch or to throw the shoulders forward. The hipline must be kept trim. Double elastic bands may be employed to indicate the youthful waistline to the required degree. Sometimes tiney, vertical stiffening may be used.

Unlike the woman with the more mature figure, a girl has no "reward shelf" to worry about, to put under restraint. Nor is it likely that she will wear a spare tire south of the waistline. Whether she will decide to wear a girdle and/or brassiere or an all-in-one is a matter of personal preference. But whatever she selects must be precisely right if she is to have style and carry her clothes well.

The Two Staffs of Life—Potatoes and Bread

By Mary Moore

A letter you will see in this column, if you care to read it, on health fads, asks for information regarding the cooking of potatoes.

The type of cooking wants to use for any purpose could bring down a controversy on my head, I don't really care to get involved at any time. I tend to be a peace-at-a-price woman. But I will say one thing: peeled potatoes that are cooked whole in very heavy utensils in a minimum of water without salt, so that water is all gone by the time they are tender, have excellent flavor. This way most of the minerals are retained too. Need I say more?

It is a year since I gave you a recipe for homemade white bread, so it is high time I repeated it. Letters are coming in asking for it.

HOMEMADE WHITE BREAD

These amounts make four loaves.

Scald 2 cups milk until very hot and add to it 2 cups cold water. Measure 1 cup of this liquid into a large bowl and when it is lukewarm add 2 packages of granular yeast and 2 teaspoons sugar; let this yeast mixture stand for 20 minutes then stir well. Add 2 T. shortening to remaining liquid in large bowl add 4 teaspoons salt and 2 tablespoons sugar. Mix and allow to stand until lukewarm. Sift bread flour and measure 11 cups. Add about half of this flour to liquid mixture in bowl. Add 1 egg, well beaten. Beat well and stir until at the desired consistency. Then knead the dough in the bowl with the hand for 5 minutes or until dough becomes smooth. Turn out on greased board or table top (do not flour) and knead for another 10 minutes. Place dough, which has been well-greased, cover with slightly dampened cloth and put in a warm place, free from draughts, for 1 to 1½ hours, or until double in bulk. Punch down and turn out on floured board and cut into 4 even pieces with greased sharp knife. Shape each piece into a ball, folding cut surfaces under. Let these stand 15 minutes, covered. Then shape these balls of dough into loaves and place in greased loaf pans, cover and let rise at room temperature for 1 1-2 hours or until dough rises to top and over little above rim of pans. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, then reduce heat to 400 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes. Then reduce heat to 400 deg. Fahr. and continue baking 35 minutes longer. Bread has a hollow sound when baked through, when it is rapped on the bottom with knuckles. Turn out of pans at once onto wire racks to cool. If desired bread may be brushed with butter while still warm. Do not put in bread box until bread is cold.

QUESTION:

. . . one time while at a restaurant we were served some lovely oven-browned whole boil peeled potatoes. These had been cooked separately, not in with a roast. Would you please tell me how these are done. The ones I have been trying are always browned nice, but are quite tough and hard on the outside, while the ones we had at the restaurant were tender and nice on the outside as well as the inside.—D. B.

ANSWER:

That is only part of D.B.'s letter but since potato queries are around I've included it.

FRANCONIA POTATOES

Wash and pare potatoes and soak whole in cold water 1-2 hour. Drain and parboil 10 minutes. Drain and dry. Brush with melted butter or shortening and arrange in buttered baking dish with cover. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 1.to 1 1-4 hours, depending on size. Brush with melted butter twice during baking period. Remove cover and sprinkle with salt during last 15 minutes, and turn potatoes over. If necessary raise heat to 450 deg. Fahr. and broiler for a few minutes at the end to brown them even more attractively.

Policeman's Capes Inspire Paris Designer

By NADEANE WALKER

PARIS (AP) — Long, flowing capes—rather like those worn by Paris policemen—were the newest note in designer Jean Desses' spring fashion collection shown Friday night.

Drawing inspiration from spring breezes, Desses presented clothes full of pleats that ripple, rustle and flutter like the leaves of the trees. He has not entirely abandoned straight, slim skirts but most of his collection has fullness from the hip. He says his new hemline is 15 inches frim the floor (some looked even shorter).

Stiffened petticoats for daytime wear as well as evening are an essential of the new skirts, here as well as in other houses. Desses calls this a figurine silhouette; the bust is flattened, the waist tiny, the upper hipline fitted, and the skirt billowed towards the hem.

CAPES MATCH

Tender pinks, blues and greens are almost matched in popularity by white pales greys, navy and lilac. Jersey and soft silk flower prints are used for evening dress while chiffon and lace come out for cocktail and evening wear. There are some small prints and checks. Suits are of both oatmeal and tweedy woolens.

The Desses capes are dress-length and usually of matching material. A romantic black chiffon evening cape hangs from a neckless collar of pale green velvet over a short formal of white chiffon with a scalloped flared skirt. The whole effect is as dainty as a Dresden shepherdess.

Other features of the new Desses collection include big squared sailor collars, slanted pleats and tucks, a princess line throughout, centre front or just off-centre buttoning, low square necklines and low round necklines, vest-pointed weskit jackets (all jackets are rather short here), and all kinds of pleats from umbrella to organ-fluted.

Young Religious Teachers Played Heroic Roles

VAMACHICHE, Que. (CP) — Survivors of a group of shy Christian Instruction brothers were credited Monday night with cutting the death toll in one of Quebec's greatest highway disasters Saturday when a bus-truck crash near here snuffed out the lives of 13 persons.

The victims were burned to death when their Provincial Transport bus, travelling from Montreal to Quebec, was sideswiped by a heavy trailer truck and exploded before bursting into flames.

The story of gallant rescue work by the handful of young religious teachers was told by the 10 survivors, including the two drivers, as they lay in hospital beds at nearby Trois-Rivieres.

RESCUED TWO

Brother Leon-Georges was given special attention. Survivors related how he climbed inside the blazing wreckage and helped two injured passengers to safety as the fierce heat mounted, threatening new explosions.

Another brother, his clothes ablaze, pulled loose bus driver Henri Bruneau who was pinned behind the steering wheel. Other members of the order piled snow into the vehicle.

The brothers, travelling in a second bus to their seminary near here when the collision took place, would not comment on their rescue work.

10 ARE IMPROVING

Meanwhile hospital authorities reported the condition of all 10 injured has improved. Driver Bruneau, the most seriously injured, with fractured legs and suspected internal injuries, was removed from an oxygen tent.

Police Monday identified all but two of the 13 dead. The remaining victims are believed to be Maurice Tessier, 34, of Montreal and Mrs. Adele Jolin, 40, of Montreal and Trois-Rivieres, but the mangled condition of the bodies prevented positive identification.

Police said they do not yet know the cause of the crash.

Queen Narriman Given Divorce From Farouk

The girl Farouk first saw in 1949 at the shopped for her engagement ring with another man remanded custody of her two-year-old son, Ahmed Fuad, and also dropped her demand that the ex-king personally pay her monthly alimony of 3,000 Egyptian pounds ($24,600) and a dowry allowance of 40,000 pounds.

Instead, her lawyer said, Narriman will ask President Mohamed Naguib's revolutionary government to pay her those moneys out of Farouk's properties in Egypt, which the new regime confiscated when it dethroned and exiled him in July, 1952.

KING LIST OF CHARGES

Narriman in her divorce suit had charged her husband with adultery, maltreatment, mental cruelty and estrangement. The settlement prevented the airing of any details that may have escaped newspaper reporters who have avidly followed the ex-king's cavortings about Europe with a succession of young women.

It was the second marital severance for Farouk, who will be 34 next month. In 1938 he married the "teen-age daughter of an Egyptian diplomat and she became Queen Farida. He divorced her in 1948.

Narriman had been engaged to diplomat Zaki Hashem. When Farouk began buying court, Zaki returned to his job in New York as an economist with the United Nations. Subsequently the king gave Zaki a good government job at home, and he married a banker's daughter.

Seeking Clemency

STRATFORD (CP)—A final submission has been made to Justice Minister Garson asking clemency and remission of the death sentence imposed on Reuben Henry Norman, 26-year-old former Army trooper, his defence counsel said Monday.

Norman was convicted and sentenced to hang for the fatal shooting of Jean Marie Sinclair, 17, here in February, 1953.

Defence counsel K. V. Stratton said that a series of appeals have been made and the last one was filed Monday at Ottawa. Defence has made on the ground of insanity.

Wrecked Bus Yields Remains of 15 Accident Victims

The ambulance garage at Three Rivers, Que., became a morgue when wreckage of the bus in which 15 persons died was taken there after it had collided with an auto transport-truck. Charred remains of most of the dead were still in the bus when it reached the garage. Ten other passengers of the bus were injured in the collision and the fire that followed when the transport's gasoline tank exploded, showering the passengers with blazing fuel. — Central Press Canadian.

Liberal Leader Says System Is All Wrong

TORONTO (CP)— Farquhar Oliver, liberal house leader in the Ontario legislature, said Monday night investigations in the Port Williams branch of the highways department could have been avoided if "members of the legislature had had, down through the years, a full opportunity to analyze and discuss" highway expenditures.

"This is a reform long overdue," he said in an address prepared for delivery over a provincial CBC network.

Under the present system in the legislature, Mr. Oliver said, the highways minister can spend all the money allocated for highways in the province of Ontario," he said. "There was no breakdown of these figures, no indication of where the money would be spent."

He called the $hundred estimates by the highways department which spends "more of our taxes . . . than any other agency of the provincial government." Other departments have itemized estimates.

The public works department itemizes in the estimates the various works to be done and the estimated cost of each item and the minister of public works asks the house to appropriate a definite sum for a particular project to be undertaken," he said. Members know what was to be done with the money, where the projects were and the nature and extent of his undertaking.

Was Misquoted On Book-Burning Mayor Contends

VICTORIA (CP)—Mayor Claude Harrison said Monday he does not intend to hunt out possible subversive books which may be on the shelves of the Victoria public library.

He said the controversy which has urged here over "Red" books is the result of "misrepresentation."

The colorful, 57-year-old mayor, who for years has worn a navy blue cape, lined in red, claimed he had been misquoted in a newspaper interview.

He said that all references he had made last week to burning of subversive "Red" books were intended to refer to books he might own himself and not to books in the library.

In a letter, published by both the Victoria Colonist and the Times Mr. Harrison claimed he had been misrepresented in what he said to a reporter.

HEARD RUMOR

"He asked me for comment on subversive$ oks in the library," said the mayor. "I said I did not know of any and had not seen any, but I had heard a rumor.

"He then asked what would be done with the books if there were any, and I replied that I did not know if there were any.

"He asked me what I should do with them. . . I then said 'if I had them myself, oh I would burn them.'"

Both newspapers replied to the letter, saying their reporters had accurately reported the mayor and that at no time did he refer to books owned, personally by him.

Some members of the library board favor investigation and listing of subversive books on the library shelves. This may be discussed at a meeting Wednesday.

Cameramen Enter East Berlin

Given permission by Soviet officials, to enter East Berlin during the Big Four foreign ministers' conference, a cameraman, was attracted by this construction work on Stalinalee to which Russian-zone spokesmen point with pride. The gale in foreground is for use of overtime workers and carries as a slogan: "For Soviet-German friendship."

Cameramen in East Berlin found evidence of anti-western propaganda close to the building where the Big Four foreign ministers were meeting. AEC Member Sees A-Plants in Half-Century

Andrew Kramer, member of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, drew a glowing picture of the development of atom power 50 years from now. Speaking to the Association of Professional Engineers in Toronto, he said that by the year 2000 atom plants will be generating power for industrial and home use, replacing "fossil fuels." Power plants are already on paper, he said, but so far no large public utility has offered to expend the millions of dollars necessary to build the first plants. — Central Press Canadian.

OTTAWA (CP)—The government was paid 15 cents a pound for the 2,000,000 pounds of beef sold to Britain last December, the Commons was informed Monday.

A return tabled for Wilfrid Lacroix (Quebec East—Conservative) said the sale disposed of the last of the government's stocks of beef purchased during the United States and Canadian meat which followed the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in western Canada.

The return said the price paid to the government of all beef purchased was 15 cents a pound. The 15-cent selling price was "in keeping" with prices of New Zealand beef sold to Britain.

Thousands of Aussies Camp Out To Be on Hand to Welcome Queen

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Thousands of Australians camped under the stars tonight to be on hand to greet the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh on their arrival Wednesday morning from New Zealand.

The sleek, white royal liner Gothic will arrive off Sydney harbor at 8 a. m. local time (3 p. m. EST today) and will drop anchor about two hours later. Royal Australian Air Force jet fighters will scream over in salutes as scores of vessels, from tugs to luxury yachts, escort the Gothic to her anchorage, notable from where the first English settlers set foot in Australia.

First to welcome the Queen officially to Australia will be the governor-general, Field Marshal Sir William Slim. He and his wife will go out to the Gothic by yacht.

Firefly and Sea Fury aircraft from the Australian carrier Vengeance flew past the royal yacht today in an aerial salute, and then turned over the ship in a formation making the letter "E" in honor of the Queen.

Later the Vengeance carried out a rocket attack on a target towed by other ships.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh watched the show but otherwise spent the day quietly in preparation for their Australian landing at 9 a. m. today tomorrow, where huge crowds are gathering to welcome them.

Pleads Guilty To Manslaughter Given 12 Years

TORONTO (CP)—Richard Campbell McCart, 32, pleaded guilty to manslaughter here Monday and was sentenced to 12 years in connection with the deaths of two elderly men in a downtown rooming house last Aug. 7.

Clarence Bowen, 53, had previously been sentenced to 15 years on the same charge.

The victims, Joseph George King 81, and George E. Weaver, 78, were found by another roomer lying on their cots in a front room of the house with her clothing covering their bodies. Weaver's throat had been cut and King had been strangled with his tie.

It was believed the two men were killed in a fight following a drinking party in their dingy room which was littered with empty wine bottles.

Bowen and McCart were arrested in Cobourg the day following the double-slaying.

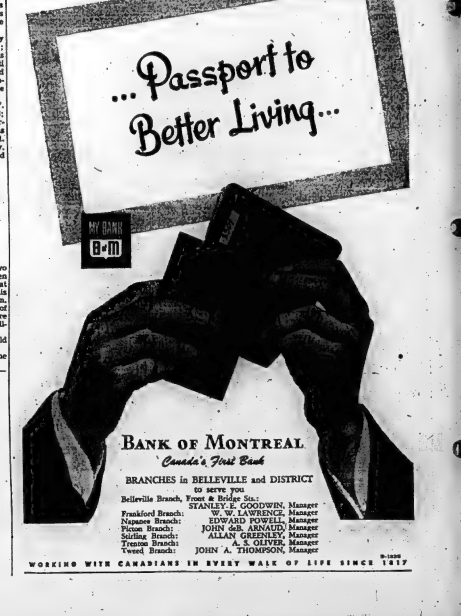
Work Tied Up On Four Jobs In Peninsula

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)— Picketing in a dispute involving union recognition and wages has tied up construction work on four building projects in the Niagara peninsula. Cost of the projects is estimated at about $500,000. Smith Brothers Construction Company has the contracts.

The pickets, from the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners (AFL), have halted work on a crippled children's camp near Port Colborne, a federal building at Ridgeway and alterations at the Bank of Montreal in Niagara Falls. The fourth job is at the Welland works of North American Cyanamid where there are no pickets but work has stopped by agreement.

The Smith company is applying to the Ontario labor relations board in Toronto at a hearing today for a ruling that the picketing is unlawful and for leave to prosecute the union.

Arnold Smith, president of the company, claims that the union does not represent his workers as bargaining agent.



The union is asking that the present $1.75 an hour wage be increased to $1.90 at once with increases to $2 and $2.50 later in the year.

Andre Corriveau Still Tops In Quebec League

MONTREAL (CP)—Andre Corriveau of Drummondville, Que., combines speed and cunning, "qualities of lead" and Canadien Soo League scoring race last night.

Fernando Gagnon KO's Edwards To Retain Crown

By ROMEO MAGERA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP) — Scrappy Fernando Gagnon of Quebec, Canadian bantamweight boxing champion, slugged his way to a fifth-round technical knockout Monday night over Edmonton's Jersey Joe Edwards to retain his crown.

The triumph was Gagnon's seventh successful title defence since winning the championship in 1946. The bout was scheduled for 12 rounds.

The champion was declared the winner at 2:13 of the fifth when referee Ralph McNaughton stopped the uneven fight after the Edmonton Negro went down for the fifth time.

CHALLENGER FLOORED

Two solid left hooks and a right sent the challenger to the canvas to end the fight. Neither fighter appeared hurt at the end.

Edwards went down for the first time late in the second round. A solid left hook knocked him to one knee and he took an automatic eight count. He went down twice late in the third round, both times on short, hard rights.

A crowd of about 1,500 made up a $4,300 gate. Gagnon gets 37½ per cent of the gate and Edwards 12½.

Saxton Wins Over Laurent

BROOKLYN (AP)—Johnny Saxton of Brooklyn scored a technical knockout over Mickey Laurent of Paris in 1:58 of the seventh round of a scheduled 10-rounder at the Eastern Parkway Arena Monday night. Saxton weighed 140½, Laurent, 136.

The bout was stopped by referee Ray Miller, who said the French-man had no defence against the fast-punching Saxton.

Saxton, a 5-to-1 favorite, had his own way against the heavier Laurent. The Brooklyn welterweight belted the middleweight with combinations and moved around as he pleased.

It was Saxton's 42nd win against two losses and one draw while Laurent has 22 victories against nine losses and one draw. It was Laurent's fourth loss since coming to the United States.

Sullivan Regains Scoring Lead

NEW YORK (CP) — George (Red) Sullivan of Hershey Bears last week regained the scoring lead of the American Hockey League. Sullivan had 68 points on 29 goals and 42 assists. Ed Olson and Jackie Gordon of Cleveland Barons were tied for second place with 67 points each.

Goaltenders were led by Jacques Plante of Buffalo Bisons with an average of 2.78. Emile Francis of Cleveland was shutout leader with four.

Estaban Whips Brian Kelly In Bloody Bout

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Santiago Estaban, a wiry power puncher from Los Angeles, smashed his way to a unanimous decision over Brian Kelly of Niagara Falls, Ont., in a bloody 10-round lightweight match Monday night. Estaban weighed 134½, Kelly 134½.

Estaban scored repeatedly with a hard right hook to knifelike cut the rushes of the aggressive Kelly. Both were smeared with blood as each opened cuts on his opponent.

The crowd of 1,161 booed Kelly often for his rough tactics. He landed the most right hook as referee Tony Amato tried to separate the fighters.

MOLOTOV

2. Russia wants to smash the projected European Defence Community because it paves the way for rearming Germany, or part of it, in a close alliance with the West.

3. Russia wants a reunified Germany, without defencives and other peace-loving states that she will neither need nor be able to use her regained strength for aggressive purposes. It is our conviction that this can best be achieved through the European Defence Community.

Molotov replied: "The political meaning of EDC is that three countries, United States of America, Great Britain and France, are trying together with official circles of present-day Western Germany to form a military bloc directed against a fourth power, the Soviet Union."

Out of the ruckus over Germany, the West still hopes to salvage something, perhaps an easier movement of trade between East and West Germany.

Western diplomats think the conference also might push Asia forward peace since they believe the Russians would like to see an end to fighting there in order to let the Soviet Union turn even more of her production into the home market.

RECOGNIZE CHINA

For such peace, Molotov may be ready to exact more Western recognition of Communist China. Failure to get it possibly could do more harm to China's relations with Russia than relations with the West, some observers think.

Molotov also tried a direct bid for French support, by-passing Bidault, who he knows is pledged to try to push ratification of the European army plan through the French parliament as soon as this conference ends.

France, he said, accepts the Potsdam decisions to demilitarize Germany "no less than the Soviet Union." He said French resistance to EDC "is growing daily."

"The most eager followers of the idea of a west German army," Molotov declared, "are the American ministers. That is very easy for them, since the United States makes no move to include its troops in this community."

SALARY BILL

It would show "how much of this talk is on principle and how much is for political purposes."

"I don't want any person to receive what he doesn't want to receive," he said.

Later, when it became apparent there was a division within the 23-member CCF representation, Mr. Lowe said he has no one person in mind.

Angus MacInnis (CCF—Vancouver Kingsway) opposed the increases, which he said would put MP's salaries above those of 98 per cent of wage earners while thousands of Canadians went to bed hungry.

The former Vancouver street-car motorman said the present independent and tax-free allowance, give ably and tax-free allowance, give members an income higher than 83 per cent of Canadians who paid income tax in 1951.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) said there is an argument for an increase and his party will say later what amount it has in mind.

R. R. Knight (CCF—Saskatoon) went a bit further. In the last Parliament there were six sessions in four years. That gave members an average $6,000 a year, on the basis of $4,000 a session, plus the expense allowance, but average could be maintained.

CITIES TEACHERS WAGE

Joseph W. Noseworthy (CCF—York South) said he approves the bill as far as the Commons is concerned. His old job as a teacher of history and English now paid $5,000 a year and that was worth much more to him as a teacher than the $10,000 he would receive as a member of Parliament. However, he said he opposed the same increase for Senators because his party advocates abolition of the upper house.

Mr. Drew said he opposes the increase because there are no facts or information before the House to show how the figure was reached. He accepted the proposition that increases were in order, but there should be a royal commission to determine the amount.

Mr. Low said he agrees with Prime Minister St. Laurent and Trade Minister Howe that an adequate indemnity would attract a higher calibre of men. Mr. Drew also shared that view.

Mr. Knowles said Parliament attracts men because of their desire to serve the country.

Prelate Praises President For Good Example

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's religious observances have brought him praise from a Roman Catholic prelate for giving a good example.

The President, a Presbyterian, Sunday attended the traditional "red mass" at St. Matthew's cathedral here. The service, named for the color of the vestments worn, is conducted annually to invoke divine guidance in the administration of justice and conduct of government generally. Eisenhower was the first President to attend while in office.

"To them you have added that of giving your fellow countrymen a good example in paying homage —and not only on this Sunday— to the God whom both made and preserved us as a nation."

Red Wings, Howe Edging Away From Pack In National Hockey League

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carter, Sports Editor

PETES TONIGHT!

The Peterborough Petes, prides of Portlewville, currently the hottest team in the Senior "B" circuit, will be here tonight in quest of their fifth consecutive victory. In fact the guys from Kids Richland have bowed but once in their last six starts and have no intention of slipping their present win streak at the hands of the Memos.

However, the Smith-Dorna crew has gained quite a reputation as "giant-killers" down through the schedule. They have nipped the haughty top-dotters time and again on seemingly careless. And they are extremely liable to mount the Petes' beanstalk tonight and call a halt to the present pacesetters' victory parades.

And the Petes need this game if they are to remain at the top of the heap. They have played 32 games, not counting tonight's tilt and have eight left to go. Oshawa and Orillia have ten games to play, Kingston nine and Belleville 11.

• • •

OLDTIMERS' GAME!

Famous National Hockey League faces of a decade and more ago will prove to Belleville fandom on February 19 that there is lots of puckchasing life left in the old dogs yet. Oldtimers of the league who played the game before it was tinged with a dash of baseball on skates, will perform in the Memorial Arena under the auspices of the Rotary and Kinsmen Clubs.

Such hockey household names of years ago, as the Toronto Leafs' "Kid Line", of Charlie Conacher, Joe Primeau and Harvey Jackson, the other well-known members of the Conacher family, the Big Train Lionel Conacher, Syl Apps, Reilly Keeling, Roy Worters, the one and only "Phi" Clapper of Boston Bruins fame, Cy Wentworth, Bill Thoms, Billy Taylor, and many others will clash in harness once more.

Reports from other parts of the province where the Oldtimers have performed, state the greybeards show surprising agility, ability and few signs of arthritis. They put on a great show and while the passing years have taken some toll physically, they have little effect on the wily old cunner who uses his head as much as their legs long before those days when an opposing forward ran play two-handed rummy with a goalie while waiting for a team-mate to tote him a pass to the doormat.

And lookit who is going to do the bell-ringing—pardon—whistle—tooting? None other than one Michael J. Rodden, of Kingston, one of the "tightlines", most courageous arbiters of them all, and Bobby Davidson, sports editor of the Toronto Telegram, himself a graduate of the National Hockey League Colleges of Applied Piccolo Playing.

CRYSTAL GAZING!

One, Michael J. Rodden, sports scrivener cast o' here, is the first of the Senior "B" circuit's scribes to venture out on the well-known limb to forecast what teams will enter the ring in the group playoffs. Michael disclaims to predict what four will battle it out in the semi-finals, but reaches the conclusion that the Memos will not be included in that august foursome.

He leap-frogs the semi's, but says Oshawa and Kingston will battle it out in the finals. Of course, El Miguel says so in his usual careful manner, basing his prognostication, which was urged, no doubt, by a plenitude of whirlind thinking on schedule statistics to date.

This is what El Mig writes:

"Statistics suggest that in playoff time, Oshawa and Goodyears will vie for group honors. Ineffective road teams seldom capture titles and thereof it could be guessed that neither Petes nor Penticton will prevail in senior playoff time. It will be noticed that Belleville Memos are not being considered as playoff participants. It is true that they have won their last three games at home but these have been doubly effort by eight successive reverses in enemy territory. The outlook does not seem to be encouraging that the colorful but ill-fated Memos will emulate miracle men during the home stretch drive.

We can't buy that one, Mike, on'tad. The teams that will enter the playoffs are not the squads that started the schedule, from a playing standpoint, that is. The way Kingston, Peterborough, Oshawa and Orillia are travelling at the moment, you could toss the bunch in a bag, and we wouldn't bet a nickel as to which would emerge first. As a matter of fact, if we were forced to wager we would place the nickel on Perdue's Pets from Peterborough.

And we may be clinging to the proverbial straw, but there is a possibility yet of the Memos reaching upwards and grabbing a rung in the playoff ladder. True, it doesn't look very encouraging, but stranger things have happened.

In our opinion statistics don't mean a thing, except for the records and tapes for Cracker-Barrel and Hot Stove Leaguers. It is a new league when the playoffs start and as Harry Ballogh says: "May the better participant emerge triumphant." Many a hot-seated team has reared triumphantly through the schedule only to meet elimination in the first round playoffs. That happened to a Belleville senior squad not so many years ago.

Have An Eight-Point Bulge Over Second-Place Canadiens; Right Winger Has 54 Points

MONTREAL (CP)—Those clubs harboring ideas of halting Detroit Red Wings' march to a sixth straight National Hockey League title had better start coming up with effective ways and means.

The same goes for aspirants to the point-scoring title which Gordie Howe of the Red Wings has won the last three seasons.

Both the Wings and their scoring ace edged further away from their pursuers last week. The team itself, with two wins and a tie, collected five of a possible six points—the best performance of any club.

Howe failed to score any of his team's goals but helped with four assists and ran his point total to 54. Maurice Richard of Montreal, who was only two points behind Howe a week ago, scored one goal as his total output. The Rocket now has 49 points.

Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal also scored one goal and held third place with 45 points.

Richard is the goal-scorer of the league with 29, followed by Geoffrion with 26. Wally Hergesheimer of New York Rangers with 23 and Howe with 21.

PLAYOFF BATTLE

The team with an opportunity to score giant-killing this week is the Boston Bruins. They play Red Wings three games, two of them in Boston. The Bruins need points to hold off New York Rangers and bid for fourth place, last playoff spot.

The Bruins produced two wins in three starts last week and have a home-point advantage. Rangers

Rangers gained a win and a tie last week. Canadiens split a pair while Toronto Leafs missed a chance to overtaxi the Montrealers by taking one game in two home outings. One of the losses was to Canadiens. Chicago Black Hawks, sunk in the cellar, lost all three starts.

Rookie Earl Reibel of Detroit gathered three goals and one assist during the week, replacing Howe's four-point performance, and moved from eighth to fifth place in the individual point-scoring race.

Tom Mosdell of Montreal was pointless and dropped from fifth to eighth place. It was the only shake-up among the upper-crust of scorers.

Johnny Peirson of Boston and Paul Rooty of New York, each with three points, moved into the first 10 ranking. Peirson is tied with Bert Olmstead of Montreal and Ted Kloan of Toronto, both of whom failed to get a point, and created a four-way tie for ninth place.

Among goal-tenders, Harry Lumley of the Leafs is the pace with a goals-against average of 1.70, followed by Terry Sawchuk of Detroit with 1.77 and Gerry McNeil of Montreal with 2.12

No Action Will Be Taken On Zeidel

MONTREAL (CP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said Monday night no further action will be taken regarding an incident in Chicago involving Larry Zeidel of Chicago Black Hawks.

Zeidel and Tony Leswick of Detroit Red Wings got into a fight during Sunday night's game and were given major penalties by referee Red Storey. Voss' version of the affair differed greatly from newspaper reports, which said Zeidel struck Gordon George Howe and Mush March and dropped Leswich with a right hook.

"In view of the facts that no misconduct penalties were assessed and apparently the events did not warrant any, no further action will be taken," said Campbell.

Sports Roundup

By Gayle Talbot

NEW YORK (AP) — Not for about 90 years has Richmond, Va., been as worked up as it is over its membership in the triple-A International Baseball League.

Thomas Richmond Hodges, a distinguished member of the Richmond Hearty set named Larry Leonard, owns it. Two cities already are flooding the box office from as far as 100 miles away. He predicts that his city's admission first year in the minors will prove as successful as that of Havana.

"Richmond always has been a good baseball town, even when it was in a class," said Leonard. "It always made money. Now that our loop is being given an opportunity to see really good ball they are genuinely enthusiastic.

"The ball park will make a lot of it if anybody in the world could."

SEATING POSES PROBLEM

The club is, Leonard confessed, faced with some large looking problems at the moment, mostly concerned with seating, but he is confident they'll soon be licked.

Producing a club which will be good enough to stay up in the race and sustain the fans' interest is another problem. The team finished fourth and last Sunday in last year's International League race with a 72-82 record. Leonard is bold and his associates are doing much travelling and talking in an effort to give the club more muscle.

They've already gotten three players from Brooklyn and two from St. Louis Cardinals. These deals have given them an outfield which hit over .300 in triple-A last season. Baltimore h.. promised to give them all the help it can. Richmond's big manager in fast company will be Luke Appling, former great and durable shortstop of Chicago White Sox.

New York Rangers Are Now Clicking, Good Chance for Playoffs—Muzz

By Ben Olan

NEW YORK (AP)—"The club is clicking and I think we have a good chance of making the playoffs."

Having seen every National Hockey League club in action since he took over the Ranger reins three weeks ago, Patrick now has his own team on his hands' attempt to qualify for a Stanley Cup berth.

"We're taking every game as it comes and not worrying about the other fellow," said Muzz. "We have to concentrate on Boston—that's the team we have to beat out for fourth place. But every one counts now."

The Bruins, coached by Muzz's brother, Lynn, blanked Toronto 3-0 Sunday night and moved three points ahead of the New Yorkers. Each team has 21 games left to play.

The recent Ranger surge, during which they've won nine of 13 games —including a victory at Montreal for the first time in four years—has brought them from nine points behind the Bruins to their current contending position.

DEFENCE GOOD

Patrick attributed the club's success to several factors, but calls the play of defencemen Harry Howell and Lou Jeremiah a "real delight."

The pair have two playing like veterans. They are forcing the opposing forwards to shoot from impossible angles by riding them out of every play. The other teams can take more than they can do, but they can't come in close to the goal, the chances are they're not going to score."

The Rangers called out centre Paul Hoxby and right winger Wally Hergesheimer for their fine play. Hergesheimer is another one fine work—feeding the wings and coming up with an occasional goal. Hergy, of course, is our big gun.

He comes through with those important goals—in several games he's had two." Hergesheimer leads the Rangers with 23 goals.

Another reason for optimism, Patrick says, is the return of Doug Bentley, expected back next weekend. Bentley is in Saskatoon cleaning up some business affairs.

"Doug looked like his old self in the three games he played for us. He and Max (Mudcat Bentley) give us the best power play in the league. It's something to have those two guys on ice when the other club is a man short."

The oldest partnership in major hockey, now extending beyond the 28-year mark, still carries on. We refer, of course, to the Mili Schmidt-Porky Dumart community of interests, which started when they were juniors in Kitchener. Since then with the exception of a season when Dumart played with Eastern Cubs in a minor league, while Schmidt continued to serve his apprenticeship with the hometown Greenshirts, they've never been apart. When this was written, they were still the Damen and Prythis of the ice-lanes, in Boston Garden park.

Both are veterans, as they are understood, as a pair, in major hockey annals. Dumart will be 38 next December. Schmidt is 36 soon—March 5 is the date. Dumart has slowed down somewhat, but Schmidt carries on at an undiminished pace, one of the ultimate greats of the game, mainspring of the Boston team for so many years that he is now taken for granted in the Hub. For, as a skinny 18-year-old, he joined that club in 1936-37, and a long fourteen years later, years that encompassed a World War II service, he blazed to glory as winner of the Hart Trophy as the most valuable player to his team in the league.

Seventeen years after he had joined the club, surviving a dozen injuries and playing on knees so dinky that they must be carefully taped before every game, Schmidt essentially set two all-time Boston records with 549 total points (221 goals, 328 assists) for regular season play and 100 points for regular season and playoff games. His 221 goals was at that time only seven short of Dunable Dit Clapper's club mark of 228 over 20 season's of play.

It is accepted in Boston hockey circles as a certainty that when, if ever, his playing days are done, Schmidt will become coach of the club, while Dumart presents coach. Lynn Patrick will succeed the veteran Art Ross as general manager of the Bostos, team. Said the latter about significant remark on Schmidt's value to the club came from Coach Patrick.

"Schmidt will never be as good a coach as I am", declared Patrick. "Whenever we're in trouble I just look down the bench and yell for Schmidt to get out there. But when Mili becomes coach he won't be able to do that because there'll be no Schmidt available. For I very much doubt that there ever will be another Schmidt."

Dumart, like Schmidt, joined Bruins in 1936. Soon after, there came from Kitchener a third and notable partner to the twosome, in the person of Bobby Bauer. This threesome became known as the Kraut line, in tribute to one of Kitchener's favored dishes, and in the season of 1939-40, they performed the unusual feat of finishing 1-2-3 in the scoring race.

Bauer retired, but Schmidt and Dumart still carry on, the oldest partnership in hockey.

Guelph Edges Canadiens in Overtime 'Pocket' Richard Out With Injuries

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association Junior league lost twice Monday night.

But their first loss will probably hurt them more than the second one. In fact it may have caused the second one.

The Canadiens, league-leaders of the QAHA with 35 victories so far this season, suffered their fourth defeat of the year when they were edged 4-3 in overtime by the Biltmores in Guelph.

The setback cost second loss to an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A team and the Biltmores were in last place before the game.

The Canadiens suffered their first loss of the night when their star centre Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard was crashed hard in the second period. First reports said he suffered a broken rib.

Richard, one of the best players in junior hockey, is also one of the game's biggest gate attractions after being continually compared to his older brother, Maurice, in the National Hockey League.

In the other game Monday night Toronto St. Michael's College Majors defeated Hamilton Cubs 3-1 in Hamilton to strengthen their hold on third place in the OHA standings.

In Guelph the Biltmores took a 2-0 lead in the first period and led 3-1 in the second before increasing their margin to 3-1 in the third. But the Canadiens came back with two goals to send the game into overtime.

AFTERSLEET SCORES WINNER

Bob Sterkey's marker at 4:08 of the overtime period won it for the Biltmores. Bill McCreary, Bob Reed and Hillary Menard were the other Guelph scorers. Claude Vinet, Claude Provost and Jean Guy Talbot counted for Montreal.

St. Michael's allowed Hamilton one goal in the first period but tied the score before the period ended and won it with two more goals in the final stanza.

Jacques Marquis are at Kitchener, Quebec Frontenacs play the TeePees in St. Catharines and Montreal Canadiens the Black Hawks in Guelph tonight.

Pt. Anne Wins Over Havelock By 9-5 Score

BY GARRY ALEXANDER.

Scoring four goals in the third period, the Point Anne Cementeers chalked up their fourth straight win by a 9-5 score over Havelock, in a TVL hockey game played in Memorial Arena last night.

Behind 3-0 after two minutes of play in the second period, the league leaders came to life and led by Leo Goyer took a 5-3 lead before the period ended. Havelock tied it early in the final frame but George Jacklin notched what proved to be the winner at 7.12 and then Hunter, Williams and Strachan added the games score in the last three minutes of play.

The first period was rather slow with only goal being scored by Doris of Havelock at the 2.40 mark.

The northern crew picked up two more goals in the first in the middle by Floyd and Lang to take a 3-0 lead. Leo Goyer cut this lead in half on a power play with Billy Strachan but Brooks once more put them three in front.

Goyer came right back for another and put the second goal of the night in Havelock a man short, he banged in his third goal of the night on a pretty play by Lang and Sam Mulholland finally tied it up at 5-5 when he scored a goal.

SEEMED TO WEAKEN.

Havelock made it a new game after six minutes had ticked by in the third period but they seemed to weaken as Point Anne applied the pressure and Jacklin put the winners out front for good. His goal was a beauty as he drove in a shot from behind and to the side of the net that hit Brooks and went in.

Point Anne scored two goals in the last minute of play to make the score look more respectable.

Referees—Aquino, Fitzpatrick.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association the second place Sudbury Wolves defeated North Bay Trappers 4-3 in Sudbury.

Lyndhurst to Get Reinforcements, 'Sickness, Party' Blamed for Defeat

MIDLAND (CP)—George Dudley secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said in an interview here that the CAHA "probably would send reinforcements" to Toronto East York Lyndhurst juniors, now losing in preparations for the Feb. 26-March 7 world championships.

Dudley, who said he was "disappointed" at the 11-2 pasting the senior B Lyndhurst club got here in an international game, added that nothing would be done until after this week. Lyndhurst's Canadian representatives in the Stockholm championships, have been unbeaten in games against Switzerland in the next few days.

"I don't expect Lyndhurst to win on Saturday, their first exhibition game after an Atlantic crossing, but I certainly didn't expect them to lose by the 13-2 score they said. "If they still look weak against Switzerland, we'll send some more players to help them. A players just before the championships."

At Paris, the players blamed sea sickness and a party which they attended on board ship the night before they landed last Thursday for their poor performance. Canadian players now performing for teams in England.

"The officers of the CAHA would like to know about that party," Dudley said.

Lyndies Manager Denies Defeat Result of Party

NEUCHATEL, Switzerland (Reuters)—Donald Preston, manager of Toronto Lyndhurst, the Canadian junior team for the world coming world ice hockey championships, categorically denied here today that the team lost its first exhibition game in Europe because of a ill-landing party on board their ship.

"It was a terribly rough trip and almost all the boys were very seasick," he declared. "There is no question of a party. Some of the team were only able to keep down four meals during the whole voyage. There was the usual end-of-trip dance the last night on board and a few of the boys may have taken part in that, but most of them were feeling far too ill to bother about it."

American League Opens April 13

CHICAGO (AP)—The American League, with Baltimore Orioles becoming its first newcomer in 50 years, Monday released its official 1954 baseball schedule.

The 1954 slate lists 315 night games, nine fewer than were scheduled in 1953. Washington Senators again have more floodlight contests scheduled than any other club, 45. This is five fewer than the team slated last year.

April 13 is the season's start, when Baltimore is at Detroit, Philadelphia at Cleveland, Boston at Chicago and New York at Washington. The season ends Sept. 26.

Upset Defeats Cause Shake-up In Fight Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — Upset defeats suffered by Earl Walls, Yolande Pompey, Danny Nardico and Bobo Olson have resulted in a vigorous shake-up of the latest boxing ratings, released today by Ring Magazine.

Tommy Harrison, Los Angeles heavyweight, took over the No. 6 spot vacated by Nardico after defeating Walls, the Canadian slugger from Edmonton, who twice knocked out Rex Layne, Coley Wallace, beaten by Olson, and Charles Humez, all of the top 10 and was replaced by Clarence Henry of Philadelphia.

Despite a disappointing performance against Jimmy Slade, Phil adelphia's Harold Johnson retained his No. 1 spot among middleweights. Carl (Bobo) Olson, Joey Maxim, although badly beaten by champion Rocky Marciano, remained in the No. 2 spot. Pompey's first defeat in 27 fights dropped Pompey to fourth place.

Nardico, the Tampa, Fla., light heavy, fell to the top of seventh after he was knocked 9th by Charley Norkus, Bridgeport, N.J., Germany, was spotted No. 8 after he was stopped by heavyweight Johnny Williams of England.

Rocky Castellani of Cleveland and Joey Giardello of Philadelphia moved up one spot, No. 1 and No. 2 middleweight challengers, while Britain's Randy Turpin remained third. Dramen earned a ranking among the 160-pounders by his victory over Pompey.

Billy Graham soared to second place among the welters behind Del Flanagan advanced to fourth by upsetting Johnny Saxton.

Arnold of Paddy Demarco's triumph over Ralph Dupas, the New Orleans Negro, put him at No. 4 challenger. He has signed to meet champion Jimmy Carter for the title March 5.

Champion Dog Racer

The 200-mile Canadian open championship dog race at The Pas, Man., will be held today this year. The modern derbies are run in laps with overnight stops. Modern Day Races Easy Compared To Those of Old Days, Says Veteran

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ben Scott, veteran musher Earl Brydges, The 200-mile race from The Pas to Flin Flon and return now is carried over four days and run in four laps, compared with the old non-stop affair in the days of such mushers as Emile St. Godard, Brydges, Shorty Russick, Sam Pryzbylski and Walter Gorpe.

About 15 of the north's top dog drivers are expected to compete in today's 200 Manitoba dog derby, run in conjunction with the northern Manitoba trappers' festival.

Brydges, who lives near The Pas and won the derby in 1931 and 1932, says there is little comparison between racing dogs and those in the old days, which were "a test of endurance and speed."

DIFFERENT TYPE DOG

"Nowadays, they use a different type of dog, which is more suited for speed," he said. "In the old days we used to raise dozens of dogs in order to get a team." A musher would as high as $2,000 for a team of four or five huskies and $1,000 for a lead dog.

Steve Prateau of Grand Rapids, Man., has been the event in the last two years and has entered again.

The winner will receive $1,000 and the Hudson's Bay Company trophy. Second prize is $700 and third, $400. Cash bonuses will be awarded all teams finishing within four hours of the winner.

St. Godard, who died in 1948, was probably the best known of all mushers. He captured the northern Manitoba compet'ion every year from 1925 to 1930. He also captured championship races in Quebec, Ottawa and the United States.

Another number of early dog derbies was Gorpe, the Alaskan who came out of the hinterland in 1920 to capture the Manitoba classic, started in 1916.

When Gorpe arrived in The Pas, he found other mushers were using an old-style toboggan for racing, and their dogs were hitched in tandem style. He brought with him an Alaskan sled and his dogs were hitched in the now-popular Alaskan hitch, two abreast, with the leader centring the team in front.

Today the Alaskan hitch and sled is being used by all top-ranking racers in northern Manitoba, the east and in many parts of the U. S.

Darrell Royal Bows Out As Eskimos' Coach

A few hours after Eskimos announced the WIFU's all-star coach will be free from his contractual obligations, the 29-year-old Royal left Edmonton by plane for Starkville, Miss., where he will assume head coach of Mississippi State College.

Eskimo officials said Royal would return here in about a week to look after his affairs.

Spring training at Starkville opens the first week in March.

Royal said he is fine with Royal's ambition to become a college coach. However, he didn't stand in his way.

Royal signed a three year contract last season, his first in Canadian football, but Eskimos waived his obligations.

Edmonton president Ken Mooneyes said Royal's contract would have run true two years earlier than expected. The Eskimo executive decided unanimously that we could not stand in the way of the greater opportunity afforded Darrell. He leaves under the very best conditions and terms."

WON ALL-STAR HONORS

Royal earned all-America honors as one of the best quarterbacks in the history of the Oklahoma Sooners. He played with Oklahoma from 1946 through 1949.

He later coached Mississippi State where he was backfield coach under Warnacke, and also was backfield coach at North Carolina State in 1950 and at Tulsa in 1951.

In his one year with Edmonton, Royal took the Eskimos to the top of the WIFU in league play, but was beaten out by Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the final.

His split-T, learned and perfected at Oklahoma and Mississippi State, was so successful that he was named WIFU all-star coach and several other Canadian teams copied the formation.

Eskimos, meanwhile, have the "lines out" for a new coach, but they haven't given any indication who they want. All that has been said is that the lines are out for an interview, and probably a split-T specialist.

Paul Cameron Sought By Ottawa Riders

OTTAWA (CP) — Reports were current in the capital Monday that Ottawa Rough Riders may obtain the services of all-American Paul Cameron, star halfback of the University of California at Los Angeles, U.S.

J. P. McCaffery, president of the Ottawa club, said he could not confirm the report.

In Toronto, it was reported Cameron is interested in lining up with Toronto Argos. Cameron was quoted as saying Dom Moonaw, former all-American linebacker with UCLA who played part of last season with Argos, "convinced me Toronto was a wonderful place to play football and I'd prefer to play in the big city. However, I haven't heard anything from the powers there although I believe Dom wrote them last week."

Coach Frank Clair said no contract has yet been offered Cameron.

Sport in Brief

SOLINGER FARMED OUT

Solinger was sent to the Hornets because of the expected return of defencemen Fern Flaman and centre Tod Sloan. Both have been out of the lineup with injuries.

Flaman held a light workout alone Monday and will probably accompany the team to Montreal for Tuesday's game against the Canadiens.

Sloan, out with a knee injury, will practise with the team today. If he isn't ready for the game against Montreal Leafs may bring up a forward from Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series. Marlboros will be in Montreal for an interlocking game against Montreal Canadiens of the Quebec Junior Hockey League Wednesday.

WINS TWO PENNANTS

HAVANA (AP)—Bobby Bragan, who is going places as a baseball manager, has won national pennant in six months.

His Almendares team swept through to the championship of the Cuban Winter League, just as his Hollywood, Calif., Stars took the pennant in the Pacific Coast League in 1953. Before that, Bragan won two Texas League championships at Fort Worth.

Almendares clinched the Cuban pennant Sunday night by beating Havana, giving them an 81-game lead with only eight games to play and assured Bragan's team of a place in the Caribbean world series.

RED WINGS OFF TO PRISON

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP)—Detroit Red Wings today are going to prison, where they'll probably be penalized.

But don't get too excited about it. The Wings are going to play an exhibition game against Marquette Prison, a hockey team composed of prisoners.

Leonard (Ookie) Brumm, prison director, said he hoped the Pirates will be able to join an organized league next season. All their games, of course, would be "home" games.

CORONATION BIBLE SHOWN

TORONTO (CP)—The only coronation Bible in Canada went on display Monday in Hart House at the University of Toronto.

The Bible, one of 25 printed in Britain for the Coronation, bears the royal cipher and crown on the cover and is an exact replica of that used by the Queen in the Westminster Abbey ceremony.

Braves Slice Into Top Mound Staff To Acquire Giants' Bobby Thomson

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Milwaukee Braves sliced into the best pitching staff in the National League to secure the long-distance hitting of New York Giants' Bobby Thomson in the Braves' second big player trade of the winter, announced Monday.

To get Thomson, the brilliant, veteran outfielder, and second-string catcher Sam Calderone the Braves had to give up left-handed pitchers Johnny Antonelli and Max Liddle, utility catcher Ebba St. Clair and rookie Billy Klaus, plus an undisclosed amount of cash.

"Bobby Thomson definitely is my left-fielder," Braves manager Charlie Grimm said. He added that he plans to have Thomson bat in the clean-up spot.

"I want Bobby to split behind (home run leader) Eddie Mathews," Grimm explained. "He's got a lot of speed and is a hard man to double. Believe me, that boy won't hit into many double plays. What's more, Thomson hits a long ball and can break up a game at any time with that blow over the fence."

KEPT BEST PITCHERS

The trade still leaves Grimm with his best pitcher, Warren Spahn, and Chet Nichols, Bobby Buhl, Lew Burdette, Joey Jay and Gene Conley. Veterans like Vern Bickford, Jim Wilson and Ernie Johnson are on hand, in addition to rookies Phil Paine and Ray Crone.

Giant manager Leo Durocher said "we certainly hated to part with Bobby Thomson." He added that his club made the trade because the Giants need pitchers.

In an earlier trade this winter, the Braves landed infielder Danny O'Connell from Pittsburgh for Sid Gordon and Max Surkont and four major-league players, and a sizable chunk of cash.

Thomson's addition "definitely" gives us a chance for the pennant, Grimm said.

Northern Electric Hockey Playoffs

The Northern Electric Interdepartment hockey play-offs got under way over the week-end with the Idiots edging the Buzzers 54 and the Elbow Benders emerging on the long end of a 4-2 count in the first games of best of three semi-finals.

Dave Jones paced the attack for the Idiots with four of his teams five goals while Semark claimed the odd one. Burgess drew one assist.

In the second half of the double header Semark had two goals for the E.B.s, Stephens had one and one, Woods a goal and assists went to Noakes and Wallbridge.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Virtually all the other recording stars cannot resist the new medium either on a regular or guest basis. Not red-haired Jo.

"Sure, I had a lot of offers to do guest shots," she admitted between rehearsals for her CBS show. "I passed up a lot of money because I didn't think that kind of TV would be good for me.

"I have a different kind of voice from most singers. I can't go out and knock them dead with one number or two. You have to get used to my style.

"TV is something of a monster. You are being seen by a fantastic number of people. If you don't click just right, you can ruin yourself. In two weeks, you can wipe out what you have been building up for 15 years."

And so Jo just bided her time while her competitors warbled on all channels. She didn't exactly need the money. She had four big hits in 1953, and her current "make Love to Me" is living the juke boxes.

TOO GOOD TO MISS

But one day her agent came to her with the CBS deal. It was a straight three-year contract with options thereafter. It was too good to pass up.

The present plan calls for a 15-minute show "along the Perry Como-Dinah Shore lines" every Tuesday. It may be expanded to twice-weekly since Jo feels her voice wears better with folks if they're exposed to it more often.

She said she will try to emphasize the good songs.

"I think the pendulum is swinging away from the novelty songs and back to good music. In the past year we have seen that made by such beautiful songs as 'Ebb Tide,' 'Song From Moulin Rouge' and 'Stranger in Paradise.' That's a good sign."

CHILD KILLED BY CAR

TORONTO (CP)—Six-year-old Alan Kirk, grade one pupil, was killed Monday when struck by an automobile while returning home from school. He ran from behind a street car into the automobile's path.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Klibitzer

Conceit handicaps many a bridge player who thinks he is clever at the play of the cards. Ability in the play bloats his lone wolf tendencies. It prompts him to ignore basic bidding that fits partner.

Such a player is inclined to steer the bidding so that he will get to play the contract. To this aim he will avoid showing suits in the order of their length or to appraise partner of his distribution.

NORTH
	♥A 10 6 5 4 3
	♦K Q
	♣K None
WEST	EAST
♠K Q 10 3	♠J 9 7 6
♥Q 8 7	♥K
♦3 2	♦10 8 6 4
♣10 8 2	♣Q 9 7 3
SOUTH
	♠4
	♥9
	♣A K J 6 5 4

They went at the bidding like this:

South	North
1 D	2 H
3 C	4 H
5 D	6 D

Space here is not enough to discuss all the bids that were so wrong. Nor did any of this bunch refer to them. The only best they poured on was when south played the hand wrong.

If south is daft to open the bidding at all he should start with a bid in clubs; the longer of his two suits. He should next bid diamonds, having bid the lower rank first, he shows them longer.

On the third round he may rebid his diamonds. This will say he has at least five diamonds. Thus, since he has first said his clubs are longer, partner knows he has six clubs and five diamonds.

Not that it would have made any difference in this case. They would end in diamonds anyway, perhaps. But a player might as well show partner exactly what he has in case the info is needed.

He could not make six diamonds. He was defeated two tricks instead of only one; probably because he did not know how to play it best. But he knew how to show distribution. That didn't.

There is no fool like a bridge fooler.

TRACTOR, DRIVER CHARGED

STRATFORD (CP) — Edgar A. Stoll of Clinton, driver of a tractor which police say injured a woman and killed her son in Mitchell Sunday, appeared in court Monday on a charge of dangerous driving. He was remanded until Feb. 8. Michael O'Donnell, 4, was killed. His mother, Mrs. Bruce O'Donnell, is in hospital here with severe injuries including six fractures of the pelvis. Her condition was reported slightly improved.

Mackell Plus Puck Spell Danger for Lumley

Leafs' netminder Harry Lumley makes a great save on a tricky shot by Boston's Fleming Mackell, left, after the latter had beaten the Toronto defence in third-period action during recent NHL contest at Toronto. With Watson, Nesterenko, Stewart and Mipay providing the goals, the Leafs won a 4-2 decision over the Bruins, only to drop the second game of the week-end at Boston, 2-0. Central Press Canadian.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY, FEB. 3, 1954.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Auspicious for highly confidential and important matters, financial and investment personnel. This should be an advantageous day for financial discussions, and for your special work.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — This day's influences and advantages should fit nicely into your schedule, and there is also a chance that you could make advancement in fields other than your own. At any rate, it's a good day for trying.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — This whole month has favorable aspects, generally because of Venus and Jupiter's positions and today is the share of encouraging rays. New and familiar interests both favored.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Good work and planning on your part will further enhance opportunities, gains, benefits. Don't be distracted by worry, needless hinderances or oversensitiveness. Be up and doing.

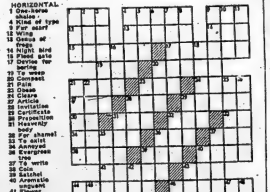
July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Today holds promise for benefits, perhaps advancement in business or work, if you will be unselfish enough to put the general good ahead of personal gain.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—There is much that is promising and eventful in your outlook. Have awareness, take advantage of anything honest and worthwhile that will aid your status and further security.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Everything has an important aspect to it now. Attend to your most urgent duties first, then allocate time to other tasks in accordance with their true value.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Keep emotions under control for mind alert for possibly exciting trends now. Take time to examine your program and to prepare right course. Make it a constructive day.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Meet opposition with a clear eye and a pleasant but firm stand. That which we conquer through intelligence and hard work gives gratification—but should not provoke egotism.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Friendly, encouraging vibrations should inspire you to do more than your share of work now. The day has many opportunities for advancement which the clever one will seize.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Taking too much time to accomplish a chore or undertaking is as unprofitable as rushing and making errors. Find, and maintain, the right tempo.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—You need not take a back seat for anyone. Whatever your schedule, you dare not miss a trick or go of it. There are helpful suggestions for those who seek them. Your mind fast ever be elastic; move forward.

YOU BORN TODAY are in the brainy, active class and usually have an interesting, talkative disposition. You are meditative and kindly, but often have to be prodded to tackle the very things you could succeed in. School yourself not to waste time on unambitious people or profitless undertakings. You have talent, capability and should not lose out through carelessness or wrong associates. Keep studying, educating yourself for greater achievement, further advancement, better security. Birthdate: Horace Greeley, American editor and statesman; Felix Mendelssohn, noted German composer.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles
Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)— For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to stop bleeding—without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid cases—some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)*—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue in all parts of the body.

Now this new healing substance is offered in ointment form for hemorrhoids under the name *Preparation H. The price is only $1.19 a tube including an applicator. The name to ask for is Preparation H—at all drug stores. And remember—if not entirely satisfied — your money will be refunded promptly.

BANCROFT

Haroldeen Watson, Glen Kellar Win Speaking Contest

BANCROFT — Six high school students participated in Friday night's public speaking contest held at the North Hastings High School. The contest, sponsored by Bancroft Lions, was complementary to the nation-wide scheme conducted by Lions International and the two winners will now compete in a zone contest to be held in Peterborough.

The three girls and three boys taking part were: Haroldeen Watson, Gail Inwood, Sue Gordon, Glen Kellar, Garfield Moxam and Cyril Sharp. Lion president Jim Brown introduced the judges, the Rev. E. Owen Johnston, the Rev. Alan Borland and the Rev. E. Hardy.

WINNING CONTESTANTS

Winning contestants were: Haroldeen Watson and Glen Kellar both of Bancroft. Each speaker delivered two addresses, one impromptu and one impromptu and Miss Watson drew her prize. She used subject "Madame Pandit," in which she told of the unique rise to fame of this lady. In her impromptu, "My Greatest Scare," an imaginary thriller, the speaker related her struggle with python in darkest Africa.

Glen Kellar's first subject, well supported by statistics, was "Our Winters are Getting Warmer," and his impromptu "Why I Go to School," showed that the student's aspirations to the teaching profession.

A fluent review of the life of Robert Louis Stevenson was given by Gail Inwood, who chose as her impromptu title "An Interesting Trip," an account of an actual school trip made by bus through New York State.

"GEORGE DUPES"

Sue Gordon's oration outlined the supposed life of "George Dupres," and "What I Would Expect of a Summer Job," was the title of her second speech.

Cyril Sharp spoke on "India's Struggle for Independence," and outlined that nation's history from the earliest days of Britain's colonization to the present day. Cyril's impromptu subject "I Dislike Over-Particularities," dealt with extra-curricular subjects at the school.

In a clever speech entitled, "Work," Garfield Moxam, in support of his subject, quoted liberally from various authors including Kipling and Shakespeare. His second choice told of "What I Like in Teachers."

SUGGESTIONS MADE

Announcing the winners, the Rev. Johnston made suggestions to aid the contestants in future events and quoted the speaker's golden rule, "Stand up, speak up and shut up."

Presentation of awards to winners and runners-up was made by public school principal Gordon Freeque, who is also chairman of the Lions Boys' and Girls' committee.

Roosevelt Domestic Battle Goes Into New Round Friday

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The sensational and public domestic battle of the James Roosevelts, replete with charges of adultery and counter-charges of blackmail, will go into another round Friday.

The first hearing has been set in superior court for that day on the separate-maintenance suits the Roosevelt and his wife, Romelle, have filed against each other.

Another date on Roosevelt's calendar is April 2. He must decide by then whether he will run for Congress, as he announced he would before his wife's charges broke into the open. Some Democratic party leaders have expressed the opinion that he should withdraw from the race. April 2 is the final date on which to declare candidacy.

CLAIMS CHARGES FALSE

Roosevelt, son of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, issued a prepared statement Monday regarding a letter he signed admitting infidelities with nine women. He says he knew the letter to be false, but signed it to keep his wife from suing for divorce in 1945 and thereby adding to his father's burdens as president.

Mrs. Romelle Schneider Roosevelt included the letter in her suit for separate maintenance, filed last Thursday, in which she also named three additional women as co-respondents.

"My wife has chosen to make the most ugly accusation which it is possible to make against any man," Roosevelt's statement said. "Each and every allegation of misconduct by the 12 persons mentioned with me is completely false and without foundation."

Roosevelt offered "an especial apology" to the nine women named in the letter signed by him.

"Facts and events one of them is completely innocent of any misconduct with me. The harm which has been done them I can never repair, but I can and do emphasize their innocence, ask their forgiveness and understanding of this unfortunate incident."

SAYS WIFE JEALOUS

From the very beginning, Roosevelt said, his wife displayed an "unreasonable concern for material security" and developed "an unreasoning fear and jealousy" of his social contacts. The result was "a calculated campaign" to transfer to her all his material assets "and a constant threat to accuse me of imaginary infidelities."

"This pattern reached its climax in the early part of 1945, when I was repeatedly faced with the demand that I acknowledge these imaginary happenings, and as she put it, 'purge my soul.'

"I was given an alternative. She stated that if I once did this she would forever cease these demands and begin our marital life anew. If I did not, she would proceed with a divorce naming all individuals."

This, said Roosevelt, was when

N. Hastings Acquires Land For Golf Course

BANCROFT — "The need of a good golf course for North Hastings has been felt for many years, not only for the sport and exercise afforded, but as a major tourist attraction," Whitney L. Martin, prominent local lumberman, stated in an interview last night.

GOLF EXPERTS HIRED

For some weeks Mr. Martin, aided by a small group of associates, has been working to put his plan into effect. Golfing experts were hired and selected a suitable tract of land on Highway 62, three miles north of Bancroft, which has been acquired. Much preliminary work has been completed and it is hoped that a turn on the property will prove suitable for conversion into a clubhouse. Professionals have inspected the available course and voted it ideal.

HOLDING COMPANY

To finance the project, a holding company is to be formed and shares will be offered to stockholders in units of $100, all property and equipment will be acquired by the holding company.

An operating company, composed of club members, will operate the course, exact members' dues and visitors' fees and generally manage the project. Mrs. Burns, of Bancroft, is at present acting as club secretary.

The Wolf and the Crane

A WOLF once got a bone stuck in his throat. So he went to a Crane and begged her to put her long bill down his throat and pull it out. "I'll make it worth your while," he added. The Crane did as she was asked, and got the bone out quite easily. The Wolf thanked her warmly, and was just turning away, when she cried, "What about that fee of mine?" "Well, what about it?" snapped the Wolf, baring his teeth as he spoke; "you can go about boasting that you once put your head into a Wolf's mouth and didn't get it bitten off. What more do you want?"

315 HINDU PILGRIMS CRUSHED TO DEATH

6,000 Marooned On Ice-Bound Isles In North Sea

Death Toll Has Reached 300 In Europe's Bitter Cold Wave

LONDON (AP) — More than 6,000 people were marooned today on ice-bound islands off the German and Dutch coasts as the worst winter in seven years spread death and misery through Europe.

An estimated 300 people already have died in 10 days of the bitter cold wave sweeping from Norway to North Africa and from Portugal to Siberia.

Weather forecasters said the great freeze-up may hang on until the week-end. Economic losses from stalled transport and absenteeism are counted in millions.

Airlifts have dropped food, medicine and other vital supplies needed to keep alive the 6,000 residents of the East Frisian isles off the German North sea coast. All but two of the islands are completely cut off from the mainland by ice.

Islands off the southwest Netherlands coast, ravaged by the killing floods of a year ago, were again isolated, this time by thick ice. Helicopters are flying in relief supplies.

Germany's mighty Rhine river is frozen for many miles, and upper stretches of the Thames in England are hard-pressed.

Thirteen policemen are battled through icy winds and sleet-laden snow drifts for hours Tuesday night and early today to reach an old people's home at Otterden in southeast England, snowbound from the outside world since last Saturday.

Vatican Paper Says That Pope Is Improving

By FRANK BRUTTO

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano, in an evident effort to allay growing concern over the health of Pope Pius, said today that "the state of the supreme pontiff, thanks to God, continues to improve."

The newspaper also described as "absolutely unfounded" reports in the Italian press that a British specialist who attended the late King George VI had been called for consultation.

This report, printed in both Il Messaggero and Il Tempo of Rome, Conservative newspapers, has already been denied by a British heightened worry that the pontiff might be suffering from cancer.

King George died of a hemorrhage in 1952 several months after he had been operated upon for chest cancer.

An official Vatican press office bulletin released Tuesday said medical examinations had "happily negative results" and had established that the disturbance from which the Pope suffers is of a "gastric nature presenting no neo-adequate functioning of the neuro-digestive system."

Messaggero and Il Tempo both said the pontiff has been placed on liquid diet and that he suffers stomach pains that require frequent application of ice packs.

Aside from the Pope's physician and the internist specialist, it said, only persons who have had contact with the Pope in the summer at his public audience a week ago today have been his two pro-secretaries of state and those persons, including four German nuns, who watch over his needs in his private living room palace apartment.

The pro-secretaries, Msgr. Giovanni Battista Montini and Msgr. Domenico Tardini, have conferred with the pontiff every day since he became ill.

Govt. Program Butter-Buying Not to Change

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is not planning to change its butter-buying program.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Thursday in the Commons that the policy is attaining the objective of maintaining returns to producers of butterfat sufficient to assure reasonable prices to consumers in the long run.

The government now buys surplus butter in the summer at 38 cents a pound. It sells it in the low-production winter months at 61 cents in cartload lots.

Mr. Gardiner said his department's information is that by May 1 the government may have about 90,000,000 pounds in storage, 6,000,000 more than a year ago. But that would not create any great difficulty.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: Cool air from northern Ontario pushed into the lakes region Wednesday morning, and scattered snowflurries occurred along the north shore. Elsewhere this cold front also will be moderately cloudy, but occasional sunny periods this afternoon will give a preview of the clear skies forecast for southern Ontario on Thursday.

Mild air on the Prairies is moving eastward, and as it rides up over the wedge of cold air covering northern Ontario, cloudiness will become more widespread in the north Lake Superior, and snow is forecast in James Bay region.

300 NEW SABRE JETS WILL BE SENT OVERSEAS

Planes Will Replace Those With U.S. Engines

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF late next week will start another "operation leapfrog" to re-equip its air division overseas with 300 new Sabre-jet fighters.

The new Sabre 6 planes have Canadian-built Orenda engines and will replace the present 300 Sabres equipped with 1-47 United States engines. They have more power and wide with a new slightly altered wing formation, more manoeuvrability at high altitude than their predecessors.

The new Sabres will be flown across the Atlantic almost as fast as they roll from the assembly lines at Canadair, Limited, Montreal. The first mass flight will comprise 12 planes in "operation leapfrog V." Subsequent ferry trips will be known as "leapfrog VI," "leapfrog VII" and so on.

The first four 'leapfrogs' were carried out between June, 1952, and last September without loss of a plane or pilot. The new operation may take almost a year.

Even with its present Sabres, the air division has been classed by officials of the North Atlantic treaty organization as the most formidable fighting force in western Europe's defence system.

RCAF Plane Is Forced Down Off Riviera

All five members of its crew escaped in rubber boats and were picked up by a fishing bark before they could paddle to shore.

The pilot of the craft, which was flying from Gibraltar to Marseilles, was identified only as "Capt. Annis." Two unidentified officers and two non-commissioned officers also were aboard.

Cause of the crash was not immediately determined. Authorities said the plane is lying in only about 15 feet of water and could be recovered.

PILOT FROM N. B.

Headquarters had no immediate report on the plane itself.

In Rome, the Canadian military attache, Col. A. C. Cherrier, said a school aircraft on a Mediterranean transport en route from Gibraltar to Italy had made a forced landing. He said the plane went off course because of a faulty radio and ran out of fuel.

2 Toronto Pupils Wounded as Pistol Fired in Class

TORONTO (CP)—Two pupils in a Central Technical School grade 10 class were wounded Tuesday when a .38-calibre revolver was discharged in the classroom, police said today.

Most seriously hurt was Norman Britton, 15, in hospital where an emergency operation was performed to remove a bullet fragment from his left hand. Zollie Gyurtyk, 16, needed treatment for a shoulder flesh wound.

Police said the bullet passed through Britton's hand and thigh, embedded itself in the other pupil's shoulder.

The other 30 pupils panicked briefly as both youths fell moaning to the floor.

James Gillespie, principal of the school, said the gun was found in a work assignment under a repairman-teacher when the shooting occurred. both wounded students were first cared for by Dr. Bernard Ellis, Dr. M. E. de St. Remy before being taken to hospital.

Principal Gillespie said Britton was "normally a fine lad."

Lewis Gyurtyk, father of the other wounded youth, said: "One bullet went and was bent over his desk, drawing, is he alive today. It could be seated anywhere and would have been killed or crippled."

Police said Britton told them he had gotten the gun from an uncle, Thomas Haslett. They said the gun did not know it was loaded, although the cartridge case found was clearly visible in the open-end chamber.

Aged Couple Near Simcoe Critically Injured by Ax-Wielding Robber

SIMCOE (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Beatty, a 65-year-old couple, were in critical condition in hospital today from injuries suffered Tuesday night when they were attacked by an ax-wielding robber.

The attacker robbed their service station, Port Dover, and then fled in the family car.

The couple was discovered by Ray Chambers, a Simcoe district truck-driver who stopped at the service station this morning and found Mr. Beatty lying in a downstairs room in a pool of blood and Mrs. Beatty upstairs on the floor. A blood-stained ax was on a nearby table.

Police believe the attack occurred some time before the station's normal closing time at 10:30 p. m.

There was no estimate of the amount of money taken.

Sees Civilization

Akyak, member of an Eskimo tribe living near Perry River 75 miles inside the Arctic Circle, gets his first look at civilization. Akyak was flown out of the north by an RCAF Dakota which carried food and supplies to destitute Eskimo families at the small settlement, 1,100 miles northeast of Edmonton. Akyak was taken to hospital at Edmonton for treatment of an undisclosed ailment. Shown with Akyak is Sqdn.-Ldr. Mel Bryan of Fort William who piloted the Dakota on its three-day 3,000-mile flight to Perry River. — (CP Photo).

Million Cheering Aussies Welcome Queen and Duke

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—More Field Marshal Sir William Slim, Australia's governor-general, and Prime Minister Menzies, along with Lieutenant Governor Sir John Northcott of New South Wales and Premier J. J. Cahill of New South Wales.

The Queen seemed nervous as she waited for about 30 seconds for presentations to begin.

Wearing a flame yellow chiffon dress with gold pattern, a tiny hat and open-toed white shoes, the Queen looked radiant as a 21-gun salute was fired and the royal standard broke out at an Australian mast for the first time in history. As the procession began, 21 fighter planes roared across the sky.

NEWYORKERNES GONE

The Queen and the duke shook hands with 19 persons, then, having approximated shaken off her early nervousness, the smiling Queen stepped on Australian soil, the first reigning monarch to do so.

Patrick Hills, lord mayor of Sydney, made a short speech of welcome, and the Queen replied:

"I want to tell you how happy I am to be among you, and how much I look forward to my journey throughout Australia."

Dulles, Eden and Bidault Discuss Crisis in Parley

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

BERLIN (AP)—The Western Big Three conferred at length today to see what might be salvaged out of the Big Four foreign ministers' conference despite a deadlock with Russia on the German problem.

State Secretary Dulles, Foreign Secretary Eden and Foreign Minister Bidault discussed the crisis at Eden's headquarters and also pieced together their strategy for the last meeting with the Russian Four in the Russian embassy.

Ahead of them lay the certainty that Foreign Minister Molotov would drop in one more unacceptable thesis on German unification. Molotov presumably would have a detailed plan for "free elections," but the very fact that he has one, he served notice he has little use for the Western plan.

WEST WANTS FREE VOTE

The Western plan calls for free and secret voting first, Moscow contends on merging the East and West German governments into a provisional regime that would perpetuate its German Communist vassals.

French sources reported that the Western delegates still figured the conference might accomplish something in arranging of tension in Germany by easing trade and frontier problems, and that a chance exists for negotiation on Korea and Indo-China in some form.

But for German unity, the outlook was bleak unless Molotov did the unexpected.

Foreign Secretary Eden, State Secretary Dulles and Foreign Minister Bidault discussed the crisis at Eden's headquarters and also pieced together their strategy for the last meeting with the Russian Four in the Russian embassy.

Ahead of them lay the certainty that Foreign Minister Molotov would drop in one more unacceptable thesis on German unification. Molotov presumably would have a detailed plan for "free elections," but the very fact that he has one, he served notice he has little use for the Western plan.

WEST WANTS FREE VOTE

The Western plan calls for free and secret voting first, Moscow contends on merging the East and West German governments into a provisional regime that would perpetuate its German Communist vassals.

PARLIAMENTARY PAY INCREASES NOW ASSURED

Members Vote $4,000 Hike in Indemnities

OTTAWA (CP)—A pay increase for parliamentarians to $10,000 from $6,000 a year virtually is assured.

In a Commons debate Tuesday that was at times confusing, members approved government legislation proposing a $4,000 increase in indemnities for MPs and Senators.

This, however, did not come about until after:

1. The CCF party split on the principle of raising pay. Seven were in favor and 15, along with 30 Progressive Conservatives, were not.

2. CCF proposals, first to reduce the increase proposed by half and then to eliminate the 1/3-tax-free allowance, were defeated.

3. A Social Credit amendment, suggesting members be given a choice of taking part or all of the increase wages was defeated.

4. The government adopted opposition suggestions to increase penalties for absenteeism.

The bill, given second reading, approval in principle, and clause-by-clause approval, now awaits third and final reading before it is sent to the Senate.

CCF SPLIT

The CCF split came on the motion for second reading, which was carried by a vote of 135 to 41.

The 30 PCs voting against the bill followed the lead set by Opposition Leader Drew, who criticized the government's method in presenting the bill. Nineteen were absent.

He said there had been no justification for any of the suggested increases and urged a preliminary study by a royal commission or special committee.

Three Million Stampede Into Holy Ganges River

200 Square Yards Along Banks Strewn With Bodies

NEW DELHI (CP) — Authorities said 315 Hindu pilgrims were killed and about 1,000 injured early today at Allahabad, India, when a crowd of 3,000,000 stampeded into the holy waters where the Ganges and Jumna rivers join.

An official statement added that the death toll is likely to go higher because many of the victims' bodies were swept away in the current of the river and have not yet been recovered.

Most of the victims were women and children, many of whom were crushed beyond recognition by the panic-stricken crowds.

IGNORE WARNINGS

Authorities broadcast urgent appeals to the pilgrims not to go to the river to bathe in its sacred waters, but the rush of bathers continued without break at the scene of the tragedy.

Eyewitness accounts said 200 square yards along the sandy banks of the Ganges were strewn with bodies after the police cleared away the panic-stricken throngs of bathers at the Kumbh Mela festival.

NEHRU PLANNED VISIT

Prime Minister Nehru intended to visit the Kumbh Mela today and Brahmin priests at Allahabad had been scheduled to join the bathers. But there were no holy men when Nehru and Mrs. Prasad were when the stampede occurred.

The vast horde of pilgrims had gathered at the rivers' confluence in eastern India in observance of the orthodox Hindu belief that bathing there during the Kumbh Mela spans frees the pangs of rebirth into a new incarnation.

The festival, from Jan. 14 to March 4, is held only every 12 years. It commemorates a battle on the site in Hindu mythology in which the gods defeated a horde of demons.

The pilgrims had waited all night on the river banks amid cold rains. They hoped to bathe during the first three hours after the day-light exclipsed the new moon, considered by the Hindus the most auspicious time for the ceremony.

HOLY MEN BATHE FIRST

In the early dawn they watched a procession of some 20,000 Hindu holy men—astride elephants going down to the water to bathe first.

Then the streams of pilgrims began to push toward the bank, pressing, shoving, human juggernaut.

Indian Red Cross and local medical authorities were reported rushing to the dead, dying and injured to emergency tent hospitals in the makeshift pilgrim cities which dot the banks of the holy river banks.

The reports said the confusion was heightened when the desperate sadhus—holy men—broke into the surging crowds with spears and the long, steel-pointed weapons they carry as symbols of their self-imposed penance.

RACES FOR HOUSING

The dead and injured were reported lying in a special tented hospital area.

Most of the victims were women and children.

Many of the dead were crushed beyond recognition by the panic-stricken crowds.

Duchess of Argyll Loses Furs, Jewelery While Entertaining Friends

LONDON (AP) — Burglars robbed the Duchess of Argyll of furs and jewelry worth more than $20,000 Tuesday night while she entertained a dinner party two floors below.

Police said the thieves apparently climbed up a drainpipe on the outside of the residence in the fashionable Mayfair district. The loot was taken from a third-story bedroom.

It was the second costly burglary suffered by the duke and duchess in six months. Last August a gang raided their Scottish home, Inverary castle and made off with gold plate and heirlooms worth thousands of pounds. The loot that time included the baton the duke carries as the commander-in-chief of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders.

Two Decades of Weird Weather Prove That Abnormal Is Normal

With the zero weather of late January now out of the way, and possibly forgotten, readers of the Ontario Intelligencer might be interested in knowing how temperatures for the past month compare with 24 inches of rain and 2.6 inches of snow, and 1945, 21.5.

ALWAYS A THAW

Never in the past 20 years has the mercury failed to get above the freezing mark in January, although in 1943 the highest was just 36 degrees.

January 1947 will be remembered as the time of the big snow with no less than 46 inches being received during that month. At the same time there was more than the average amount of rain with 2.63 inches, making a total precipitation of 3.53 inches.

January, 1944, was the 'green' month with only 6.5 inches of snow, and 0.09 inch of rain for a total precipitation of only 1.34 inches.

Average snowfall for January in the past 50 years has been 17.7 inches and 1.46 inches of rain for a total precipitation of 3.26 inches.

The mean temperature for January over the past half century has been 19 degrees.

The highest January temperature since 1935 was in 1950 when the thermometer soared to 59 degrees. But there were also some low spots, the coldest being in 1943 when the lowest January reading was a chilly 33.9 degrees. Other cold periods were in 1935 with 30.5 below; 1945 with 28.9 below; 1948, 23 below; 1946, 23.5 below; 1940, 22.4 below, and 1945, 21.5.

Unemployment at Highest Total Since Act in Effect

With seasonal work practically at a standstill, unemployment in Belleville area has reached its highest total since unemployment insurance went into effect back in 1941, it was stated today by Mr. H. M. Reed, manager of local employment office.

As of January 31st a total of 1,729 persons registered at the office and were reported out of work and drawing benefits. Of this total 1,342 were claims, representing 539 men and 803 women who report personally to the Belleville office, and 387 postal claims, made up of 78 men and 309 women.

High as the local unemployment total is now it is expected by Mr. Reed to go still higher with the figure reaching the 2,000 mark by early March. The highest previous total was late February last year when a total of 1,303 persons were out of work.

CITY IS ALONE

But Belleville is not alone in having a large number out of work. The same condition exists generally across the province with the Brantford and Cornwall areas being the hardest affected. Mr. Reed said that construction work in the Belleville area was practically at a standstill. Only two jobs, the new high school on College street and the parasite laboratory building on Dundas were now underway. Other work is being carried on in the lab building, while the contractor at the new school was said to be waiting for milder weather.

Top unemployment benefits receivable by workers out of work is $24 per week, or $4 per day, according to Mr. Reed. This is the top benefit for workers with dependents, who were making the maximum contributions. The benefit range down to $10.80 per week for a single person in the low wage bracket. Benefits average out at about $18 to $20 per week, it was stated.

POLICE BLOTTER

Milk bottle money from two houses was reported stolen during the night, according to police today. From one bottle $2.20 was taken, while from the other 40c. Both thefts were in the east end.

A Burton street woman is going to be in a literature for her living room if the owner of the rug fails to call for his property. Reporting the theft to police, the west hill woman said the rug had fallen from the rear of a moving van as it proceeded up Bridge street.

A Church street man who reported his car stolen from where he left it on Front street had a hard time convincing police that he didn't part it where it was found — right in front of the police station.

The motorist called police at 4:45 yesterday afternoon telling them his car had disappeared. Ten minutes later the car was found parked on Pinnacle street directly in front of the police station.

Family of Five Left Homeless, Old Factory Burns

A family of five was left homeless and all their household furnishing and personal effects were destroyed in a fire which shortly before noon today burned the old Thurlow cheese factory on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Aikins, 2nd concession, Thurlow.

Homeless are Mr. and Mrs. Hap Day and their children, two girls and a boy.

The fire was discovered by Robert and Ronald Aikins when while working around their father's barn, they glanced up to see smoke rolling from the roof of the factory, part of which was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Day. Two of the Day children were in attendance at Thurlow school and their youngest daughter had left for home only a short time before the fire was discovered.

The Aikins boys turned in the alarm but by the time the burning building but were unable to save any of the Day's household effects. Farm machinery, including bayloader, binder and other equipment stored in an adjoining shed was saved from the fire.

Belleville firemen were called to the blaze but were unable to do anything to save the building.

The old Thurlow factory had not been used for many years as a cheese plant. When the factory was closed the building was purchased by Mr. Aikins who rented the cheesemaker's living quarters to Mr. and Mrs. Day.

TRENTON (Special) — James Lovelace, of Dundas St., Trenton, pleaded guilty in police court here yesterday to passing a worthless cheque in the amount of $75. Magistrate T. Y. Wills' penalty included a one-year suspended sentence and court costs amounting to $28. He stipulated restitution must be made within two months.

FINED $94

He was also tagged for speeding on the Trenton thoroughfare. He was reluctant to part with $94, the total amount of his debt to the court.

MANY GOING SOUTH

Auditorium Will Likely Be Included in New High School

TRENTON (Special)—A council committee comprising councillors R. Smithrim, J. MacDonald and Gerald Weaver were in Toronto on Monday for talks with the Hon. George Dunbar, Minister of Municipal Affairs, and Lorne Cumming, Chairman of the Ontario Municipal Board. They were seeking information regarding inclusion of a permanent auditorium in the proposed high school. On return they reported to council that the Ontario Municipal Board was "quite" in accord with the plan and that there were just a few details to iron out.

Council decided to let the committee carry on for the present.

Council voted a $20 increase to the Victorian Order of Nurses in Trenton. The annual grant now amounts to $2,000. The order explained that anticipated income would fall short while expenditures would be approximately the same.

Miss Laura Cummings accepted an appointment to the Board of Health.

ORDERED TO PAY

The town was ordered to settle with Alfred Vaughan, who was awarded $100 for damages to his property. Mr. Vaughan's legal bill was $172.55 which the town must also pay. R. R. Pay who acted for the town charged $150 fee and outof-pocket expenses of $98.55. Total bill-up to the taxpayers is $491.50.

The town seeks an easement to improve the traversing of his land by a pipeline to convey spring water from the north side of the highway to the bay front. Council is not satisfied with the agreement Mr. Vaughan's lawyer asked for town to sign. The matter is being held in abeyance until council gets legal information.

PAY ON FEE BASIS.

Apparently no solicitor was interested in handling the town account for $1,500 a year and out-of-pocket expenses. Anyway council decided to pay for legal advice on a fee basis. Not in full accord with this plan Councillor MacDonald noted: "I will go along with you just so long as it doesn't upset the routine of the office."

Lawyer Park asked for a $500 a year pay boost on termination of his contract with the town recently. His request was not accepted.

A pay increase of 10 per cent was refused first class firemen. Firemen will, however, have two extra days off during the year. Investigation is underway concerning a pension plan for members of the Trenton Fire Department.

The first class fireman on the Trenton force receives $2,500 a year. Last year council raised salaries $180, all found. This year's council feels that the town can't afford another pay lift.

HITS DEAD END.

Snow shovellers can continue their holiday if they wish. A movement to encourage sidewalk clearing is dead end after much discussion. A by-law in effect since 1884 with penalties violations not less than $1 or more than $5 has never been enforced, according to councillor Weaver. Councillor Graham wonders where the town would get the men to clean the walks if council ruled that either residents shovel their own walks or town employees would do it and the cost would be added to tax notices. Observed N. J. McNair: "I think we better forget it. It would like to see snow cleaning enforced in the downtown area, however."

Council agreed to pay a bill to H. J. Bowerfind Construction Company for a paving job authorized by ex-Mayor K. J. Couch. The sum amounted to $2,414.40. In passing the account a councillor recommended that the town engineer should be consulted before any future work was authorized.

Council voted for Daylight Saving to commence at 12.01 a.m. April 11 and finish 12.01 a.m. September 21.

Tug-of-War Developing In Cost-of-Living Sub-Indices

OTTAWA (CP)—There's a tug-of-war developing in the cost of living sub-indices.

On one side are commodity gangs, such as foods and clothing, is trying to pull living costs down. But the heavy weights for services, including rents, are struggling to keep costs from slipping.

Lately commodities have had the edge in the struggle. November's figures showed a decline in food prices overcoming higher rents to lower the consumer price index, yardstick for measuring living costs, by two-fifths of a point.

The drop to 115.8 from 116.2 in the index, which is based on 1949 prices equalling 100, was the second consecutive monthly decline and left the index 2.4 points below the all-time high of 118.2 in December, 1953.

The latest results of the commodities services tug-of-war will be announced Thursday when Dominion Bureau of Statistics usually publishes.

The food column, which scrambled to high ground in 1951, slipped by 1.3 points during November to 112.1, lowest in six months.

Declines for eggs, beef, pork, potatoes, lettuce, sugar, grapefruit and some canned vegetables, outweighed rises for most fresh vegetables, lamb, bread, butter, cheese shortening and coffee.

A few scattered declines for apparel ani footwear shaved one-tenth of a point from the clothing group, which slipped to 110.3, lowest in seven months.

Struggling against the lowerprice trend was the shelter group, including rents and home-ownership costs, which rose by a fifth of a point to 125.2, an all-time high.

Other service groups also kept up resistance. The household operations column remained steady at 117.4, just a tenth of a point below the all-time high.

The column entitled other commodities and services, which reflects personal and health-care costs, recreation and transportation, remained at 116.3, highest in 10 months.

The 1953 total was about 2,545,945,000 pounds, compared with 2,408,847,000 in 1952. Output of creamery butter increased 5.4 per cent to 83,181,500 pounds in 1953, and cheddar cheese output increased seven per cent to 50,102,600 pounds.

Pilot Survives, But Falling Plane Kills Two Men

The pilot, Capt. James C. Smith, 31, was not seriously injured, but two workers in a boat factory storage yard where the plane fell were killed and four others were injured.

Public Works Committee Approves Seaway

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House of Representatives public works committee today approved a Senate-passed bill authorizing the United States to join with Canada in building the St. Lawrence seaway.

The measure, slightly amended from the form in which it passed the Senate on July 30, now goes to the House rules committee. The latter group will decide if and when the bill is to be sent to the House for debate.

Approval by the 29-member public works committee was by a 25-to-4 vote.

COFFEE PROBLEM

A popular song a few years ago was a Latin lament entitled "They Got An Awful Lot of Coffee in Brazil."

While a little true grammatically inaccurate the appraisal of the coffee supply was modest in the extreme. There was a lot of coffee in Brazil. So much in fact that there was a lot of coffee growers were burning surplus supplies to maintain the price of coffee in America, the fast growing market that made millionaires in Sao Paulo when the war cut off tea supplies from the Far East.

In fact, so great was the supply that the song stated: "A politician's daughter was accused of drinking water and had to pay a fifty dollar bill. They got an awful lot of coffee in Brazil."

Today the situation is reversed. There is very little coffee in Brazil. Frost cut the harvest. Consequently there is very little coffee anywhere. The result around the world, and especially at the corner grocteria, where the growers were hunting surplus supplies to maintain all-earth-shaking stability, is that the most potent sedative, the stimulant that the price of coffee is rising.

Coffee should not be dismissed merely as the newest treatment in a long line of remedies for a hangover. It is a stimulant, with that effect. Coffee has become the great social drink of North America. In the small office, great and small, the working day is now subdivided by the coffee break. The mid-morning break has supplanted breakfast as the working girl's principal source of nourishment. A "cuppa coffee" and two pieces of toast has assumed the status of a chant for undernourished stenos and sales girls, who, clutching a plastic container by their elbows, have turned a hit-and-run eating habit into a rite.

Each day the activity of many offices comes to an abrupt halt sometime between 10.00 and 11.00 a.m. for the refilling, and more frequently, at the same thing is happening in the long, bleak hours after 3.00 p.m.

The cool weather in Brazil may put a chill on the social revolution in North America along with the coffee bushes in Sao Paulo.

However, all is not lost in the frost. Victims of better things now appear. A new brew made from a blend of the reduced use of water, milk and tea as beverages. It is said to have a is 400 much to hope for other stimulants will replace coffee but the excuse is nevertheless.

An executive of one company has come forward with the suggestion that coffee grounds, once used, could be saved and mixed on a 50-50 basis with the new coffee substitute. He claims that the second serving is just as delicious as the first, a fact of which we were in abysmal ignorance until the shortage.

There are two companies rushed freshly roasted beans with the speed of light to the grocer so that the finest, most full-bodied flavors and aromas would not be lost as the coffee got stale. Oh well, live and learn.

However, with the shortage upon us, perhaps a cheery little ditty might be appropriate. A one, a two, a three, all coffee lovers sing:

Oh shed a tear, a chilly year
Has cut our coffee bean supply.
And yet, for two will never do
May all the gringos' wells run dry.
You hadn't 'oughter think of water,
Booze, tomato juice, the still,
The coffee craze had better days
But there's still coffee in Brazil.

CONFERENCE THEME-SONG

We have a theme song for the Berlin conference.

A little plagiarism is surely permissible and, with apologies to the author of that wartime ballad "They are either too young or too old, they are either too grey or too greasy green" we offer:

They are either too right or too wrong,
They are either too weak or too strong
And we have no words to a headline
In time for our deadline
Oh, how can we finish this song!

IRISHMAN'S CRUSADE

Irishmen are supposed to be happy-go-lucky— but there is an Irishman in New York State who is possessed of either a long memory or considerable foresight.

Inspector M. Kelly is the man. In the midst of cold he is preparing for heat. - A State assemblyman, Mr. Kelly has introduced a bill to prevent restaurants from refusing to serve a coatless man on a sweltering day.

Mr. Kelly believes that when a man eats he should be comfortable and that sweltering in a coat is too heavy a price for a man to pay for a meal when the mercury is in the high eighties.

Mr. Kelly has our best wishes. Our hopes are not high, however, that his broad Irish shoulders. And if he succeeds in his crusade against the coat, may he also turn his attention to the tie.

I KNEW HIM WHEN

I knew him when he was a lad,
And now to boast of that I'm glad.
But, I'd be prouder this to prove
That I had smoothed his pathway then.

"I knew him when," but wonder how
So lowly did he grow,
If I revisited him and how,
And for my helping hand does he
With gratitude remember me!

Though clearly see we never can
The boy today, the future man.
But each grows famous, as a lad
The friendship of a man has had.

I know all boys are men to be
With eager eyes and ears on me.
And when I say: "I knew him when I was a lad,"

I wonder did he know me then.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

OUR WILL ROGERS

I have just finished reading the excellent story of Will Rogers by Donald Day. He had a career that years an intimate friend of Will Rogers. Here was a genuine American, if ever there has been one, and he had within him some of the blood of our native ancestors—the Indian.

In many ways Will Rogers was one of the most interesting characters ever produced upon this continent. He could well be called unique. He was a man of many colors, likes and dislikes, and Don Day has put them in his book, and what he says is authentic, not guesswork. The real greatness of Will Rogers shines out in Our Will Rogers." People were actually like one man, loved him.

Well-came from well-do, he was born into parents, honored by all their Oklahoma neighbors and friends. He had a deal of good Irish-Welsh blood in him, as well as a quarter Indian. He was born November 4th (Election Day), 1879. But he never voted in his life! In his early days he liked to wander, and horses were to be his love throughout life. I once visited his Ranch outside Beverly Hills, and walked out to get a good look at his favorite horse, "Soapsuds."

A wonderful characteristic about Rogers was his kindness toward all animals, and his democratic manner toward everyone, rich or poor. It was a quality of his greatness that drew forever doing little things for people on the sly, just to get the personal thrill, and that is why God in His great popularity and made him so beloved by all who knew him.

I met Will Rogers many times and liked him. I have a prized letter that he once wrote asking me to go to the "Follies," where he was engaged, that he might be "at your disposal any time." You will get a true portrait of Will Rogers by reading this book by Homer Croy. I was once asked about a place upon his Ranch memorial at Claremont, Oklahoma, and suggested the fine favorite word of his: "Live your life so that whenever you lose, you are ahead."

A Tip From The Waiter

(London New Statesman).

A friend, back in Paris after four years, incautiously chose an unfamiliar restaurant. The meal was terrible, and he called the waiter to complain. Yes, the waiter agreed, the food was awful. Why not try the little place across the road? My friend tried it and the waiter was so sure it was good. "Because I come there myself. That," he shrugged at his surroundings, "is where I find my clients."

Civilization On Amazon

(St. Thomas Times Journal)

Civilization is coming to the Amazon in a hurry; at least, civilization is being brought there by a comfortable look-see and then hurried back to the other jungle where it carries on from day to day. The Brazilian Government has brought nine new passenger-cargo vessels, three of which will accommodate each about 400 tourists, the remainder fewer, to augment a fleet of 37 already in operation. These will ply the Amazon from its mouth to the Peruvian town of Iquitos, 2,000 miles inland.

Those who have the Intellectual Hollywood conception of the Amazon as a waste of waters can revise their thinking. Last year, even with existing means of transport, 15,000 passengers and 18,000 tons of cargo were carried along the river. This does not mean, of course, that the Amazon is as well travelled as, say, the St. Lawrence or that hostile natives, tropical diseases and other just pursuit have ceased nature herself do not make the Amazon valley a place for dangerous business. At the same time, some may think that the Amazon is being opened up a bit too much, businessmen does not imply that the fact of the country more than half-a-mile from the river bank is likely to be much changed.

Tourists, they will point out, have been doing the rounds of Alexandria, Rio, and Sao Paulo for generations, yet do not seem to have had much effect on the living conditions off the main tourist route.

In the case of the Amazon, however, it is slightly different. Tourist bring cash. In the past, very few more feet here and there reclaimed from the jungle. Moreover, much of the cargo carried by these Amazon ships last year was precious directly to and from what the Amazon, one of Nature's last strongholds, is incalculably rich. When the precious metals of the Amazon are vital to industry, the world is not long before Nature gives way to the bull-dozer and machine-gun. Civilization is coming in a hurry to see what the Amazon looks like in its native state before it becomes another waterway clogged with oil, industrial waste and sewage.

Letter-Writer Extraordinary

(Edmonton Journal)

We have no wish to discourage Major Clarence Hamilton, Bedford, quite otherwise. Accordingly, we are mindful that the achievements of an English member of the fraternity, now dead, remain unequalled. Here the letter producer of those who write to the Editor of the Times.

The English gentleman, H. Rochfort Lamb, was a bachelor, began writing to editors in 1894. He kept up for fifty-one years. In that period he sent out more than 30,000 letters, and of this almost unbelievable total 1,200 were published during his life-time. One of the country's leading dailies, the most every English newspaper, the august Times of London no doubt among them.

The 6,235th letter was published not so long ago in the Manchester Guardian, on the same day as his obituary. Only a few surviving lines long, while the "obit" took up nine lines.

Lest one of our correspondents feel that this abbreviated notice of his death was unfair, let us distinguished a member of the "Dear Sir" fraternity. We hasten to point out that during his lifetime he had won a lasting place in the hearts of generations of millions of newspaper readers—which seems a fitting memorial for any letter-writer.

Those fond of arithmetic will have no difficulty in reaching figures that he averaged more than 500 letters per year—and will wonder if he had time for other hobbies.

While holding up the estimable Mr. Roosevelt as a shining example, we wish to add the cautionary note that the Editor's office must provide, amidst mountainous piles of letters, room for some others—between and at least a narrow corridor to the door.

Hydrazine Wonderful

(Minneapolis Tribune)

The first man to gaze earthward from a crater of the moon is likely to have made the journey in a privately powered by a fuel called hydrazine. It is possible that this same versatile chemical will have been used in procreating the metal for his ship. Some of his gadgets may be fashioned by hydrazine fabrics; hydrazine may be used as a preservative for his food supplies; a few of the drugs in his medical kit may contain hydrazine.

Behind the ifs and maybes lie the facts of possibilities envisioned for a chemical which until this year has been both hush-hush and extremely expensive. Now the security wraps have been removed. And, "Business Week" reports, production is great enough so that military requirements do not take it all.

Even more important, as far as industry is concerned, is the fact that cost has been reduced from a prohibitive $3 a pound to about $2.50. This means that private companies may now experiment much more freely. More than 100 firms already have research projects under way.

The tremendous power of hydrazine's gas fuel was proved by a push during the last war by the Germans, who used it to drive the V-2 rocket 60 to 200 flights at the rate of seven miles a minute. Its explosive power, too, has been demonstrated.

Now its peaceful uses are being further explored. As a spray, it arrests spreading of cancer cells. Combining it with starch inhibits the growth of weeds, prevents flowering and sprouting. As a rocket hybrid corn; it has various uses in the production of drugs. It has been used in a new tuberculosis drug and may be used in a new cancer drug. It may provide superior textile finishes and even "wrinkle-proof" clothes. It may sell "come detergents, insecticides, polishes.

No one knows what may eventually emerge from all this experimentation. The chances seem excellent that if hydrazine can be produced cheaply it will bring revolutionary changes in the chemical industry.

Meanwhile, it provides another good illustration of what has been said so often—however, man seems to have reached the ultimate in ease of existence, exciting possibilities open new doors to the future.

Need Ability To Bounce Back

(Galt Reporter)

An ever-popular children's toy is the squat figure, made of rubber, which is set on a rounded base. Each time the figure is knocked down, jarring sanctity up again, ready for the next blow. Even a child, whose body knows, is simply a heavy weight in the base that gives it the ability to return to an upright position.

Someone has suggested that human beings ought to be constructed in a similar manner—biologically speaking, at least. For as most of us go through life, we are met with a series of blows which may lay our pride, or our physical well-being, or our personal ambitions, as flat as can be.

Unfortunately, we do not always spring back with the facility of the rubber toy. And there are some people who do. We have all known individuals who seem momentarily to have been shattered by crippling misfortune, bereavement, loss, or personal tragedy, yet who refuse to admit defeat and find their way back to successful living.

What is their secret? Well, it is the same as that of the knock-over toy: a solid foundation in life. People whose lives are built on substantial bases of character—integrity, love, courage, faith—have an almost unlimited capacity for rising out of defeat into victory.

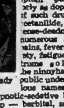
GOLD—WORTHLESS METAL

Gold is the world's most worthless metal.

That is, fewer things of a socially constructive value are made out of gold than out of almost any other metal. Gold jewelry, dishes, ships, and automobiles are made of steel. Now since most of the gold mined in the old gold standard, gold has become a yellow metal buried in deep vaults, chiefly at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

Yet gold is the most sought after metal in the world, uranium running a close second. The reason for this is that gold is the one thing that is scarce and that its amount remains relatively constant. If gold should suddenly become plentiful, it would become cheap. There is nothing intrinsic in the metal itself to give it value. Its value chiefly stems from its scarcity. Almost all of the gold accumulated as money in the past of course gained considerable prestige because for centuries it has been used as a medium of exchange.

More murders have been committed over gold, more betrayals perpetrated, more fought than over anything else.



It is worth pondering that the metal which is least useful industrially and which has caused more bloodshed, misery, and other evils put together, is the thing which humanity prizes most highly. It is a commentary of our love for the false and our indifference to things of real value.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

THE MORE CALCIUM THE LESS DOPE,

N. Webster says dope is any preparation, as of opium, used to stupefy.

Dr. Brady

I don't think of opium particularly as dope, but if such drugs as benzedrine, ephedrine-sedeine in numerous soluble pills, fever, anxiety, fatigue nostrums are sold to the ninny-hammer public under such fine names; and also the hypnotic-sedative barbiturate group — barbital, mural, dial, lpral, neonal, nostal, ertal, noctal, phenobarbital, veronal, luminal, etc.

These dangerous items can take nicotine or the barbiturates, but by not means safe for indiscriminate use is acetylsalicylic acid, commonly known as aspirin. I have taken perhaps four or five doses of it in my lifetime, when I'd come on either a headache or severe neuralgic ache or pain which nor than take an aspirin tablet unless I could sit or lie quietly for an hour after taking it. Death has resulted from a single dose though one person who took about 100 5-grain tablets (probably with suicidal intent) recovered.

After all my experience in coronary, city and hospital practice and my vicarious experience as an international quack I marvel at the recklessness of people who resort to dope on the slightest pretext and at the delinquency of doctors who encourage patients in this abuse—such doctors are to blame for many cases of drug habituation.

Take headache, for instance. Not just a casual or isolated headache, but that headache that frequent, or periodic headache, no matter whether it be neuralgic, "nervous" or sick headache (migraine). The question is what to do about it? The answer is simple enough if you are simple-minded. Take a dose of acetanilide in pill, tablet, powder or effervescent liquid form. If one dose doesn't knock it (or you) out, take another, and another until you no longer feel anything.

Now I'm just a plodding newspaper quack and I have no headache cure to offer, nor do I believe there is a staple underlying cause of all headache.

Hundreds of people who have come to my office have tried overfeeding and high calcium diet have created varying headache.

So I say: The more calcium the less dope.

This applies not only to headache but also to various other pains. Don't take dope for backache or pains for the temporary relief of which the sufferer resorts to dope.

Half a Book Per Canadian

(St. Thomas Times Journal)

According to a report by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the number of books in circulation public libraries is 8,000. That is equivalent to less than half a book per head of population. Perhaps two thirds of the population are of an age at which they could read a book, and if the books in use were to suddenly present a demand for a library book, there would not be nearly enough to go around.

From these figures it is evident that Canadians as a nation are not much given to reading books. Despite the wonderful educational facilities at their command. Theoretically, there should be a high percentage of book readers—for actual book ownership, but just book readers for pleasure or instruction. Their grandparents, if not their parents, were relatively much addicted to reading books. In most homes today there are at least a few books visible, and in some there are whole rows or cases full of them, but too often they are there for show rather than to be read. The owners are just putting on a little "front" to impress callers.

The situation is certainly not due to lack of education but to changing of the times. In the days of grandfather and grandmother, reading, and perhaps a little music, were their chief forms of evening entertainment. Now there is the radio, and now there is television, besides other means of entertainment and indoors. But millions of people go to the movies every week, and millions more several times; and while many people can read and listen to the radio at the same time, unless it be a talk, nobody can read and look at television at the same time.

No that may be the chief reason for a library book not being given down for the evening with a book.

Incidentally it may be mentioned that a report issued in Britain a few days ago stated that the number of library books there this year amounts to over 250,000,000.

We Advance

(Fort William Times-Journal)

Time was when folks argued whether the earth was flat or round. But the world advances. This century has witnessed a controversy in Great Britain dealing with the color of haddocks. For the one part, it is developed they were a livelish brown; on the other was the conviction they were white.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

For many years past, in order to keep up with the Joneses and to satisfy the public taste, British papers have subscribed to the literary supplements of the London Sunday papers, John o' London's weekly and the Listener from the B.B.C. and, as a result, these papers have devote serious space to the review of the new books. Now it is impossible to pick out the few books that are suitable for one and every person to read. It takes several hundred people, reading profession-ally all year long, to keep up with the presses and review the books. Therefore it is obvious that one man can't hope to read more than a mere fringe of what is published.

Publication has been ahead of reading for some generations. For a time, when popular education first began creating a wide new reading public, there was general hope that the pressure would soon be relieved by cheap and efficient ways of printing and by the demand, and authors of every shape and size popped up.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

HE SHOULD BE "THE HAPPIEST MAN IN THE WORLD"—BUT HE ISN'T!

To assume the responsibilities and obligations that go with each step we have taken of our own free will, is the mark of sound character in a man or a woman. To try to wriggle out of such responsibilities and obligations, stamps a person as an irresponsible weakling.

Every once in awhile I receive a letter from some wife or husband who has married after the break-up of a romance, and then, later on, — heavy dwelling on that romance and allowing regret for it to damage his or her relationship to the marital partner later taken. What finally happens depends entirely on whether the husband or wife is that individual of normal stability or that weakling.

Take, for instance, the following letter from a young man, G., who writes me that he has "a good wife and child"; that he is building a new home for them and doing the work himself; that he has a good job, and that altogether he should be "the happiest man in the world." Then he says simply this: "But I am not."

He then goes to say that he just can't seem to figure out why he is not happy, but in the very next sentence he gives away the answer:

"The only thing I can say is, that about eight years ago there was a girl I worked in many, but had to break us up. Then I left for the navy, and was gone three years. I have seen this girl just once since then. She lives in another city and happened to come down here, and we talked a little but that was all. Both of us were married by then. I thought an awful lot of her, and I still do.

"I have tried every way to be a good husband, but I have no interest in my home but I want to. I know myself I am slipping, but I don't know what to do about it. Should you please advise me?"

PART VS. PRESENT

So here we have one of those people who apparently is permitting the past to ruin the present and future. This man chose to marry some years after the breakup of his early romance, and the woman he married has made him a good wife. Yet he keeps turning his thoughts back to another man, and allowing self-pity, regret and haunting memories of that woman to crowd out love and loyalty to his own wife.

If this man doesn't know why he is all confused and unhappy, as he says in his letter that he doesn't, then he need wonder no longer, for this is the reason. He himself is standing in the shadow he has thrown over his life, and he will remain confused and unhappy until he has the strength of character to step out of that shadow.

What he should do, and what will certainly bring him happiness eventually if he does it, is as clear as daylight. He should shoulder responsibilities and obligations he married, and devote himself to carry them out. He should refuse to indulge himself in any more orgies of self-pity, and, instead fasten his mind on the good things that he actually has. It goes without saying that he should have no more intercourse with his former girl friend and that he should never have had the first one. His main purpose from now on should be to make his wife and child happy and to think about his own happiness. And the miraculous thing about it is, that if he will concentrate on it, honestly and sincerely, happiness will gravely creep up on him as an inevitable by-product of making these others happy. "Those who bring happiness to the lives of others," wrote Robert Louis Stevenson, "cannot fail to be from themselves."

I'm not saying all this is going to be easy to do, but I am saying that it can be done if this husband wants to do it enough. The choice is there for him to make; whether he accept loyalty to his marriage and consequent eventual happiness, or disloyalty to it, and endless chaos. Why suffer needlessly? Keep T-R-C-s on hand, and use them promptly. Only 60c, $1.35 at drug counters. T-R-C

Special-Purpose Menu

By Mary Moore

What I observe and what my sister-cooks's exercise are often not the same. So it was satisfied, when I overheard (barefacedly eavesdropping) at the chicken counter, one young shopper say to her friend "Actually, God's chicken's cheaper than store right now."

She was right too for in my load of groceries I had a roast beef which cost $3.11 and also chose a boiling fowl weighing over 9 lbs. and it was a little over $2.00—for I heard her say so.

That is why I have selected a different chicken dish for this menu.

Chicken Almond
Chow Mein Noodles
Tossed Salad
Peach Cheesecake Pie
Coffee or Tea

CHICKEN ALMOND

In this case we need 2 cups cubed cooked boiling fowl, so I would suggest you buy a large boiling fowl that is not overloaded with fat, simmer it in water to cover until tender, and when it is cool enough to handle cut off what meat you need for this dish. Also any remainders for such dishes as chicken a la king or chicken salad, etc., and the broth for a wonderful pot of chicken soup. In 3 tablespoons butter gently cook 1-3 cup chicken cubed pineapple for 5 minutes. Into 1-3 cup pineapple juice stir 1 1-3 tablespoons cornstarch, and stir into them 2 cups chicken broth, then stir this into the sauted pineapple, until thickened. Add 2 cups cubed chicken and (and don't leave this out) 1-3 cup toasted slivered almonds, and 1-3 cup thinly sliced celery and 1 1-3 teaspoons salt. Cover pot and heat just heat through to boiling. Serve with or over chow mein noodles (these may be bought in cans) and if desired, heated just before serving fried, in oven. These amounts will serve six.

TOSSED SALAD

On Friday night last Marianne brought home one of her number of buddies for dinner, and they both helped prepare it.

Jane took over the salad and Marianne the dessert and table setting. I hadn't met either friends of Marianne's what to do because some are so capable, but was wanted to know every detail of how that salad was to be prepared. I laid out lettuce, celery, cucumber, tomato, parsley and a hard bit of Roquefort cheese. For four of us what went into the salad bowl was 1-2 head lettuce cleaned and chopped, about 1-2 cup finely cut celery, 1 cucumber sliced unpeeled and but not pared, but very thinly sliced, 1 tomato chopped, and a liberal amount of chopped parsley. The hard bit of Roquefort might have been a 1-inch cube. This was shredded over all and tossed the works with French Dressing.

PEACH CHEESECAKE PIE

Crust—In a bowl mix together 1 cup fine graham wafer crumbs (about 12 crackers), 1-4 cup each sugar and melted butter or margarine. When mixed press it into a 9-inch pie plate evenly coating sides and bottom.

Filling—Press 1 1-3 cups (3-4 lb.) cream style cottage cheese through sieve into bowl. Add 1-3 cup undiluted evaporated milk, 3 tablespoons flour, 1-3 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and stir well. Beat 2 eggs until light and stir into them 1-3 cup sugar. Fold egg mixture into cheese mixture and turn all into crumb crust. Bake at 300 deg. F. for 1 hour or until firm. Cool.

Topping—Open 1 can sliced peaches—15-oz. size—and drain, reserving 3 tablespoons syrup. Combine syrup with 2 tablespoons sugar, and stir the peach juice into them, then cook, stirring until thick, then cook over boiling water, stirring occasionally, until no raw starch taste can be detected. Cool. When pie filling is cool, arrange peach slices attractively on it at centre like a nutsheet or close-spoked wheel, overlapping. Spoon thin layer of cool glaze over peaches and filling. Chill thoroughly. As you can see this would be a fine meal for guests and not too expensive.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. ERSKINE

A PROBLEM PHRASE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have five children, three teen-agers living at home with us, and one son and one daughter married and living the suburbs near the city where we live. Yesterday we received a wedding invitation addressed to "Mr. and Mrs.—and Family." My idea is that this form is meant to include all our children, the "family," that is, the married ones as well as the children at home. But my husband thinks this includes only the children at home. Who is right about this?

R.G.

Your husband is right. When "and Family" is written on the envelope of an invitation it includes each member of the family living at the address written under the name. It should not be taken to include those members of the family living at another address.

Incidentally, your discussion of, and "wondering" about, this form points out the fact that it is best form not to use "and Family," but instead to write the individual names of those invited. For example: addressing the outer envelope to "Mr. and Mrs." and writing on the inside envelope the individual names.

PARENTS OF ATTENDANTS TO BE INVITED TO RECEPTION

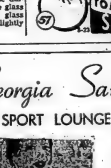
Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are to be married in a small rectory. Therefore only the members of the immediate families will be invited to the ceremony. Afterward there will be a dinner for the families. In the evening there will be a reception for our families and friends. My question is: Should the parents of my maid of honor and of the groom's best man be invited to the dinner or only to the reception?

R.

The parents of the maid of honor and the best man would quite properly be invited to the reception only.

WHERE TO PLACE GOBLET AND WINE GLASS



Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Exactly where should the water goblet (or tumbler) be placed in relation to the wine glass? And when we serve one wine during dinner, as we sometimes do when we have guests, where should I place this wine glass?

Alice T.

Place the water goblet or tumbler just above the tip of the dinner knife. And place the wine glass at the right of the water glass (goblet or tumbler), and slightly forward.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

DAILY COMPLEXION CAKE

Pamper your complexion. Let it feast on nourishing creams and tonic-lotions. For if it is neglected, it is bound to lose freshness and delicacy of texture. It has many enemies—harsh winds, atmospheric dust and various types of blemishes that may come along with the birthdays.

Because cosmetics are used generally, women retain a youthful appearance longer than they did in the days of their ancestors who thought they were on the shelf when they had reached the thirtieth milestone. Powders, foundation creams, even rouge when placed on the skin, form a protective film that keeps it from getting weather-beaten.

Oily toiletries serve as especially useful purposes. They keep the skin from drying and scaling. The epidermal surfaces respond to lubricants, lap them up as a kitten laps up cream. The friction necessary for their application stimulates the circulation and in that way helps new cells to form.

You should have two creams—a light one for cleansing and removing make-up, a heavier one for massage. The former and the latter is after the slightly face washing. Start the application low down on the neck; neck often looks older than faces because they seldom get as much attention. Smooth upward, with flattened fingers. Spread the cream along the jaw line. You can make circles over the cheeks if you are careful not to force the flesh up close to the eyes to form creases there. Rotary motions on the forehead will help keep it smooth. Give your earlobes a few creamy dabs.

If there are signs of crow's feet, place the first finger on the eyelid close to the nose, sweep outward to the temple. Do a few circles there, come back under the eye to starting point.

Unless the skin is inclined to be oily, the cream should remain on over night. By morning, it will have disappeared, and that is the necessary time a cold water rinsing and a gentle drying.

DiMag's Wife Has Never Seen Baseball Game

TOKYO (AP)—Actress Marilyn Monroe and husband after he had retired from active baseball," the pin-up star told a Japanese-American press conference here with occasional help from Letty Cottin, San Diego Pacific Coast League baseball Mayor Moscone and questions ranging from the risque to the ridiculous.

MARILYN PARRIES EXPERTLY

"We are told you do not wear anything under your dress. Is that true?" a Japanese reporter asked as he eyed the fringe of lace peeking from beneath a form-tight red wool dress.

"I'm planning to buy a kimono tomorrow," Miss Monroe evaded expertly.

While Miss Monroe talked to approximately 75 reporters, DiMaggio almost unnoticed in a corner of the room. Only a handful of reporters bothered to interview him to Marilyn.

DiMaggio and O'Doul will help coach Japanese professional baseball teams in spring training.

PARLIAMENTARY

Prime Minister St. Laurent has announced that Liberal members could vote as each saw fit, but all 132 Liberals supported it on the bill. There were 38 absent.

Thirteen Social Credit members did but two, who were absent, voted with the government, as did the three Independent members.

Mr. Coldwell, CCF leader, said he would not oppose the principle of the bill because he felt some increase was warranted. CCF members would stand with him.

They were Clarie Gillis (Cape Breton South), Joseph W. Noseworthy (York South), Harold White (Vancouver East), Stuart Reglet (Burnaby-Coquitlam), Max Campbell (Battleford), and Thomas Farquhar (Comox-Alberni).

Two, Mr. Gillis and Mr. Noseworthy, said the entire $4,000 increase should pass and later voted against the two CCF amendments to limit the increase to $2,000 and to eliminate senators from any increase.

CCF AMENDMENT DEFEATED

The first CCF amendment, by Mr. Coldwell, was defeated by a vote of 86 to 15, CCF members its only supporters.

The proposal by Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) to limit senators from the increase was defeated 122 to 20. A Progressive Conservative, Wallace Nesbitt (Oxford), joined 19 CCF members in supporting the amendment.

The 15 CCF members who opposed second reading of the bill were headed by Angus MacInnis (CCF—Vancouver Kingsway), who had criticized Saturday any increase whatsoever.

Later a Social Credit member, Rev. E. C. Hansell (Macleod), proposed a take-it-or-leave-it amendment under which members could choose to accept payment of part or all of the $4,000 raise.

Social Credit members were alone in backing the amendment, which was defeated 146 to 8.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said the proposal was not a "wholesome" one for Parliament.

HIDE BEHIND LAW"

Mr. Hansell contended it was wrong to oppose the raise and then accept it. Those who opposed the bill, thinking it would make them popular, still would be able to accept the full increase. Opponents of the raise should not be allowed to "hide behind the law" and say they were forced to accept a statutory indemnity.

Mr. St. Laurent announced, however, that the government would agree to suggestions from two opposition members for increasing penalties for absenteeism.

An amendment, drafted on the spot by the government, was adopted to provide that $80 a day will be deducted for absences without permission beyond 21 sitting days a session.

The suggestion for a higher penalty came from Mr. Knowles, and the proposal for a longer period of permissible absences from Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops).

There was one minor vote on a clause covering additional salary increases for holders of three parliamentary positions, including Opposition Leader Gros. Under the Progressive Conservative and CCF members voted against it, but were outvoted by Liberal and Social Credit members and the increases were approved by a vote of 93 to 32.

The increases: Commons opposition leader to $15,000 from $10,000; government leader in the Senate to $10,000 from $7,000; opposition leader in the Senate to $6,000 from $4,000. The present government leader in the Senate, Hon. Hoad Macdonald, will be paid as solicitor-general.

Springbrook Circuit Pays Fraternal Visit to St. Paul's, Stirling

BY MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN.

The first fraternal visit at St. Paul's in 1954 Centennial year, was held Sunday evening, January 31st. Rev. H. Bates, pastor of Springbrook circuit, and members of three appointments, Springbrook, Starrwood, and Dykeman, were in attendance as well as several visitors from Carmel, Mount Pleasant, and other sister churches in Stirling.

Mrs. John McKeown officiated at the organ, and 18 members of Springbrook choir occupied the choir loft. They rendered two anthems, "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer", and Roy Hollet' interpretation of "The Twenty-Third Psalm", in this the dear was taken by Miss Lois Mason and Mrs. Edgar Graham.

Rev. A. E. Baker graciously welcomed the guests and spoke briefly on the 54th Centennial. The service opened with Isaac Watts Marching Song.

OLD COLLECTION BOXES.

The offering was gathered in the old Methodist collection boxes, dating back to 1826. They are the property of Switzerville United Church, and were loaned for the First Methodist Conference" held in 1826. They are on loan to St. Paul's for Centennial year. Messrs. Fred Bateman, Guy Davidson, Ronald Hagerman and Gordon Bailey, gathered the offering.

Rev. H. Bears based his message on "Life". He prefaced his remarks with a tribute to St. Paul on this auspicious occasion; and wished them centennial success for the years to come. He said, "Life as a job, a task, a privilege, a blessing, an opportunity and much more, but it is also a service to God." The words, "I have come that ye might have life and have it more abundantly" is a true today as it was in Bible days.

Mr. Bears graphically pictured the way of illustrating the theme, "I am the way, the truth and the life", and he also emphasized the "Four-Fold purpose of the Youth Group."

130 YEARS OF CHRISTIAN WORK.

St. Paul's United Church has carried on Christian work for 130 years and now it has a job to help others live The Golden Rule: "Do Unto Others As You Would Have Them Do Unto You."

Must be practised and preached in every place and living abundantly anywhere will be anxious to help his brothers and sisters who are less fortunate.

His closing thought was a challenge to go out and do even better in the new year ahead and the desire to bring others to the kingdom.

Mr. George Carlisle voiced a tribute to Mr. Bears, Mrs. McKeown, and to choir for their kindness in assisting with the centennial service.

The service closed with the Scottish paraphrase "Give Us Each Day Our Daily Bread."

The congregation then journeyed to the Sunday School room where Mr. Allan Francis presided at the new film entitled, "Liquid Fire of Love". This was made possible through the generous gift of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Bradshaw of St. Paul's.

The British, conscious of what air attack can mean, are known to be reluctant to use the word three squadrons, leave North Luffenham, England, for France, as reported Saturday.

PURE WATER VS. ALCOHOL

The film was a 15 minute presentation and compared pure water with alcohol. Beautiful flowers, human vegetation, healthy children and animals were the result of pure water while alcohol meant, a horrible outside the body, but very detrimental inside.

Outside the body alcohol was used for anti-freeze in cars, as well as valuable in perfumes, pelitis and in the manufacture of nylon.

Inside the body alcohol affects the nervous system, is a major factor in accidents, and dries up burns delicate tissues. The film was most educational and the various scenes were nicely portrayed.

About 125 people remained for the social part of the evening when Mrs. Evelyn Warren, president of St. Paul's W.A. and her executive served tea and cookies.

Mr. Baker conducted a humorous contest and quiz and all got out get-acquainted quite well all formed a big circle and all fellowship together.

Then A. E. Baker presided at the piano. Mr. H. Bears tendered appreciative thanks and Mrs. E. Warren graciously replied.

The social circle followed with all singing "Blest Be the Tie" and Rev. W. S. Irwin pronounced the benediction.

Awaiting Word Regarding Plans At Level Crossing

NAPANEE (CP)—Town council decided Monday night to await word on whether the dominion board of transport commissioners plans any move toward providing protection at a level crossing here where eight persons died.

The eight district residents were killed Jan. 25 when their car collided with a train. One person died earlier in an accident at the crossing.

"Surely no right-thinking person in the town or county is going to hold Napanee responsible," said Deputy Reeve A. D. Allenbrack.

Though Korea Costs High It Taught U.S. Airmen Much

EDITOR'S NOTE: Korea's costs were high, but it taught the United States Air Force a great deal. In the first of three articles by the chief of the Associated Press bureau in Tokyo, the commander of Far East air forces discusses the valuable lessons learned the hard way over Korea's rugged terrain.

By ROBERT EUNSON

TOKYO (AP) — Korea, a bombing blizzard, a sticking down into the Yellow and Japan seas cost dearly.

But Gen. Otto P. (Opie) Weyland believes air superiority crippled the Communists in Korea by knocking out their planes, supplies, equipment and manpower, while infantry held the forward defence line and naval vessels protected the sea lines of communication.

The commander of U.S. Far East Air Forces said in an interview:

"We are pretty sure now that the Communists wanted peace, not because of a two-year stalemate on the ground, but to get air power off their backs.

"We know U.S. Air Force jets, once criticized as too fast for the Korean conflict, proved a superior weapon. . . .

"We know that the jet fighter has come into its own. Forty-eight rockets, all capable of knocking down an enemy bomber or fighter, can be fired from a jet fighter. Two 1,000 - pound bombs (or a weapon) of mass destruction can be carried by jet fighters and pinpointed to demolish a factory, or wipe out a military communications centre, or an enemy air base stocked with planes."

TARGET STOPPERS

Several techniques in warfare were developed, Gen. Weyland says.

"In the last war we used ground controllers for close support missions, but jets are fast. Often you can't sit up there and wait for someone to spot a target when you are in a jet, and they use lots of fuel down close to the ground.

"When we realized we would have to switch to jets to maintain air superiority, we devised a system of having a slower plane, the North American T-6, pick up the target, then call in the jets and direct them onto the strike.

"Also, the Korean war made it necessary to search from the air. Our T-6 Mosquito pilots soon learned the terrain in thelr sector and could read it like a book. They could tell whenever the enemy made any change in the topography and they knew what he was hiding.

"So they'd put a smoke rocket on the spot and call for the jets or the Mustang F-51s to come in and lay their eggs."

RADAR ADVANCES

Weyland said great advances were also made during the Korean war in the use of radar, which he could not go into too many details.

"In the last war," he said, "we had radar for guiding bombers and fighter-bombers, but nothing as good as we had in Korea. In fact, when the MIGs got so violent in June, 1951, we switched our B-29s from daylight to night raids, because we had radar for precision."

"Those big guys can sit up there now and bomb through the darkest muck you ever saw and knock out a factory, a railway or enemy strong points and troops just a few hundred yards from our own lines, with no risk to our own troops."

When Weyland speaks of improvements in air war technique, everyone listens. He is the most combat experience than any other general in the U.S. Air Force.

Hallnor Mines Strike Settled

TIMMINS (CP) — A strike of some 250 gold miners that lasted more than six months at Hallnor Mines Limited ended Tuesday when the miners accepted terms of a company offer.

Settlement terms were not disclosed, but they were believed similar to those accepted by workers at four other mines in the Porcupine area where strikes have been settled in recent weeks.

Forgotten $70 Grows To $700 in 84 Years

BRANTFORD (CP) — Seventy dollars deposited in a bank 84 years ago and forgotten has come to light again. But it's no longer $70. Interest has increased it to $700.

The bank book, which belonged to George Simpson, was put in the museum of the Norfolk Historical Society in 1951 by Dr. J. A. Bannister, of Port Dover, president. Later he noticed the deposit entry and began inquiries.

Heirs of Mr. Simpson, including Mrs. Dorothy Cauley of Burlington, will share the $700.

'New Frontiers' Stirring Message At St. Paul's Centennial Service

By MRS. PERCY MACMULLEN

The first of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, centennial services for 1954 were held Sunday morning, January 31st. The centennial committee were honored in having the Rev. George Dorey, who has been secretary for Board of Home Missions, for the past 17 years. He is due to retire at the end of 1954. Dr. Dorey is most gifted in his department. Just recently the subject matter of the General Council of the United Church of Canada conferred him to serve, temporarily, as acting secretary and succeed the late Dr. Gordon A. Sinclair who has been called to higher service.

"NEW FRONTIERS"

Dr. Dorey, who was introduced by the minister of St. Paul's, Rev. A. E. Baker, spoke on the subject "New Frontiers." His first broadcast prelude on this auspicious occasion of 100 years of service from the Board of Home Missions and then paid tribute to those pioneers of old days, brought relations to the front of the wilderness of Ontario.

These people built homes, schools, churches and promoted Christian fellowship. Now it is up to the people of St. Paul's to help colonize build new frontiers. Churches and individuals cannot rest on their laurels and live on their forefathers' good deeds. They must launch out and promote church expansion where ever it is needed.

Dr. Dorey emphasized the tremendous urban development in Canada, some of them like London, Ontario, that has expanded over 23 per cent in ten years. The national committee of church extension report a considerable amount of work carried on in such areas as Moncton, Truro, Sydney and Halifax.

TODAY'S TASK

Today's task is to face the future and to help the people in the new areas of Canada to build good Christian community, where the children are given up as good citizens.

The new industries using aluminum, copper, iron, oil and uranium are more important today than gold. A new railway of 350 miles was built at Seven Islands in Labrador, and people are flocking there to assist with these new enterprises.

Every often these uprooted people forget about their church and it takes quite a while before they get their roots down again. This is where the church must go in to the new frontiers and present her activities and interest the people.

Canada is comprised of 70 racial-ethnic speaking 100 languages and dialects. Over 20 per cent of the population look to the United Church for spiritual care and overnight. There are 3,061 pastoral charges comprising 4,332 congregations. Its ministry is carried on in 18 different languages and approximately 1,200 Home missionaries are working across Canada.

In some cases, whole new settlements have sprung up and this entailed a great deal of extra planning to enable the department to send in workers to minister to these settlements. Dr. Dorey cited a case in Manitoba where a whole town was uprooted and resulted to a new site 350 miles distant. Houses, buildings, stores, industries, were all torn up, moved to their new location, and then re-structured. True "Man Does not Live by Bread alone, he Needs Spiritual Food and Care."

PAID TRIBUTE.

Dr. Dorey paid tribute to the magnificent work being done at Seven Islands by Rev. Robert Shorten, who visits the settlement in a jeep. He graphically pictured the work across Canada and appealed to young men to enter the ministry and help in this great enterprise.

The city missions in Toronto, Hamilton, Sault Ste. Marie, Edmonton, Vancouver, and other points are a challenge in themselves. The need for material assistance has been tremendous, there is no curtailment of fight against liquor and its inroads. The door shall always be with us. The Church has a job to do that cannot be done by any other institution. The time has now come when members of the United Church who have plenty of this world's goods must practice stewardship and consider their money as a gift in trust from God. These ventures are only made possible by financial support; and workers and money are both greatly needed in order that the Christian ministry may be carried on successfully.

Rev. A. E. Baker presided over the service which opened with, "Unto the Hills Around".

The Royal Junior choir sang a missionary hymn and the senior choir rendered "Eternal Ruler of the Ceaseless Road." Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Brown of Carmel sang, "Waiting on Jesus."

The service closed with that old missionary challenge written by F. M. North, when he said "The gates swing wide to every land and Thy world is open everywhere for men to carry the Christian Message to all nations."

Memos Roar From Behind To Edge Peterborough Petes 6-5 In Overtime

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

RICK TO WIN!

The Memos probably won't win the Senior "B" title. They may not make the group playoffs, but they're going to be an awful thorn in the side for some of the tinsian aspirants before this wacky Senior "B" schedule calls it a day.

It seems the Smith-Doran crew waits until the boys reach the seats of the mighty, then with one fell swoop mows them down to normal level. That is what happened last night when the red-hot Petes, riding high on the crest of a four-game winning streak, had their hopes of increasing their top-slot lead nipped firmly in the bud.

And in the meantime the Oshawa Truckmen were giving the Orillia Pontiacs a 9-5 shellacking in Pontiville which puts the Truckies on an even keel with the Petes atop the group ladder.

But the Memos had to pick themselves up by the skatestraps to do it. Penalties had not only robbed them of their scoring effectiveness but had permitted the pesky Petes to rap home four goals while our side was short of manpower.

"Red" Doran, playing the best game of his season's career, sparked the club up from almost certain defeat to victory, aided and abetted by Vern Govier. "Red" got himself a new goals, one big million-dollar winner, and three assists. Govier 'lit the lamp thrice.

The victory gave the Memos 22 points, nine behind the Kingston Goodyears and Orillia Pontiacs. Now if they can knock off the Goodies tonight in Kingston, the skies will be brighter around the Moira River.

GOOD READING

If you want some good old-fashioned belly laughs, read Herman Hickman's story of the inside workings of pro wrestling in this week's Saturday Evening Post. "Hoiman," an all-American football star turned "villain" and his adventures in the big time will have you cracking with laughter. He was cast in the role of a "clean-cut college boy" and finally fought his way to a title match with Yern Londos. His description of that bout will tickle your ribs.

REUNION!

When Michael J. Rodden and Bobby Hewitson step, or are carried on the ice on February 19 to officiate at the Rotary-Kinsmen-sponsored "Oldtimers" hockey game, it will mark the first time the grey-thatched arbiters of the roarin' old days have chorused whistles, or chimes, since 1934.

It also will mark the 2854th game in which Michael J. has officiated. And he is still living. Mr. Rodden has emerged from this holocaust of boos, catcalls, backstage (verbal) and the whistling experiences that befall the men with the whistle and thumb, unbloody if slightly bowed.

Mr. Hewitson, sports editor of the Toronto Telegram, is another veteran of the National Hockey League coterie of ex-bodyguards and whistle-tooters.

The last time the pair of sports editors combined forces in an officiating role was on the occasion of the famous "Ace" Bailey testimonial game played in Maple Leaf Gardens on February 14, 1934. It attracted a crowd of 14,984, which, Michael observes, is slightly in excess of Memorial Arena capacity.

Many of hockey's immortals performed in that game, says M. J. R. And not a few of them will take part in the Oldtimers' game here on February 19.

The Toronto Maple Leafs played a league all-star squad in that game. The Leafs of "them thar days" included George Hainsworth, Clancy and Day, Primeau, Conacher and Jackson (they will be here), Red Horner, Alex Levinsky, Andy Blair, Ken Doraty, Hal Cotten, Bill Thoms, Buzz Boll, Charlie Sands, Hec Kilrea and coach Dick Irvin.

OMHA CLAMPS DOWN!

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association's two-year suspension of a juvenile player who is said to have struck a referee, proves that the association was not fooling when officials stated they would deal drastically with rough play or interference with or attacks on officials.

The sentence may be a stiff one, but in these days when players in all brackets of hockey are showing more than usual inclination to take matters in their own hands, officialdom must deal with the situations with a firm hand.

The OMHA has shown that it is not a respecter of persons, clubs or associations when it comes to the enforcement of its rules and regulations. It also has shown that it fully intends to call a halt to unnecessary rough play, and flaunting of its appointed officials.

The OMHA is to be commended on its move to protect its referees and guard its constitution. Had the above-mentioned player been allowed to "get away" with his unsportsmanlike act, others would have quickly followed suit. A two-year suspension is a stern warning that rules and regulations were made to be obeyed—not broken. Other players who develop a yen to "take a stick" to a referee will now think twice. For two years is a long time in the life of a young hockey player.

'Red' Doran Bangs in Winner After Score Is Tied in Third; Penalties Nearly Cost Game

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Again adopting their role of "giant-killers," the Belleville Memos clipped the Peterborough Petes' win streak at five games here last night, edging the group-leaders 6-5 in a thrilling Senior "B" overtime battle.

And they did it the hard way. Down 5-3 going into the third period after trailing 3-1 in the first, the dungeon-dwellers flashed desperation hockey to even the count by full time and go on to win in the extra session.

Playing coach Lloyd "Red" Doran sparked the Memos to their victory with a brilliant effort. He scored two goals, one of them the winner, and aided in three others. Big Vern Govier played one of his best games on Belleville ice, accounting for three of his team's markers. Ted DeGray got the other.

SLOW IN FIRST

Crowley paced the Petes attack with a pair of goals with Cullins, Fryia, Roger Leonard and Bill Prentice coming up with the rest. Both Donlevy and Sarrault, respective goalies, turned in brilliant exhibitions kicking out rubber and turning back speeding drives all night.

The game was lackadaisical in the first period when the Petes outscored the Memos 2-1 but the picture changed completely in the torrid second heat when play ripped wide open and it looked like an old-fashioned Belleville-Peterborough semi-brawl.

Seven penalties were handed out in this heat by Referees "Moon" Flanagan and Joe Heffering. Three of them majors. Keith MacDonald and Eddie Bentley fined tossed punches at each other and drew five-minute sentences and later MacDonald and Crowley had their gloves with the Petes player drawing a "fiver." Joel Semark got a pair of minors and the Petes were quick to capitalize on the Memos' errors.

They scored two of their five goals while the Memos were short a player while the homesters accounted for one while the Petes were shorthanded.

The second period produced the best hockey of the night with the Memos outscoring the Petes 2-0 to even count with less than 5 minutes to go. The pace was fast and furious with both goalies having narrow escapes.

The fast tempo was maintained in the overtime session with the Memos having a territorial edge. Three minutes and 21 seconds remained when "Red" Doran, Duke Doran and Peter Jones swept down the ice. Duke zipped into the corner and flung out a pass to his namesake who drove it waist-high past Donlevy for the winner.

Coach Redmond yanked his goalie with twenty seconds to go but the Memos held the fort-and time ran out for the Petes.

"RED" DORAN
. . . Paced The Pack

The Petes had only eleven men in uniform being minus the services of Montgomery and Armstrong. Redmond and Munro carried the brunt of the defence duties.

Play was anything but exciting in first period until Jack Wade's pass bounced off "Red" Doran's stick behind Donlevy to open the scoring after six minutes of play. Chum Fryia grabbed that one back in 26 seconds climaxing a neat three-way drive with Greenlaw and Leonard. Semark got the gate and Prentice slipping down the right boards drove a low shot from a difficult angle to put the Petes one up.

WIDE OPEN

The game broke wide open in the second period after DeGray evened the count, taking Red Doran's pass-out to Donlevy after a prolonged pressure by the Memos. Redmond and MacDonald started to throw punches and were given majors. Greenlaw got the gate 30 seconds before the majors expired and Vern Govier drove a thirty-foot shot from the left boards to give the Memos a 3-2 lead.

Fryia raced in on a breakaway with not a Memo within ten feet but Sarrault outgeussed the fleet Petes' forward. The Memos drove back and swarmed all over Donlevy but the Petes goalie threw back everything they hurled at him.

VERN GOTER
. . .Hit for Three

Collins and MacDonald started to mix gracefully in the Petes' player drawing a major and the Memos a minor. Semark got the gate and the Petes had a 5-4 manpower advantage.

The Petes struck quickly. Crowley slapped home Leonard's pass after a lengthy defensive play on the part of the Memos and the same player repeated 44 seconds later. Semark got the gate again, then Leonard dashed after a breakaway puck to give the Petes a 5-3 lead.

Sarrault drew a penalty early in the third period, with Duke Doran sittin g it out. Bellals got the gate seconds later and the desperate Memos drove in on Donlevy with no damage done. Fryia broke away again and again Sarrault foiled him. Seconds later he hit the post with an open net in front of him.

Govier scored from 30-foot-er from the left boards that beat Donlevy with seven minutes to go. Then Leonard was given a penalty for delaying the game because the referee failed to decide on which stick to use. A minute later Vern Govier got his hat trick from a Memos' power play to tie the count.

Both teams went all out for the winner but both goalies came up with big efforts. Donlevy picked off Duke Doran's labelled drive from close-in with 10 seconds to play.

Rocky to Decide Between Charles And Bucceroni

NEW YORK (AP)—Officials of the International Boxing Club huddled with Rocky Marciano's manager Tuesday to decide whether the heavyweight champion will make a title defence in March against Dan Bucceroni or wait until June for Ezzard Charles.

The Marciano-Bucceroni match for Madison Square Garden on either March 19 or 26 has been in the works for some time but the hitch is the health of Al Weill, Marciano's manager.

Weill underwent a delicate operation several weeks ago and has been taking it easy since. Rocky, meanwhile, has been doing light workouts at Grossinger, N.Y.

Truman Gibson and Harry Markson of the IBC visited Weill to see whether he felt well enough to start conditioning the champion.

The decision on March fight must be made in the next day or so. The IBC needs time to arrange the many details of a national telecast and broadcast.

Lyndies Trim 'Sprinters' 10-0

NEUCHATEL, Switzerland (Reuters) — Toronto Lyndhurts, Canada's entry in the forthcoming world hockey championships at Stockholm, Tuesday night blanked the Young Sprinters Club of Neuchatel 10-0.

The Lyndhurts scored four goals in the first period, three in the second and three in the third.

The Canadian team overwhelmed their opponents almost from the moment they took to the 'ice. Observers were particularly impressed with the Canadians' teamwork, their passing ability and accuracy of their shots on goal.

Of 15 attempts to score, 10 were successful.

Norman Gray, 23-year-old centre, scored five goals—four goals—once in the first period, twice in the second and once in the third.

Earl Clements and Don Couch each scored twice with Russ Robertson and Moe Galand getting the other two.

Looks Like The Pack Is 'Ganging Up' In Effort to Stop Those Brooklyns

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—The significant thing about the 11 player deal between Milwaukee Braves and New York Giants is that two contending National League clubs were smart enough to get together and try to do something about stopping the Brooklyn Dodgers.

It is worth a bet that, as a result of the player swap, the Dodgers will not run off with the margin of 13½ games they had last season. Probably they will win their third straight flag, but have a strong feeling that the gap has been narrowed by this and a couple of other deals among their rivals during the winter.

Charlie Grimm's runner-up Milwaukee team has been immeasurably bolstered by the addition of a distance hitter like Bobby Thomson to its outfield. The flying Scot can be counted on to knock in better than 100 runs. Add him to Danny O'Connell, the great young infielder obtained earlier, from Pittsburgh, and there appears a chance that the Braves may be in the fight to the final day.

For their part, the Giants gave up nothing they really needed, and acquired in Johnny Antonelli and Don Liddle a brace of young southpaw pitchers who should make them much more difficult to handle than they were last year, when Willie Mays, With Thomson to give them the spirit and drive they have lacked since he helped them win the '51 pennant, plus stronger pitching, the Giants should again be in that part in holding the Brooks at bay.

Johnny Bower Took 8 Years To Get National League Berth; 'No Intention of Going Back'

By JIM MAHFABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

John William Bower had eight years of education in the city schools before graduating to the Sudbury Wolves. But he considers the National Hockey League he has just left "my kind of graduate school."

"It took me a long time to get up here," Bower says. "I hope to be around for quite a spell."

Bower, a goalkeeper, is one of the oldest men in New York Rangers' plans to take a playoff berth this year. They expected big things of Bower when they called him up from Cleveland Barons of the American League. And they're getting them.

At 29 Bower is the oldest rookie in the league. He has been standing up like a seasoned pro against the best in the business.

HAS DONE WONDERS

"He has done wonders for us," says coach Muzz Patrick. "He is one of the best I've seen in a long time."

In 40 games so far this season Bower, playing behind the fundamentals of the game in his native Prince Albert, Sask., has allowed just 137 goals for an average of 3.79 a game.

Bower will be in the nets again Thursday night when the first-place New Yorkers meet the last-place Chicago Black Hawks in Chicago. In two other games, Montreal Toronto Maple Leafs clash with second-place Canadiens in Montreal and fourth-place Boston Bruins meet the league-leading Red Wings in Detroit. No games are scheduled for tonight.

GET OLD-TIMERS

"But now we've got a few, old-timers like Allan and Doug Resiley in the line-up and ice whole team is going well," says Patrick.

"Bower is even better than he was at the first of the season."

Ranger manager Frank Boucher, who had to make the decision to let Gump Worsley go to Montreal last season, go so that Bower would have a satisfactory job didn't make a mistake.

"He's another big, hurt wonderful," Boucher says. "With all that minor-league experience behind him, Bower is the serious, dignity rookie. He's cool and poised.

"Bower doesn't leave his feet very often. He's the quickest one to get to his feet after he's been down Old I've ever seen."

Who does Bower have the most trouble with these days?

"They're all tough," he says. "But Gordon Howe (of the Red Wings) is the toughest. He has a wicked close-in shot."

Sport in Brief

LONDON (AP)—A jury failed Tuesday to reach a verdict in the trial of five men accused of plotting the biggest swindle since the 1846 Derby in British racing—the "case of the 3 o'clock race at Bath" last July 18.

The defendants in the case, the betting ring that failed, were granted bail and ordered to stand retrial.

During the 16-day trial, the prosecution described the case involving the horse Francasal and a bookmaker named Jack Jones this way:

"A cunning, clever and well organized conspiracy which savors of some of the more classic stories of crime and the turf."

The Francasal, or Santa Amaro, story began when a horse entered at Bath as Francasal won and paid at odds of 10 to 1. The prosecution charged the winner was not Francasal but a ringer, Santa Amaro, which looked almost like Francasal to be a twin.

Both horses were shipped from France shortly before the race. Both were two-year-olds, both dark bay and the height. There was one big difference. Francasal's previous record indicated that running was the thing he liked least to do. Santa Amaro, on the other hand, was a pretty fair race horse.

Shortly before the race, someone cut the telephone cable which linked the Bath racecourse "with bookies' offices all over England. Then, the prosecution said, bookies were flooded with heavy bets on Francasal.

At the trial, the defendants said they tried to pull off a legitimate betting coup. Francasal's owner claimed that if the horses were switched it was accidental.

The prosecution alleged that the men stood to win $158,000.

TORONTO (CP)—Coach King Clancy Tuesday shook up two forward lines of his Toronto Maple Leafs in search of more scoring punch for Thursday night's National Hockey League game with Montreal Canadiens.

Rudy Migay, who has been centre for Leaf captain Eric Nesterenko and Gordie Hannigan, was shifted to centre ice to join with Teeder Kennedy and Ron Stewart.

Sid Smith, who has been left wing on the Kennedy line for five years, will play with Lorne Ferguson and Hannigan or utility man Bob Bailey.

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Russia has entered 81 athletes in the men and eight women—in the world ski championships starting at Falun, Sweden, Feb. 12.

The Soviet embassy informed the Swedish Ski Association that the athletes will be accompanied by 24 officials.

Finland has entered 44 skiers, Sweden 36, Norway 27 and Italy 25. Skiers from 24 countries are entered.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League announced the purchase of Charles (Bud) Poile, forward and defenceman, from Syracuse Warriors.

The 27-year-old Toronto resident in addition to his American League play with Syracuse, also has played this season with Springfield Indians of the Quebec League.

Purchase price was not disclosed.

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Nine countries were entered in the world hockey championships Tuesday—closing date for entries.

They are: Russia, Canada, Norway, Switzerland, Germany, Czechoslovakia, Finland, Yugoslavia and Sweden.

Italy, which earlier had signified it would compete, did not enter while Austria withdrew.

Will Include Goalie in Help For Lyndhurst

MIDLAND (CP)—George Dudley secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Tuesday that a goal-keeper may be included if Canada sends hockey players to reinforce Toronto Lyndhurst in Europe.

Spokesman of Canada's representatives to the world hockey tournament in Sweden Feb. 27, are currently touring European countries and playing exhibition games.

"We may send two or three players, as well as a goalie," Dudley said. Gerry Lindsay is the present netminder for Lyndhurst. Lawrence Kearns, who also acts as the team's trainer, is the alternate goaltender.

Dudley said Lyndhurst coach Greg Currie will telephone him this week-end at the conclusion of the present four-game series in Switzerland.

Talk of strengthening the team began after Lyndhurst's netminder Jim Pavelich left Paris in their first exhibition contest.

Lloyd Percival Considered As Head Coach

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fred Rowell, national track and field chairman of the Canadian Athletic Union of Canada, said Tuesday Lloyd Percival of Toronto will be considered head coach of Canada's British Empire Games team at Vancouver. He has failed only as track coach.

Rowell said Percival was asked by the union's national committee to be track coach at the games here this fall but that Frank Rickard of Calgary was named field boss.

In Toronto, Percival said that he still has received an official invitation to be the coach.

"I haven't heard a word from them," he said.

Rowell said the games association rules called for a track coach and a field coach.

"Now he's just got to put up or shut up."

Percival said:

"I am greatly embarrassed by the whole controversy. I am further embarrassed by Rowell's statement. The only thing I know about the coaching appointments is what I have read in the papers.

"I have accepted a job with the CBC assisting in coverage of the Canadian Games for them. However, they will release me from my commitments if I am offered the head coaching job. No one from the Empire Games Association has ever approached me to ask whether I'd be available."

Mercurys Rampage Gap on Kitchener; Falls Beats Dogs in Brawlish Battle

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Officials handed out 76 minutes in penalties in two Ontario Hockey Association Senior A games Tuesday night. Seventy-two minutes came in one game.

Owen Sound Mercurys, who climbed to within two points of the league-leading Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen by defeating Hamilton Tigers 11 in Owen Sound, couldn't be fatigued with a penalty. The Tigers were given two minors.

But in Niagara Falls, where the last-place Cataracts defeated Windsor Bulldogs 6-4, referees had a hard night. They assessed the game a total of 72 minutes, comprised of three 10-minute misconducts, two five-minute majors and 16 minors. Cataracts had a slight edge in penalties, taking 37 minutes.

The victory for Owen Sound was their sixth of 30 home games this season. Each team scored once in the second period following a scoreless first frame. Mercurys scored three times in the final period.

Their goals were shared by Herb Carnegie, Harry Kazarian, Buck Pringle and Gerry Patterson. Sim Hammond scored for Hamilton.

The Cataracts struck three times in the last three minutes of the game to take the Bulldogs.

Trailing 5-4 with two minutes and seven seconds remaining in the game the Cataracts knotted the count on Jerry Horton's goal. Sandy Air won it 39 seconds later and Bill Young clinched it six seconds before the end of the game. Ron Castellano with two goals and an assist, led the Niagara Falls scorers. Dan Nixon matched their other marker.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior league, southern group, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Indians shut out Pembroke Lumber Kings 4-0 in Sault Ste. Marie. It was the first shutout of the season for netminder Jim Shirley.

Don Greene, Henry Backer, John Raynack and Laurie May scored for the Indians who tallied twice in the first period and once in each of the second and third stanzas.

Hornets Sting Cleveland 5-4; Warriors Lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The American Hockey League leadership race remained unchanged after two games Tuesday night. Buffalo Bisons gained eight points ahead of their nearest rivals, Cleveland Barons.

The Bisons were not in action but their lead was due to a result of a 5-4 defeat handed Cleveland by Pittsburgh Hornets. The Hornets climbed into fourth place.

In the other game of the night, Hershey Bears edged Syracuse Warriors 6-5 to strengthen their hold on third position.

The Cleveland game was featured by a second-period brawl that landed five players from each team in the penalty box and forced both sides to play 10 minutes short two men.

Ray Timgren, Andy Barbe, Willie Marshall, Tommy Lewicki and Earl Balfour accounted for the winners' goals.

In Kitchener the Greenshirts jumped on the Marquis for a 5-1 lead in the first period and added their final three goals in the third when Jonquiere tallied once.

Big Scores Feature Junior A Games; Teeps Trim Frontenacs to Regain Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If the three winning teams in Ontario's junior hockey action had been any more convincing Tuesday night, there probably would have been a few goaltenders looking for other jobs today.

In each of the games the winners had margins of at least six goals. Galt Black Hawks trounced Guelph Biltmores 8-1 in Guelph in the only league game in the Ontario Hockey Association.

The other two contests, involving both Quebec Amateur Hockey Association and OHA teams, were hurt as lop-sided.

Kitchener - Waterloo Greenshirts took an 8-2 home-ice victory from Jonquiere Marquis and St. Catharines TeePees defeated Quebec Frontenacs 10-4 in St. Catharines. St. Catharines took over first place in the OHA standings.

In Kitchener the Greenshirts jumped on the Marquis for a 5-1 lead in the first period and added their final three goals in the third when Jonquiere tallied once.

Bobby Haas scored four goals and assisted once in the Kitchener victory. Graham Joyes notched two and Glen Crossman and Doug Vaughan netted singles.

Signing of the 26-year-old Negro back, who graduated to Canadian football from St. Augustine's College at Raleigh, N.C., dispelled reports that he might line up with a U.S. National Football League club. New York Giants were reported interested in him.

Miles has been voted Eskimos' most valuable player in fan polls for the last three years.

Dewey Names Racing 'Czar'

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey Tuesday signed legislation establishing administration's harness racing "czar" bill and formally appointed George Monaghan to run the scandal-packed sulky sport in New York state.

The former New York City police commissioner was sworn in as "czar" a few minutes after the Senate confirmed his nomination.

Democrats contended the bill was a window-dressing arranged by Dewey to grab the headlines in order to convince the public he was taking new, vigorous action in his drive to purge the sport.

Belle Theatre Spending $20,000 For New Cinemascope Installation

Cinemascope, billed as the mod-ern screen miracle that one sees without special glasses, is coming to Belleville, George J. Forhan, manager of the Belle Theatre, an-nounced this morning. The Belle is installing the innovation at a cost of over $20,000.

The present screen, 17 feet three inches wide, has been taken out. The new wide screen, 33 feet across, will be ready for the show-ing of the cinemascope picture "Le Robe" this Friday. That will be the first time the new en-tertainment medium is presented in the city. The height of both screens is the same, 13 feet, six inches.

Along with the extra breadth, over twice as wide, the new screen is curved to the extent of 18 in-ches in the centre. In addition, stereophonic sound will be used. That is, additional speakers will be installed throughout the thea-tre, so that the sound moves across the screen with the action.

ILLUSION OF DEPTH.

The result is an illusion of depth and naturalness, and a feeling of real audience participation it is stated.

Cinemascope is not simply an enlargement of the standard pic-ture; it actually portrays a wider range. This is accomplished by a new type of lens which takes a wide angle image and compresses it onto a standard 35mm film. In order for the standard film to be accommodate the added width, the picture is distorted on the film. Then a compensating lens attached to the projector expands the pic-ture to its real proportions when it is shown on the screen.

The new screen is made of a special fabric, containing millions of tiny pearls reflecting greater light. All the cinemascope pic-tures, which of course are sponc-ially made, are in Technicolor, but the new screen is quite suit-able for ordinary black and white pictures, or for 3-D pictures.

TO SHOW REGULAR FILMS.

The Belle Theatre does not plan to show cinemascope pictures from now on, Mr. Forhan said. Regular sized movies will also be shown. In fact the newest at every performance will be in ste-reophonic sound, while the or-dinary width.

Why only other than cinema-scope, only the centre part of the wide screen will be used.

Manager Forhan, who saw sev-eral samples of the new medium in Toronto, including "The Robe" "How To Marry A Millionaire" and some Coronation features commented "You've got to see it to believe it."

Installation of the new medium by the Famous Players Canadian Corporation Limited, is an indica-tion of this city's vigorous expan-sion. This is one of the early cities in the province to have a cinc-mascope theatre.

NO GIMMICKS.

"There are no gimmicks to this", Mr. Forhan said. "It simply gives a more natural and realistic ef-fect."

One of the chief advantages of Cinemascope is that it utilizes the same cameras and projectors now owned in all studios and thea-tres.

It requires only one camera for filming and one machine for pro-jection on the second screen. A standard 35 millimeter camera is used and no extra manpower is required in the projection booth. The filming of Cinemascope does not cost any more than ordinary pictures, it was revealed, although the special lens does not have to be attached to the regulation cam-eras and one or two extra micro-phones can be used to pick up the moving sound.

Cinemascope can be projected on to a screen as wide as 65 feet and as high as 21 feet. Screens of lesser dimensions can be made to fit the requirements of any thea-tre.

The same film is projected in each of the theatres no matter what the size of the screen. The discrepancies are allowed for in the nature of the compensating lens which can be tailored for the individual theatre.

At its maximum, cinemascope can make a 33 millimeter camera and a 35 millimetre projector with which studios and theatres are equipped, do the work of machines three times as big.

Crawfords Trim Flyers 57-40 In Hoop Thriller

By ED. MacDONALD.

A fourth-quarter surge last night enabled the Belleville Craw-fords to top the Trenton RCAF Ghosts 57-40 in a scheduled Quinte Basketball League test. The Trenta were very much in the game until the dying minutes when they wilted and the Craw-fords began sinking baskets almost at will.

The airmen grabbed off an early lead in a hectic first quarter, and paced by Ed O'Hara and Woody Woods, they led 19-12 at the first break. In opening the Crawford thunder by alert under the basket work, the boys in blue were able to gain frequent possession and had it not been for some tenacious checking on the part of the locals, the Trenta might well have opened up a larger lead.

During the second quarter the Belleville crew began to find themselves and with Roy Soule and Johnny Batchelor leading the way managed to forge into the lead and emerged on top of a 29-23 count at the half. Still very much in the game, the fly boys charged back in the third quarter and knotted the count. They then zipped from one end to the other and the lead changed hands almost with every basket. It was a lively and hard played session, with George Garrow of the Crawfords and Andrews of Trenton getting caught up in the spirit of the thing to such an extent that each got the official heave-ho.

However, the Air Force types couldn't keep up the fast pace and they began to fade in the fourth quarter, enabling the Crawfords to pile up their decisive margin.

Johnny Batchelor, the Craw-fords leading point maker, en-larged his total with 24 markers, while Doug Soule came up with 16. Chub Mulligan led the losers and George Garrow also showed well for the locals. For the RCAF crew, Ed O'Hara, Rod Chambers,

Second Shoot Thins Ranks Of Starlings

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton had its second starling shoot Tuesday night. Officials said it was as successful as the one a week ago in which several thousand of the birds were killed.

Again men with shotguns waited until the birds went to roost in downtown air conditioning ducts and shot them out of the trees.

Controller Sam Segge, chairman of the city's starling committee, said the men did an excellent job.

"We intend to keep after the starlings until we have eliminated the pests" he said. "More shoots will be held in the future. We may hold them twice a week, depend-ing on the weather."

MODERN MIRACLE YOU SEE WITHOUT GLASSES

To the People of Belleville;

After ten long years of searching, planning and preparation the answer to liberate the screen to the width and depth of humanity's vision has at last been realized with the New Anamorphic Lens and the Curved Walker Mirror Screen, both of which have been installed by the Belle Theatre after much expense.

Truly in my years in the Motion Picture Business I have never be-fore seen such panoramic scenes of flesh and blood reality and infinite depth combined with pulsing color and stereophonic sound. I am sure that you too will share my enthusiasm when you see this New Dimen-sional photographic marvel of the age seen without the aid of glasses.

I urge everyone who can, to see and hear this moving picture phen-omenon starting Friday, February 5th.

Brief Suggests Tighter Laws On Annexation

TORONTO (CP)—A brief suggesting tighter regulations governing annexation of territory was presented to the Ontario government Tuesday by representatives of several Ontario municipalities.

The brief said that it was obvious many applications for annexation were prompted by the fact that the intention of obtaining a "large block of developed industrial and commercial assessment."

The delegation, including six members of the legislature and representatives of nine townships, near, deputy - reeve of Saltfleet township.

One of the main causes of annexation problems, Mrs. Kinnear said, is that existing legislation permits the initiation of an annexation application by any municipality too easily and too cheaply.

It was suggested that the committee said, that any urban centre would apply for annexation if it appeared that municipalities had no major industrial or commercial assessment.

The annexation trend, the brief said, is partly the result of large urban centres at the expense of the suburban municipalities. Much urban development resulted in a tendency for persons to live on small lots in apartments, duplexes or other types of multiple housing.

KEEP INDUSTRIES

However, development of suburban township land for single lots with more single-family owned houses would avoid many of the problems also was of life if municipalities were allowed to keep some supporting industrial and commercial assessment.

Instead of annexing municipalities, mature cities should be developed by internal improvements. Many cities sought annexation instead of working on slum clearance and redevelopment with modern functional dwellings or factories.

Other members of the delegation were: Arthur Child, Progressive Conservative member for Wentworth; Arthur Jolly, Progressive Conservative, Niagara Falls; Harry Allen, Progressive Conservative, Middlesex South; T. L. Patrick, Middlesex North; Stanley Hall, Progressive Conservative, Hamton Hollis Reordan, Progressive Conservative, York East; George Gordon, Liberal, Brantford; Reeve Harold Bone, Scarboro; Reeve Herb McClure, and George Mitchell, all of London township; George Mocenachie, Trafalgar township; Reeve Harold Turver and Elwyn Riggar, Brantford township.

Expel Liberal For Calling Duplessis Coward

QUEBEC (CP)—A Liberal opposition member Tuesday night was expelled from the legislative assembly for 15 days after he called Premier Duplessis a "coward."

Emilien Lafrance, 43-year - old member, repeated the word, spelled twice during the 1953-53 session, flung the word from his desk as Liberals pressed the government for information about "rumors of a scandal" in the construction of the 1,300,000 horsepower hydro-electric project on the Bersimis river.

Georges Lapalme, Liberal leader and Georges Bellavance (L—Westmount St. George's Conservative) called formally proposed in a motion by Mr. Duplessis and asked that it be withdrawn. Mr. Duplessis called for a vote and his motion was adopted 47 to 18.

It is generally believed the 15-day expulsion is unprecedented in Quebec's parliamentary history.

Last year Mr. Lafrance was expelled for one sitting during a debate on the Quebec Election Act. Later he was expelled for three days for accusing the Union Nationale government of tolerating liquor law violations.

The incident Tuesday occurred while the house was at in committee discussing estimates of the department of hydraulic resources.

Mr. Lapalme said all sorts of reports were circulating among the public about the project which involves expenditure of $225,000,000.

Seeking 22 Millions From Former Partner

NEW YORK (AP) — James Rutkin, who is trying to get $22,500,000 from a former bootlegging partner, began retelling in federal court Tuesday his story of the alleged conspiracy.

Rutkin is suing Joseph H. Reinfeld, claiming Reinfeld cheated him of the huge sum as Rutkin's share in the sale of a distillery.

Rutkin claims in his suit that Reinfeld connected with Samuel and Allen Bronfman of Montreal to cheat him of his share in the sale of the L. L. and B. Distillery in Chatham, Ont.

Reinfeld denies there was any such conspiracy.

Two Reporters Are Ousted From Guatemala

GUATEMALA (AP) — Guatemala's leftist government — has expelled three foreign newsmen.

Correspondent Sydney Gruson and the National Broadcasting Company's commentator Edward P. Beattie.

Gruson, who began his newspaper career in Toronto with The Canadian Press was charged with "defaming" the Guatemalan government and ousted as an "undesirable." Beattie said he was unable to find out the reason for his expulsion.

Guatemala charged last week that the neighboring Central American governments, "with the connivance" of the United States, were plotting to overthrow and destroy the regime.

The accusation was labelled "false and ridiculous" by the state department in Washington and reporters Gruson and Beattie left Guatemala City by plane Tuesday afternoon.

Portugal Will Build Naval Vessels for Sale

LISBON (Reuters) — Portugal's growing ship-building industry this year, for the first time in history, will begin building naval vessels for a foreign power, the United States.

Under the terms of an "off shore" procurement system contract, Portuguese shipyards will build three coastal escort vessels and two anti-magnetic mine-sweepers in wood. The total cost will be 250,000 contos (about $8,750,000).

On the same day the contract was signed, the keel was laid for the biggest ship ever built in Portugal, the 16,500-ton tanker Ezul, being built at a cost of $3,500,000 for a Portuguese company.

Portugal's merchant marine at the end of 1953 consisted of 211 ships, totaling 373,000 tons, compared with a tonnage of 350,389 tons in 1945 and 365,320 tons in 1938.

House Prices Still Controlled By Corporation

OTTAWA (CP)—Though Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation will step out of joint lending, it still will have power to control the selling price of houses under the government's new housing legislation.

D. B. Mansur, CMHC president, told the Commons banking and commerce committee Tuesday the government housing agency will be able to control selling prices under its authority to set lending values and mortgage levels.

The corporation will have the right, in the case of homes erected by commercial builders, "to stipulate that a maximum loan under the act is only available if the builder sells the house at a price not exceeding the maximum selling price established by the corporation, which generally is the lending value."

"The builder is not compelled to meet the established maximum selling price," said Mr. Mansur, "but if this price is exceeded, including a reasonable margin of profit, then the loan is reduced by an amount to be stipulated in the regulations—generally 90 per cent."

LOANS INCREASED

The government's proposed new housing legislation, not yet been announced, but it is understood it will be about $1,500, up from the present $1,000 maximum. Act itself maximum of $10,000.

Mr. Mansur was the committee's first witness as it opened detailed study of the new legislation adopted in principle by the Commons after sharp opposition criticism.

After completing study it will have to get third reading in the Commons and passage in the Senate before it becomes law.

The new legislation will open the mortgage-lending field to chartered banks, reduce down payments and increase loan-period on NHA homes.

Under a mortgage - insurance scheme to be administered by CMHC, the corporation will eventually withdraw from joint operations with lending institutions to provide NHA mortgages, theoretically leaving the field to private enterprise.

KEEPS INFLUENCE

But the government's agency will keep a great deal of influence on the housing industry. It will continue development of economic and governmental projects and keep its hand in the commercial field through authority to buy and sell insured mortgages. Power to make loans to lending institutions if they put the insured mortgages as security.

A total of $25,000,000 will be made available to the corporation for these latter activities, Mr. Mansur said in a 31-page statement outlining the scope of the new legislation's features. In all, CMHC will be allowed to insure a total of $2,000,000,000 worth of mortgages.

Works Committee Seen Approving Seaway Project

By JAMES C. MUNN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate passed St. Lawrence seaway legislation gets its first test in the United States House of Representatives today, with backers freely predicting victory.

The public works committee called a session to vote on the bill that would permit the U.S. to join with Canada in building the 27-foot-deep waterway from the Atlantic to the Great Lakes.

Pro-seaway members of the 39-man group, casting aside previous cautious claims of success, said flatly that committee approval of the bill would be by an overwhelming margin.

Representative Thaddeus Machrowicz (Dem., Mich.) predicted the vote would be "about 23 to 6."

Approval of the bill at today's closed meeting would send the measure to the rules committee that determines which legislation is sent to the House floor for final action.

Several members of the rules committee have, in the past, been opposed to the seaway proposal.

But in view of President Eisenhower's strong advocacy of the seaway and the action of the several former anti-seaway senators in switching their position, the bill may find easier going before the House group.

Traditional opponents of the seaway, meantime, continued to fire away at the project. Thomas Kennedy, vice-president of the United Mine Workers Union, said the proseaway forces are "using the old shell game" in an effort "to pawn off their boondoggle on the American taxpayer."

Kennedy, in a letter to all members of the House, declared:

"Despite all the alleged benefits the boondogglers are claiming for the seaway we know it will greatly damage the coal industry of the United States, hurt the railroads of the country, (and) give marked advantages to foreign shipping.

"The seaway will seriously and adversely affect many communities, add to unemployment and open the flood gates to a vast volume of cheap foreign manufactured goods from Europe, produced by a labor market where wages cannot begin to compare with ours."

Prime Minister Defends Policy To Increase Pay

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent, in a speech preceding his formal departure on a world tour, Tuesday night defended the government's proposal to increase the pay of members of Parliament.

Many members now have to go into debt despite reducing their living standards substantially, Mr. St. Laurent said in an address prepared for delivery over the CBC's political free time series.

"I cannot believe," he said, "that the people of a country as great and as rich as Canada . . . really want a condition to continue which makes it difficult for any but those who are fairly well off to serve in the national Parliament without being obliged to make substantial financial sacrifices as a matter of course in real hardship."

Of increases proposed by members and Cabinet ministers—Commons officers, Mr. St. Laurent said these still have their salaries recently compared with those of most Canadians with senior executive positions or in the higher levels of the professions.

Language Study Help to Music

KITCHENER (CP) — Language study early in school life would help children develop musically, Dr. Edward Johnson, former manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, said Monday.

Addressing a service club, he said music teaching in the schools should be based on language study. He said usually young singers find it difficult never to become fluent in the languages they need and this is a severe handicap in their later training years.

Dr. Johnson said he feels the time is ripe for developing the present school generation into future Canadian artists and audiences.

He suggested that Kitchener-Waterloo service clubs develop a program similar to the Edinburgh Festival but on a smaller scale. He said he thinks Kitchener and Waterloo have all they need to develop into a music centre for western Ontario.

Says GM Expansion Will Not Raise Output

DETROIT (AP)—CIO President Walter P. Reuther said Tues., that General Motors' recently announced billion-dollar expansion program would not add to the auto industry's over-all output.

"What GM is going to do is steal the market from other companies," he asserted at a press conference.

Reuther, who also heads the CIO United Auto Workers Union, noted that the industry has produced as many as 8,000,000 vehicles in a single year in the past. But in 1954, he said, industry leaders themselves forecast a total production of between 4,000,00 and 5,000,000.

"I'm happy to see General Motors expanding," he said. "But we're going to be in serious trouble if we don't do something to expand purchasing power and provide for wider distribution."

Plans Increase In Brazil Power

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—President Getulio Vargas announced Monday night in a radio speech that he is planning to create a nationalized Brazilian Power Corporation called Electrobras to provide increased power installations in Brazil.

He emphasized that his plan does not contemplate the nationalization of companies owned by foreign capital or the appropriation of present enterprises.

The plan presumably will be drafted and presented to congress in the form of a bill.

Most private power companies in Brazil are subsidiaries controlled by the Brazilian Traction Company, a holding company with headquarters in Toronto, and the American Foreign Power Company, with head offices in New York.

The roof of a Navy bus in the garage was crushed and several passenger cars badly damaged.

Navy officials said cause of the collapse was not known. An official inquiry will be held.

Policeman Dies As Sydney Crowds Welcome Queen

60,000 Pack Route as Queen Drives to Open Parliament

SYDNEY, Australia (CP) — A police inspector died on duty and many others fainted today as Queen Elizabeth rode through Sydney at the height of a summer heat wave.

Some 80,000 tightly-packed spectators saw the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh drive from the government House for the opening of the New South Wales state Parliament.

Police reinforcements were called out later when a crowd of 70,000 broke through barriers to see the Queen arrive for a women's luncheon.

Police on motorcycles flanked their sedans at the edge of the crowd to clear the road for the royal car. Women were forced to their knees in the crush and many fainted.

Police said they had never seen such crowds packed into one area before. A police inspector climbed and died on MacQuarrie street while trying to control the mobs.

The famous "Sydney sheer" that has flooded over the whole city as the royal couple drove from Government House. The sweltering and balking cool that despite the temperature, waved back.

MAGNIFICENT FROCK

Brilliant sunshine emphasized her magnificent frock. The dress flashed with the bright blue sash of the Order of the Garter.

The opening of parliament was a ceremony rich in pomp, pageantry and color.

It was the first time a reigning monarch had opened an Australian parliament and the Queen said in brief personal speech that it was "exciting" for the first royal opening should be in the "mother of Australian nations."

"I am very pleased that I am able to speak to you in person on the occasion of opening the third session of the 34th Parliament of the state of New South Wales," she said.

"My long cherished hopes of visiting with my husband my people of Australia are now realized. The welcome accorded to us was so cordial and so spontaneous that you shall always remember it.

"I desire to express my appreciation to you, and through you all to their representatives to all my people of this great state."

"I look forward with pleasure to the rest of my stay in Australia.

ADVANCING COUNTRY

"Nowhere else has parliamentary democracy demonstrated more effectively its soundness and its adaptability to the changing times and needs than in this country and in this state.

"My ministers are giving close attention to matters affecting progress in the development and prosperity of my people in New South Wales and their early submission of legislative proposals for your consideration.

"I now leave you to discharge such important business under divine guidance as may further advance the welfare of all."

SEPARATE ENGAGEMENTS

After the parliamentary opening the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh began separate engagements for the first time on the Australian portion of their six-month Commonwealth tour. The Queen met 870 Sydney women at a luncheon of representatives of women's organizations. The duke spent more than an hour at Sydney University.

The opening of Parliament, however, was the highlight of the royal engagements of the busy second day of Australia's holiday with a state banquet tonight.

Six centimetres of the crowd that seems women tried to climb lamp posts outside the parliament building to see the royal couple. Police lined part of the street 20 deep and reinforcements had to be called.

Arctic air is the west of Hudson Bay will invade James Bay region today and central Prairies Friday.

95,000 Killed In U.S. Mishaps During 1953

Killed: 95,000. Injured: 9,400,000. The cost: $12,100,000,000.

The bill was added up today by the National Safety Council, which noted that the 1953 accident death toll was 1,000 below the 1952 total. But it also noted that it was more than three times as great as the toll of U.S. dead during the Sixties Korean war.

The motor vehicle held its place as the No. 1 accident killer. Traffic deaths numbered 38,300. That was a gain of one per cent over 1952.

The traffic total was the third largest in history, exceeded only by 1947 and 1941.

Fatalities in home accidents numbered 28,000, a record high. The 16,000 accidental deaths at work were unchanged at 15,000.

Ned H. Dearborn, president of the council, stated that "no civilized nation can long sustain this tragic and disgraceful waste of manpower and resources from accidents which are avoidable."

But there were some relatively bright spots in the otherwise-grim survey of statistics.

DEATH RATE LOWER

Had 1953 death rate for accidents of all types was 40 per 100,000 population, lowest on record. Nevertheless, one out of every 16 Americans suffered a disabling injury during 1953.

The 38,300 traffic deaths were recorded during a year in which the number of vehicles on the road and the number of miles they operated both reached an all-time high. Thus the death rate per 100,000,000 vehicle miles was estimated at seven—lowest rate on record.

The traffic accidents resulted in about 1,350,000 non-fatal injuries.

Falls brought death to 20,000 persons, one per cent fewer than in 1952. Burns cost 6,400 lives, a four per cent decrease. Firearm fatalities rose four per cent to 2,450. Drownings were unchanged at 6,000.

The estimated economic loss of $9,100,000,000 covers both fatal and non - fatal accidents. It included wage losses, medical expenses, insurance costs, production delays and damage to equipment and property.

CCF Leader Critical of Govt.

NIPIGON (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, CCF Leader, Wednesday night accused the provincial government of "standing pat" on outmoded methods of exploitation that are rapidly destroying the province's forest resources."

In a speech at this logging and fishing resort town on Lake Superior, the CCF leader said the forest industry "is now faced with an unbelievable position where it will have to be subsidized by the general revenues of the province to meet the shortfall in long term productive capacity."

Mr. MacDonald's speech here was held in a four of 40 northwestern Ontario communities.

Two Bomb-Carrying Toronto Youths Claim Reds Were Following Them

TORONTO (CP)—Police are uncertain whether three home-made bombs discovered in the west end of Toronto were part of a plot or a prank. But they have charged two youths, Angelo Scardoveri, 20, and Clayton Cox, 17, with unlawful possession of the bombs.

The youths told detectives they were carrying the bombs because they were being followed by Communists.

Police said a letter was sent to the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington Jan. 26 purporting to give information about Communist activities. It asked the bureau to send agents to Toronto and meet the senders on Feb. 2 day.

The letter claimed Toronto police had been approached, had refused to help, but "something must be done" and so the RCMP, who kept the appointment, were to have been taken with two objects. The Mounties took one of the objects and the names and addresses of the youths.

The object confiscated was examined and found to contain blasting powder and a fuse. The RCMP then turned the matter over to Toronto police, who visited the addresses given and found the other object, said to be fashioned from pieces of gas pipe. They arrested the youths Wednesday.

ALL OPPOSITION WILL OPPOSE NEW POSTAL RATE

Bill Comes Up In House for Debate

OTTAWA (CP)—A government proposal to increase first-class postal rates is expected to meet opposition.

The legislation giving effect to the one-cent-an-ounce increase, starting April 1, comes up for debate today in the Commons. Progressive Conservative, CCF and Social Credit parties voted against the increases last month when they were outlined in a resolution preliminary to the bill.

The bill would increase the letter rate on the first ounce to five cents from four on mailings between postal districts and to four cents from three on mailings within a postal district. Rates on additional ounces also would be increased.

The government also plans to eliminate the seven-cent airmail letter rate within Canada and provide for a single airmail rate of 10 cents per ounce to all points in Canada, the United States and Mexico.

Under the proposals airmail letters would be carried by air on a space available basis. Postmaster-General Harris, government House leader, said Wednesday.

WILL RE-INTRODUCE MOTION

After protests from all three opposition parties, the motion was withdrawn by Citizenship Minister Pickersgill, government House leader.

WILL RE-INTRODUCE MOTION

He said, however, that the government will introduce the motion again, adding that government business be given precedence over private members' business on and after Wednesday, Feb. 17.

This would leave only one hour on Tuesdays and Fridays for private members. Private members' business usually takes up two hours each afternoon.

The government Wednesday had planned to have the House consider a bill sponsored by Prime Minister St. Laurent to raise the salaries of cabinet ministers. The salary of the prime minister would be increased to $25,000 from $15,000 and those of the 20 other cabinet ministers to $15,000 from $10,000.

Opposition leader Drew offered an amendment to the motion to raise ministers' salaries that a bill to come up for debate in view of the departing Ottawa on a six-week world tour. The amendment would have given MPs a free vote.

The motion was dropped, however, after Mr. Drew's amendment. Mr. Drew later suggested that the House consider the permitted to proceed with the bill, but Mr. Harris declined. He said the bill should not be given any special treatment.

FARM STORAGES

After the motion was dropped the House debated a private member's resolution proposed by Victor Quelch (SC—Acadia) urging legislation to provide for a system of farm storages. The resolution under which the Canadian Wheat Board would guarantee loans to farmers on grain held on farms.

Irvin Studer (PC—Dauphin) and Walter Tucker (L—Northern) said the proposed plan could result in the dumping of grain on the Board which must be borne by the people as a whole. It would endanger the board's existence.

The resolution was supported by spokesmen for the Progressive Conservative, CCF and Social Credit parties. No vote was taken because Mr. Studer was still speaking at the 6 p.m. adjournment hour. The motion goes to the bottom of the list of private members' business and is not likely to be debated again this session.

Cost-of-Living Declines For Third Straight Month

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index declined by one-tenth of a point during December to 113.7 from 113.8, extending the third consecutive monthly decline in living costs.

The index now stands exactly where it was in December, 1952, when it also registered at 113.7. During 1953 it dropped, climbed and then declined again.

As in previous months, lower food prices powered the December drop—the smallest in 1953. A few scattered drops in clothing also assisted, to overcome increases for rents and other services.

Though the price of meats and vegetables rose, other food items, including eggs, decreased to push the food sub-index down by one-half point to 111.6 from 112.1, the lowest in seven months.

The clothing index again, pushing the shelter column to a new high of 126.4, up one-fifth of a point from the previous month, the bureau of statistics report said.

A few scattered decreases among several items chipped one-tenth of a point from the clothing sub-index which dropped to 110.1 from 110.2, lowest in a half-year.

Household operations — another service column, edged ahead to a high of 115.2, up a tenth of a point as price boosts for furniture, cleaning supplies and household help outweighed declines for washing machines, cotton sheets and floor wax.

Another tenth-of-a-point advance was registered for miscellaneous services. This section rose to 110.4, reflecting higher prices for drugs, personal care and newspaper rates in three cities.

THIEVES BEAT ELDERLY COUPLE, HUSBAND DIES

Police Believe Two Attacked With Axe

SIMCOE (CP) — Bruce Beatty, about 65, is dead and his wife is in critical condition in hospital as a result of what police believe was an attack by thieves who robbed the till of the couple's service station four miles east of here.

Investigators say they think the beatings occurred late Tuesday night, possibly as Beatty prepared to lock up. One theory is that two men attacked Beatty and that his wife heard the struggle from upstairs living quarters and was set upon in turn.

It is thought the Beattys lay all night in pools of blood where their assailants left them.

Ray Chambers, a trucker who sought help for the couple, found them semi-conscious about 8:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The husband died in hospital here Wednesday night without regaining consciousness. His wife remained in critical condition but it was reported here today she was not as severe as at first feared.

Police have confirmed the finding of the couple in the service station and lunch counter at Renton on Queen's Highway.

"I usually gas up my truck every morning before I start out on a run to work. I filled up the tanks myself as I usually do and the attack occurred between 9 and 10 p.m. Tuesday."

Thomas Tyrell, who operates a service station and general store across the road from the Beatty establishment, said he saw all the lights on at the Beatty place at the usual shortly after 9 p.m.

About half an hour later, all the lights in the station were out with the exception of an outside gas light. Then he said: "A dark-colored car was pulling away."

Inspector Vern Hilborn arrived from the provincial police criminal investigation branch in Toronto quarters in Toronto to take charge of the investigation. He joined Sgt. Lorne Thorp, in charge of the provincial police detachment at Simcoe, and Const. Ross Gill, in Laurent's schedule calls for a flight to Paris from there a Canadair jet will visit.

Week-end talks with the British prime minister and other Commonwealth officials will launch the Canadian foot-will enterprises, including March 17 when Mr. St. Laurent returns to Ottawa.

West Writes Off Any Possibility Of German Treaty

Foreign Ministers Will Try To Settle Smaller Problems

By PRESTON GROVER

BERLIN (AP) — The Western foreign ministers today wrote off the possibility of settling the German question at the current Big Four conference and, as one source put it, began trying to "scrape out the smaller potatoes."

Still pending in this category are the long-deadlocked Austrian independence treaty, Big Four conference with a Communist China about peace in Asia and perhaps further talks between Russia's foreign minister Molotov and State Secretary Dulles of the United States on President Eisenhower's proposal for an atomic pool for peace.

A possible outcome also was the quick mechanical one of building up a larger exchange of goods between West and East Germany, a trade largely throttled now by political differences despite the obvious needs.

One Western informant said the Big Four foreign ministers might spend the balance of this week in more frivolous fashion in Germany, then move on to Austria.

The Westerners believe the parley, which began Monday, will likely will go on for another 15 or 20 days.

MOLOTOV SUPPORTED

One indication of the end to Western hopes that the Berlin German settlement came Wednesday night when Russia's premier, Otto Grotewohl, seconded Molotov's latest proposal for German unity.

Inside the Russian embassy in East Berlin Molotov had proposed to the Western ministers that a plebiscite be held to get the German people's views and West say whether they want an immediate peace treaty neutralizing them or want Germany to join the projected West European Defence Community.

France's foreign minister Bidault, speaking for the West, brushed the Soviet proposal aside. He said Germany already has its own unified government in the free election the West has proposed. Bidault said, and that government can make its own decisions.

British delegates dismissed the plebiscite proposal as a ridiculous side-show designed to hide Russia's refusal to let the Germans have free elections.

Molotov's proposal that Germany should be forced to withdraw from the European defense community, which Chancellor Konrad Adenauer has signed, was brushed aside by Bidault, spokesman for the West, brushed the Soviet proposal aside. He said Germany already has its own unified government in the free election the West has proposed,

J. D. O'Flynn Again Head Of Law Association

Former registrar of the Supreme Court of Ontario and sheriff for the county of Hastings, J. D. O'Flynn was re-elected president of the Hastings and Prince Edward Law Association at the annual meeting held early this week.

Other officers elected included E. G. Porter as vice president; J. H. Lennox, secretary and J. Malcolm Robb, Q.C. as librarian.

In accepting the presidency Mr. O'Flynn thanked the lawyers present for the honor bestowed upon him. He pointed out that in association with his late father and his brother he had been connected with the Bar in Belleville for over 70 years. He welcomed the many junior lawyers who have decided to practice in the city and particularly congratulated Louis Dorfman on his recent marriage.

Mr. O'Flynn reviewed the history of the English Bar since Magna Charta, counted as the first Bar of Hastings and Prince Edward. He was proud of the fact he was associated with the Hastings and Prince Edward Bar who like their contemporaries of the Mother country fought for freedom, under the law and established the Natural Bar and democracy walk hand in hand.

He called upon lawyers to prevent encroachments on our liberties and warned against the trend of modern legislation, setting up boards and commissions with powers to make arbitrary decisions from which there is no appeal with no recourse to the courts.

As director of burial Mr. O'Flynn noted that during the past year 173 cases had been handled by the local Bar without charge and reported that, after conference with the provincial director, the system originally inaugurated in this city is now provincewide and in force throughout all Ontario the poor receive free legal advice with their rights before the law fully protected as those of more fortunate citizens.

In conclusion he congratulated Aldermen William Argue and Robert Temple on their re-election to the council and Magistrate Ponton on appointment of K. G. M. Ross to the hospital board. He emphasized it was the clear-cut duty of a lawyer to contribute his time and ability for the public good.

Truck Driver Will Be Sorry For Splashing

A certain truck driver is going to get an unpleasant surprise when he is charged with a hike for dry cleaning four complete outfits of wearing apparel.

But the surprise will not be any more unpleasant than it was for a Sinclair street couple and their two children who got well splashed yesterday as they were walking on West Moira Street. The party was walking in the vicinity of the Bridge street corner, a passing truck scooped a puddle and dirty water covered the walk.

The license number of the truck was secured and police are checking for the owner.

WILDLIFE MOTION PICTURES.

Mr. Cleaves is an ace cameraman in the specialized field of wildlife motion photography, beginning in 1913 under the tutelage of Thomas Barbour, noted naturalist. He was official photographer with the Pinchot South Sea expedition, films of which have been released by several motion-picture corporations.

His contributions of photographs and scientific articles are familiar in numerous magazines. Being a Harvard graduate in natural sciences, and a trustee of the Bermuda Island Institute of Natural Sciences, he speaks authoritatively with a natural humor and excellent English.

Astounding his remarkable night "shots" of animals in action in their native haunts, even a water-tight tank, cruised over Florida Everglades, he lay prone and crouched for days in a steel barrel on the edge of a forest clearing.

CAMERA DIVING SUIT.

One of his many innovations is a "diving suit" for his cameras. This watertight box, with powerful floodlighting and either side can be lowered at the end of a cable to obtain submarine shots. The camera, focused through a glass window, is operated by remote control.

Another unique contrivance is his chandelier of powerful floodlights energized by a portable gasoline generator at the end of a long cable and carried on the shoulders during night prowls. Under the glare of a searching light beam, deer become transfixed, their eyes glowing like live coals in the dark.

He has prowled through forest and bayou to record the night-life of deer, raccoon, muskrat, osprey, chimney swift, great blue heron, turtle, frog, and cicada, making his film, "Animals at Night in Color," an amazing revelation of nocturnal activities of wildlife.

Alderman Claims Board's Powers Much Too Wide

HAMILTON (CP)—Ald. Malcolm M. Cline charged today that the Ontario Municipal Board has been "set up as little tin gods who can frustrate the decisions of democratically elected municipal councils."

Ald. Cline, making a statement following an OMB hearing here Tuesday, said he would introduce the question of the board's powers at the next meeting of city council.

The alderman said the city was "trapped over the knuckles" by the board Tuesday for authorizing and completing $2,000,000 in civic works without the board's approval.

"The whole question of the Ontario Municipal Board's powers should be re-examined by the provincial government," said Ald. Cline. "They should be merely an advisory body. Their powers are much too wide."

Nearly 200 Attend 'City Wide' Mother-Daughter C.G.I.T. Banquet

Last evening approximately 200 Canadian Girls in Training, their mothers and friends, enjoyed the "City Wide" mother and daughter banquet held in Holloway St. United Church assembly room, with representative C.G.I.T. groups from Tabernacle United; Bridge Street United; Victoria Avenue Baptist; Holloway United and St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church present.

Those at the head table included: chairman, Miss Patsy Luck; Mrs. D. Kane, treasurer of the Girls' Work Board; Mrs. R. Morden, past president of the Girls' Work Board; Mrs. R. Berry, Girls' Events committee convener; the Reverend Norman Collins, guest speaker for the evening; Mrs. H. R. Varcoe, president of the Girls' Work Board; Mrs. L. VanDeen, secretary of Work Board; Mrs. Elgie, Miss Audrey Elgie, and Mrs. Luck.

TOASTS PROPOSED

Following the delicious repast, toasts were proposed to the Queen, to the Church, by Miss Jane Greene, and responded to by the Reverend S. E. Larman, pastor of the church; to the Sunday School, by Miss Beverley Bigby, responded to by Mr. W. Haley; to the mothers, by Miss Mary Catherine Clare, to which Mrs. Clare responded, and to the C.G.I.T. by Mrs. W. E. Cowling, to which Miss Mary Ann Cowley responded.

Miss Patsy Luck gave an interesting resume of camp promotion and camp life, mentioning the various projects; the world, Bible study, and making of handicraft.

A sing-song of C.G.I.T. choruses, some with motions, led by Miss Margaret Hillis, were greatly enjoyed by the girls and also by the guests present. Miss Hillis is to be commended for her fine leadership.

GUEST SPEAKER

Following the sing-song, Mrs. Varcoe introduced the guest speaker, the Reverend Norman Collins, assistant pastor of Bridge Street United Church, who gave a most interesting advisory talk to the girls with the white middies and blue ties, and to the mothers as well, in which she stressed the meaningful relationship between mother and daughter, and parent and child. This relationship is one which is continually changing, from childhood through adolescence to womanhood. Even in the teens, the mother, who in early childhood was the fountain of all knowledge, seems to know nothing; she is not up with the latest fads or world theories; is appallingly ignorant of the latest color of lipstick. (This is a time when patience of the girls is much needed, and the stamina of mothers to be brought forth; Miss Collins smilingly interposed.)

MUST THINK FOR HERSELF

Later, the girl discovers that mother after all, does know something. The girl must think for herself; the C.G.I.T. helps girls to grow into women who can form independent judgment; learn to take care of themselves; make decisions, and seek the good, then the better, and the best.

The church is concerned in helping girls to interpret their mothers, and the mothers, their girls, and 'how' the dress of woodshanks. At this time girls are moody, which period must be passed off, but with an easy rhythm, which permits them to take success without becoming enslaved with an exaggerated ego. The church teaches them how to live together. As they grow older, they come to the place where they appreciate the advice of their leaders, where appreciation is deeper.

RESPONSIBILITIES

Miss Collins also touched on the responsibilities of mothers, fathers, teachers and ministers in a pattern they set for the young girls to follow, who should teach that the young girls do not discharge their responsibilities in their own strength, but have the Jesus Christ who enables them to measure up. The pattern set for these young girls must be by example, and as Jesus said to His disciples, "Go and I you."

All are commissioned by Jesus Christ into the world to work. As God sent Jesus with great love to reveal His love to the world, so must the parents, and others live to help the young.

In closing her address, Miss Collins added the comforting words of Jesus to the former: "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

Miss Audrey Elgie moved a vote of thanks to Miss Collins after which the meeting came to a close by the joining of hands and the singing of "Taps."

UN GETS 15 PoWs

SEOUL (AP)—The Indian command today turned over to the United Nations Command 15 North Korean war prisoners who changed their minds after asking to go to neutral countries. The Koreans had wanted to go to the United States but cannot, under the armistice, repatriation of POWs fought in the Korean war. The 15 presumably will be turned over to the South Korean government.

Italian Navy Salvages RCAF Transport Plane

FIUALE LIGURE, Italy (CP)—The Italian Navy Wednesday night salvaged an RCAF Beechcraft transport plane which crash-landed on the Italian Riviera coast with five airmen aboard.

The plane was in only a few feet of water and was hauled ashore without difficulty and housed in a shed pending investigation.

None of the five airmen — four Canadians and a Frenchman—was injured.

The five escaped in emergency rubber boats and were picked up by a fishing boat before they could paddle ashore.

Pilot of the plane was FO Ralph Hamilton, Aurila, 23, of McAdam, N.B. The other Canadians were described as William John Buzza, 32, Harold Curtis Robinson, 30, and Stanley Gordon Tiller, 25. Their ranks or hometowns were not disclosed.

Col. A. C. Cherrier, Canadian military attache at Rome, said the plane was en route from Gibraltar to its base in Britain when a radio scent it off course and it crash-landed when its fuel ran out.

Shivering Europe Expects Relief From Bitter Cold

LONDON (AP)—Europe's bitterest cold wave in seven years brought signs of thawing today, but death and misery still stalked the frozen plains and snowbound mountains of Yugoslavia and Romania.

Fierce blizzards, the worst in 24 years, killed at least 14 persons in Yugoslavia's central province of Serbia. Most of the victims were buried in snowdrifts and frozen to death.

The Yugoslav victims raised unofficial estimates of the continent's weather death toll to more than 300.

Communist Romania ordered emergency measures to meet transport communication and a power breakdowns. Bucharest radio reported shute shortages of coal, food and water in many places, including the capital.

NORMAL WEATHER NEAR

Slightly warmer weather spread slowly southward in Britain and western Europe, bringing welcome relief from the 11-day freeze-up. Normal winter temperatures are expected in most of western Europe by this week-end.

Despite the slight break in weather, much of northern Europe is still ice-bound. Planes still are flying food and other supplies to 8,000 North sea islanders cut off from the mainland by ice.

Several Belgian coal mines are shut because of the cold weather, threatening widespread unemployment.

HARBOR STRIKE SETTLED

KARACHI, Pakistan (Reuters)—Harbor workers on strike for nine days Wednesday night voted to go back to work today. The union accepted the Pakistan government's offer on wages and vacations. Originally, 5,000 stevedores and dock workers struck. They were joined later by rail workers and others.

NO CHANGE SINCE YALTA

There is something to be said in favor of the Berlin conference. If it does nothing else it has shown already that the Communist plan for the domination of Europe has changed not one iota since Europe was carved up at Yalta more than 10 years ago.

Since the end of World War II the Western Powers and Russia have exchanged more than 57 million words of argument in more than 5,000 separate sessions seeking to devise a German and an Austrian peace treaty, and trying to bring about peace in Korea. It is more than eight years since the shooting war ended and the war of words began and it must now be evident that whatever power words might have had in the past, they have no power when used against the intractable, uncompromising policies of Communism.

Molotov's 21-page speech to the Council of Foreign Ministers, according to a news dispatch, made three things clear.

1. Russia wants to get U.S. troops out of Europe at the earliest possible date because they block Soviet domination of the Continent.
2. Russia wants to smash the projected European Defence Community because it paves the way for rearming Germany, or part of it, in close alliance with the West.
3. Russia wants a reunified Germany, virtually defenceless and ripe for Soviet domination with Communists in key government posts.

The only surprising thing about such Russian proposals is that they should be gleaned so easily from merely 21 pages of official pronouncements, and that Molotov has speeded up his usual Red runaround considerably more than two years, as was the case in Korea, to a paltry eight days, as is the case in Berlin. It may be, however, that the new approach has been dictated from the Kremlin where Malenkov seems to have consolidated his power by purging his colleagues in accepted Communist fashion.

This may be the beginning of a new Malenkov "get tough" policy with even the appearance of diplomacy forgotten. Russia, for all her protests about wanting the security of friendly buffer states, must realize that it is the greatest menace to world peace and that outright aggression in eastern Europe can masquerade no longer under the plaintive plea for "friendly buffer states." The monstrous decision of Yalta which enslaved Europe and left Lithuania, Estonia, Latvia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Rumania, Hungary, Austria, and half of Germany in slavery has been the chief stumbling block on the road to peace. Russian insistence on domination of eastern Europe was the product of a long range plan for world domination and the continuance of that insistence today.

It is apparent, and should have been apparent at the time of Yalta, that with the defeat of the Axis, Russia would be the supreme military power in Europe and Asia. Germany and Japan, the two most powerful foes, would have been utterly defeated, and France and Britain, the remaining European powers, were nominally Russia's allies. There was no reason for the wrecking of Europe except appeasement. The Allies have not been vengeful since the end of the war. Indeed, it is the first time in the history of warfare that the conquerors have expended such treasure in the rehabilitation of the vanquished.

Russia, however, did not want peace at Yalta, and does not want it now. Her actions in stripping the satellite and enslaving captive populations is reprehensible in the extreme and speaks more loudly of her true aims than even Molotov's pronouncements in Berlin. The unification of Germany, the crux of the Berlin conference, is just the beginning of a series of moves that the West must make in the liberation of Eastern Europe and the correction of the diplomatic mistakes that have proved perpetuated and are more difficult of solution than the achieving of military victory.

THE COLD—AND THE HOMELESS

Three feet of snow in Morocco, in Africa!

A possibility that the Rhine may be frozen solid from the sea to its source!

Misery of the bitterest winter Europe has experienced in seven years brings many strange facts to jar our preconceptions.

But perhaps no sentence in any press association report could provide a greater jar than that which casually refers to the misery spread "among the homeless in, the big cities."

When the mercury takes a nose-dive here in Belleville, or out on the Prairies, or even at some Arctic outpost, Canadians may shiver but they do not lack some refuge. At the worst, home may be cold because fuel is high in price and bank accounts are low. But no matter how low the temperature may go, you will never read a press report referring to the misery the cold has spread amongst the homeless in our big cities.

How fortunate we are—all of us!

TORONTO'S POPULATION

Within four years the population of Toronto's twelve suburbs will equal the population of Toronto itself.

That this is very good news, at least for Torontonians, but interpretations will differ.

We refuse to view the matter with alarm or contemplate it with delight until we learn whether the suburban cities are people trying to get into Toronto or get away from it.

King Winter scored the second goal of the season over rural mail carriers in this district on Thursday. Almost beaten by the high drifts, which piled and blanked the roads between roads, many of the carriers were hours in covering their routes. Side roads are almost impassable to traffic except for the sturdy horse and the single horse hitched to light cutters, and the carriers have packed their cars and are using the old faithful horse. Added to their official duties at the present time are other services which they render to the people on their routes to cars are unable to get to the stores; to homes of them the carriers bring tobacco, papers, magazines, bread and groceries.

In believing the recent storm the official snow fall is given as four inches.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BIRD BRAVERY

I wouldn't like to live anywhere where there were no birds. I would miss their songs, their cheerful energy and delight in life. I would cry under all kinds of weather and circumstances as the sweetest bird ever on its own. Heat, cold, storm —it's all the same to the birds, for they are equipped to meet their way.

At this moment at my home a big snowstorm has covered the earth with a deep blanket of snow. At times it has been bitter cold, and I have wondered why so many birds are about my place. I see many starlings and those grey-bellied, joyful little birds. They are spotted on the snow-covered, limbs of the trees. I have placed, in a sheltered spot, a big piece of suet and fine crumbs, and these birds flock to both. They seem grateful. I wonder where they go at night, for they disappear. I am sure they have their hiding places, for they return each day for food. I harvest at the home of these birds. I have watched them hide in shelter-ed spots in the evergreens and noted how they tighten up into what looks like a ball. But sometimes the cold is too great, and they go to sleep and fall frozen to the earth—their final mother.

We cannot do too much for these cheerful, trusting little friends of the out-of-doors, especially during the bitter Winter months. They will be with us beyond our welcome when the Summer time returns. Their bravery is inspired. The bravery of our birds is remarkable and challenging. By watching their habits and way of life we too can learn to be brave, and industrious, and uncomplaining.

These birds of ours are the children of nature. They serve a useful purpose. They search out the enemies of our shrubs, trees, and garden. They are busy little bodies. Love them. Care for them. Feed them. They are always grateful. I look upon their tiny footprints in the snow as their thank-you notes!

Shaving Handicap

(Brockville Recorder).

Assuming that the male starts shaving at 15, that he lives to be 70 and that he lives to an age of 75 years, he will have shaved for a total period of 57 years. If one allows him 10 minutes per shave per day, we find that in one year he spends 3,650 minutes with razor and soap. During the period of 57 years he will spend 208,050 minutes wrestling with the stubborn growth with which Nature adorned his face. Allowing for Sundays and thereby reducing the figure to hours, we find that during his lifetime this unfortunate man has spent 3,467 hours doing nothing but shaving.

Sociologists say the average modern woman has so improving.

How to Calculate Speed

By R. F. RODGERS

In The Mountain Police Quarterly.

Have you ever wondered how the scientist can estimate the original speed of an automobile involved in an accident? All you need is a little mathematics.

For example, consider the following recent automobile accident in the Rockies.

The driver, in a 1950 Plymouth sedan, skidded 72 feet along the highway. He then plummeted down an eight-foot ditch and skidded 96 feet through the clay swamp and uprooted a tree, and traveled 112 feet (horizontally) through the air before coming to a stop.

The driver said he was traveling at 45 m.p.h. Don't look now, but at what minimum speed would you say he was going before he started to skid. Twenty miles per hour? Or 30 miles per hour? The determining of this answer is an interesting problem.

Here is how it's done:

First of all, we start at the end of the car's journey. How fast was the car moving through the air? A little thought shows that the minimum speed would result if the car left the road at exactly an angle of 45 degrees to the horizon. In such a case, its speed would drop 32 feet per second for each second it was in the air. Any angle differs slightly from 45 degrees. The speed would be greater, and the effect on the initial speed is even less.

Hence we may take 21.9 m.p.h. as the speed just after uprooting the tree.

Next on the order sheet as we continue to move back is the tree. This tree has a definite and measurable effect upon the car's speed. Actually, we don't have to make an accurate study of the effect of the tree is so slight that even a considerable error in the calculation will have only a negligible effect on the final answer.

The tree had a trunk diameter of four inches. Now, it was estimated that the automobile fairly hard could uproot a considerable tree. Four inches of green could exert a combined force of 800 p.s.i. (that is, the tree has a cross-sectional area 4 x 4—16 inches greater than the automobile).

If we take this force as acting through one foot, the mechanical work done by the automobile is 9,000 foot-pounds. Since the automobile weighs 3,153 pounds, and the passenger 230 pounds, this work produces a loss of 1.5 m.p.h. in speed. Hence the speed just before hitting the tree is about 23.4 m.p.h.

Skidding in the ditch is the same, in principle, as skidding along the highway. That is, if we know the final speed, the distance skidded, and the friction coefficient, we may compute the initial speed. If we know the first two factors, the problem boils down to find a suitable friction coefficient. This was determined experimentally in the following manner:

An open clay region was made wet until it represented fairly closely the description of the clay swamp in the accident. A suitable car, with brakes locked, was dragged over this wet clay. The resulting skidding mark by the writer by the National Research Council, showed that the average force was about 915 pounds. Since the test car and contents were found to weigh 3,700 pounds, the adopted friction coefficient was found to be 0.25 very nearly. This gives a speed of about 53.3 m.p.h. at the beginning of the swamp skid.

Next, the effect of falling down the ditch must be considered. Those of you who remember your high school physics will recall that the loss of potential energy in falling is equal to the gain of kinetic energy. This gain is found to be 53.3 m.p.h. and at the end of the highway skid is about 123 m.p.h.

Finally, the effect of the road skid must be considered, and then we have you where you remember the friction coefficient for a wet, hard-surfaced road level road is usually about 0.523.

Using this value, we find a speed of 123.1 m.p.h. just before skidding. Since the friction coefficient adopted is probably far slightly from the actual value, we at the accident's driver was probably going slightly fast-er.

How fast did you originally guess the car was traveling? It pays to make the calculation! Incidentally, this shows that the speculation of the driver helps the accused, although it usually shows that he was traveling at excessive speed.

Trap Car-Looters

(NADA, Magazine of the U.S. National Automobile Dealers' Ass'n.)

In Cleveland, new car dealers are following a unique law enforcement plan, developed by the Cleveland Automobile Dealers' Association are furnishing police with specially designed cars to trap exclusive larcenists.

The following letter by the dealers are called "stake out" cars. Spotted by police in the area around the city, these automobiles serve as enticing break-in targets. Each car has been equipped by police with a radio transmitter and receiver concealed in the glove compartment.

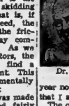
Below the observation point is stationed the "stake out" automobile loaded with merchandise and with a radio receiving set inside.

The observer on top of the building communicates by radio as soon as he sees some suspects in the area. Police cruisers in the spotter can see every move the larcenists make because from his high position he is not seen or blocked by the "screen."

Police on the ground arrive on the scene just as the thieves are about to escape with the loot.

The whole break-in operation is recorded by a concealed camera, and the thieves are caught with the stolen merchandise in their possession. Such evidence is overpowering in court.

Cleveland's new police larceny plan resulted almost immediately in a substantial drop in auto larcenies. But a new problem cropped up. Dealers began complaining the first few months of the plan the only "stake out" cars available were those belonging to officers specifically assigned to the car larceny detail. The number of these cars being limited, it soon became apparent that criminals were getting familiar with them and were shying away from areas in which they were spotted. The bait was going stale.



At this point the help of new car dealers was enlisted. The supply of automobiles was soon level for "stake out" purposes provided the necessary diversification. Because each of the cars is used for only one week, prowlers do not have time to become familiar themselves with the bait.

The Cleveland police department admits that its crook catching program would be hopelessly bogged without the variety of cars provided by the dealers.

HOW TO IRK TEN MILLION PEOPLE

Dr. Brady

I have received from a long siege of arthritis (writes a reader) and I, too, am tired of hearing about the "wonder" drugs," but nevertheless the doctor used gamalls and cortisone together. This was the only treatment that I felt me any good. I have been entirely free from pain and swelling for over a year now, so you will understand that I appreciate this very much. The cause of the arthritis (from which I suffered for 15 years) was a streptococcus infection, which has been prevented, so far as I know, by penicillin. The results are mostly sinusitis.

Good nutrition (the reader concedes) may have prevented some of my trouble forty years ago, but what I suffered from or arthritis and treatment right now.

Why do you belittle the efforts of some doctors to do what they can for people? (The reader continues). Where do you draw the line between a trick doctor and a reputable one? Is a clinic where people without means can get treatment. Isn't there such a thing as a good clinic and a poor doctor? (Miss G.R.).

Many complainants have reported their disappointment with the effects of treatment with penicillin and sodium chloride.

Many have reported disappointment with cortisone treatment or arthritis.

There is the first and only favorable report of the sort I have received. Maybe I do not want to pass it along to other readers who may contemplate such treatment.

From three years of experience with gold salt treatment of arthritis in the Arthritis Clinic of Presbyterian Hospital in New York City—a genuine clinic, as the term clinic is defined in Webster—Dr. R. H. Boots concluded that gold treatment offered definite promise for rheumatoid arthritis but should not be used for any other form of arthritis because of its toxicity. Maybe I'm not showing my ignorance, but I must say I don't know how a doctor can distinguish so-called rheumatoid arthritis from any other chronic progressive degeneration of joint structure — just plain people without means can get rheumatic.

DON'T GET SENTIMENTAL

We overemphasize, do we not, against something. We would like to make ourselves believe humanity is enveloped in an atmosphere of righteous aspirations and that all people really need in order to lead a to get a chance to be good. But this is not true. The world is full of wars, and there are thousands of people in the world (probably a majority indeed) who would not be anything else but evil, no matter how much of a chance they had to be good.

These people and their influence constitute the infection in the blood stream of the world. We need careful antibodies in the universal health—police clubs, and armies, navies, and airplanes.

Let us realize that's the way th world is. Let's not get sentimental over evil.

THE PACKSACK

An old school teacher of mine met me on the street yesterday and though it is forty years since he left any authority over me, he stood back and looked me up and down, critically, and then said:

"Get a haircut, boy!"

"Yessir," said I.

"Otherwise, you don't look too bad," he reflected. "How are you getting on, lad? What are you doing now?"

"Still in the newspaper business," I informed him.

"Sir!" said he.

"Sir," said I.

"And how are your parents keeping?" he enquired kindly. . .

"Oh, they've been gone some time, sir," I replied.

There is a time gone twenty years. This old school teacher of mine gets a little mixed up, not only in the years, but in the generations. For he is now an ancient man, retired more than twenty years himself).

"Gone?" he exclaimed kindly. "I'm sorry indeed to hear this. I was going to ask to be remembered to your father. A fine man. A fine man. You will have trouble living up to him."

"Yes, sir," I agreed.

Recommend Shorter Period For Apprenticeship Training

Reduction of the time required for full apprenticeship training in the various building and other trades, will be one of the recommendations to go from the Belleville and District Apprenticeship Advisory Committee as a means towards encouraging more young men to take up apprenticeship training.

The recommendation to go to the Provincial Advisory Committee on apprenticeship training will ask that apprenticeship training be one to two years full time school instruction for nine months of the year with three months summer work and followed by one year "on the job" training as an improver.

The committee would also recommend that apprenticeship candidates have at least Grade X education and be screened for suitability and aptitude; fees to be nominal and the student responsible for room and board.

In an effort to acquaint the general public of apprenticeship opportunities, the committee will concentrate on the six Home and School clubs in the city. In preparation for this the committee decided to view the latest film on apprenticeships prepared by the Ontario Department of Labor.

The current unemployment situation in Belleville and its effect on apprenticeships was discussed, it being explained that the plumbing trade was extremely quiet. It was noted that the carpenters' union had tightened its membership requirements with only tradesmen able to pass qualifying tests being admitted.

C. M. Hercus, district inspector for the Ontario Department of Labor, outlined recent changes in the Ontario Apprenticeship Act, while Mr. Everett Liddle, Federal Department of Labor, noted that a well trained government representative was making a tour of all employment offices to advise on apprenticeship matters.

He noted that each employment office was to have one person trained in apprenticeship matters to be responsible for screening all applicants for apprenticeship training.

Mr. H. H. Murray, employers' representative on the committee, outlined the reaction observed at a meeting in Stirling which was addressed by J. B. Metzler, deputy minister of labor.

Mr. A. O. Drysdale, assistant superintendent of Canada Cement, is chairman of the Belleville and district apprenticeship advisory committee.

YOUTH CYNIC:

St. Andrew's W.M.S. Holds Dainty Tea

A delightful breath of spring was evidenced yesterday afternoon in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church when the Women's Missionary Society held its afternoon tea and sale of home cooking. Everywhere the eye turned, the soft pastel tints of spring were to be seen. Soft spicula of pastel yellow, blue and rose-pink adorned the tall pillars of the assembly room, eddidg in bows into which the shades of white narcissus had been caught. In the windows also the theme was carried out by the use of spring flowers, golden daffodils, orchid tinted lilac sprays, and white narcissi.

Added to this pleasing touch was the homelike atmosphere achieved by the attractive grouping of furniture on the stage; the library table with its vase of flowers, the inviting chairs, backed by the floral-decked mantel and the soft glow from the tall, rose-shaded floor light; while down below were two tall graceful baskets of spring flowers of trailing ivy and white flowers.

CHRISTMAS CENTREPIECE

Carrying out the spring motif was the lovely tea table, appointed with a lace cloth, and centred by an exquisitely arranged centrepiece of fragrant white hyacinths, yellow daffodils, and colored tulips and yellow-throated snapdragons, all white, mingled with sprays of white baby's breath, and asparagus fern. Tall, tri-branched silver candelabra with tapers of yellow, green and pink added their pleasing accent.

The little quartet guest tables, also had their spring touch in dainty pink-edged, serviettes.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. J. G. Hornsby, and Mrs. J. Craig, president of the W.M.S. The reception for the afternoon, were Mrs. A. Bell, Mrs. J. W. Mackay, Mrs. J. Diamond and Mrs. J. Fisher.

Those who served included Mesdames F. Tounsley, H. Yorke, C. Barngar, G. Shaw, E. M. Shier, G. Walbridge, M. Barlow, R. Arnott and the Misses L. Weir and M. Mackinlock.

Making tea, Mrs. Browning and Mrs. F. Thomson.

DELICIOUS CONFECTIONS

The homecooking table was also bedecked with pale green and pink and displayed a bountiful amount of delicious confections, dale loaves, shortbreads, taffy tarts, orange cake, rellabes, lovely pink and white heart-shaped cake with mounds of fancy icing, reminiscent of the coming St. Valentine day, loaf cakes, pretty cup cakes with tinted frostings in green and pink; nut-topped cup cakes; little drop cookies, and layer cakes tipped with delicious icings dotted with whole walnut meats; pecan cookies and lemon jelly rolls.

In charge of these were: Mrs. J. Miller, Mrs. J. Collins and Mrs. W. Gillis.

Much credit goes to the convener and her co-convener, Mrs. Ralph Morden, and Miss Helen Blair, for a dainty and most successful tea.

Women of Moose Hold Meeting

On Sunday afternoon, the Women of the Moose held their mid-winter meeting in the Orange Hall with one of the largest attendances in five years. Chapters attending were Peterborough, Lindsay, Brockville and Belleville with Belleville officiating as hostess chapter.

Mrs. Ethel Bryan, called the meeting to order and introduced conference leader for the day, Mrs. Doyle Kennedy, Brockville, who was given the sign of courtesy by the co-ed.

The conference leader had the honor to accept College of Regents Eda McGinnis to the altar where she was introduced and received the sign of courtesy. College of Regents Eda McGinnis, Belleville, Chapter 433, is as yet the only College of Regents in the eastern district. All officers' names were asked to stand and introduce themselves in rotation.

WELCOME ADDRESS

Jr. Grad. Regent, Mary Peoples, Belleville, gave the address of welcome and Grad. Regt. Mary Van Tassel, Trenton, gave the response. Conference theme was "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Highlight of the ritual work was done by Lindsay; ballot by Belleville, with one candidate balloted on and ballot favorable; initiation by Brockville with 14 new members joining the defending circle.

College of Regents Eda McGinnis gave a talk on "Administrative Duties" which was enjoyed by all. She was then escorted to the altar where the different degrees presented her with official warrants to further the good work that is done each year.

A general discussion was held on the year's work, especially the chairman with all chapters participating. There are 11 chairmen and each chairman sponsors some project throughout the year and the chapter might and tries to bring in candidates. The Women of the Moose are proud to report that the Belleville chairman headed the list as far as reports, chairmen's meetings and having full number of chairmen.

Endowment fund was conducted by Belleville with Recorder Nellie Scrymgeour to send the money to Grand Recorder Zela Kenny, Moosehart, Ill.

Senior Regent Ruth Mintz tendered thanks to all chapters attending; to all Belleville coworkers who had worked so hard to make the day a success and congratulated the conference leader on how well she conducted the conference and also officers and escorts on ritual work.

The conference leader, Phyllis Kennedy, also tendered her thanks to all chapters participating; to Sr. Regt. Ruth Mintz for assistance, and to all of Belleville ladies for serving the good hostesses.

Acting Junior Regent Gladys Smith, Brockville, also extended thanks to Belleville.

After the meeting was brought to a close by Lindsay, a singsong was held while the Belleville girls were getting ready to serve the delicious turkey supper which had been prepared.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THERE THERE TWO HEE TOO MUCH OF EACH OTHER

Miss Fairfax:

My husband and I have been married for four years, and up until six months ago were very happy. It seems that when we had our one room to live in, we were happy. Then we moved to a house and things began to go wrong. Now he has the idea that because is money got the house, it is all and I should not have any say about what goes on in it. He says it should be enough for me that I have a place to stay.

We have a child, and I work in it but he thinks he should not give me anything of what we

I think he wants me to leave, but don't look at it that way. I love living with me, he should be the to go.

How can I prevent him from insisting that he is right all the and I am wrong, and should leave him or not?

C.M.

Dear C. M.:

Sometimes when wives and husbands work together, and so are together 24 hours a day, they get on each other's nerves. One simple reason that they see altogether too much of each other. This may be a good part of your trouble, but if you think I should go along with this theory, a little while anyhow, and see it can be done with it.

What I mean is, suggest to your husband that you think both of you need some time off to be with other people, and to do other things, and then both of you really get busy and find some new interests that will take you away from each other and off your work every so often. This would not only give you a rest from each other but it would also give you a few new different things to talk about when you are together, all which might help.

In any event I certainly wouldn't think of leaving your husband.

If you have tried out a few ideas that might better your relationship, As a starter, try the suggestion I have made and then let me know what comes of it. After that, we'll think of the next step to take.

SEE THINKS A BOY FOLLOWS SEE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I would like to know what a girl should do when she finds that the same boy is always following her when she walks home from school. I am in my early teens and he is, too.

Ruth

Dear Ruth:

Are you sure this boy is deliberately following you? Perhaps he may just live in your neighborhood, and since you probably get out of school at the same time, it is only natural that he would be on your home at the same time.

If you feel really sure that he plans to walk behind you on your way home, why don't you turn around some day and say something like this: "Going my way? Shall we walk together?" Perhaps this boy really wants to know you and is just shy about it, and if you make it easy for him to this way, you might find it would lead to a nice friendship.

Slick Ideas for Canapes

By Mary Moore

My desk looks just about as cluttered as it did before Christmas. The lifeblood of a daily column is the amount of mail its reader receives, so I should not breathe a word of complaint and I am not, but to get a few more answers-to-readers columns, this week I'm going to put my hobby-horse away and when I want to say, then take off the blinders and buckle down to answering you. There are requests that range from how to bribe a new-slaughtered pig to what kind of a stone to buy for an engagement ring in the Yukon!

Before Christmas I wanted to give you some perfectly slick ideas for canapes and hors d'oeuvre but the pressure of other and more traditional recipes crowded out my idea. Now I'm going to give them to you or bust in the attempt.

Horizontal look and live here, and clip these, for I seldom come up with dainty little trifles like this.

CANAPE SPREADS

(1) Chicken Liver Paste—buy 1-2 lb. chicken livers, wash them and trim off any of the little green bile stain. Add 3-4 cup boiling water to them and simmer covered for 15 minutes. Meanwhile sauté 1 medium chopped onion in 2 tablespoons butter gently, for 5 minutes. Do not brown the onion. Drain chicken livers and pat them dry and put through finest knife of food chopper with the onion, being sure that all of the onion and liver is forced through by following them with 1-2 slice of dry bread, but don't let bread get into liquid drained off. Add 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper and 1-2 teaspoon MSG or Accent. Mash and stir this until it is a smooth paste. If necessary put it through the grinder again to make it very smooth. If desired you may use chicken fat instead of butter for moistening the onions. Chill until as firm as butter before spreading on canapes.

(2) Chopped Clam and Cheese Spread—Drain the clams from the liquid from 1 1-2-lb. can whole or minced clams. Place on chopping board and chop very finely with long sharp knife. To them add 3 oz. cream cheese (1-2 of a 4-oz. package), and 1 tablespoon sour cream (if you have no sour cream use sweet cream). Mash and mix until you have a smooth paste. Season with salt and pepper. Chill this too before spreading.

(3) Roquefort and Cream Cheese Spread—Use what you think would be 1-8 cup Roquefort or other blue cheese and to it add about 1-3 cup white cream cheese. If you have an electric mixer put them in a smooth paste in it, or mash it to a smooth paste. Add 1 teaspoon each Worcestershire sauce and dry mustard and 2 tablespoons mayonnaise or soft butter, and mash some more until smooth and mixed. This is good for canapes but it is even better for a stuffing for celery. Put it into pastry tube and pipe, is attractively in short stalks of celery. If you do not have a piping tube fill the celery stalks with a knife. Or if you are in a real extravagant mood use this as a dip for little perfectly white cauliflowerets.

(4) Salmon Spread for Shrimp Canape—Mash finely or put through fine knife of grinder, 1 4-oz. can red salmon well drained of liquid. Season to taste. Combine spoons mayonnaise and 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Mix this and spread on round canape bases. Top each with 1 whole large shrimp or top with small slice cucumber, spread it with a bit of mayonnaise and top that with small whole shrimp.

TOAST BASES FOR CANAPES

Trim crusts from fine-textured white bread and slice it very thinly—1-8 inch. Cut into fancy shapes with canape cutters, fluted rounds etc. Sauté these on one side, to toast them, in a little butter. Be sure not to soak them in butter. Dry and cool on wax paper. When ready to serve spread untoasted side with one of the above spreads. Be sure to garnish the canapes daintily with tiny sprigs of parsley, slices of stuffed olive, strips of pimento, finely chopped ripe olives.

Beauty

PUTTING ONE'S BEST FACE FORWARD

If you have an interesting eye you may have noticed that the more some women attempt to make themselves lovely, the more they look. The faded dear, for instance, who refuses to believe that her birthdays are showing and who uses cosmetics in quantity as to conceal every wrinkle. She dyes her hair when a snowy crown would be becoming, and overdoes too. Endeavoring to appear young she wears too-youthful clothes, and so looks even older.

Large, expensive, beautiful eyes are a gift from heaven. It isn't playing fair to let the lashes carry heavy smudges of mascara or to trim eyebrows to the point of distortion. A little make-up, yes! But too lavish application defeats its purpose.

Some misguided women wear slacks that reveal hips like the spreading chestnut tree and a tree ward bulge that is no help to any figure. These extra heavyweights are just as likely to wear sweaters that are much too revealing of the snoo-faced lassie who wears her thick hair bushed out at the side slapped across the front.

There are women with hands that have grown old or become spotted with yellow patches. To tint the nails a veiled red is to call attention to such blemishes. Faint tones should be used, colors not much redder than the natural tones of the finger nails.

To look one's best requires a little brain work, but it's worth it.

...Too much make-up, the wrong hair-do, ill-fitting clothes . . . all detract from glamour.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

THE HOUSE WARMING OR "OPEN HOUSE"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am interested in having a Housewarming or "Open House." Will you please tell me the most suitable hour for these occasions? What refreshments are usually served? Is any entertainment necessary?

E.H.

The customary hours for Housewarming or Open House are afternoon hours . . . 4-to-7 the most usual, but often 3-to-6 or even 3-to-7. Saturday or Sunday afternoons, days most convenient for the majority of people, are usually chosen. A simple buffet supper is appropriate for these hours: "tea and or coffee; small, dainty sandwiches with simple fillings (very often the sandwiches are made of various kinds of bread — white, wheat, rye, pumpernickel, raisin, cinnamon, and so forth); small cakes and interesting cookies; and perhaps items for nibbling, such as salted nuts, popcorn, potato-chips, mints or other candies. As an alternative to tea or coffee, any cold beverage may be served. No planned entertainment is necessary — usually the charm of this kind of party is to have a get-together of friends, chat together, to make and receive introductions, and to "view" the housewarming, or show the new house.

HOW LONG TO WAIT BEFORE REMARRYING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For the past fifteen years my husband and I did not live together, and he was under court orders to keep the peace. He died recently. I would like to marry a very fine man I have known for thirty-five years. How long do you think I should wait before remarrying? I have heard it should be three months, but I would like to do the right thing. I am reading your column for guidance, and will do whatever you say.

C.

There isn't any rule about how long you should wait, for it is, necessarily, such a personal question and depends on so many things that only the person most concerned would know about. It is, of course, practically impossible for a stranger to advise definitely the "proper" length of time for a widow to wait until she marries again, but I do think that under practically all conditions, three months would be on the too-short side. If no criticism of your remarrying quite soon is possible (or probable), you might take this important step in six or seven months; if you have a fear of criticism (as you well may have, under the circumstances) you might safely decide to wait a few months longer.

WRITING THAT "BREAD-AND-BUTTER LETTER"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I know that when my husband and I go to spend a week-end, I must write a thank-you letter for our visit. But when we spend only one night as guests, must I then also write a thank-you?

2. We have been invited to spend a week-end soon. In the country home of a long-time friend of mine (my husband doesn't know her very well, because she and I went to college together and she hasn't lived near here until just lately). This friend lives with her mother in her mother's "ancestral home," and I know her mother only slightly. To whom should I write my thank-you note, to my friend or her mother?

Betty J.

1. Yes. . . you must write a thank-you note to your hostess whenever you have spent a night as a guest in a friend's home.

2. Since your friend's mother is the hostess of that home, your first and most important, note should be written to her. Then it would be natural that you also write a note of appreciation to your friend.

NEW PROOF THAT MILLIONS CAN END THE NEED FOR LAXATIVES

With all the progress of medical science over the last 30 years, authorities say there is no longer any reason why irregularity should be our most widespread human malady.

Nor is there any reason for developing the habitual use of harsh laxatives—or dosing with one preparation after another in the vain hope of finding in some pellet or pill, the "secret" of lasting relief.

Large-combined study of the problem has shown that one of the most common causes of irregularity is lack of bulk in the diet. And when this is the case, the common-sense solution is to be sure to include in the drug store but in your food store!

IT HAS LONG BEEN A MEDICALLY RECOGNIZED FACT THAT NATURE HAS PROVIDED, IN THE NATURAL FOODS MEN WERE INTENDED TO EAT, ALL THE ELEMENTS NECESSARY FOR THE LIFE-LONG AVOIDANCE OF COMMON CONSTIPATION.

One of these elements is natural fibrous bulk, or vegetable cellulose, which normally and naturally aids the rhythmic processes of elimination.

In no natural food is this natural bulk so ideally found as in the outer layers, or bran, of the whole wheat kernel which, as you know, is found in modern millfoods.

Millfoods of the known value of bran in promoting regularity the Kellogg Company has produced a complete, delicious cereal with nothing taken away to lessen its effectiveness—and under the name of Kellogg's All-Bran, the natural laxative cereal.

How effective is All-Bran? This has been demonstrated in a series of systematic clinical studies reported in leading medical journals.

In one study, 135 people with known delayed bowel function were given one ounce of All-Bran daily for one week. They then studied clinically and with X-ray with their meals but without All-Bran. Then they ate the All-Bran.

OF THE 128 PEOPLE, 127 SHOWED DEFINITE CLINICAL IMPROVEMENT IN JUST 7 DAYS.

IN A FOLLOW-UP STUDY, BETTER THAN 8 OUT OF 10 PEOPLE WHO WERE GIVEN ALL-BRAN IMPROVED.

The greatest advantage of All-Bran is that it corrects the cause of irregularity due to insufficient bulk. Normal doses of these laxatives, on the other hand, are intended only for overnight relief of a temporary stoppage.

When people use these products habitually—in a way that includes no more nature intended—they punish their digestive system in a way that nature never intended. Instead of correcting the cause, they often actually make their condition worse.

If you think you must take a laxative preparation occasionally, do so. But do it wisely. Read the instructions completely. AVOID EXCESSIVE USAGE. But for natural and normal relief put your trust in nature. Just eat daily a generous serving of All-Bran for breakfast and drink plenty of water.

This All-Bran plan has helped millions to re-establish and to maintain healthful regularity. Why not you?

It Didn't Damage the Tank

When an irresistible force meets a collapsible mass, it's obvious what will happen. And here is a good example. The tank, according to the driver, suddenly refused to respond to the controls and, travelling at 35 mph along a highway at Downey, Cal., knocked down a telephone post, bowled over four automobiles and came to rest on top of this car. The tank — for the record — was not damaged. — Central Press Canadian.

Coroner's Jury Unable to Decide How Girl Died

TORONTO (CP)—The death of hospital technician Helen Boyle, 26, of head injuries suffered in a down-town hospital laboratory the night of Jan. 6, went into the official records as only that as a mystery.

An inquest jury returned an open verdict and said evidence had been conflicting.

Miss Boyle, attractive brunette from the Oshawa area, was found unconscious in her darkened laboratory by colleagues at St. Michael's Hospital. Despite an emergency operation, she died 36 hours later without regaining consciousness.

An inquest was opened a week ago and adjourned until Wednesday night. Altogether, 38 witnesses testified, including medico-legal experts who expressed differing views as to whether Miss Boyle was struck down by an intruder or accidentally fell against the rounded corner of a table.

Chief Coroner Dr. Smirle Lawson suggested three possible verdicts: homicide, accident or open verdict.

Three of the principal witnesses were Dr. Chester McLean, provincial pathologist; Professor Joslyn Rogers, analytical chemist; and Dr. H. Cassbeldt, the brain surgeon who sought to save the girl's life by performing the emergency operation.

The jury, which deliberated 33 minutes, said in its verdict:

"Dr. McLean and Professor Rogers (testified) that in their opinion it would have to be a peculiar fall to give such pathological changes in the skull and brain, and therefore they believe there was possible foul play.

"On the other hand, Dr. Campbell gave in his evidence that he thought it was possible for him to have caused one of the fractures in the vault of the skull while he was using forceps on another fracture, and that the girl came to her death as the result of an accident.

"With such conflicting evidence, we the jury are unable to determine . . . what caused her death . . . and bring in an open verdict."

Sergeant of detectives James Mather was asked by Dr. Lawson if he still suspects foul play.

"I have an open mind in the matter," the officer replied.

Dispose of Last Meat Pile-Up To Canadian Firm

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has disposed of the last of its original 190,000,000-pound meat pile-up.

Officials said Wednesday the agriculture department has accepted the tender of a Canadian firm to purchase the remaining 9,000,000 pounds of canned pork for export.

The agreed purchase price was not disclosed, though it is understood it was about 18 cents a pound, a fraction of the roughly 56-cents-a-pound cost to the government.

The deal marks the end of the government's meat business arising out of the foot-and-mouth disease outbreak early in 1952. The total loss through sales at less than cost may run to more than $50,000,000.

Through price-support programs, the government purchased — total of some 85,000,000 pounds of beef and about 98,000,000 pounds of pork. The surplus was sold in the domestic market as well as in the United States, Britain and other overseas outlets at below cost.

Industry Grows

CHATHAM (CP)—J. F. Parry, chief canning inspector of the department of agriculture, Ottawa, said Wednesday that Canada's canned food industry has grown from a value of $30,958,000 in 1918 to $270,000,000.000.

Mr. Parry, one of the speakers at the one-day convention of Essex and Kent county vegetable growers, said 64,000 spot checks of canned goods were made in 1953, including checks on imported products. About $200,000 worth of olives now were tied up for inspection.

Policemen from Many Cities Attend Civil Defence College

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (CP)—Policemen have taken over the federal government's civil defence college here this week to pool their experience in helping to work out a country-wide plan for large-scale disasters, including an enemy attack.

All day they discuss the police role in civil defence. On the evening the 40 representatives, most of them chief constables, of some 16 forces from Newfoundland to British Columbia divide into eight seminars.

Each group takes a subject, chief constable Walter Mulligan of Vancouver, said in an interview Wednesday night, "kicks it around" and brings in a report the next morning. The reports are to give the college a picture of the "thinking and impressions" of the police officials.

Today the policemen, representing the Ontario provincial police, Quebec provincial police, RCMP and various other city and municipal forces, begin considering the problem of training regular and auxiliary police to handle large-scale problems that would arise in event of a sudden emergency, such as an enemy attack.

NEED MORE MEN

Chief Mulligan estimated that a city like Vancouver, with a normal police force of 700, "in terms of what I know now" would need from 5,000 to 7,000 police in case of a bombing or similar disaster.

He said the "magnitude" of the civil defence problems have been made clear to the conference by Dr. Edward Massey, scientific adviser to federal civil defence authorities in Ottawa.

Wednesday the policemen heard senior staff inspector Frank R. Creasy of the OPP in Toronto outline the emergency rural traffic plan he drew up for Ontario, and Vancouver traffic superintendent Alex Hossiter describe the West Coast city's scheme for handling its traffic in event of disaster.

METHODS DISCUSSED

Inspector Ralph Hansen of the RCMP's identification branch in Ottawa explained methods of identifying disaster victims and F. J. Bailey, a federal civil defence welfare officer in Ottawa, discussed methods of supplying food, clothing and shelter for disaster victims.

The conference, first of several, the college plans of civic heads concerned with civil defence, is being held with the co-operation of the Chief Constables Association of Canada, of which Chief Mulligan is president.

The college has placed "every facility" at the disposal of the police, Chief Mulligan said, but the discussions are "our own show." They are directed by a police panel headed by him.

Admits Fraud

OTTAWA (CP)—Lloyd Bilow, 31, of Winchester, and Ian Smith, 23, Cornwall, Wednesday admitted defrauding a finance company of $2,265 in a series of automobile sale deals.

Bilow pleaded guilty to two charges of defrauding Commercial Credit Corporation, Limited, of $1,665, while Smith, a former Ontario Provincial Police officer, admitted defrauding the same company of $1,100.

Magistrate Glenn Strike remanded Smith to Monday for sentence and Bilow to next Wednesday.

Ontario Plans To Streamline Election Act

TORONTO (CP)—A streamlined version of the Ontario Election Act, calling for a $300 deposit by candidates and an extension of the number of days between the writs for an election and the election day, was outlined Wednesday by a select committee of the legislature.

The first major overhaul of the act in a number of years will be presented to the session of the legislature opening Feb. 11.

At present candidates are not required to make a deposit although federal candidates must do so to the tune of $200.

The committee suggested a minimum of 45 days between the calling of an election and election day. At present is 40 days for winter elections and 37 for fall.

CHANGE ACT

Rather than extend the minimum time to 40 days, as suggested by some provincial officials who said more time was needed because of the system of preparing voters' lists, the committee recommended changes in the Voters' List Act under which the 45-day minimum would be sufficient.

To speed nomination proceedings, the committee recommended that the number of qualified electors who must sign nomination papers be reduced from 100 to 25. Also, the committee recommended that the practice of revising rural voters' lists be eliminated to save time. Another amendment would eliminate the necessity of printing lists.

Instead they could be produced by other methods such as typing.

The advance poll, now available only to those away from home on business, would be extended for use by any person expecting to be absent from his polling district on polling day for any reason, including holidays.

Police Dog Dozes While Housewife Gagged, Robbed

HAMILTON (CP)—A housewife was bound and gagged Wednesday by a thief who forced his way into her home while her police-dog husband slept, their police dog dozed on the stair landing and their two children were watching television in an adjoining room.

The thief escaped with $25.

Mrs. Ernie Snow told police the man came to the front door shortly after 2 p.m. When she answered the door the man pushed her back and muffled her cries with his hand before he forced her along the hall and into the dining room. There he gagged her with a silk scarf and tied her hands with laces he took from her husband's skates.

Soon after the man fled Mrs. Snow's son, Buddy, who had been watching television with his sister, Marie, 5, found his mother.

Constable Snow said he thought his son was playing when he called out: "Mummy's tied up."

"Then it hit me that something was wrong and I don't think I touched many steps on the way downstairs." Snow was unable to find any trace of the thief when he rushed outside.

GEORGETOWN

Dog-Food Manufacturing Is Now Big Business

CALGARY (CP) — Two city firms have found going to the dogs can be big business. Their produce is being lapped up by customers—literally.

.....it appears, has shared his post-war rise in standard-of-living with his traditional best friend, the dog.

Proof is contained in the 12,000,000 cans of dog food turned out annually at the plants of Dr. Ballard Animal Food Products Ltd., and Red Top Ltd., on Calgary's outskirts. Production of the two plants now is valued at nearly $1,200,000 annually, with markets extending from Winnipeg to the West coast.

The present-day dog's life is royal one indeed compared with 1764 Mother Hubbard's hungry pet. Cupboards now are filled with canned meats flavored with liver, chicken, eggs and tomatoes, guaranteed to quell the growls of the most finicial canine.

Manufacturers give two main reasons for the change.

First, more people are living in cities, where heavy road traffic makes life hazardous for wandering dogs. Result is a decline in the number of owners who care little for their pets and an increase in those who keep them off the streets and maintain their health by careful feeding.

Secondly, high meat prices have cut the dogs' supply of table scraps. When owners shop for food specially for their pets, they find canned products far cheaper than liver or hamburger.

Chief ingredient in dog food is horse meat. Manufacturers are keeping wary eyes on the dwindling number of horses available for slaughter. In Alberta it is believed there are enough to keep the dog food industry supplied for several years.

Price of horses, averaging $50 each, has almost tripled in the last five years.

In addition to the meat and various flavorings, dog food products contain beef by-products, cereal, liver oil, bone meal, onions and carrots. A special item for abandoned was a dog food containing chlorophyll, intended to cure or kill the "doggy" smell of house pets. So much chlorophyll was needed that the food would not have been a paying proposition.

Congregational Meeting

MINTO — St. Thomas' annual Vestry meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Colden on Thursday evening. Meeting was opened with prayer. Minutes of last Vestry meeting were read. Miss Edna Tanner acted as Vestry clerk. Canon Brownlie gave a complete resume of his year's work in the parish.

Mr. Ted Preston, rector's warden, presented his report and Mr. John Courtney, people's warden, gave his report and also reported on the cemetery fund.

Miss Edna Tanner reported for the Missionary apportionment fund and also gave W.A. report. All reports showed notable balances and the rector congratulated the congregation of the church. He then appointed Mr. Ted Preston as his warden for 1954 and Mr. John Courtney was then re-elected as People's Warden for 1954. Mr. W. J. Tanner to be delegate to Synod.

Business for new years was discussed.

A vote of thanks was tendered the rector and wardens for their splendid interest given and work done for the benefit of the church during the past year.

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served by Mrs. Colden.

POLICEMAN DIES

After the opening the Queen and the duke separated. As the Queen entered a downtown restaurant for the women's luncheon, crowds broke through police barriers and surged forward. An emergency police cordon held back the solid wedge of excited Australians as they threatened to engulf the entrance of the restaurant.

Ambulance men treated 150 women who fainted.

Blowing kisses and screaming with excitement the co-eds broke through the barriers and ran along within a few yards of the duke, who just grinned at them.

Sydney newspapers have devoted almost their entire issues of up to 64 pages to reports of the royal arrival.

The Sydney Telegraph is running daily two columns headed "home town news for the royal party" containing news of Prince Charles and Princess Anne and of goings-on in London.

FAMILY TIES STRESSED

The Queen told the women's luncheon that modern life tends to weaken the influence of home and family, and "if that influence is weakened in a nation its strength and vitality will go from it."

"It always seemed to me from what I have learned that one of the happiest aspects of life in this country is the enduring strength of home and family.

"Were it not so I cannot believe that Australian manhood would be so renowned as it is for its vigor and self-reliance.

"Pioneer women, by their sacrifice and devotion, brought up their families and created homes under conditions of utmost difficulty and by doing so helped immeasurably to bring Australia to nationhood."

The Sydney Daily Mirror said in a front-page story today that the Queen and the duke are considering the suggestion that the duke visit Australia next year by himself.

The duke's program, as in his visit to Canada scheduled for later this year, would include many of the out-of-the-way places missed on the present royal tour, The Mirror said.

German Immigrant Will Not Leave Her Dog to Join Husband

By KINGSLEY BROWN, Jr.
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP) — A' striking, brown-eyed German immigrant wifes she won't join her husband in Edmonton until her dog is freed from port quarantine here.

"Maybe will die for sure without me," Mrs. Elsie Schelthauer said in an interview Wednesday night.

Mrs. Schelthauer, 36, bought the black-and-white dalmatian to fill a place left in her heart after her father's death six years ago.

She married last July, and her husband, Fred, left three days later for Edmonton, where he now is a $40-a-week hotel cook.

On arrival here late last month Mrs. Schelthauer's dog was placed in detention under immigration rules. An Edmonton veterinary is trying to arrange to ship the dog can be shipped westward without waiting the usual 90 days.

Mrs. Schelthauer, meanwhile, is finding that keeping her vow not to leave Mushie isn't easy.

DOESN'T KNOW SALARY

She is coping with strange foods and sometimes-abrupt customers as a waitress in a downtown lunch counter. on "salary" that she doesn't yet know.

"But I'm sure that I'm losing money," she says, "so I eat only one meal a day." She stays at the YWCA, where she pays $1.50 a night, and the keep for her dog is 75 cents daily. She hopes her salary will be more than $30 weekly.

But she says the sacrifice is worth it, although her husband doesn't appreciate it.

"When papa died six years ago there were only my mother and my sister and I left. And I couldn't sleep nights. I told mama that I wanted a dog.

"When Fred left last year for Canada, I told him that if Mushie couldn't come I wouldn't come. I think he understands but he can't help too much because his salary isn't big and he has an apartment out there.

"But a Dr. Scott is trying to get permission to have Mushie sent to Edmonton soon. He is a veterinary, and my husband has made arrangements with him to look after the dog. I expect to hear from him next week."

Mrs. Schelthauer, who says that the lunch counter proprietor is a "good guy because he stands up for me when I can't understand what the customer wants," spends her spare time with Mushie.

Mrs. Schelthauer was a clerk during and before the war, and later was a waitress in a United States Army canteen in her home town of Augsburg. That's where she met and married Fred, a German soldier who was a prisoner of war in the U.S. and later returned to search unsuccessfully for his family in the Russian sector of Germany.

Jack Dempsey Testifies In Liquor Action

NEW YORK (AP)—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion, testified Wednesday in federal court on behalf of James Rutkin, who is seeking to recover $28,850,000 from the estate of his late partner, Joseph Reinfeld.

Dempsey said he first met Rutkin in 1933, when the pair began negotiations for the Dempsey-Vanderbilt Hotel in Miami, Fla., as a joint venture.

The former champion said that while the deal was pending Rutkin introduced him to Reinfeld and that Rutkin described Reinfeld as his partner. Dempsey added that Reinfeld had agreed to put up the bills of the hotel for five years. Under cross examination by Theodore Kiendl, a lawyer for Reinfeld, Dempsey said that the Dempsey-Vanderbilt Hotel was in operation as much for two or three years and that "it made money" for the venture but about $200,000.

"What work did you do there?" Mr. Kiendl asked.

"I was a greeter and took care of the dining room and the kitchen" Dempsey replied.

HOT AS VACATION

"Did you use the hotel for free lodging and vacations for yourself and your wife?" Kiendl asked.

His face flushing, Dempsey replied, "No, I did not. I went down there to work and I spent a lot of time at it."

"Did you lose anything in the venture?" Kiendl queried.

"I put nothing in and I took nothing out, but my time was worth something," Dempsey answered.

Dempsey said shortly after Rutkin sold his share of the hotel he (Dempsey) resigned his partnership.

Rutkin claims in the suit that Reinfeld conspired with himself to cheat him out of his share in the sale of the L.L. and B. Distillery at Charlottesville, Va.

Reinfeld denies there was any such conspiracy and a previous trial was declared a mistrial last year after jurors received anonymous letters.

Civic Employees In Toronto Ask Increase

TORONTO (CP) — Unions representing 4,500 civic employees Wednesday asked the city for a general 15 per cent wage increase, 50 per cent of which would be the city toward employee hospital care, and better sick leave and vacation plans.

The Toronto Municipal Employees Association and the Toronto Civic Employees, both AFL-TLC unions, made the request to board of control. The unions are bargaining agents for employees with salaries ranging from $1,974 an hour to $7,000 a year. The city's payroll totals $30,000,000 a year.

George Ball, city personnel director, said the wage increase asked would cost the city an additional $2,000,000 a year.

HISTORIC DISASTER

Editor's Note: In this second of three exclusive interviews, Gen. O. P. Weyland, United States air chief in Korea, assesses Communist strength.

By ROBERT EUNSON

TOKYO (AP)—The combined Communist air force in the Far East—Russian, Chinese and North Korean—first came to light in 1950 planes, says Gen. O. P. Weyland, commander of the U. S. Far East Air Forces.

"In an interview, he put Chinese and North Korean strength at 2,000 combat planes, and said the Russians have at least 4,500 more based near Vladivostok, on Sakhalin and in the Kurile Islands.

"A preponderant number of these Soviet planes are fighters," Weyland went on. "But recently the Russians have converted many of their light bombers built to 1949 with the capability of reaching anywhere in Japan.

"They have enough of these bombers to constitute a good weapon, especially if they are carrying the atomic weapon.

"The Russians have converted about 85 per cent of their fighters into jets. They are fighter interceptors, primarily to guard their home bases from attack.

IMPROVED PLANES

"Likewise they have improved their bombers. They are replacing their old piston engine bombers—TU-4, with an IL-28, which is something like our B-45. They are equipped with the capability of reaching anywhere in Japan or Korea.

"Their transport—the air fields around Vladivostok make up "the largest complex of bases in the world.

In addition to the jet bombers, Weyland said the Russians have "an impressive number" of TU-4s, which could be used to drop two or three B-29s that made forced landings in Second World War and were never repaired.

"That amount of aircraft constitutes a definite threat in the Far East," Weyland said, "but all we can do is sit and wait and watch."

When the Korean war started, the North Korean Air Force had not put their planes on the fields of Manchuria and said. Entry of the Chinese into the war brought the MIG-15, the Russian jet fighter interceptor. The first MIG was shot down Nov. 1, 1950. For a time this new Russian jet caused considerable worry in Japan.

ARRIVAL OF SABREJ

A month later, however, Sabres began arriving in Korea and in the first week of combat the F-86s shot down seven MiGs and damaged two more for the loss of one Sabre.

That running fight between the Sabres and the MiGs went on for a long time. Pilots from every top of its Russian rival nearly 14 to one—36 Sabres were lost in air combat in the 20 MiGs.

One question often heard during the Korean war was: Why not bring out the B-36s and six-jet B-47 bombers? Says Weyland:

"The answer is the B-29 was plenty of airplane for Korea, so we didn't need the B-36 and the B-47. The Yalu river on the Manchurian border, 70 miles away, was about the limit of their range, but it wasn't needed since our fighter-bombers and Navy and Korean fighters could hit them with lots of fuel left.

"The B-36 is primarily an atom-bomb carrier, and so fast that it can outrun some types of our fighters—those of the enemy and our own. But like the B-36 it wasn't needed."

Steelworker To Open Bridge

VANCOUVER (CP) — A high-climbing Trail steelworker will snip his rivet gun for a pair of silver scissors today officially to open Canada's highest cantilever bridge.

Charles Geisser was chosen to cut the ribbon on the new $6,000,000 Granville street bridge as a tribute to the steelworkers who installed the 5,000-ton structure across the mud and ooze of False Creek to connect downtown with Kitsilano.

It is the largest bridge built in British Columbia since Lions Gate bridge was opened in 1938.

To begin with, only four lanes will be in use, two reversed tentlines, which will relieve the heart of the business district to the north of the Granville district on the south, will be finished next June.

On completion it will pour an estimated 10,000 cars out of the centre of Canada's third largest city during the evening rush hours.

Want More Money In Grade Crossing Fund

OTTAWA (CP)—Treasury contributions to the federal government's grade crossing fund should be increased substantially, the board of transport commissioners was told Wednesday by several spokesmen in its crossings inquiry.

The suggestions came as the board opened a final series of hearings in its year-long inquiry into the grade crossing problem, directed by the federal government in 1952.

The federal treasury now puts $1,000,000 a year into the crossing fund, used to help finance safety measures at highway - railway crossings. The railways, provinces and municipalities share in the costs.

Suggestions for boosting the size of the federal fund came Wednesday from the two transcontinental railways, the provincial board of Saskatchewan and the municipalities of Toronto, Montreal, Quebec City and Lachine, Que.

The civic bodies made a specific proposal as to the size of the federal contribution, though the Canadian Pacific Railway said it might have to be tripled or quadrupled to take care of various claims for crossing safety advanced during the hearings.

"Perhaps $4,000,000 a year might be a reasonable sum for an extended period," the CPR said in a brief.

The government-owned Canadian National Railways named no specific figure, but said the "substantial" increase might be needed.

Supercharger Being Adapted To Car Engine

DETROIT (AP)—A supercharger is being adapted to a passenger car engine again after a lapse of nearly 25 years.

Kaiser Motors' 1954 model Kaiser Manhattan will have the device as an L-head six cylinder engine.

Kaiser-Frazer and Graham Motors introduced the super-charger principle in 1936 along with the now popular overdrive transmission.

Superchargers have been popular in European cars for many years. One reason probably is that its use requires less than a tax in on the size of the bore in the car's engine. That made high piston displacement cars cheaper to own and drive.

Kaiser expects to gain two major objectives with the supercharger: to retain a high mileage economy for cruising speed and to save time provide a goodly reserve of power for passing, hill climbing and increased top speed.

Justice Holds Crown Not Responsible

OTTAWA (CP) — A reserve army sergeant-major described as "a big, husky fellow" the army truck asked a military hospital ward Wednesday.

The truck, driven by the orderly, hit a cyclist on the road between Montreal and Ste. Anne de Bellevue. The civilian, Joseph Bonin, died in the hospital.

In the Exchequer Court Wednesday, Justice Thibaudeau Fournier — lately federal works minister — ruled that the driver's negligence caused Bonin $6,248 damages but held the crown was not responsible.

Mr. Justice Fournier found that the orderly, Private H. Barrette of the Ste. Anne de Bellevue military hospital, was not under proper orders while operating the truck. He was in the wrong lane.

The justice found that Harrison had been asked to pick up the truck light clerk at the army hospital, reserve army Sgt.-Maj. Robert McCrindle, a witness, told Mr. Fournier described as feeling "too busy to go himself." It was to have been used to bring supplies personnel to a drill hall.

The judge threw out the case because Harrison was only doing his surprise—"like a favor" and was not under army orders."

2 Toronto Youths Committed For Trial in Messenger's Death

BARRIE (CP) — Two slender Toronto youths were committed Wednesday to stand trial for murder in the shooting last Oct. 29 of Fred (Scotty) Cameron, Toronto bookkeeping company messenger whose body was found in a ditch near here Oct. 30.

Ronald Ian Robertson, 21, and William Stephen Kingsley, 18, were committed for trial after a daylong preliminary hearing before Magistrate Gordon Foster.

The youths, both dressed in light blue suits and wearing bow ties, were asked before they were committed whether they had anything to say.

"No," nodding," Robertson replied. Kingsley remained silent.

Relatives and parents of the youths were permitted to speak to them before they were led back in chair. Jail cells. Kingsley's mother kissed him. Robertson's father shook hands with Robertson.

Evidence was that Kingsley and Robertson were questioned by Inspector Alex MacLeod of the Ontario Provincial Police and by Det.-Sgt. Bernard Simmons of the Toronto city police Nov. 5 and Nov. 9 and again on Nov. 25.

STATEMENTS ADMITTED

The officers said that after their arrest both signed statements to the police. Magistrate Foster admitted separated.

the statements as evidence but they were not read in court.

Both officers testified about the taking of the statements.

Sgt. Simmons quoted the bespectacled Kingsley, smaller of the youths, as saying:

"It has been on my mind a long time. I wanted to tell you before. I have not been able to sleep at night for thinking about it."

Inspector MacLeod and Robertson wrote his own statement, by hand after telling the officers:

"I don't know how to start, it's too complicated."

The inspector said he was given information at the time of the arrest that he got in the slaying, believed to be a .32-calibre automatic, thrown over the floor street bridge in Toronto.

FIVE SHOTS FATAL

Det.-Ward Smith, director of the Ontario attorney-general's crime laboratory in Toronto, said Cameron died from five shots fired at close range. He said powder burns on the clothing indicated the muzzle of the gun was about six inches from the victim when at least two of the shots were fired.

Dr. Charles McKean, provincial pathologist who conducted a post mortem examination of the body, said the bullet wounds were widely separated.

Hollywood Gunman Nabbed As He Confesses to Priest

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Three persons were shot and wounded in a Hollywood mob Wednesday night and three hours later heavily armed police closed in on a restaurant hospital and arrested a gunman while he was admitting the shooting to a priest.

While the gunman, identified as Albert Martin, 32, held a gun and talked with the priest for an hour and a half, 15 officers armed with rifles and shotguns took positions at the hospital and stationed themselves outside the priest's office.

The officers kept the gunman under surveillance while he talked for fear of injuring the priest, Rev. Frederick Lamb, hospital chaplain, and other persons in the room. W. H. Parrish of the hospital police force, who was in the room.

While Martin talked the tension mounted. "We were just going to tell him ourselves," one officer arrived

Picture Brings Father and Son Together Again

MONTREAL (CP) — A 29-year-old building contractor stepped out of his office here Wednesday night to go back the years for the father he does not remember.

Twenty-five years ago Edward Vincent Vincent, of Sun Valley, Alaska, then a three-month-old baby vanished with his mother from Manchester, N. H., home.

He came back to greet his son, 33-year-old Ernest Vincent, now a Montreal plasterer's helper.

"It's been a long time," Edward Vincent, the father, said simply. There were tears in his eyes.

The Vincent family broke up shortly after Edward was born. The mother placing the boy in an orphanage. Adopted, he never met foster-parents or the natural parent.

SAW PICTURE

Then his mother died 25 years ago this week. His link with the past was gone, until close family research uncovered a picture in a paper brought father and son together again.

The pair until recently known as Edward Lewis Bormanan, 54, a general contractor in Sun Valley, married with three children.

His wife, Ruth, opened the door to the police when she saw a picture of Robert Vincent, 31, a Korean war veteran, in a Seattle newspaper and was struck by the resemblance between him and her husband.

Expect to Start Power Project In Coming Summer

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—The state power authority Wednesday voiced confidence that it would be able to start digging on the St. Lawrence river hydro-electric project by summer.

In its annual report to the governor and the legislature, the authority said it had scored "a belated triumph, but a real one" in obtaining federal licenses to join the Ontario hydro-electric power commission in the proposed power development.

Noting that opponents of the project still intend to fight the federal licenses in the United States Supreme Court, the authority said:

"We are confident their claims lack substance and we shall be able by next summer to proceed with actual construction."

EARLY FINANCING

It added that "a good welcome for the money market" was expected for a bond issue of $316,000,000 proposed to finance the project on the International rapids section of the river.

The money would be repaid in 50 years with revenues from the sale of power. "The state's credit would thus be used to guarantee the bonds.

"The authority said the construction job would have great economic and social impact on our northern frontier." It promised to report "within a few weeks" on plans to handle the problem, largely "by private enterprise."

The power development would produce an estimated 4,000,000 kilowatt hours of electricity for United States consumers.

BRANDO FILM POSTPONED

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Twentieth Century-Fox studio officials said they have been notified by Marlon Brando's New York physician that the actor is "very sick and confined" and that he will not be able to fulfill his contract for the movie, "The Egyptian." The picture was to have started production today but a postponement was announced until next Monday.

Good Life is for Communists

While the Big Four foreign ministers' conference was in session in East Berlin, news correspondents were allowed to visit and photograph some parts of the Communist-dominated sector. They were brought from the apartment in the western sector. Inside one of the apartments on the street, cameramen found Frau Hegeman, who with telephone, electricity, central heating and low rent, is quite content with her lot.

Frau Hegeman and her mother can sit in comfort to enjoy television in their Stalinalee apartment. But there is a restriction there, distasteful to many Germans. Applicants for apartments there — and the list is long — must be members of the Communist party. And they must submit their mail for examination by the janitor or the building. Stalinalee apartments are the show place of East Berlin. — Central Press Canadian Photos.

Truck Carrying Canadian Army Material Lost

VANCOUVER (CP)—An international search was made today for a missing truck carrying Canadian army material.

Search for the missing highway freight, en route from Edmonton to Vancouver and due here Monday, was centred at Spokane, Wash. The vehicle carried material for an ordnance depot in north Vancouver.

Truck owner Spence Matthews of Vancouver said his driver, Cliff Hamilton of Edmonton, reported from Spokane a week ago that he expected heavy snows to delay his arrival until Monday.

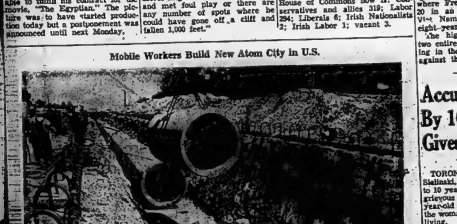
Spokane police said they had been informed that the big yellow truck with its aluminum van was last seen Jan. 26 at Moses Lake, 110 miles west-southwest of Spokane.

"Anything could have happened," Matthews said. "The driver might have stopped to sleep and not had play or there are any number of spots where he could have gone off a cliff and fallen 3,000 feet."

Conservatives Retain Riding Of Ilford

ILFORD, England (CP) — The Conservatives Wednesday handily retained the Ilford riding near London in the 22nd by-election since Winston Churchill was returned to power in the 1951 general election.

Thomas Lascelles Iremonger, cousin of Foreign Secretary Eden, won the parliamentary seat, with 18,354, votes to 9,227 for Labor candidate Tom Swaffer Hardyman.



Liberal G. E. Thornton polled 2,430 votes and lost his deposit.

Bitter cold weather kept the total vote down. Many prospective voters were busy with frozen pipes.

The Conservative majority of 9,127 was 234 votes lower than the party polled when it won the seat in 1951.

Standing in the 625-member House of Commons now is: Conservatives and allies 319; Labor 256; Liberals 6; Nationalists 2; Irish Labor 1; vacant 3.

Mobile Workers Build New Atom City in U.S.

To reach production schedules, work on the world's largest atomic energy installation near Aiken, South Carolina, is maintained on a 24-hour-a-day schedule. When finished, the atom city will be 315 square miles in area, four times that of the U.S. capital, Washington, D.C. Forty thousand workmen, have moved there, bringing their families in trailers and turning the site into a vast mobile city. This scene shows the laying of a section of water conduit, part of the 85 miles of underground piping necessary to supply the atom town with water and sewage disposal. Already 6,000 technicians are at work on atom research and development. — Central Press Canadian.

'Strike It Rich' Show Defies New York Edict

NEW YORK (AP)—New York City's drive against radio-TV giveaway programs that get money from the public was defied Wednesday night by "Strike It Rich," first of the shows to be criticized.

The program went on the air without changing its format or waiting for the licence the welfare department said it should have.

Welfare commissioner Henry J. McCarthy Wednesday declared that "programs like this are a national disgrace" and "play into the hands of the Communists."

The program questions people who tell hard-luck stories. They win prizes by correctly answering a simple quiz, and then people phone in to offer cash, jobs, homes and other aid.

This puts it in the same category as a charity, the welfare department rules, and thus it should be licensed.

LURED RELIEF CASES

McCarthy's fry was directed at "Strike It Rich" because, he said, at least 55 families lured from the precincts of "easy money," have chased the program's rainbow from all over the country right onto New York City's relief rolls.

The welfare department suggested that producer Walter Frumer change the program's format.

Sidney J. DuBrul, the show's public relations man, told a press conference "we do not want to step on Mr. McCarthy's toes (but) we do not feel any laws were being violated."

The city can go to court if it decides the licence and the show goes on anyway.

McCarthy had talked of a report that the show has received $1,000,000 from listeners. The producers insisted the fund has amounted to only a little more than $42,000 in about three years.

'Iron Division' Vietminh Rebels Makes Progress

SAIGON, Indo-China (Reuters)—Communist Vietminh rebels have forced French troops back to their first line of defence within 30 miles northwest of Luangprabang, the royal capital of Laos, the French high command announced tonight.

A French spokesman, commenting on the rapid advance of the rebels' "Iron Division" forces after waiting capital, disclosed that the Communists seized the French stronghold of Sayaboury 50 miles northeast of Luangprabang after it had been evacuated. Earlier it had been announced that the French had beaten off an attack on Mouong Ngoi last Saturday.

Meantime it was learned that an advance reconnaissance unit captured Muong Sai, on the French defence line 60 miles due north of the Laos capital.

TROOPS FLOWN IN

A fleet of transport planes today began rushing thousands of reinforcements from the Red river delta to the threatened capital of King Sisavang Vong. Airlifted troops came from the defence line in the first effort to fly reinforcements to the capital, which has been strongly reinforced since the Vietminh invasion of Laos in last April.

Another new Vietminh threat suddenly grew more menacing today. It came in northern Annam province as French forces landed Jan. 20 in an effort to free 2,000,000 Meo Narrese in the area from eight years of Communist rule.

The high command announced two entire rebel regiments operating in the area tonight might be hurled against the bridgehead.

Accused Stunned By 10-Year Term Given by Court

TORONTO (CP) — Alexander Sielinski, 23, today was sentenced to 10 years in a charge of causing grievous bodily harm to the 2½-year-old son of Mrs. Edna LeBlanc, the woman with whom he had been living.

The child, Paul David LeBlanc, died Jan. 19, 1953 of a haemorrhage and skull fracture.

Sielinski appeared stunned when he heard the sentence. He was convicted Wednesday.

During the trial Sielinski was accused the baby's mother of causing the injuries that led to death. Mrs. LeBlanc in turn accused Sielinski. She said he beat the boy with a two-foot strap.

Mrs. LeBlanc recently completed a year's term in reformatory for failing to provide the necessities of life for the boy.

Pope Resting 'Fairly Well' Says Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Vatican announced today that Pope Pius is continuing to improve from the gastric ailment which has kept him in seclusion since Jan. 26.

Moderately optimistic like all other Vatican press office communiques on the Pope's health, the statement said:

"The improvement of the past several days in the Pope's health continues." It added that he had passed a restful night.

Again this morning the Pope received his pro-secretary of state, Msgr. Giovanni Battista Montini, to study affairs of the church.

The pontiff's private physician, Dr. Riccardo Galeazzi - Lisi, described to comment today after the first of his two regular daily visits.

The lingering nature of the Pope's ailment and his seclusion from all but his closest associates have caused widespread anxiety about his health.

London Papers Take Up Argument On Trade Barriers

By ALAN HARVEY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Two London newspapers today took up the argument over whether Britain should lift trade barriers or put stronger ones in their place.

The New Chronicle, Liberal, supports the Conservative government's action in framing a free trade agreement with Japan.

Lord Beaverbrook's right-wing Daily Express, generally in accord with Conservative policies, sharply criticizes the government's stand.

The issue has caused division of opinion within the Conservative party itself. Last week 42 of Liberal peer defending the Conservative leadership in its efforts to liberalize trade is termed "frankly funny" by The Times.

But R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, and other government leaders stand by the Japanese pact have torn the veil from the Tory party, "once the home of High Protection and hatred of the foreigner."

The Daily Express, which previously called the Japanese agreement a "betrayal," hit out at Butler for his reported statement to a private meeting of Conservative MPs that imperial preference is in effect outmoded.

SUDBURY (CP) — Three Montreal men are scheduled to go on trial for murder in Supreme Court sittings which open here March 15.

The trial comes jointly with the murder of Frank Ascelin, slain near Val Caron Oct. 3.

It is the first panel in the history of the district has been summoned. Notices have been sent to 115 men and 30 women in the city and district.

Trial of Joseph Carver of Montreal on charges of car theft and possession of a stolen car is also scheduled.

Defence Costs Cut

SUDBURY (CP) — Municipalities in the Sudbury district will be charged 8½ cents per capita for civil defence in 1954, the Sudbury and district civil committee decided at their inaugural meeting.

The rate, a reduction of a half-cent from last year, was made possible by a balance of $1,537 carried forward from the previous year. The charge for civil defence in 1953 was 10.5 cents and it covers the six months of operation in 1953.

The committee decided it will not approve municipal financing of civil defence beyond 1954 without federal or provincial help.

Married or Not? Question Facing 25 Couples

FLORHAM PARK, N. J. (AP)—"Are we married or aren't we?"

That's the question 25 couples, whose weddings were performed by a student pastor of the Presbyterian church, are asking themselves today.

The situation came to light when assemblyman William D. Barnes introduced a bill in the Legislature Monday to legalize the marriages retroactively.

The student pastor, John W. Vander Groef, 23, was not an ordained minister of the Presbyterian church at the time he performed the marriages between 1946 and 1952. He had been supply pastor of the church here during that time while continuing his studies at Bloomfield theological seminary.

Under Presbyterian rules, only an ordained minister who is a graduate of a divinity school is granted the privilege of performing marriages. State law says a person must conform to the rules of his church to be entitled to perform a marriage.

Rev. Charles Meade of South Orange, chairman of the Morris and Orange presbytery ministerial relations committee said the whole thing was "purely a matter of misunderstanding."

Meade said Vander Groef did not have a complete understanding of his authority in such matters.

"Naturally, people he married were upset when they heard the news," Meade said. The couples include children of a church elder and several local officials. Many of the couples have children.

A church spokesman said the church will recognize the marriages if the Legislature legalizes Vander Groef's actions.

Vander Groef currently is a student at the Nyack, N. Y., Bible Institute.

Fluoridation Opponent Loses Argument

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Opponents of fluoridation of the city's water supply lost one argument decisively Wednesday evening at a public meeting.

Medical officer of health Dr. John Howie was telling the gathering of 35 persons that fluoridated water has no taste.

Robert Dugal, most outspoken opponent of fluoridation at the meeting, shouted that this statement was not true. Fluoridated water has a definite taste, Mr. Dugal contended.

Controller Robert M. Fuller, chairman, then pointed out that at that very hour Mr. Dugal was drinking water with fluorine in it.

Unknown to anyone present, Controller Fuller had brought fluorinated water from Stratford and placed it in the water jugs of city council chambers. Those attending, including Mr. Dugal, had been drinking the water all evening. It had no taste.

Little Benny's Note Book

I went in the house to see if dinner was ready, which it wasn't on account of pop not even being home yet, and ma said, How do I look, Benny?

Why, ma, dont you feel good? I said, and she said, Of course, silly. I mean my hair. I had it done a new way today. Thank goodness your father is a little more observant than you are. The hairdresser told me this combination of bangs and horse bob is the very latest style, and he assured me the men will rave about it, she said.

Oh, now I notice it, ma, it makes you look young. I said and ma said, Really, do you think so?

Sure, you look about 12 years old I said, and ma said, Goodness!

Which just then pop came home, saying, Congratulations, my dear.

William, you noticed it right away, ma said, and pop said, How could I help it, it's a grate surprise. Well when you say grate I hope you meen pleasant, ma said, and pop said, Well I should say so.

Everybody says it's a perfect combination, ma said, and pop said, Corn beef and cabbage? Well father, I smelt it even before I opened the frunt door. When do we eat? he said.

Which just then he noticed me in back of ma pointing up at her hair, and he spoke about the subject, saying, Oh well, I see I cant fool you, my dear, Your new hair takes first prize as far as I'm concerned, he said, and ma said, I'm glad to hear it, but that wasn't my funny, William. I was just giddy to throw the corn beef and cabbage out of the house and follow it myself, she said.

The result being pop had to tell her about 4 more times how swell her hair looked.

"FIVE MORE MINUTES"!

Sedentious it seems there "just ain't no justice." If ever a team made a fighting comeback against what seemed unbeatable odds it was the Monroe in the Battle of the Sneg with the Kingston Goodyears last night. Down 7-4, going into the final set of this hockey drama, the Monroe skated, checked and thumped the Goodies deep in their own ice to rap in four goals while the best the hometown gladiators could do was a single.

Without even suggesting an alibi, the Monroe were minus the services of defencemen Bob Taylor and Doug Barieda, who missed the bus. To add to their woes Vern Geyer disagreed with a penalty given Peter Jones and informed Referee Jim Cromble that he thought it was of the cheap variety. His Nibs objected to the verbal interference and promptly tabbed the big fella with a match-misconduct sentence.

The Goodies grabbed a 2-1 lead in the first period that was ragged at the edge, the first one coming in 53 seconds. The league and calibre increased in the second set and the Goodies again struck quickly hitting the home after 34 seconds had ticked by. Upwards of 2300 fans settled down for what appeared to be another easy Kingston win when the scoreboard read 7-4 at the end of the bout.

But, they hadn't reckoned with our side. The Monroe skrunk back nearly. They ripped home four goals and probably would have gone over the hump had Old Man Time not intervened. They had the Goodies' tongues flopping on their cheeks and the final sitting on the inches of seat.

The win put the Goodies up in second spot all alone with 24 points, three behind the pace-setting Oshawa Truckmen and Peterborough Petes, who are glaring at each other astride the top perch with 26 points. Orillia is in third spot with 20 and our side follows with 22.

NEW BOWLING TOURNEY!

You can't keep these bowlers down. The tremendous upsurge of the bowling game during the past few years has resulted in an important milestone in the history of the sport. For the first time in the game's history bowlers will screen Canada will have the opportunity of rolling off with the eventual Canadian championship as the goal.

The Molson Company made this known recently with the announcement that it hopes soon to hold a national bowling championship somewhat similar to the McDonald Brier of the curling world.

The Molson Bowling Classic includes all bowlers of both sexes. There are three classifications, ladies' singles, men's singles and men's team. Each bowler after interested in the plan will be allowed to send 25 per cent of those entered to a zone roll-off which in this district's case will take place at Belleville for the ladies and Brockville for the men. The teams will play at Kingston. Out of this playoff will come the high lady, high man and high men's team, which will represent the district in an all-Ontario roll-off, which will be held at the Sportsmen's Show in Toronto during the week of March 15-20. Ontario has been divided into 12 regions. The regional winner will pick up $50 and get another fifty in Toronto.

The regional final for the men's division is being held in Brockville on February 20. The winner will get his fifty bucks and have a crack at the $500 first prize in Toronto. Second prize is $300, third and fourth, $200; fifth and sixth, $100, seventh and eighth, $75, and ninth to twelfth, $50.

The winning team at Toronto will be awarded a $1,000 prize. Regional winners will win $150 plus their Toronto winnings. This will be a handicap affair and bowlers will have a 180 per cent handicap on the difference between his average as of January 30 and 200. This will level all teams off (even the top Toronto teams) and give all a chance of winning.

The tournament is sanctioned by the new National Bowling Council and will use rules as laid down by that organization. Teams and individuals interested in taking part in this tremendous tournament are asked to contact Bill Saleman at the Bowl-O-Drome for further information and entry forms.

PLAY OR PAY!

Coach Ernie Dickens, of the Oshawa Truckmen, doesn't believe in fooling. You're either going to play or pay for the Motor City mentor. The other night after the Truckies had been given a fancy shellacking by the Kingston Goodyears, Dickens hit his players where it hurt the most. Smack-dab in the wallet.

Dickens fined the entire squad, including himself and denied them "certain perfumes." That the pocket correction had good effects is seen in the Truckmen's 5-5 victory over the Orillia Pontiacs in the Lake Couchiching town on Tuesday night.

Johnny Lattner Won't Play in Canada Signs Contract With Pittsburgh Team

PITTSBURGH (AP)—All-American halfback Johnny Lattner of Notre Dame has decided against going to Canada and signed a contract with Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League, the club announced today.

The Steelers declined to disclose the cash terms of the contract with their No. 1 draft choice. A club spokesman said Lattner was signed Wednesday night by head coach Joe Bach at the South Bend, Ind., home of Julius Tucker, a close friend of Lattner's who has acted as an unofficial agent for several Notre Dame players in the past.

The spokesman said the Steelers were elated to have signed the 21-year-old Chicagoan athlete who revealed previously an had received two tentative offers from represen-two tentative offers from representa- Vancouver and Ottawa were reportedly interested in signing him.

HAPPY IN NFL

Lattner was quoted as saying he was "overwhelmingly happy" to get a crack at the NFL and Steeler representatives said he undoubtedly would play at least one NFL season with the club before being drafted into military service. Lattner, a senior at Notre Dame, is a reserve officer student.

The all-America halfback has won numerous awards for his stellar gridd performances with the Irish. He led collegiate players in kick-off returns last year with a 41-yard average, was second on his squad in rushing with 134 carries for 631 yards and the second highest Notre Dame scorer in good shape now.

Smythemen Have Yet to Win Over Habitants in Montreal; Bruins Need Win Over Wings

By JIM BARTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Leo Lajoie, who liked to throw his 176 pounds around in the amateurs, has become one of the most promising scorers in the National Hockey League since he overcame the urge to make clay pigeons out of opposing players.

But that doesn't mean I'm a sissy," the peppery little centre says. "I may not be going after the boys as much as I used to but don't get the idea that I'm going soft."

Boston Bruins, who signed Lajoie while he was carrying a chip on his shoulder and scoring plenty of goals as a junior with Barrie Flyers in the Ontario Hockey Association, were happy to see him hold his own in the big league when he was brought up two years ago. They were delighted when he concentrated on the nets this season.

"All he needs is steadiness," says coach Lynn Patrick. "He has just about everything else."

In 49 games this season, Lajoie has scored 19 goals and 11 assists for the fourth-place Bruins. That is two more goals than he had in 70 games last year. He is 15 ifts during the 1951-52 season, he had two goals.

PLAY WINGS TONIGHT

The 22-year-old native of Haileybury, Ont., will be with the Bruins tonight when they meet the league-leading Detroit Red Wings in a game that may have a big part in the race for the fourth and last playoff sbrth for the Stanley Cup championships.

The Bruins, who have won 21 games and tied six this season, are only three points ahead of the fifth-place New York Rangers.

In two other games tonight, the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs entertain the Montreal Canadiens in a game between the second-place Canadiens and the Rangers clash with the last-place Black Hawks in Chicago.

They have 24 wins and eight ties in 47 games but need two points in the Montreal Forum. They lost four games in Montreal and scored only five goals, as against 16 tallied by Canadiens.

A victory would give Toronto 30 points, one more than Montreal.

Cullen Extends Scoring Lead In Junior Loop

TORONTO (CP)—Brian Cullen, St. Catharines TeePees' high-scoring forward, increased his point total in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series last week to 112, official figures which include games up to Jan. 31, show.

Willie Troy KO's His Boy

DETROIT (AP) — Smart Willie Troy, a veteran, secured his position as seventh ranking middleweight by knocking out Detroit's Moses Ward at 2:21 of the eighth round Wednesday night.

Referee Lou Jallos never had an easier time of it. Not satisfied he have to step between the two fighters. He hardest assignment was to hold Ward over Troy's limp body and then trying to haul him to his feet.

A left and right put Ward down for good, but he was a victim of exhaustion more than anything else. He simply punched himself out as his defeat put a damper for the time being at least on his dream of going into big time. It was the first time the young Detroiter had ever been floored.

Troy, who weighed 159½ to Ward's 162, was tired at the end as he scored his seventh straight knockout.

Remember When

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The hockey world was stricken by the death of Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey League, 11 years ago today. Calder had been secretary of the old National Hockey Association for several years before he was elected president of the new NHL in 1917. He collapsed at a league meeting in Toronto a week before his death in Montreal.

Merle Hapes May Coach Kitchener ORFU

HAMILTON (CP)—Merle Hapes, named as possible successor to Jimmy Tuttle as coach of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, said Wednesday night "he either the Dutchies nor myself has made any commitment."

J. F. (Spike) Kearns, president of the Kitchener club, hinted earlier he expects to announce the signing as head coach of a veteran of seven years in National Football League warfare, "who is familiar with our Canadian game."

Hapes fits the bill, with his pro background as a New York Giant, and he said he has talked with Kearns.

"But we didn't agree on anything at the time. I told him I was interested and he told me he'd let me know after the week-end, when he talked with another prospect."

Kearns made his announcement to coincide with plans for a Kitchener Quarterback Club rally Feb. 15.

Another possibility is reported to be Harvey Duff of Hamilton, 1952 Hamilton Tiger-Cat backfield coach and former National League star. Johnson is also said to meet all the requirements.

Lyndhurst Drub Davos 13-4 In Exhibition

DAVOS, Switzerland (Reuters)—Toronto East York Lyndhurst, Canada's entry in the forthcoming world hockey championships at Stockholm, Wednesday defeated Davos 13-4. The Canadians dominated play throughout.

Moe Galand, 22-year-old right winger, scored three goals for the Lyndhurst Bob Kennedy, Earl Clements and John Petro each scored two; Norm Grey, Russ Robertson, Red Sprague and Vic Sluce each tallied once.

The Davos team opened the last period by scoring two quick goals. Lyndhurst then launched an all-out, attack which gained them seven goals in 12 minutes.

The Canadians now go to Basle where they will play a Swiss team Friday.

Himes Rink Wins Division

GALT (CP)—A Galt rink skipped by Norm Himes, former National Hockey League star with the old New York Americans, defeated another Galt starter, Murray Jack Patrick, to win No. 3 division in the playoffs for the Ontario single rink curling championship.

Himes crew meet other divisional winners Feb. 10-13 at Orillia in the Ontario playdown. The Ontario champions will then move into the Canadian championships next month in Edmonton.

Himes rink defeated W. Horner's Galt rink in the first round 8-6 and edged out E. Hewitt's Kitchener squad 10-9 in the quarter-final. Then the rink—which with the exception of second Fred Perry has been playing together for two years—nudged out veteran Carroll Mc-Cune of Galt 9-8 to enter the finals.

The Paris boys were given a bye in the first round then defeated rinks skipped by Ev Brown of Galt and Fred Jones of Guelph to enter the final.

Junior Canadiens Edge Marlboros, Frontenacs Whip Barrie; Cubs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton was the only one of three Ontario junior hockey teams to come out on top in battles with Quebec clubs Wednesday night.

A 9-3 win for the Cubs over Jonquiere Marquis boosted them out of a three-way, last-place tie in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings and within two points of fifth-place Barrie Flyers. The Barrie Flyers fell to a 6-4 defeat at the hands of Quebec Frontenacs.

In the third interlocking schedule game between the Ontario loop and the Quebec Junior Hockey League, Toronto Marlboros were edged 3-2 by Canadiens at Montreal. A win for Marlboros would have given them a top-spot tie with St. Catharines TeePees.

ELEVEN PENALTIES

Referee Bill Divorski handed Marquis seven minor penalties, a match misconduct, two misconducts and a major. Hamilton got 10 minors, and a major.

Brian Kilrea and Ed Loutit led Hamilton with two goals each. Real Larouche, Cummy Burton, Bill Stewart, Joe Zorica and Ted Redgate got singles.

Fred Carter, Gaston Bordeleau and Jacques Guyne scored for Jonquiere.

Barry Hayton of Hamilton and Fred Carter of Marquis came to blows in the last minute. Earlier, Jonquiere was given two misconducts for banging the boards with their sticks.

The defeat for Flyers was their third successive loss on home ice. Frontenac scorers were Fernand Rochette, with two; Mike Hamelin, Maurice Mantha, George Faulkner and Richard Bouchard.

Barrie marksmen were Bob McNeil, Tommy Wilson, Danny Foldi and Ron Morrison.

FRONOVOST GETS WINNER

A goal by Andre Fronovost with only 19 seconds remaining gave Canadiens their victory over Marlboros.

The other Montreal goals were chalked up by Phil Goyette and Claude Bolleau.

No games are scheduled for tonight. Three games Friday will ere Quebec at Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts; Jonquiere at Guelph Biltmores; Montreal at Hamilton and St. Catharines TeePees at Barrie.

Memos Lose Heartbreaker, To Kingston Goodyears 8-7

Trailing 7-4 in Third Period Memos Stage Fighting Rally; Almost Overcome Big Margin

KINGSTON—Belleville's battling, but apparently distanced, Memos went down with colours flying when Goodyears edged them by 8 to 7 in the Community Memorial Centre and gained sole possession of third place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior 'B' group standing. It was a close fit and most of the 2,823 fans in attendance experienced sounds anxiety when the visitors rallied and scored three successive goals late in the third period.

During the first two periods it appeared that Goodyears would record one of their most decisive triumphs of the campaign, while they raced to a 7 to 3 advantage over 2; matches that had shaded the Yellowjacket Parks 4 to 3 in overtime the previous evening. With less than six minutes to go the champions held an 8 to 4 lead but the Memos refused to surrender and they provided a sensational climax when Erwin Duncan, Jack Wardhaugh and Pete Jones scored three successive goals and left the outcome in doubt.

NIGHTMARE FOR GOALIE

That "comeback" drive by the Belles, who are finishing strong, odds in their efforts to approach the first and playoff division, was somewhat of a nightmare to goalkeeper Ken Johnson and his protectors, Wilbert Erwin Duncan's counter at 14.52 after a breakthrough by Vernon Coyer. Duncan's sentence for allegedly berating referee Jim Donnelly with a stick appeared that serious trouble would develop.

Goyer allegedly showed the referee and Cromble promptly inflicted a five minute misconduct penalty. From the press box it appeared that Cromble had struck the official. To say that the argument was heated is to state the case mildly.

Don Murray, who got two goals and as many assists, and the goal-getters but Erwin Duncan of the Memos captured "scorer" honors when he performed the hat trick.

Jack White, with a goal and two assists, and Tommy Goodfellow, with three assists, were others who scintillated, while the usually destructive George MacGregor was turned away empty handed.

One unique feature about the duel was the fact that goalkeeper Rolly Sarrault was penalized twice a seasonal record. His second offence was, however, accidental in that in his haste to return to action late in the game as a replacement for an extra forward he became the seventh Belleville man on the ice.

Many of the fans had not reached their seats when Clint Tinkess opened the scoring at 53 seconds after the initial face-off. The swift attack was engineered by wily Don Murray who put Tinkess in the clear with a long rink wide pass. Goodyears struck again at the 10.13 mark on a shot by Jack McKeown, the while Ted DeGray sat on the penalty bench.

In the fast going Bob Lundy, Tommy Goodfellow, Ed Duncan and Sarrault were penalized and it was while Wardhaugh served Servault's sentence that "Duke" Doran, aided by "Red" Doran, tallied at 19.08. Goodyears held a perceptible margin in superiority during the period.

SCORE EARLY.

Jack White launched the first attack in the middle session, and relayed the puck to Murray who scored in a space of 30 seconds. Then at 3.48 Doran, aided by Jack McKeown, made it 4 to 1. At that stage it appeared that the Belles were doomed, but they rallied and Erwin Duncan beat Johnson with a fast, low shot after taking a pass from Coyer.

Goodyears reported in a hurry when White hit the webbing at 7.56. Five minutes later Joey Cailly made it 6 to 3 and "Red" Ohlke and Walter Gerow each earned an assist. Gerow, making his seasonal debut, looked smart during that fast action. The visitors hung on grimly and were rewarded when Wardhaugh tallied at 17.32, but in a space of 16 seconds Murray got that one back after having attacked in conjunction with White and Goodfellow.

"Red" Doran and White tangled and drew majors, while "Pete" Jones and Goodfellow, who intervened, each got a minor. As a result, two around the ice of Referee Cromble, was ordered to depart and was assisted on route by a policeman.

Erwin Duncan, who took a pass from fiery "Red" Doran, finished the scoring light at 3.54 in the final session and Cleray Cluley equalized at 7.52. During 5: Goodyear rush Keith MacDonald fouled the puck-carrier and although the referees appeared to have raised him in the jamming he departed voluntarily to the penitents' pew. There he was joined one minute later by Jackie Wardhaugh.

Goodyears scored a goal while their foes were shorthanded, but it was ruled illegal. Over the rest of the route the Memos were in the ascendency and this notwithstanding the enforced absence of Vernon Coyer. It was a remarkable "comeback" in view of existing circumstances. They got three goals in less than four minutes but when, in desperation, they were seeking the equalizer Sarrault drew his second penalty and Belleville's chances were erased.

The teams:

Belleville,— Goal, Sarrault; defence, Coyer and Semark; centre, Tinkess; wings, Murray and DeGray; alternates, Wash, Day, D. Doran, Wardhaugh, Erwin Duncan, Ed. Duncan, D. Jones and MacDonald.

Kingston,— Goal, Johnson; defence, Lundy and Nicholson; centre, Murray; wings, Thom and White; alternates, Goodfellow and McKeown, Cailin, MacGregor, Ohlke, Gerow, Olinski and Stewart.

THOMSON AGREES ON SALARY

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Outfielder Bobby Thomson, obtained in a trade with New York Giants three days ago, agreed to 1954 salary terms with Milwaukee Braves Wednesday.

General manager John Quinn said he telephoned Thomson at his Staten Island, N.Y., home and reached a verbal agreement with the 30-year-old outfielder.

Quinn declined to discuss terms. The best guess was that Thomson will receive nearly $25,000, which he is believed to have been paid by the Giants last season.

Next Stop Phoenix For Golf Crowd

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—The touring golf brigade made its annual stop here today in what appears to be a wide-open chase for the $10,...00 Phoenix open championship.

The tournament, to run through Sunday, will be the conventional 72-hole medal play with 143 in the field.

Although he hasn't been doing too much lately in California tournaments, Lloyd Mangrum of Niles, Ill., remains the sentimental favorite. Mangrum has triumphed two years running here and if he succeeds again he will establish an all-time record in Phoenix.

Just about everybody except Ben Hogan and the injured Dutch Harrison lined up at the starting tee this morning.

In contention are such standouts as Fred Haas Jr., winner at Palm Springs, Calif., last Sunday; Bo Winiger, co-champion in the same tournament; Fred Wampler, victor in the Los Angeles open; Jim Demaret, Cary Middlecoff, Lew Worsham, Doug Ford, Walter Burkemo, Ed Oliver, Julius Boros, Jim Ferrier and Dave Douglas, among others.

Balding and Bud Holscher, White Plains, N.Y., each registered 256 over the Phoenix Country Club course for the lowest scores of the day.

CANADIAN WINS

DETROIT (CP)—One Brantford fighter won and two other Canadians lost Wednesday night in preliminary boxing matches at the Motor City Arena.

Joe Clark, 140½, of Brantford, outpointed Chet Wiley, 143½, of Detroit in a four-round preliminary.

Dave Anderson, 135½, of Detroit, outpointed Jim Charrette, 133½ of Windsor in four rounds. Eddie Smith, 135, of Galt, Ont., outpointed Gordon Wallace, 134½, of Brantford, in six rounds.

Bisons Bump Providence 2-1; Hornets Win

Buffalo Bisons increased their first-place lead in the American Hockey League Wednesday when they edged the last-place Providence Reds 3-1 at Providence.

Pittsburgh Hornets trounced Syracuse Warriors 6-1 at home.

Defenceman Bert Bourcier scored for Providence and Ed Slowinski and Don Marshall for Bisons.

Dutchies Extend Lead Over Mercurys, Whip Falls as Indians Nip Maroons

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was no surprise that Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, pace-setters of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A group, defeated lowly Niagara Falls Cataracts.

The surprise was that the Dutchmen had to battle for more than two periods before they could break through the tough defence set up by the last-place Cataracts.

After they found the combination, Dutchmen dashed through three more times in shut out Niagara Falls 4-0 at Kitchener.

The victory gives Kitchener a four-point edge over second place Stratford Kroehl Mercurys. Dutchies are 10 points behind sixth-place Chatham Maroons.

Meanwhile, the Maroons missed a chance to crowd into a fifth-place tie with Hamilton Indians when the Indians downed them 4-1 at Stratford.

SCORES FIVE GOALS

In a Northern Ontario Hockey Association Southern group Soo Greyhounds scored an 8-1 win over Pembroke Lumber Kings. Lefty winger Jimmy McSherry scored five goals.

At Kitchener, Ken Laufman, Joe Schertzi, Art Hurst and Doug Verity scored for the home town team.

Chatham's lone goal was scored by Danny Blair and Stratford marksmen were Ron Ingram, Billy Pirie, Lou Bendo and Ted Petrick.

McBurney's five goals equalled the mark set by North Bay's Fred Wilson with a 7-1 1952, when he scored five goals in a NOHA game with Sudbury Miners.

Terry Blocedi, Jimmy Johnston and Johnny Ortolani were the other Greyhound scorers. Lionel Barber tallied for Pembroke.

Owen Sound Mercurys will play Hamilton Tigers at Hamilton.

AT THE BELLE

Revolutionary New Dimensional Process Is Employed by Lloyd Douglas Masterpiece

"The Robe," in CinemaScope already hailed as a milestone in motion picture history, is scheduled to have its glittering first showing in Belleville, tomorrow, at the Belle Theatre. The world premiere at the Roxy Theatre in New York City climaxed the most extraordinary attention paid any movie since the advent of sound, accountable both to the prominence of the subject, "The Robe," and the introduction of the new revolutionary process, Cinema Scope. This new medium utilizes an anamorphic lens, stereophonic sound and the new Wallace mirror screen to achieve vast dimension, brilliance of detail and hitherto unknown brilliance. Without being required to wear glasses, the viewer is said to be engulfed by the picture in vividness in CinemaScope.

The selection of "The Robe," surely one of the most eagerly awaited properties in filmdom's history, as the initial project for CinemaScope, was the master stroke of Darryl F. Zanuck, production chief of Twentieth Century-Fox, and the film's producer, Frank Ross. Mr. Ross has cherished the aspiration of bringing "The Robe" to the screen ever since he purchased the film rights from the author of the widely-read novel, the late Lloyd C. Douglas, after reading the galley proofs some twelve years ago.

Nothing was spared in making mated $25,000, same as for 1953.

Pt. Anne Defeats Marmora 7-4 To Extend Lead

The Point Anne Comentmen strengthened their grip on first place in the Southern division of the Trent Valley Hockey League here last night when they handed the Marmora Millionaires a 7-4 defeat.

The Ox Pointers took a 5-3 lead at half time of the second period with two goals in seven seconds by Leo Goyer and Tim Williams and they never relinquished their lead. They added another pair in the final twenty minutes with a single reply from the out played Millionaires.

Billy Strachan shot his team out front at 1.34 of the opening period and John Green made it 2-0 two minutes later. K. Trumble put Marmora back in the game after seven minutes of play when he broke in on Tws. The goaltender slid out to meet him, fell down and Trumble pushed the puck into the open net. Mantle tied it up on a nice pass play with Jones and that's the way the period ended.

Bob Hunter made it 3-2 in the Pointers favor at the 5 second mark but Ernie Trumble knotted the score once more. Green got two fast goals by Williams and Goyer to complete the scoring for that period.

Marmora drew within one goal of tying it when K. Trumble banged in his second goal of the night on a solo effort at the 50 second mark. Williams then notched his namesake two goal effort with Goyer assisting and completed the hat trick at 10.16 with Marmora a man short.

Playing coach Tommy Williams led his Marmora Millionaires with a trio of goals and two assists. Leo Goyer had one and added a pair of helpers. K. Trumble was the pick of the visitors with a pair of goals. Leonard gave the defense a steady old Pete Green of the winners.

Six penalties were handed out, four coming in the middle stanza. All were of minor variety with Point Anne drawing four of the six.

Senators Blank Chicoutimi 5-0; Braves Nip Aces

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa Senators moved into a third place tie in the Quebec Hockey League on Wednesday by trouncing the leading Chicoutimi Saguenens 5-0 at home.

Chicoutimi lost a chance to pull out of a two-way tie for top spot with Montreal Royals, who were not in action. Ottawa now is tied with Sherbrooke Saints for third 2-3 with last-place Springfield.

Valleyfield Braves consolidated their hold on fifth place by edging Quebec Aces 3-1.

The Ottawa victory gave Ray Frederick his eighth shutout. Defencemen Johnny Arundel scored two goals for the winners while Phil Maloney, Leo Gravelle and Jim Johnson counted singles.

At Springfield, goalies John Henderson of the Indians and Gerry Colnoic of Sherbrooke, were stand-outs in an evenly-matched game. Gilles Dube counted twice for Sherbrooke while Hartley Lelend and Johnny Robenic were the Springfield marksmen.

NO MARCH TITLE FIGHT

NEW YORK (AP)—The International Boxing Club said Wednesday Rocky Marciano will not defend his heavyweight title before June.

"There will be no title fight in March," Jersey Goodman, IBC publicity man, announced. "After discussions with Al Weill, Marciano's manager, it's been decided that Marciano won't fight again until the summer and his opponent is indefinite."

There had been talk that Marciano might meet Dan Bucceroni in March. Ezzard Charles also has been mentioned as a likely opponent.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, FEB. 5, 1954.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Because of previous decisions you may have to retrace your steps or right some matters. Don't hesitate to do what's to be done peacefully and past errors will be forgotten. Curb extravagance.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Some exciting realizations in business, professional and social affairs. Enlivening rays in morning. Anything beyond comprehension will need revised appraisal however.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Accent on care in personal and business confidences. Avoid emotionalism, unwise situations; sidestep them firmly. Avoid gossip.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — The feeling that everything will be okay, is in the air. But the wise will not succumb either to overconfidence or a listless attitude. Clear thinking and action are still needed.

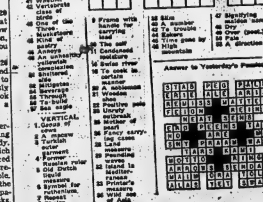
July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — A period much like that of Cancer —especially in the early hours. Mark time, be tactful in making commitments, matters related to distant persons. Things worth while needn't be hurried.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Today is charged with emotional excitement which could affect personal, business and government affairs. Self-control will be needed. Talk, think and act calmly.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Expectations may be only partially realized, but that in itself is excellent. Imagination soars high at times, so be cautious. There is some aggression to combat.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Study your outlook. It may be difficult to know at first what is real and what is fantasy. The thoughtful Scorpio native will discern the proper road to follow.

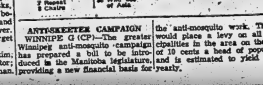
November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Though the source of stimulation and aggression is not wholly in your hands you can gain from them appreciably. Benefits are possible through friends, partners.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Avoid over-aggressiveness, dissension—except where principle is threatened. Don't make mistakes of judgment through speed. Indications same as for Scorpio now.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—A subtle trend that tends to confuse. Deliberate, know what you are about. Shun tension, anxiety. They are not good for you or your interests.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—As pace picks up (and it should today), over-eagerness to consolidate programs previously started could end you overlooking important details. Self-control, a clear mind will win.



YOU BORN TODAY have a versatile mind and, all things being normal, a generally healthy body. Aquarius is under Uranus, which signifies new methods, advanced thinking, to discover invention, science, dealing with people. You think for the good of the whole, are faithful to your occupation and do not mind tedious tasks, but feel disappointed when you believe you have done your best and it isn't appreciated. Never waver, go on to your high goals and forget others' indifference.

Birthdate of Sir Hiram Maxim, Anglo-American engineer and inventor; Sir Rob't Peel, English statesman.

Weak Nervous Stomach Limbs, Back Pained Badly
Woman Tells of Good Results She Got by taking Syntona Herbal Compound "I Feel Better Than Ever Before", She Says.
To people who suffer from stomach disorders, constipation, nervous, rundown feeling and aches and pains the immediate answer will be of special interest. It is the typical of the many and women who have found relief by using Syntona Herbal Medicine. Mrs. Evelyn Cragg, 68 Weston Street, London, Ontario, reported recently:
Almost Afraid to Eat
"I suffered from a weak, nervous upset stomach and my entire system became rundown. After my meals I would get such awful indigestion, and dizzy spells that I was almost afraid to eat. Sometimes I would get a real stomach vomiting heartburn and fainting and cramps. I was subject to throbbing headaches and my back, limbs and joints were sore and painful. My constipation was very severe and I was afraid I would have a nervous breakdown. I felt fatigued and worried.
I Felt Better in 1 Week
"After reading about Syntona I decided to try it and in one week's time I noticed a remarkable improvement. I was so much better that I kept on using it and now I feel better than I ever felt in all my life. I enjoy my meals without any distress afterwards. Sluggish, dizzy feelings and the aches and pains have gone away and my nerves are calmed down so that I have no trouble getting to sleep at night.
MRS. EVELYN CRAGG
How It Acts
Syntona is made from 12 herbs and roots that act on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels to help them to function properly. It helps to clear impurities from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for building strength and energy.
Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Delan The Druggist.

Aga Khan at Platinum Jubilee

Followed by his wife, the Begum, the Aga Khan is shown as he was assisted from the plane that flew him from Europe to Karachi, Pakistan, for his platinum jubilee. The occasion marks the Aga's completion of 70 years as the spiritual leader of the Ismaili Moslef sect. He is 78 years old. Part of the jubilee celebration was the ceremonial weighing of the Aga, in which he was given a pound of platinum for every 14 pounds of his weight. He immediately gave the platinum to charitable institutions. — Central Press Canadian.

LIBERALS DEFEAT MOVE TO SHELVE POSTAGE BILL

Charged Dept. Medium Of Political Patronage

OTTAWA (CP)—The post office department has been described as a "medium of political patronage."

Alistair Stewart (CCF—Winnipeg North) made the charge Thursday during Commons debate on a government measure to increase first-class postal rates by one cent to ounce April 1.

He said owners of two drug stores in Winnipeg were asked to contribute to Liberal party funds for the privilege of saving sub post offices in their stores.

Liberals defeated a combined opposition attempt to shelve the bill in favor of a parliamentary inquiry into the increase. A CCF motion to that effect was defeated 110 to 73, all three opposition parties—Social Credit, CCF and Labor Besaez) voting against the government.

Debate on the bill continues today.

Mr. Stewart said that in North Winnipeg the usual price for the privilege of operating a sub post office is between $200 and $300.

A "PROMINENT LIBERAL"

The owner of one drug store contacted by Mr. Stewart had been told by "one of the prominent Liberals behind the Liberal party in Winnipeg" that he could avoid a possible change if he paid $1,000.

Mr. Stewart said the Liberal candidate in Provencher riding had told the store-owner he must remove a Conservative poster from his window if he wanted the sub post office.

The CCF member moved a motion for a parliamentary inquiry into post office department operations and said a 25-per-cent increase in letter rates requires an investigation of "what is going on in the department."

Solicitor-General Beaudoin later ruled this motion out of order.

The government's measure calls for increasing the cost of a one-ounce letter to Canada from five for mailings between postal districts and for over-seas countries for mailings within a postal district.

Premier Frost said.

The government proposes to eliminate the seven-cent domestic airmail rate leaving all first-class mail by air where it will speed delivery.

MORE MONEY NEEDED.

Postmaster-General Cote said that the increases are needed to raise an additional $13,000,000 a year to cover wage increases, a shorter work week and increased prices of mail-carriage contracts.

"I know the measure is not a popular one," he told reporters after Mr. Cote said. "But it is at least necessary. It is a fair bill. It will appeal to those members of the public who are willing to pay their way rather than to throw their burden on someone else."

Conservative Leader Drew said Mr. Cote's speech was a "tawdry political appeal" and a "gross insult" to the lawyers.

"The bill increase will affect the little people" who use the mails to exchange letters, he said. He said the United States boarder could post letters in the United States for five cents to the Canadian postal rate.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Vancouver East) said the post office does not follow its principle of paying its own way. Letters should pay the full cost. Rates on second-class mail did not cover the cost of handling it.

Royal Commission to Probe Federal Economics Urged By Canada Chamber of Commerce

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Chamber of Commerce today urged the government to set up a royal commission to investigate federal economics.

It proposed also that cuts be made in income and excise taxes to boost productive incentive and help Canada withstand increasing trade competition at home and abroad.

"Although we are entering 1954 with most of the country fully employed, there are signs that the pace of expansion is slowing down" the chamber's executive council said in a brief presented today to Finance Minister Abbott and Revenue Minister McCann.

He said owners of two drug stores in Winnipeg were asked to contribute to Liberal party funds for the privilege of saving sub post offices in their stores.

"While external developments are very important, sound fiscal policy can assist in making the most favorable climate investment for business.

"To this end, the executive council believes that tax levels are still too high, particularly for a developing country where personal incentive and economic efficiency are the mainsprings of economic progress."

VOLUNTARY FEDERATION

The chamber is the national voluntary federation of almost 700 boards of trade and chambers of commerce across Canada. A delegation headed by R. M. Fowler of Montreal, council chairman, presented the brief.

The chamber agreed defenced costs must be a "first charge" on federal finances, but even in this field expenditures must be closely related. The defence budget should not become a method to maintain employment in a group.

As for civilian spending, it was the government's responsibility to reduce spending wherever it is in the public interest to do so.

A royal commission should be appointed immediately to recommend ways for increased economy, efficiency and improved service in government departments.

CLAIM RACIAL DISCRIMINATION IS INCREASING

Ontario Labor Group Urges Legislation

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The annual convention of the Ontario Federation of Labor (Canadian CCL) was told Thursday that racial discrimination in Ontario is increasing.

Delegates representing 200,000 organized workers in Ontario discussed reports of intolerance at Dresden, a Chatham district community which was the escape centre for many slaves fleeing from the United States nearly a century ago.

Mine strikes and unemployment in the textile and farm implements industry topped the convention topics.

Lloyd Pell, delegate from the United Packinghouse Workers Union and a former CCF member of the Ontario legislature, said Dresden negroes have had to go 30 or 40 miles to shop or to eat in restaurants. He said both Attorney-General Dana Porter and Municipal Affairs Minister George Dunbar "buck-passed" responsibility for clearing up the situation.

The federation by resolution urged the Ontario government to enact legislation to make it illegal for any establishment to refuse service to any person because of race, religion or nationality.

Frank Hall, M.P. for Windsor, United Automobile Workers delegate, said publicity was the best preliminary employment policy for one automobile company in his city which was forced to open its doors to negro workers.

WILL SUPPORT MINERS

The convention adopted continued support to the 3,000 gold miners still on strike in northern Ontario and northwestern Quebec. Most of the Timmins district strikes which started last summer have been settled, Eamon Park, legislative director of the United Steelworkers of America, said there is no immediate prospect of settling the Kirkland Lake-northwestern Quebec, biggest of which is the one by 1,500 miners at Noranda and Rouyn-Noranda.

Delegates were told workers in two basic Canadian industries, textiles and farm implements, are facing a crisis.

J. Harold Doucet, Canadian director of the Textile Workers Union of America, said the textile industry is in a bad way in Canada because of price-cutting competition from other countries. He said there is also not much tariff protection for textiles as other industries have.

The convention adopted a resolution calling for a joint government-management-union committee to study the textile situation.

Delegates were told by Ernest Lemessurier, 25-year-old bachelor from Chaudiere Island, Quebec, who left with the intention of working on a Fraser valley dairy farm. He is a great-grandson of Louis Joseph Papineau and Wolfred Nelson, the leaders of the 1837 rebellion in Lower Canada.

Lemessurier said Sister Pasqualina—believed herself to be more than 70 years old—broke her left ankle while moving about the Pope's bedroom early last year. She spent 10 days in a religious hospital after having undergone the operation while attending the Pope.

What is the most serious illness the Pope has had since ascending the papal throne nearly 15 years ago.

Dulles Stalls U.S. Reply On Korean Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles in Berlin has stalled an American reply to Chinese Premier Chou En-lai's demands for renewal of preliminary peace talks at Panmunjom.

Dulles is understood planning to sound out Russia's Foreign Minister Molotov, as well as the British and French ministers.

The state department last Saturday called to Dulles the draft of a note to serve as the U.S. reply. Dulles has learned. Thus far the department has received no word on Dulles' views on the suggested text.

The foreign diplomats who approved a proposed draft at a state department meeting 11 days ago expected the note would go out last week-end in time to reply to Red demands that the Korean talks be resumed Feb. 1.

The state department spokesmen who last week said the note would be sent within a few days, now try to duck all comment on the matter.

Cancer Research Centre Approved By Premier Frost

TORONTO (CP) — Plans for a $2,900,000 cancer research and treatment centre, to be financed by two cobalt bombs, have been approved by the provincial government, Premier Frost announced Thursday.

The project, proposed by the Ontario Cancer Research Institute, is now awaiting completed by 1956.

"These plans . . . provide the fulfillment of the province's desire . . . to establish in the people of Ontario the research and treatment—organization which would develop the latest in medical knowledge for cancer patients," said Premier Frost.

Norman C. Urquhart, chairman of the institute, said the planned centre would be the most advanced of its kind on this continent.

The province will contribute $2,425,000 of the project and the federal government $1,023,500, Premier Frost said.

The Ontario cancer treatment and research foundation now supports clinics in Toronto, London, Kingston, Hamilton, Windsor, Ottawa and Port Arthur.

Premier Frost said the institute will serve as a research, teaching and treatment centre. It will replace overcrowded facilities in the Toronto General Hospital.

Have Difficulty Feeding Pope, Doctors Reveal

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The Vatican, in its first official medical bulletin since Pope Pius' illness, today disclosed that the pontiff's physicians are having difficulty in feeding him.

The bulletin was signed by the Pope's personal physician, Prof. Riccardo Gallazzni Lisi. Pope Pius has been ill for the last 11 days.

GROWING WEAKER

Earlier, a Vatican official said the Pope had been refusing all but purely liquid diet for the last 18 hours and his weakness is increasing. The official said the pontiff, who is 78, March 2, requires more strong intravenous injections.

The bulletin announced that the doctors have been "more than preferred for nine days ended last Tuesday."

It was a long bulletin. After treating a history of the Pope's illness it said:

"His general condition, weakened by the progressive cardiac and physical overwork, has been further debilitated by the tiring gastric disturbance (hiccups) and is complicated by feeding difficulty."

The Pope's personal physician said he was in the pontiff's apartment today for around-the-clock duty.

NUN TWISTS ANKLE

He took his position after an accident Thursday night to Sister Pasqualina Lehnert, the German nun who has been the Pope's Pope's household for more than 30 years. She twisted her ankle while moving about the Pope's bedroom. She constantly since the beginning of his latest illness.

It was reported Sister Pasqualina—believed herself to be more than 70 years old—broke her left ankle while moving about the Pope's bedroom early last year. She spent 10 days in a religious hospital after having undergone the operation while attending the Pope.

Churchill Will Give Luncheon For St. Laureut

LONDON (CP)—Three members of the British cabinet have been invited to attend the Conservative party which Sir Winston Churchill is giving Saturday for Prime Ministers Louis St. Laurent and Churchill today.

The luncheon will be at 10 Downing street, the prime minister's official residence. The three cabinet ministers who will attend, in addition to Sir Winston and Lady Churchill, are Sir Walter Monckton, chancellor of the exchequer; Viscount Swinton, secretary of state for Commonwealth relations; and Sir Walter Monckton, labor minister.

The Canadian prime minister, starting a six-week tour, is due to arrive London by air. He will be welcomed by Norman Robertson, Canadian high commissioner in London, and Lord Swinton, official British government representative.

St. Laurent's tour has aroused considerable interest in British papers. Among them the Manchester Guardian has cautioned the prime minister that he should "remove heavy clothing with a view to combatting the current anti-Americanism which in Britain is enduring.

Wintry Sun Brings Break In Europe's Coldest Spell

Relief Missions Rush To Snowbound Hamlets

LONDON (AP)—A bright wintry sun brought a break in Europe's coldest spell in seven years today as relief missions rushed supplies to snowbound highland hamlets and islands still isolated.

Helicopters were used to reach 70 hamlets in Italy's Apennine mountains east of Rome, where some communities have been cut off for a week. Reports told of new epidemics of tonsillits were reported in two villages—Capracotta and Baselice.

Hardy inhabitants of the lone island of Foula in the Shetlands north of Scotland welcomed their first mailboat in 31 days. The 70 islanders—accustomed to long periods of isolation in the winter—had had a good supply of food stocks beforehand, and suffered no great hardship.

DEATHS EXCEED 1954

The death toll over Europe is estimated at more than 300.

The thaw brought a measure of more hardships. The fearsome landslide of Missano de Zocca in Italy's Apennines engulfed the frozen ground — began moving again during the thaw and swallowed up two more buildings.

Greece reported 100 more snowstorm victims in many sections of the country.

The Simplon Orient express was seven hours late arriving in Salonika. Road traffic was halted in central Macedonia as army engineers used bulldozers trying to clear communications. Large masses of earth partially blocked Corinth canal.

Berlin had 10.4 degree weather but it was a fine, sunny winter day. The mercury reading dipped to 18 degrees in Austria and Alps were declining. Brussels temperatures were around 15 degrees above in Amsterdam it was about twice the same. Inland navigation was suspended and storms were warned against hoarding coal.

The temperature in Paris was 25 degrees above and the sky was clear. Newspapers reported 10 persons died from cold Thursday.

By-Elections Will Provide First Test of Strength

OTTAWA (CP) — Four by-elections March 22 will provide the first test of voting strength in the federal field since the general election last August.

It will be the largest mass by-election balloting since six seats were decided in the "little general election" of May 26, 1952.

All four contests are in Ontario and Quebec. The electors will fill vacancies in seats held by Progressive Conservatives and two Quebec seats held by Liberals.

The date was announced Tuesday by acting prime minister Howe for Gatineau, Que., and Elgin. Earlier, the government had chosen the same day for Montreal Verdun and Peel.

Vacancies caused three of the vacancies: a resignation, the fourth, and two deaths. The Elgin seat was opened up by the deaths of Joseph C. Nadon, 64, Liberal, and Harold E. Doyle, 64, Progressive Conservative.

Mr. Nadon had held the Gatineau riding—once represented by Sir Wilfrid Laurier—in seven elections. Mr. Coyle had represented Elgin since 1945.

APPOINTED JUDGE

The Peel by-election will replace Gordon Graydon, former deputy leader in the Commons of the Progressive Conservatives and his party's foreign affairs specialist at the time of his death last fall. Mr. Graydon had represented Peel since the 1949 general election.

A vacancy caused by the resignation of Lucien Cannon to the presidency of Paul E. Cote, parliamentary assistant to the minister of labor since 1947. Mr. Cannon recently became a judge of the Quebec Superior Court.

Here is the present standing: Liberals, 171; Progressive Conservatives, 48; CCF, 23; Social Credit, 15; Independent, 3; vacant 4; total, 265.

Korean Editor, Convicted Spy, Makes His Escape

SEOUL (Reuters) — A South Korean newspaper editor, sentenced to death for spying, was reported to have escaped from jail in the chief warden's jeep.

He is Chosun Kui Bo's former editor of the progovernment newspaper Chosun Shinmoon. A Seoul newspaper said he escaped with two other prisoners after stealing the jeep.

South Korean army spokesmen would not comment on the report.

Chung, sentenced to death by a military court martial in mid-December, was originally to have been executed Jan. 14. A new date never before his execution was due, the South Korean army claimed the newspaper editor was "a traitor" about, and later announced the execution had been cancelled.

Blue $2 Bill Looks Phoney But Is Genuine

Some time ago, a blue-colored bill was handed to a driver of the Reserve Bus Lines in Belleville. The bank note was tendered so the driver as five dollars. The only catch to it was not a five dollar bill, yet it was a legitimate Bank of Canada note. It had not been tampered with in any way and at the end of the line the only blue-colored bill in common use today is the five dollar note.

The bill was one of the first issue of the Band of Canada released by Ottawa in 1935 and it was not five dollars, but two dollars. Lloyd Barr, another driver for the line has purchased the note from the first driver.

A quick glance at the note, particularly the back side, might indicate to the casual observer that the two dollars was five. The back side is also very similar to that of the present issue of five dollars, with the exception that the numerals are not five. The front side does not resemble any bill in circulation today. At the extreme left hand side is the engraved picture of the late Queen Mary.

Considerable difficulty was encountered in identifying the bill. Most banks in the city were willing to believe the note was legal tender, but unable to give any of its history. Arnold Wolfenden, manager of the Dominion Bank, finally identified the note and was able to provide some of the history.

According to Mr. Wolfenden, prior to the issue of the bill each bank had distributed its own notes. These were called in after The Bank of Canada bills were issued in 1935. With this issue it was discovered a certain amount of confusion arose due to the fact the five and two dollar notes were both of the same hue. The result was the two dollar notes, one of which now belongs to Mr. Barr, were called in approximately one year from the date of issue.

The bank manager was unable to say whether or not the bill might be a collector's item. However, he did say he had seen only a number of the 1935 issue, but none in this area. He said the bank would accept the note at two dollars.

Five out of six local merchants were willing to accept the bill as five dollars until the difference was pointed out to them. The fourth recognized the note for what it was.

Senior Citizens Club Holds Meet

The monthly meeting of the Senior Citizens' club of Belleville, was held Wednesday evening in the Kiwanis Centre, with a splendid attendance. An enjoyable time was had by all. Euchre and other games were played, with prizes being awarded for euchre only.

The evening opened with a short business meeting with chairman, L. E. Field, presiding. It was announced vice-chairman Wes Gray was in hospital in Kingston. He is progressing satisfactorily. The club's membership has doubled since inauguration. Fourteen new members were registered.

Entertainment was provided by Mr. K. Graham of the O.S.D., who sang popular songs to his own accompaniment. Mrs. Calander also rendered some solos, accompanied by Mr. J. Wilbert. The soloists were thanked for their contribution to the pleasant evening.

Mrs. Drummond announced the names of those providing the refreshments and they were thanked. Those having birthdays during February were announced and the "Birthday" song was sung. The evening closed with singing "God Save The Queen."

Flip of Coin Favors Fox For School Trustee

STIRLING—The flip of a coin last Friday morning decided the winner of the vote between Dr. E. A. Carleton and E. R. Fox for public school trustee.

A recount held by Judge Anderson at Belleville on a Monday recently confirmed the official count on election night, which gave each candidate 354 votes, and clerk Mallory decided to flip a coin to settle the issue. He chose a point on Front street opposite Mallory's drug store for the toss and in the presence of several interested citizens he tossed the coin. Dr. Carleton called for Carleton and tails for Fox, and when the coin fell in favor of the latter the returning officer proceeded to cast the tie-breaking ballot.

This Applicant Not Acceptable

NEWARK, N. J. (CP)—Thursday a Republican "citizens committee of 100" ran an advertisement in a Newark newspaper calling for "a young man interested in government, whom we can support as a candidate for the Congress of the 10th district."

The advertisement said the candidate must be interested in good government, able to speak effectively and willing to campaign aggressively.

Today the committee got a reply from Peter A. Rondino, Jr., saying he is ready, willing and able to fulfil all requirements.

After looking over his qualifications, the Republican party reluctantly decided to turn Rondino down.

In the first place, he's a congressman now, from the opposite place, he's a Democrat.

Mrs. Mary Bell Will Appear For Preliminary Hearing On Murder Charge on Mar. 22

The preliminary hearing for Mrs. Mary Bell, 46, charged with the murder of her husband, Percy Warner Bell, has been set for March 22nd.

Mrs. Bell appeared for remand in city magistrate's court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills today, when the date for the preliminary hearing was agreed to by special Crown prosecutor Alex Hall, of Oshawa, and John Lennox, counsel for Mrs. Bell. Mrs. Bell will appear for remand from week to week before either a justice of the peace or before a magistrate.

NUMBER ON HAND

Between 30 and 40 spectators were on hand in the city court room over the police station when Mrs. Bell, wearing the same green coat and hat that she wore last week, entered the court room. She went quietly to the seat and dock before court opened spoke a few words with her counsel. She did not speak with any other person.

Crown prosecutor Alex. Hall said that due to previous commitments of certain witnesses the preliminary hearing could not be held before March 22nd. Defence counsel Lennox said he was agreeable to the date under the circumstances, although he was not under the hearing earlier.

Mrs. Bell was arrested on January 22nd. She has been held in home following two weeks' investigation into the death of her husband by Inspector J. Clair Hayes of the Belleville police department, and Inspector Frank Kelly of the C.I.B.

DIED AGONIZED DEATH

Percy Bell, a stationary engineer with a local baby foods factory, died an agonizing death during the early morning of January 19th. The police investigation was touched off by a relative who told police that she had visited the home a day in his life.

Police investigation revealed that Mrs. Bell had purchased strychnine at a local drug store last December. She told newspaper reporters the strychnine had been purchased to kill rats at their home.

$10,000 Damage Results As Fire Guts Service Station

Two persons were forced to flee and damage estimated at close to $10,000 was caused to the building when fire gutted the Imperial Oil service station at the corner of Dundas and Pinnacle streets.

The fire occurred at 2.45 this morning when Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Orr, owners of the service station, was working on a boat in the rear of the building. Mrs. Orr was counting cash in the small office when she had to flee from the building.

The entire east end of the service station was almost completely gutted by the blaze, which, fanned by strong winds from a northerly control, Firemen prevented the spread of the fire to the pressing department of the service station, where a Bell Telephone truck and three cars were parked. Although the blaze was confined to the front end of the building, the truck and cars were pulled to safety by firemen.

Tools and other equipment in the service department were destroyed, while the pleasure boat on which Mr. and Mrs. Orr were working a complete loss. A small English model car parked immediately outside the building was damaged in the blaze.

Service station washrooms, and the greasing department escaped with little more than smoke and water damage. Gasoline pumps were not damaged in the blaze.

Home Permanent Probably Saved Lives of Family

A home permanent given by a neighbor woman is credited with saving the lives of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Wren, 125 Church street, who were overcome by coal gas fumes Tuesday morning.

Mr. Wren said that his wife had been "fidgeting" during the night and it was this that had awakened him early in the morning only to find the house filled with coal gas. Both had been overcome by the fumes and Mrs. Wren was taken to hospital.

Returning home from the hospital Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Wren credited the home permanent which she had received the evening before with saving the lives of herself and husband. A neighbor woman, Mrs. Stohl, Moira street, a friend of Campbellford had given her the permanent with the request that she keep the curlers in her hair overnight.

"I couldn't sleep for the curlers and it was my fidgeting that woke my husband and resulted in the discovery of the coal gas", Mrs. Wren said.

Cause of the coal gas fumes in the Wren home was found to be plaster which had fallen inside the chimney and all but blocked the flue.

Full Support Of Hog Marketing Agency Urged

Full support of Hastings county hog producers for the hog marketing agency set up to handle all Ontario hogs, was urged at the annual meeting of the producers held Thursday at Stirling.

Charles McGinnis, president of the Ontario Hog Producers, told producers that they could not get a fair price in selling their hogs through the marketing agency, but that the agency was the agency either to the highest bidder or are sold at established prices.

According to Mr. McGinnis, in the slightly less than a year of operation the marketing agency had met with considerable opposition and was meeting with approval on the part of producers. A deduction of 20 cents per hog is made on all hogs sold through the agency, in this way proper collections for mixed loads were possible. Previously producers had to accept direct to packing plants or to drovers and in many instances no way of knowing the true price to be received until they got their cheque.

OUTLINES OPERATION.

C. D. Black, general manager and executive secretary of the hog marketing board also spoke giving details of the operation of the marketing agency.

Roscoe Robzon, M.L.A. for Hastings East, and farmer in the Hollowsay district, said that hog producers had come a long way. He said the marketing agency was a step in the right direction.

C. E. Tymmon, former secretary of the Ontario Hog Producers, congratulated the board on its production with that of previous years.

Irwin McCoy, Marmora township, was named president of the county producers' association, succeeding David Hollinger of Stirling, who has held the office for the past four years. Bruce Robinson, Madoc township, is vice president, and Gordon Bailey of Rawdon is secretary treasurer. Township directors are the same as for last year.

Commonwealth Development Co. Beginning Work

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The Commonwealth Development Finance Company has undertaken its first overseas investment projects and negotiations on two others have reached an advanced stage, it was learned today.

The first venture takes the form of investing the rupee equivalent of about £1,000,000 in a natural gas development in Pakistan. The new enterprise will be managed by a subsidiary of the Burmah Oil Company, which is putting up some capital. Total cost is estimated at £9,000,000.

The finance company was set up with some fanfare, at the time of the Commonwealth conference of November and December, 1952, which placed so much emphasis on Commonwealth development. The preliminary work in getting the company started was done by the 83-year-old Canadian banker, Sir Edward Peacock, who remains one of its directors.

Two Boatloads Of Crew Members Are Picked Up

MANILA (AP)—The Panamanian freighter Liberal, intended today that it had picked up two boatloads of crew members from the British motorship Fermonor, which ripped the bottom out on a reef in the South China sea.

The U. S. Navy base at Sangley Point near here said the Liberal reported that other members of the Fermonor's crew were standing by the sinking ship in lifeboats.

The Japanese freighter Eisho Maru also was reported standing by. The Fermonor struck a reef near Palawan island in the southwestern Philippines.

Tribunal Decides Proximity Fuse U.K. Invention

LONDON (AP) — A royal tribunal decided Friday night the proximity fuse, which helped win the Second World War, was a British—not an American—invention.

The commission on awards to inventors accordingly ruled that £15,000 be paid to seven British scientists claiming joint credit for the idea.

The fuse is a radio device which explodes a bomb or shell as soon as it gets within effective distance of its target, making a direct hit unnecessary.

Anti-aircraft gunners used it with deadly effect on the flying buzz-bombs dispatched to London by the Germans in the late stages of the war. The United States Navy employed it in the Pacific against Japanese kamikaze suicide pilots in the Pacific.

SECRET HOLDING

Most of the evidence on behalf of the British inventors was heard in secret because the fuse is still being improved.

Sir Winston Churchill, a 64-year-old engineer who was one of the claimants, testified that he and G. M. Tomlin, an electronics expert, began experimenting with a proximity fuse in 1939.

It was put on an official secret list early in the war, he said, "and the secret was transmitted to America, where the fuse was developed enormously."

When Sir Winston Churchill," Cobden-Turner told the commission, "thought it was an American invention."

Just the right amount of this light, heavenly whipped cream fluffs out at your touch . . . melts into your skin in no time. An invisible "glove" forms to guard you through repeated soakings in soapy water, through cold weather. You'll protect your hands with it often . . . before and after dishes, laundry, exposure . . . it's so invisibly fragranced, so phenomenally soothing.

Dr. George Dorey Speaks at Carmel On 'Holding the Line'

RAWDON — The Rev. George Dorey D.D., secretary of the Board of Home Missions was guest speaker at Carmel United Church in Rawdon township on a recent Sunday afternoon.

The service was held in Jubilee hall as Carmel church is undergoing renovations, will be reopened on Sunday, April 4th when Miss Miriam Collins of Belleville assistant pastor of Bridge Street United Church will give the special message.

Dr. Dorey chose as his theme "Holding the Line." He gave a glimpse of the work from ocean to ocean, and graphically pictured the 750 ordinary fields of work in Newfoundland, Maritime, Montreal, Ottawa, Bay of Quinte, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia conferences.

There are nine marine missions, 14 non-Anglo fields, 27 Institutional missions, 13 Oriental missions, 56 Indian missions, 4 Indian residential schools and seven hospitals.

HOME MISSION BUDGET

The minimum budget for Home Missions is around $1,360,000 and there is much work waiting to be done when funds are available. Your money belongs to God and is so much stored-up human power. Your money is needed to build churches, preach the gospel, train workers, and so help bring in a new kingdom of righteousness. All gifts to this work should be followed by prayer that it may be used wisely for the building of His Kingdom on earth.

The United Church ministers to 21,488 Indians, and in educational institutions associated with the Federal government, there are 37 day schools operated by Home Missions and six under the supervision of the Woman's Missionary Society. The five residential schools look after approximately 2,500 pupils.

The Board of Home Missions sponsors a number of rural conferences throughout Canada for the enrichment of the rural church and its ministry. Many rural districts, camps and district communities are reached by religious broadcasts. And the radio ministry is a great boon to those who live in isolated areas.

Over 800,000 immigrants have been admitted to Canada since the end of World War II so this special ministry of port chaplains, and port workers is of great value.

The United Church also ministers to French Canadians in Quebec and has charge of about two residential schools are located at Namur and Pointe Aux Trembles.

Dr. Dorey was tendered appreciative thanks for his worthwhile message.

A LETTER TO THE CITIZENS OF BELLEVILLE

February 3rd, 1954

Dear Sir or Madam:

I am the sole owner of the Crystal Hotel situated on Front St., in the City of Belleville and also the sole owner of Paul's Motel situated on the corner of Dundas Street East and McDonald Avenue in the City of Belleville.

Paul's Motel consists of a main building with eighteen rooms and a separate structure in the style of a Motel. It presently has no beverage rooms.

I understand that the local Chairman of Planning has taken it upon himself to prophesy who may, and who may not, make an application in that area to the Liquor Licence Board for an Authority to sell beer. I HAVE NEVER PREVIOUSLY MADE AN APPLICATION TO THE LIQUOR LICENCE BOARD FOR BEVERAGE ROOMS IN PAUL'S MOTEL BECAUSE I DID NOT THINK IT TO BE IN THE BEST INTERESTS OF THE CITY DUE TO THE PROXIMITY OF SCHOOLS, THE HOSPITAL AND PAUL'S MOTEL BEING ADJACENT TO A RESIDENTIAL AREA.

I WISH TO MAKE IT CLEAR THAT IF ANYONE APPLIES FOR AN AUTHORITY TO SELL BEER IN THE AREA OF PAUL'S MOTEL THAT IT IS MY FIRM INTENTION TO MAKE THE ALTERATIONS NECESSARY TO MEET THE REQUIREMENTS OF THE LIQUOR LICENCE BOARD AND TO MAKE AN APPLICATION FOR THE SALE OF BEER AT PAUL'S MOTEL.

Yours Very Truly,
PAUL HAGGIS.

LOWER PRICES NEED NOT BRING DEPRESSION

A rather curious story came out of Ottawa the other day.

It reported "a tug-of-war developing in the cost-of-living sub-bodies." Costs of food and some other items show a tendency to decline. Costs of shelter and several services appear inclined to rise.

For years the Canadian consumer has watched the spiralling cost-of-living index and wondered when it would cease its climb.

Yet today many a Canadian contemplates the possibility of a decline in the index with mixed feelings.

The reason is to be found in another story this week. The number of unemployed in the Belleville area stands at the highest figure since unemployment insurance went into effect. Nor is the Belleville district an exception. Unemployment is increasing in many parts of Canada.

For years we have witnessed the trend. Meanwhile, however, many workers are understandably concerned. They are anxious about the future and some are looking for information which may give them a hint as to what it holds. They see reports that the cost-of-living index shows some signs of turning down. They remember that, time and again, they have been told that prices have been forced up because wages have been increased. It would be a stupid man who did not realize the significance of the corollary, and see in falling prices the danger that wages might decline.

That such a possibility exists no reasonable person will deny. But to regard lower wages as the inevitable result of lower prices is to fall into a grievous error—although perhaps a natural error by reason of the unfortunate and inaccurate sentence that higher wages always result in higher prices.

Higher wages need not mean higher prices, nor need lower prices bring lower wages. Productivity is increased. Studies have shown that over a decade of technological improvements we have a right to expect some increase in productivity. Nor is that our only asset. Our population has been growing, which means a larger market. And larger markets, making possible mass production, are supposed to result in lower unit costs. Furthermore, we have been enjoying a period with all the inefficiency and waste inherent in rapid growth. Elimination of this inefficiency and waste should also make a reduction in cost possible. And, of course, a willingness to put a little extra effort into a job can produce an almost miraculous increase in output.

So a falling cost-of-living index need not necessarily be bad news. For the only way in which the standard of living can be raised is by increasing the real wages of the consumer. And this can be done in one of three ways, by reducing prices without reducing wages, by increasing wages without increasing prices, or by increasing wages and at the same time reducing prices.

"How do we say that some of these three alternatives is possible are, in effect, saying that the standard of living cannot be increased." And the history of Canada has repeatedly shown that such a view is without the slightest foundation in fact.

CAR TAXES HIGHER THAN WAGES

The automobile is truly a marvelous machine. In addition it has made motor passengers farther in greater comfort than ever before, the average automobile shows no signs of pinging on steep grades from the cross country gage of the invisible, silent, but very real passenger, the revenue officer.

The Canadian Automobile Manufacturers Association in an advertisement recently revealed that they had paid $162,765,130 in taxes last year. This amount was $16,500,000 more than the manufacturers paid their employees for manufacturing cars. The association has argued that the auto workers were underpaid. Therefore the only other conclusion is that the tax was excessive. In view of the fact that the government has been the creator of much wealth in the automobile industry, and employs only enough men to haul away the loot, it might be said that the government in the automobile industry is being asked to bear too great a share of the tax burden.

In terms of production, at an average of $2,500 per car, the government is collecting from the auto industry the retail value of 65,106 cars, and the present retail value includes the government tax.

Nor is the tax burden is not ended here. In Ontario there is a tax of 11 cents per gallon on gasoline. At 20 miles to the gallon that means that the average motorist is putting just over a mile behind the government treasury. Even at a modest 5,000 miles per year the motorist puts over $25 into the tax collection. It is a sobering thought.

It is true that the automobile is not as essential as say bread or a winter overcoat. But today the automobile is not in the luxury class in the same way as sterling silver and cut-glass goblets.

The automobile, in most instances, is a beast of burden providing essential transportation for its owner and his family to and from work. And it is the owner of the automobile who ultimately pays the bills, both to the manufacturers and to the government. The manufacturer has no power over what taxes shall be levied against his product, and in most instances would be overjoyed at the volume of new business that would result from lowering of the tax rate. Nevertheless the financial and statistical reports are the only ones in a position to bring about any relief in the tax structure as applied to the automobile industry.

It does seem, however, that a time for revision in the tax rate on automobiles is long overdue when the government collects in taxes more than the industry pays its employees.

DOG TRAINING

If their counsel I could heed
Who to train a dog are able,
Bits of meat I'd never feed
To the spaniel at my table.

If he's sitting by my chair
I would never stoop to pat him.
Never, when he's begging there,
Toss a tempting morsel at him.

"Easy," says the man who knows
"Truly there is nothing to it."
I could train him, I suppose,
If I had the heart to do it.

OFF THE RECORD

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

25 YEARS AGO

FEBRUARY 5, 1934.

The month of January was almost a sunshine month; according to old records this city and district has not experienced such a dark and sunless January for 24 or 32 years. Some 45 hours and 40 minutes of filtered sunshine was all that was registered for the month. Eighteen days of the month were a total blank as far as the sun was concerned. Also distinguished by low hanging clouds which brought a heavy mantle of humidity and sent electric light bills soaring upward.

Messrs. W. Milligan and J. E. Sprague of Big Island were in town today.

There has been lots of snow this winter and unemployed men have found work shovelling snow. The heaviest snowstorm furnished plenty of work; on Saturday the Belleville street department put forty men to work shovelling walks and on Monday an additional forty men were given employment doing the same work. Many teams and drivers are also required to haul away the snow.

20 YEARS AGO

FEBRUARY 5, 1934.

Arrangements have been completed for the Thrift Week in Belleville which is to commence on Feb. 19. It is not a movement tending to promote what has become known as a "buyed strike", nor in favor of locking up one's money and not spending anything at all, but rather an educational campaign to promote efficiency and wise expenditure both with regards to time and money. The importance of locating one's debts promptly, taking out life insurance, owning a home, maturity of a child and opening a bank account will be emphasized by the chairmen of the various days, the students in the schools and colleges and by the local advertisers in sermons. The following speakers will take part: Mr. Sidebottom, general secretary of the local Y.M.C.A.; Mr. C. H. Bateman, Mr. Elliott, Mayor W. C. Mikel, Mr. W. H. Mervyn, Mr. I. L. Moore, Col. W. N. Ponton, Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker and Rev. Father Killeen.

Three hundred and thirty six transients were given shelter at the local police station during the past year.

40 YEARS AGO

FEBRUARY 5, 1914.

At the inaugural meeting of the Board of Education for evening, Col. W. N. Ponton was unanimously chosen as chairman of the board for the year. The following chairmen of committees were appointed: finance, John Elliott; school management, F. E. O'Flynn; sites, buildings and repairs, S. B. Mallory; printing and supplies, Fred B. Deacon; High School, R. A. Reid; Queen Victoria School, L. W. Pearce; Model Academic School, S. S. Moore; Octavia Street School, A. E. Hay; Principal Lingham, W. H. Herris. W. J. Diamond was re-appointed school secretary and D. A. Gardiner was re-appointed custodian. Thomas Cushing was introduced as the representative of the Separate School Board and Col. Ponton announced that the sum of $3,900 has been set aside for technical education in Belleville for this year, according to Prof. Robertson's work.

50 YEARS AGO

FEBRUARY 5, 1904.

Dr. J. W. Wright of Picton, D.D.G.M. for Prince Edward District, No. 12, A.F. and A.M., made an official visit to Eureka Lodge here on Wednesday evening. A large number of the members of the Order was present and gave the visitor a genial reception. At the close of the lodge a banquet was tendered by the Deputy Grand Master. Aid. Charles N. Gain Knowledge But Not Wisdom

(Hamilton Spectator)

Out of a bleak anonymity that has so long embraced the centuries here of aviation, Charles A. Lindbergh emerged for a moment the other night with a harsh warning. Having lit the greatest effect on the force-influence of nations and factors of survival," he said in one of his very rare speeches, "white civilizations and cultures are floundering in a strange new framework of power, time and space. Our bombs have gone out, in minutes, an inheritance of life and labor which centuries created. . . In 50 years of aviation history the role of science has been primarily military and destructive."

Lindbergh has said this kind of thing before. He was bitterly attacked for what many felt was a spirit of defeatism in the last war; he said openly that the German air might could not be defeated—so great was its military effectiveness through science and planning. Later the "Lone Eagle" turned his skill to warning air power against the atomic lies. Many felt penitently that his warnings should be interpreted and that he had been unfairly abused.

It is in the realm of personal controversy and it has little bearing on what Mr. Lindbergh said in New York about portents for the future from the past. But to state a supreme irony does not meet the case. Lindbergh's words are clear, their distortions. Science has not outstripped wisdom. The most brilliant minds on destruction and defense against destruction. Far from knowing on what terms we will survive, sheer survival is in the air which science commands. Peace bought by surrender to evil is not peace. Peace bought on whatever change we like to label with that exalted tag, may mean the worst betterment nor development of a new spiritual order. The mechanistic engines of war now emerging are guided by the same hand and ingenuity, remains the tantalizing riddle. Science Cushing was to enlightenment there is more fear and darkness perhaps than ever before. And it is due to an increasing reluctance to search out the causes of inner spiritual strength. As the materials of protection grow, the danger from without seems ever more terrifying.

Lindbergh, the fair-haired youngster who took with him as a stowaway on the sleepless and angry Atlantic only courage, has returned somewhat jaded, besids his silver machine in one of those splendid but mystified monoliths of human victory and human frustration. Neither he nor those who followed in his wake have studied and unquestioning heroism would see in the future the new strength, stood beside

U.S. Army Adds To Atomic Punch In West Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States army is adding to its atomic punch for the defence of western Europe by sending still more far-reaching nuclear cannon to the strategically vital frontline of Western Germany.

It disclosed Thursday that to the original six atomic cannon sent last fall, with gun crews and other personnel, it subsequently had dispatched another 280-millimetre gun units, and to these, a spokesman said, another unit will be added, probably within the next three months.

The exact number of guns or units which have gone since last September was not revealed. A spokesman said Thursday the unit which has been placed on the alert for movement to Europe in the next few months is the 264th field artillery battalion from Fort Sill, Okla.

Thursday's developments followed a press conference conducted by Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson Tuesday that he saw no reason why atomic weapons, as well as conventional, shouldn't be used if or new aggression attack comes. The 280-millimetre gun can fire either standard shell munition or the smaller nuclear explosive warheads.

The army has emphasis on the range of the big gun, the fact that it can deliver atomic explosives on an enemy in weather conditions which ground bombers, and on the extreme mobility of the 85-ton weapon and 56 towing tractor units.

Using the full, 280-millimetre size shell that is equivalent to about 11 inches the cannon can fire about 20 miles.

Eight Long-Term Convicts Escape Through Tunnel

ATMORE, Ala. (AP)—Heavily-armed police officers poked through tangled areas near here this morning for eight long-term convicts who escaped through a tunnel under Atmore state prison Thursday night.

The escapees, described as "tough turkeys," used a key to open a door leading from a special security cell block into a small tunnel. They crawled their way through two other doors into a main tunnel before reaching freedom, emerging in a wooded area outside the prison fence.

L. A. Strubble, deputy Alabama prison commissioner, said bloodhounds had picked up a definite trail this morning.

A rebuilding program has been under way at Atmore nearly two years and is 70 per cent complete. Prisoners have been kept in the old facilities while the new prison went up around it.

"We've been afraid something like this would happen," Strubble said.

London Papers Say Conference Is 'Failure'

LONDON (Reuters)—Early optimism in British newspapers about chances for agreement at the four-power Berlin foreign ministers' conference today gave way to sharp disillusionment.

Typical comment came today from the Manchester Guardian, Liberal, which saw "despair" of any four-power decision on Germany, and from The Daily Telegraph, Conservative, which bluntly said the conference had reached "a dead end" on the German question.

The Times, an independent newspaper, said it now is clear that "the main Russian object at Berlin is to dislocate the European Defence Community and thereby to strike at the North Atlantic treaty."

CHANGE OPINIONS

Earlier in the conference British newspapers had hailed preliminary moves by Russia and the Western ministers as indication of future progress at the meetings.

Today The Daily Telegraph said "There was never any but the slenderest prospect of finding an accommodation between the Western standpoint and Russia's."

Even the Communist Daily Worker joined the pessimistic chorus, though it laid the blame for any snag in the talks on John Foster Dulles and Anthony Eden.

The RCAF C-5 flew at 17,000 feet.

French Fight Violent Battles With Vietminh

VIENTIANE, Indo-China (Reuters)—French forces have fought a series of violent battles with the Vietminh Communists in an effort to halt the rebels' advance on the Laotian royal capital of Luangprabang, it was announced here today.

The announcement from this administrative capital 200 miles southeast of Luangprabang said the battle raged Thursday about 30 to 60 miles north and northwest of the royal capital. It did not disclose the outcome beyond listing Communist casualty figures.

It said the rebels left 85 dead on the battlefield after a clash near Muong La, 60 miles north of Luangprabang, and that air attacks put a further 90 rebels out of action.

MUONG SAI FALLS

The announcement said Vietminh troops Thursday night harvassed the positions of Muong Sai," 50 miles north of Luang prabang, with mortar bombs and machine-gun fire. Authoritative sources in Saigon Thursday said Muong Sai was already in Vietminh hands.

The advance guard of rebel troops crossed the northern frontier of Laos state last week-end to advance through the jungle-clad mountain terrain to battle at Luangprabang with its banana palms, stately villas and ornate Buddhist pagodas.

The man was Robert M. Robertson, 33, a $40-a-week clerk for a law firm. In his pocket police found an eviction notice and a note begging "someone" to care for his family.

Hastings County Folk School Discusses 'What Is a Canadian?'

"What does it mean to be a Canadian? Do we, Canadians, desire talents for maximum benefit for ourselves and society? Do we exercise discriminative thinking and critical judgment to enable ourselves to make wise decisions, affecting our common welfares?

"Do we believe in the brotherhood of man and strive to enable ourselves, by our inner abilities for our own and social good?" These are only a few of the many questions that were discussed at the annual Hastings County Folk School that was held recently in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Newell Broad at R.R. 2, Madoc.

A GOOD CITIZEN

"What is a good Canadian citizen? He is someone willing to help and contribute to community and country and to do a good job where he is, in his community. We should be proud to be a Canadian because we have a democracy and self-government. There is in this country freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom of press, freedom from fear, freedom to marry whom you wish. We have the freedom of voting and by doing so putting in the government of our choice.

Another privilege of being a Canadian is that we have the right ration of food and there is plenty for all to eat. We have the opportunities to be what we like, to be onesself and to obtain a good vocation. In short, Canada has had chance to become a good and solid citizen in the Dominion of Canada.

RESPONSIBILITIES

"As Canadians we have certain responsibilities, a few of which are—to obey the law; not to abuse our freedoms; to better our home and community; to respect and obey our fellow men; to maintain the natural beauty of our country. We have a responsibility to ourselves and to our country.

"In Canada we have a number of privileges and responsibilities. To maintain them we must pay a high price."

A look at the country was taken through the eyes of an efficient panel. The panel chairman was Mrs. Newell Broad. The different phases were taken from "Our People" and "How Canada Got Its Name," by Jean Frost; "Our Shores" told about "Our People", "The Resources of Our Country," was brought by Ken Stevenson; Harry Mowers spoke on "Our Land." Jayne Gay gave some interesting facts on "Culture." This last phase covered by Jayne led into an interesting discussion by all on "Ways of Life to Improve Canada Culturally."

CULTURAL IMPROVEMENTS

Some of the points brought out were—"make people more conscious of the arts and finer things of life; views as Canadian citizens of 1954 should be more of quality not race, creed or religion; best things of life begin at home; standard of taste raised by educating our average public citizens; interesting ourselves in library among friends; cultivate a taste for beauty; be courteous to our fellow men in everday life; send letters of "Thank You" to manufacturing companies who have supplied information to us; read worthwhile books aloud at home; develop ourselves culturally at home."

The above are just a few of the many interesting and educational topics discussed under the leadership of Cliff Wallis, secretary of the Ontario Farm Forum.

To enlighten the day the Folk school dispersed for recreation, occasionally using folk songs and games.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Broad showed generous hospitality in opening their home for this school.

FOLK SCHOOL MEMBERS

The registered members of the Folk school were: Clifford Watts; Alma Moorcroft, Madoc; Jean Frost, Frankford; Kathleen Homan, Corbyville; Francis Harris, Trenton; Jayne Day, Tamworth; Geraldine Mowers, Marysville; Olga Sherry, Foxboro; Douglas Ketcheson, Foxboro; Ronald Longwell, Foxboro; Bernard Hollinger, Foxboro; Arnold Empey, Madoc; Don McKinnon, Madoc; George Frost, Frankford; Florence Love, Madoc; Diana Broad, Madoc; Kenneth Broad, Madoc; plus a number of interested visitors.

HOLLOWAY W.M.S.

On Tuesday afternoon the ladies of Holloway Street W.M.S. met in the church parlors.

After opening the meeting, the president, Mrs. Colvine, welcomed all members and guest, and again reminded the members of the society of the challenge lying ahead in 1954.

Mrs. Holmes presided for the worship service; Mrs. Hubbs read the Scripture - John 12:44-50. Mrs. Phillips conducted the confession and intercession.

The Study Book was concisely but explicitly reviewed by Mrs. Coulter.

In this Mrs. Coulter touched on the state of religion throughout the world and quoted Dr. Ransom as saying that in some countries it is appalling but not hopeless.

Mrs. Holmes thanked Mrs. Coulter for her most interesting synopsis and stressed how important it is to read the Study Book with its wealth of information.

Mrs. Hubbs sang with a piano solo which was much appreciated.

Following the roll call, the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Hubbs and her new treasurer for 1954, Mrs. Weese reported 37 calls on the sick and shut-ins during January and also announced that the Albert College Guild would visit in Holloway Street Church parlors on February 12th.

Mrs. Coulter announced a tea is to be held in the home of Mrs. Hubbs ' by the C.G.I.T. girls in February and reported the proceeds from the C.G.I.T. Sunday cooking sale was $22.

Mrs. Wilson announced the spring presbyterial is to be held in Grace United Church in Napanee, on March 24th;

Mrs. Bunnett reported on the welfare work being done by the reading group.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Holmes and her group.

KINGSTON ROAD W.A.

The February meeting of the Kingston Road W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Farnsworth on Wednesday evening, with a good attendance.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. LaRue.

Mrs. Gerow had charge of the devotional period and read the story of one of the women of the Bible—Anna, the devout—taken from the book "Glimpses of Grace". The Scripture was read by Mrs. Little and the worship service closed with prayer by Miss Shaw.

A short business discussion followed during which plans were made for a pot-luck supper to be held in February.

Mrs. Farnsworth gave a short talk on "Radio Baptist Radio-The Southern Cross in South America".

The speaker for the evening was Mrs. Arkley, who gave an interesting and inspiring talk on "Our Canada and the Life of a Child in Our Homes".

Mrs. LaRue, on behalf of the members of the W.A., extended thanks to Mrs. Finkle.

After the close of the meeting a social period followed during which refreshments were served by Mrs. Farnsworth, Mrs. Lloyd and Mrs. Creelman.

TRINITY UNITED W.M.S.

Twenty-eight ladies of Trinity United Church, Madoc, attended the Women's Missionary Society meeting at the home of Mrs. Albert Empey on Wednesday afternoon. A warm welcome was extended to all by the president, Mrs. Carmen.

For the opening exercises, the president read "A Woman's Prayer", an appropriate poem for the service. Following the business period and roll call, the Community Friendship read several letters from the sick and shut-ins. Miss Annie Holmes, supply secretary, reported on several items under way with further announcements later. Plans were made for a quilting party and pot-luck supper to be held in the church parlors on February 11th.

Mrs. Empey announced the missionary to be remembered in prayer during the year, Miss Marjorie Vercoe.

Mrs. L. Bennett had charge of the worship service. She was assisted by Mrs. Morton, who read the Bible lesson from 19th Psalm with Miss Scott contributing comments on the last three verses of the Psalm.

Mrs. Earl Burnside was in charge of the program and gave a fine account of the 4th chapter of the study book "Where're the Sun". The subject under the headline of "The Protestant Church in South America." Her talk was informative and at the conclusion, several members took part in a round table talk bearing on the subject as it applies to other foreign countries as well.

Mrs. Ronald Jackson sang a solo "I Shall Not Pass This Way Again", with Mrs. Leslie Ashley accompanist. A pleasant half hour followed with the hostess and her assistant serving afternoon tea.

GOOD MANNERS

THE OFFICE COLLECTION

©Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The co-workers in our quite large office would like your advice about a question that sometimes arises. The office flower collection is being taken up to buy a wedding present for a girl, sometimes there are several co-workers who do not, for some reason, contribute. (Perhaps they can't afford to contribute; perhaps they don't know, or like, the girl very well, perhaps they just don't believe in office collections.) Do you think that, under these circumstances, the card to be enclosed with the wedding present should carry a general signature . . .for example "All good wishes from your office friends" or "From your office, with every good wish for your happiness", . . .or that each contributor's name should be signed on the card?

Our Office

I don't believe in the general signature on the card to be enclosed with the present. I think the card should definitely indicate those who contributed, that it will be safe to include those who didn't contribute. (And I don't think anyone who can't or doesn't want to give a tribute should be urged or "high-pressured" . . . to contribute. The best procedure is for each contributor to write his or her name on the card. . .and it's the right procedure for the prospective bride to write an individual note of thanks to each contributor.

A SMALL, MORNING BREAK-FAST CAN BE PLANNED IN NATURE OF A RECEPTION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our daughter is to be married next month, a church ceremony, and because of a number of reasons, there will be no reception. Our future son in is the service, but because of a number of other part of this state, are planning a party for them during the day-time. Would it be permissible for us to give bride and groom a wedding Breakfast (or luncheon) after the ceremony? If so, just who should be invited? Would have to have it at a hotel or some place where we can do, what decorates the table? And should we have a wedding cake? (I have little knowledge of such affairs.)

Puzzled Mother

Indeed it would be an excellent taste for you and your husband to give a breakfast (or luncheon) after the ceremony. As a matter of fact, you can plan this to be the wedding reception. You may invite only the wedding attendants and your family and the groom's family; or if it's convenient and if you wish, a few close relatives and intimate friends also. Generally speaking, I don't adopt a private room for The Breakfast; menu suggestions and price per person, ask about table decorations (they'll have all this information ready to give you). And please do have a wedding cake, . .so the bride and groom can have that wonderful memory of "cutting the cake," sharing the first piece with each other, as the symbol of always-sharing.

WHITE OR RED CARNATION WITH EVENING ATTIRE?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My new husband (we were married last November) has a yen for wearing a carnation with his evening attire, but he isn't sure always agree as to whether he should wear a white or a red carnation. With dinner jacket, which is right? With "tails"?

New Wife

Either a red or white carnation may correctly be worn with a dinner jacket. . .but red is more usual. And the red should be a dark red, not always easy to buy. And of course with a white dinner jack-

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHEN YOU CAN'T GET WHAT YOU WANT, TAKE SOMETHING ELSE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am nearly 18, and very fond of Bob, who is 17.

A few months ago my family moved about two and a half miles away from where we used to live, and when I told Bob we were going to move he told me he would come and see me often and also call up often.

Now, in over four months, he has only come to see me once, and brought me home once. Twice, I invited him to go on hayrides, but he declined both times.

I have been out with many other boys trying to forget Bob, and there is one special boy who is swell and who is nuts about me, but I know it's just Bob I like, and I keep remembering the good times we used to have together. Can you help me?

H.B.

About all I can do for you, I'm afraid, is to suggest how you can help yourself. Then it will be entirely up to you. And I'm sure you must know without my telling you that the way to help yourself is to have the commonsense to realize that most of us usually know exactly what we want, and, that when we can't have it, take something else.

That's the whole thing in very simple terms by saying that if you were about to buy a new dress, and had your heart set on a certain one, then found that one was sold, you wouldn't go home in no dress at all, would you? I don't believe you would. What you'd do, I'm quite sure, would be to choose another. In other words, since you couldn't get what you wanted you'd take something else, and that's the principle on which all of us have to go through life.

"I'm sure you get my point exactly, and I hope you'll go along with it.

HE CAME TO HER HOUSE EVERY NIGHT AND MOTHER OBJECTED

Dear Miss Fairfax:

There is a boy I went with for about a year, but recently we broke up because he came to the house every night and my mother said that was too often. She didn't like my going with him anyhow.

He is going with another girl now, but would like to try and make up with him as I am very fond of him. I am having a party soon, and I would like to know if you think it would be all right to invite him. I am 14 and he is 15.

C.

Dear C.:

If your mother has no objections to your inviting this boy to your party, I don't see any reason why you shouldn't.

You don't give any reason for your mother not wanting you to go with him except that she felt he came to the house too often, and I certainly think every child is too often, too. Why don't you ask her if she would be so kind as to let you go out with him . . . some some to your home . . . . . and also attend . . . . . him in the future . . . . . my own rules . . . . . and be friends . . . . . though. That . . . . . doing so seeing too much of one another, and not enough of . . . . . and try to have lots of friends among both boys and girls.

Readers Friday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . for the past two years I have been bothered with a very bad problem. I have often considered asking your advice, but my mother is a very good cook except for one serious drawback. During the summer months and early fall the potatoes she boils are very tasty and delicious. But during the winter and spring her potatoes are not nearly as good as far as I am concerned. They are cooked in an aluminum dish and I'm not sure if it is because they are cooked in aluminum that turn black very flufty or floury, fall apart, are grey and finally turn black. These potatoes have got me down. Why the variation in the cooked product in the spring and winter? I have asked her to use vegetable shortening, remedy the situation namely peeling the potatoes 12 hours before cooking, using different pans, using plenty of water, using only a few pounds of potatoes, all to no avail. However the potatoes don't turn black if they are left under cold Miami Beach potatoes, but these are too expensive. Could you please set my mother through the medium of your helpful column to prepare potatoes that are fluffy, white, moist as you usually receive in restaurants. I'm sure you do not consider this letter as a joke, as I am truly sincere. Let me see you give some suggestions for factory worker lunch boxes!—

Starving

ANSWER:

(This young man gave his full name but requested that it not be printed. Well, I can't blame him for that fault, Starved. There are two main factors which cause potatoes to darken. One is conditions under which they are stored. The other, the lack of proper nutrients in the soil in which they were grown. My own humble department of Horticulture is working on this problem for Canadian

SHOULD YOU TIP THE OWNER IN A BEAUTY PARLOR

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My friend would appreciate advise me what is proper in regard to tipping in a beauty parlor. I have been told that it is proper to tip employees but not the owner.

E.

It used to be true that we were never supposed to give a tip to the owner of a beauty shop or a beauty parlor, even when he or she gave all the service. But today that's not all a strict rule, and it is often perplexing to know what to do in cases when you are in South, the thing to do is to offer the tip in your usual manner, saying "Thank you very much" as you do so. If it is accepted, all right. If it is not, no one will be embarrassed. . .just put it back in your bag, with another expression of thanks for the service.

TALL GIRLS MUST BE STATELY

Surveys show that college girls are taller than their mothers were at their age. There is a reason. They were vitamin babies and milk-fed "chicks". But some of them seem to think that they would be just as happy with a few inches deleted. Girls who are extra tall have their own special lamentation. It's devastating to their pride to dance with boys who are not as tall. The tall girl often has rounded shoulders because she fancies she will look less tall when standing. She walks about the difficult in finding clothes that fit since most of the models offered are for more normal figures.

There are little tricks of dress, however, that seem to detract from height. Cross lines are a help, especially in a belt of a color different from the frock, or a squarish neck line.

The length of the skirt is important. The tall girl seems to be designed for the tall girl. The daytime one should not be full and the one for the social part of the call; if it is, her body will look top-heavy, out of proportion.

The small, snug crownless hat is the one. Also, those caps that wear brimmed numbers better than the pint-sized girl.

The shoes must be selected with regard to the silhouette. The simplest choice is one with flat waved crown, tress ends falling not far below the nape line. No upsity-do in front as every roll will add to inches she already feels too many.

The tall girl must be a weight-watcher. It is important that she should maintain the slender lines of youth, and not overdo herself with the assurance that long legs are the style ticket for this season's fashion;

Diminutive Widow at 81 Works at Full-Time Job

Works Full Time

Mrs. Maud Tobey, diminutive widow of 81, works a full-time job in a Hamilton real estate office. Mrs. Tobey, who stands five-feet-one and weighs 98 pounds, works a regular 8-to-5 day, doing clerical chores, answering the telephone and running errands. She laughs at the thought of quitting. The only concession she makes to her age is the admission that she works "a little tired" after a busy day. — (CP Photo.)

HAMILTON (CP)—How to be a career woman at 81 is easily demonstrated by Mrs. Maud Tobey diminutive widow who works a full-time job in a city real estate office.

Mrs. Tobey, who stands five-feet one and weighs 98 pounds, can compete with any young modern. She works a regular 9 to 5 day, doing clerical chores, answering the phone and running errands.

She laughs at the thought of quitting. "Not unless it is necessary," she said. "I wouldn't know what to do with myself." The only concession she makes to her age is that she admits feeling "a little tired" after a busy day.

KEEN MEMORY

Mrs. Tobey greets many of the people in the office block by name, and visitors to the office rarely have to repeat their name after their first trip.

She was born in Sarnia in 1872 and first went to business in Chatham when she was 20. She oversaw the activities of four children, who wanted her to continue her education, and managed a music store for a year.

Music has always been her absorbing interest. She was a church organist in Chatham, and until recently was active in groups interested in music.

She married Mr. Tobey in 1899 and they moved to Hamilton, where he opened a men's clothing store. As the business grew, she helped her husband. After his death in 1946 she managed the business for several years.

After selling out, she tried new fields, working in a law office and later in a real estate office.

"She's wonderful," her former employer, Miss Ethel Fagan, a local lawyer, recalled.

"I even left her in charge of the office for a week on one occasion. She drew up several wills for people who were in a hurry, and she did an excellent job. She was a very conscientious worker, very alert."

Outside her office, Mrs. Tobey has few interests. She retires every night at 7:30 p.m. and rises at 7:30 a.m.

"I have been blessed," is Mrs. Tobey's simple recipe of her unusual health and activity.

Soviet News Magazine Claims Canadian Uranium Industry Controlled by United States

By BILL BOWMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP)—An article in the Soviet magazine New Times claims Canada's uranium industry is American controlled.

The magazine, printed in Russian, English, French and German and sold throughout Communist Europe, quotes the Canadian Tribune, Toronto Communist publication, the Wall Street Journal and the Atomic Energy Newsletter as sources.

Headed "The U.S. drive for atomic materials," it gives the Soviet analysis of President Eisenhower's proposals for an atomic pool.

It maintains "U.S. monopolies have, with government support, managed to lay their hands on all the richer uranium deposits of the capitalist world."

It argues that U.S. "authorities have refused to supply other Western countries with atomic isotopes for peaceful needs and that even those uranium-producing countries, such as Belgium, "with the vast resources of uranium in the Congo, has not been able to obtain sufficient quantities even for a very modest atomic pile."

Long before the President's Dec. 8 speech the ground were afoot in Washington for a demonstrative act that would allay resentment in countries supplying uranium ore and at the same time benefit the U.S. an illusterrupted flow of atomic raw materials for military purposes."

GOVERNMENT CONTROL

The article does not mention that in Canada the uranium industry is private and confined to peaceful applications of atomic energy.

"Nominally," it says, "practically the whole of Canada's uranium output is controlled by a government monopoly, Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd.

"But Eldorado is a government agency only in name. Since the end of the war it was controlled entirely by American capitalists. Towards the end of 1952 the Canadian government bought up all the shares and appointed a Canadian, W. J. Bennett, chairman of the Eldorado board.

"This, however, did not affect the firm's old contacts with U.S. corporate interests: The reorganization was no more than a deal between the Canadian and American monopolies and has been engineered as such by the progressive Canadian Tribune. . . .

"The Wall Street Journal says that four American corporations, none of them being big boys in the Canadian Uranium Company, are already mining uranium north of Lake Superior, in the area around the Montreal river and at Sudbury. Reports in the U.S. press indicate that the St. Joseph Lead Company, an American firm, has bought up the Canadian subsidiary started a uranium mining project at Lake Athabasca at the cost of $4,500,000.

"The Eldorado refining mills are at Port Hope, near Toronto, not far from the U.S. border. Here the refining of uranium is completed, and the ore is shipped for further processing to the U.S.

At Ottawa, W. J. Bennett, president of Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd., described the claim as "ridiculous."

He said the article in the New Times is typical of Soviet propaganda and is similar to a story printed recently in the Communist party publication Red Star. A number of speeches by Canadian Communist MPs in the House of Commons along the same party lines.

Mr. Bennett said Eldorado is Canadian controlled, although some Americans own minority shares. The company was expropriated by the Canadian government in 1944 and now is owned by the federal administration.

He attacked a statement that four American corporations are mining uranium north of Lake Superior and in the Montreal river and at Sudbury was incorrect. There were no uranium mines in either area.

Mr. Bennett said the Joseph Lead Co. of New York, which has not started a uranium mining project at Lake Athabasca. The company is developing a base metal mine in New Brunswick, and is not engaged in uranium mining.

U.S. Veteran Is Free at Last After Fleeing Czech Prison

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — A triumphant young American named John Hvasta heads home by plane today, the winner in a grim cat-and-mouse game with the Communist regime of Czechoslovakia that lasted five years.

First a prisoner, then a fugitive, then a refugee sheltered for 18 months in the United States embassy in Prague, the 36-year-old Czech-born U. S. Navy veteran started catching up on freedom at once in a department car whipped him through the iron Curtain at the Czech - German border Thursday.

Hvasta's story of at least one phase of this life as a hunted man in Czechoslovakia for 21 months has never been publicly told. It could touch off a reign of terror against the anti-Red Czechs who sheltered him.

ACCUSED OF ESPIONAGE

Like Associated Press correspondent William N. Oatis, freed from Czech imprisonment 18th May 17, Hvasta was accused by the Red regime of espionage. He was sentenced to 10 years. He had served 2½ years when he took part in a five-man break from Leopoldov prison. Another prisoner jumped up and denounced the paper and his correspondent, Pierre Lapeyre, for a series of articles on the $225,000,000 hydro-Quebec project in the wilds of northeastern Quebec.

The French-language paper, he said, was pandering to "the vilest instincts of yellow journalism and the most ignoble sentiments" in the articles.

DENIES ENGINEERS QUIT

He said he had not read the series, but contents of one of them titled "The More It Costs, the More it Pays" had been reported to him. He branded as false statements in it that seven engineers quit their jobs rather than pay payrolls.

Mr. Duplessis then turned on Mr. Laporte, saying the writer had also asked him to have a special bill passed to settle family affairs. The bill had been passed and the reporter should now at least behave decently even if he showed no gratitude.

Mr. Laporte, at silent in the legislature press gallery while the premier was speaking, afterwards issued a statement calling the premier's account of what happened "fantastic."

The incident occurred some years ago and had concerned his grandfather. He recalled that at the time Mr. Duplessis had termed it a good bill.

"Mr. Duplessis said he rendered me an immense service," the reporter said. "Following his attack, Czechoslovakia free man.

The state department revealed the carefully guarded secret of Hvasta's successful flight in an announcement Thursday after Prague radio issued its version. The state department labelled the Prague account as phoney as it had called the charge of espionage on which Hvasta was arrested.

Duplessis Irked As Paper Charges Hydro Scandal

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec's Premier Duplessis and the Montreal morning newspaper Le Devoir tangled Thursday night in a series of angry recriminations.

During a legislative debate touched off by a challenge from Opposition leader Georges Lapalme, Duplessis demanded that the premier deny charges of irregularities in the construction of the huge Bersimis power development, Mr. Duplessis lashed out at the paper and its parliamentary correspondent.

Red in the face with anger, the 63-year-old premier jumped up and denounced the paper and his correspondent, Pierre Laporte, for a series of articles on the $225,000,000 hydro-Quebec project in the wilds of northeastern Quebec.

The French-language paper, he said, was pandering to "the vilest instincts of yellow journalism and the most ignoble sentiments" in the articles.

Farmers Worry Over Spread In Consumer Prices

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Agricultural Council, comprising representatives of county councils, Thursday voted to ask for an investigation of the spread between farm prices and consumer prices.

Delegates said the spread is constantly widening and farmers are getting the blame, although prices received by the producer are on the decline.

The organization discussed resolutions suggesting that needy countries be provided with gifts of food from Canadian surpluses. Another resolution recommended that effects now in distributed such food in a manner that would show the world's needy that Canadians are their friends.

The council finally voted in favor of endorsing the resolutions in principle and decided to discuss the proposals with officials of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and federal authorities before making any definite recommendations.

It endorsed a resolution asking the provincial control over the flow and use of streams, so that irrigation schemes could be put to best use during the summer.

It was unanimously for potato growers was voted down, as was a suggestion that the council ask for removal of tariff and excise tax on farm stainless steel cans and equipment used by the dairy industry. This resolution, from Elgin County council, had suggested such a move as a step toward reducing production costs in the dairy industry.

I consider myself even with him."

PAPER CHIDES PREMIER

Today in Montreal, Le Devoir carried a signed editorial by its assistant editor-in-chief, Andre Laurendeau, defending the writer.

"If he was wrong, let him be proved wrong," Mr. Laurendeau wrote.

"Personal attacks don't surprise us," the editorial continued. "Mr. Duplessis gives the impression of wanting to avoid the issue. Does he think he can convince us in that way that Pierre Laporte is wrong? Does he think he can persuade us that these articles never hit home?"

Mr. Lapalme said Le Devoir had published its views openly, knowing it could be dragged into court if what it said was untrue.

The Bersimis project, second largest hydro-electric scheme in Canada, will produce 1,200,000 horsepower when completed in 1961.

Earlier the legislative council passed a bill providing stiffer penalties for errant motorists and establishing separate speed-limits of 60 m.p.h. for automobiles and 45 for buses and heavy trucks.

Eisenhower's Compromise Kills Bricker's Amendment

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Eisenhower is a man who needs the help of his neighbors at harvest time and has to be careful he doesn't make them mad when they get a notion to trample his flower bed.

He could run them off with a shotgun when they come trooping into his front yard, heading for the flowers. But then they might not come when he called them to get the crops in.

Or he could stand his ground, saying pleasantly but firmly: "Please, don't." They couldn't get mad at that. They might even get into an argument about their whole expedition and walk off without deciding a thing.

Eisenhower has seldom relied on a shotgun. A good example is the handling of the Bricker amendment.

NEEDS HELP

It was clear when Eisenhower took over last year that in a Congress so evenly divided between Democrats and Republicans as this one he'd need all the help from all sides he could get to put his program over.

Eisenhower is publicly known about his relations with the lawmakers he has to work with. One of them reason to be mad at him on personal grounds, as former president Truman sometimes did.

It remains to be seen whether this studied nonpartisanship of people's feelings can really to him all the support he will need on legislation the most wants passed.

He started off the year well. The Senate approved United States co-operation with Canada on the St. Lawrence seaway, a project which for 20 years never got to first base in the Senate.

STRONG OPPOSITION

There was unusual support—63 senators at one time—behind the proposal of Senator Bricker to amend the constitution in a way that would:

Restrict the extent of treaties made by the president with the Senate's content and provide for congressional regulation of executive agreements made by the president himself with other countries.

Several times last year Eisenhower said he was against the particular amendment. The Ohio Republican was suggesting.

Eisenhower said the proposal would tie his hands in foreign affairs. Some Bricker critics thought Eisenhower should have gone to shotgun right there by refusing to make any concessions.

He chose a more moderate course. He said he'd compromise on that if the senators really thought some kind of amendment was needed he wouldn't object to one that said no treaty could override the constitution.

This stand humbled a bunch of Bricker's supporters off his bandwagon and practically killed his amendment.

Vote on Monday In Simcoe East By-Election

ORILLIA (CP) — The Central Ontario constituency of Simcoe East votes Monday in a provincial by-election since the Progressive Conservative administration, of Premier Leslie Frost was returned in the 1951 general election.

The first was in Niagara Falls constituency on October 26, when Arthur Jolley, Progressive Conservative, won out in a seat which went Liberal in 1951.

The voting in this area 75 miles north of Toronto will give the government its first test of strength since reports of graft and fraud in contracts for highway construction in northern and northwestern Ontario were published late last month. Several cases arising from contracts are before the courts at the Lakehead and Premier Frost has ordered an investigation by a private firm of management consultants.

The Simcoe East seat was left vacant by the death last December of Dr. John D. McPhee, Progressive Conservative member of the Legislature for the last two years.

Dr. McPhee polled 8,644 votes in the 1951 provincial election to 5,068 for John R. McIsaac, Liberal, and 1,741 for CCF candidate Wilfred Houlf, who is running again.

THREE CANDIDATES

Candidates for the traditionally Conservative seats — its last Liberal member sat during the Hepburn regime of the '30s—are Mr. Houlf of Orillia, CCF; Lloyd Letherby, Coldwater, Progressive Conservative, and William L. Moore, Orillia, Liberal.

If Korean War Is Resumed U.S. Bombers May Range Far

Editor's Note: In this third and final exclusive interview, the United States air commander in Korea tells what might happen if fighting breaks out again.

By ROBERT EUNSON

NEWS ANALYST

GENERAL OF THE AIR FORCE, Korea's hostilities is scrapped, and fighting breaks out again, United States bombers may range far north of the Yalu river and hammer Chinese cities in Manchuria—possibly with atom bombs.

Gen. C. P. Weyland, U. S. Far East Air Force commander, won't say they will. He did say in an interview, however, "It is my understanding that the Yalu river might no longer be the boundary, if the war is resumed in Korea," and we might strike far north wherever we could hurt him the most and with whatever would do the most damage.

China proper could also come into its sights, he implied, if it would help.

"The Far East air forces would be reinforced," Weyland said, "the logic air command is prepared operate anywhere in the world and could extend its range to this theatre."

FIVE PLANE TYPES

Bombers of the strategic command are the backbone of such warfare. There are at least five plane types in the U.S. Air Force which can carry the atom bomb and bases in Weyland's command can accommodate all of them. The five types are B-29, B-36, B-47, B-50 and B-36.

B-29s, B-50s and B-36s already are based in the Far East.

B-36s were in the Far East last summer when the United States sent 22 of these giants to Japan. At that time only the fact that three were here was made public.

The 22 made the trip from the mainland non-stop, landed all over the Far East and conducted many simulated missions.

"We could get the B-57 jet bombers here, too, in 12 hours if we needed them, Weyland said.

CHART OF ARMIES

"In case of attack from the Soviets, we are in a flanking position to strike advancing Communist air forces. Notice our positions on the map and you will see that we are just off shore from all communist territory in the Far East—China, North Korea, Manchuria and Russian Siberia.

"We could get to strike to the north, east or southeast from our positions in Japan, Okinawa, Korea and the Philippines."

The air force is keeping up a secondary chain of bases just in case they are needed. Although there are only caretakers on them now, the fields are in good shape and could be made ready for fighting planes will fly.

"If we would have to fight hard again to get back the initiative," Weyland says. "But it can be done if hostilities are renewed."

MADOC — The annual congregational meeting was held on the Madoc pastoral charge in the United Church on Eldorado, Monday, January 25th. Madoc, Tuesday, January 26, and Union, Thursday, January 28th. There was also an increase of $1,000 per year in contributions to the Woman's Missionary Society, with $850 forwarded to the Presbyterial treasurer.

Sunday School Lesson:

Proof Is in The Life

By ROY L. SMITH

A very great deal of the argument that goes on concerning Christian doctrine is entirely beside the point, for the very good reason that it misses the basic fact entirely. It assumes that Christianity consists of a series of theological propositions that can be proved by logic and debate, whereas actually it is a life that can be appropriated by the believer.

The Jewish fathers had eaten manna in the wilderness and the nation had survived. The experience was one of the central facts of every good Jew's faith. But the discovery of the manna was attested by the fact that those who ate of it eventually died. True, their life had been sustained in a time, and the miracle of the manna had been a powerful bit of evidence to prove that the nation's God was the One Eternal. But no one could possibly dispute the fact that it was no more than a temporary expedient.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for February 7, "Christ, the Living Bread," John 6.

Jesus of Nazareth took the most daring position any one has ever taken in all the history of mankind. He declared that He was capable of imparting a new quality to life, the impartation of which would make a new creature out of the believing individual. And all he asked was that his hearers should try the experiment. If it worked, then the claim was justified. If it did not, then his presumption was exposed.

BROUGHT "LIVING BREAD"

The Beloved Disciple who wrote the Fourth Gospel has used a series of vivid words and phrases which are not to be found anywhere else in the New Testament. This was a result of the Ephesian environment in which he lived and worked. Ephesus was the center of a great pagan cult which worshipped the mother goddess, Diana. Her temple was one of the seven wonders of the world. Her worship was accompanied by all sorts of sensuous rites and ceremonies.

Week after week, all summer holidays, different aged groups would meet in the healing facilities of this fine camp. Parents of girls and boys growing up should be especially interested in supporting this camp fund. Those who attend these camps receive training in Christian living.

At Trinity, Madoc, the installation of the new kitchen was completed during the year, as well as the new hall and choir. The insurance was adjusted, and the property contents. Most of the above items will be tabulated in dollars and cents.

But who can value the steady, faithful service rendered by the officers and members of the several organizations of the church week by week, month by month, throughout the year? These have been a busy, successful year, and so the charges look forward with renewed hope, and trust that this will be the most fruitful year yet for the work of the Lord and His people, Jesus Christ, at home and abroad.

New Regulations Announced By Dept. of Health

New regulations governing the control of communicable diseases have been announced by the Ontario Department of Health, according to Dr. A. M. Brenis, M.O.H.

Dr. Brenis said the changes in isolation or quarantine periods reflect current trends in treatment and take into consideration the widespread use of penicillin and other antibiotics in shortening the course of certain diseases.

Cases of scarlet fever and epidemic treptococcal sore throat are now placed for seven days and contacts are quarantined for the seven day period. Mumps require isolation until the swelling disappears and chickenpox for a period of seven days or until the crusts fall off, whichever is longer.

For German measles the isolation period is five days from the onset of the disease.

Dr. Brenis believes these changes will be welcomed by physicians, teachers and parents as the new isolation periods are expected to make regulations more acceptable to all concerned and thus to aid in control of communicable disease.

Concealing Birth Brings Suspended Sentence to Girl

PORT COLBORNE (CP) — A young woman said it was love for victim of Communist brutality in Europe before coming to Canada with five other members of her family was given suspended sentence Wednesday on charge of unlawfully disposing of the body of her stillborn child with intent to conceal the birth.

The girl, whose name was not made public, speaks little English and her story was told in court by Rev. W. E. Marshall, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church.

The pastor said that at the age of 13 the girl was taken into a Communist labor camp 70 miles from her eastern European home and forced into intensive labor.

Maple Leafs Defeat Canadiens 4-2 In Montreal To Take Over 2nd Place

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carter, Sports Editor

QUITE A GUY!

Oldtimers hereabouts will remember the hockey activities of William (Billy) MacMillan of Fort Hope, when the Lakeside town boasted one of the best junior clubs in these parts. That was away back around the turn of the century when hockey players were looked upon as weaklings if they could not go sixty minutes without "wetting a hair."

"Billy" told Paul Hargis of this city, a former Fort Hoper, and a great friend, that it was nothing in those days for a player to play sixty minutes in every game throughout a full season.

"Billy" lifted his nose in disdain when the subject of penalties came up. "We never heard of brawls in the old days, but occasionally a fist fight might break out. These were more liable to take place among the spectators than the players."

"Thirty penalties in a game is ridiculous," Billy snorted. "Years ago the game of hockey was based on chasing the puck on the ice and getting it in the net. Today it is more 'get the player' than the puck."

Billy is 78 years of age, Hargis said. He is just as unchastisable about hockey and skating as he was a half century ago. He has been on the Moose for 71 years, skating for fifty of them on the same pair of skates. He is in fine health, has never missed a year on the ice and says the sport is one of the prime factors in his suppleness and agility today.

A speed skater in his younger days, Billy likes to use the long 14-inch style rather than the shorter blade. "Covers a greater surface of the ice and gives better balance," is his opinion.

He recommends the longer blade for hockey players. Says it gives a longer glide and more speed. "I feel that with such skates there would be faster hockey and less injuries from spills."

"Billy," Haggis said, "was the first man in his district to own a pair of blue skates. He was also the first man to permanently attach a pair of skates to his shoes."

GOOD NEWS!

Jud Semark's injuries incurred in the Kingston Goodyears-Memos game Wednesday night have turned out to be less serious than thought at the time.

Jud is suffering with a painful bruise and not a fracture as first reported. He underwent X-ray examinations at the Belleville General Hospital yesterday and the pictures revealed no break. But Jud will have a pretty sore leg for the next few days or so.

WHAT, ALREADY!

First intimation hereabouts that spring is not too far away came yesterday with the announcement that a baseball meeting is being contemplated here in the immediate future.

President Jack Devine of the Central Ontario Baseball League, which took a session off last year, said he is sending out feelers to Oshawa, Peterborough, Kingston and Watertown with regards to holding a conclave here on or about February 21.

Letters will be in the mail to this effect within the next day or so.

Senior baseball died a swift death before it was born here last year. Efforts were made by Kingston and Watertown interests to form a New York-Ontario League, but after two or three meetings failed to bring out many representatives. The idea died a natural death. However as the Flatbush faithful wrinkles: "This is next year," and now is the time to start the baseball ball rolling if the district is to have a senior loop in 1954.

Oshawa, since being refused entry in the Intercounty League is, we understand, looking for baseball pastures. According to a report from the Motor City the Oshawans will play in either a Toronto League, the Lakeshore loop, or a Central Ontario circuit if such is organized.

Peterborough, we understand, is definitely interested in a C.O.B.L. set-up, as is Kingston. As for the Watertown entry; that is a matter which will have to be discussed at the round table.

It beats all how fast tempers fuzzle around this time of the year, and the first thing you know the dew-worms will be poking snouts through the earth, looking for spring. President Devine has made the right move in getting things started this early and it is hoped, if the teams mentioned are interested, there will be full representation to the meeting. There is nothing like a fast start, as the bridegroom said when the in-law shotgun poked him in the ribs.

Devine said he will instruct the secretary to send out letters to the abovementioned clubs requesting their views on the matter and if all are interested, he will call a meeting on the date mentioned.

We are all for that idea. And the sooner the better. There is no point in waiting until May 23 to organize a league with the opening date set for May 24. There always are plenty of pre-season wrinkles to be ironed out in any league, organized, or otherwise. So let's get crackin' and see what can be done along senior baseball lines this season.

Whip Habitants First Time On Forum Ice This Year; Rangers Defeat Hawks 3-2

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

There was a new look around the National Hockey League today and indications that playoff forecasters may be crossed up before the 70-game schedule ends next month.

Toronto Maple Leafs, the team coach King Clancy said would come along late but strong, are in second place and New York Rangers are still showing signs of overhauling Boston Bruins for the last playoff berth in the race for the Stanley Cup.

Many fans figured the Leafs were a cinch to make the playoffs but few expected them to knock the powerful Montreal Canadiens out of second place. They did it Thursday night by beating Canadiens 4-2 in Montreal.

Meanwhile the Rangers, virtually counted out of the running until they brought up veteran Doug Bentley to go with their youngsters, came from behind to beat Chicago Black Hawks 3-2 in Chicago. The victory left Rangers only one point behind the Bruins, beaten 3-0 by the league-leading Red Wings in Detroit.

BIG MARGIN

The victory gave the Red Wings 67 points, nine more than the Leafs. The Rangers have 47, one behind the Bruins.

It was the Leafs-Canadiens game that upset the odds-makers and made Clancy look good on his prediction that "we'll move into second place against Montreal and then just watch us go."

The 14,538 fans were banking on a Montreal win because the Leafs had not beaten Canadiens in the Forum in four games this year.

There was little doubt about this one as the Leafs took a 3-0 lead in the first period, led 3-1 at the end of the second and split two goals in the third period. The Leafs outshot Canadiens 38-34 in doing it.

All Leaf goals came from left-wingers. Gord Hannigan scored two of them. Cal Gardner were tallied by Harry Watson and Sid Smith.

RICHARD SCORES

Maurice Richard and Floyd Curry scored for Canadiens. Coach Dick Irvin made a change in his first line, putting rookie Jean Beliveau to centre Richard and Bert Olmstead. Beliveau, replacing Ken Mosdell on the line, got an assist.

At Chicago, centre Don Raleigh scored one goal and set up another to spark the Rangers. Raleigh beat Nick Mickoski into the clear in the second period and scored in front of the net. The Rangers never lost. Dean Prentice tallied the other New York goal. Bill Mosienko gave the last-place Hawks a lead at 17:52 of the first period but Jack McIntyre scored at 14:12 of the last period for the other Chicago goal.

Detroit leftwinger Ted Lindsay fired two goals that started the Wings off to their win and goaltender Terry Sawchuk's ninth shutout. Glen Skov, Red Kelly and Johnny Wilson added the others.

Night Games Increased In National League

NEW YORK (AP)—The National League released its 1954 baseball schedule today, which listed a record number of 229 night games and unprecedented single games for two clubs on the United States Decoration and Labor Day holidays.

Every team in the league except Chicago Cubs, which has no lights, increased its arclight output. Last year the circuit scheduled 220 night games, which tied the all-time mark set in 1951.

St. Louis Cardinals again have more floodlight contests scheduled than any other club, 53. That's two more than last year.

Philadelphia has scheduled 48 arclight tilts, six more than in '53. Milwaukee has 53, one more than last season; Cincinnati 52, four more; Pittsburgh 28, one more; Brooklyn 26, two more and New York 31, three more.

The season starts April 13 and for the first time in 61 years Pittsburgh Pirates will open at home. Philadelphia will furnish the opposition in other opening day pairings, Brooklyn is at New York, Chicago at St. Louis and Milwaukee at Cincinnati.

In what is believed to be the first time single games have been scheduled on Decoration Day (May 31) and Labor Day (Sept. 6), Brooklyn is at Philadelphia for one game on the former date and St. Louis at Cincinnati for a single on the latter.

The regular season closes Sept. 26.

Mercs Creep Closer to Dutchies Score 6 in 3rd to Whip Tigers 7-5

By The Canadian Press

Owen Sound Mercurys, known to come through when the chips are down, did it again Thursday night.

Falling down in the first half of the game and allowing Hamilton Tigers a 5-1 lead, the Mercurys rebounded with six unanswered goals in the last half to take a 7-5 victory.

The victory hoisted the Mercs to within two points of first-place Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series.

Owen Sound matched Hamilton's first marker early in the game but slipped while the Tigers added three more in the first period.

Opening the scoring in the second the Tigers increased their lead to 5-1. That was all.

Starting at 12:31 of the second, Owen Sound fought back into contention by scoring three times within two minutes and then knotted the count with 40 seconds of the middle period remaining.

Elmer Skov won it with less than four minutes to go in the game and Vern Gardiner scored the clincher with five seconds left. It was his second goal of the night. Skov also got two. Others went to Jerry Reid, Bill McKendry and Doug Gillespie.

Bill Hammond scored twice for Hamilton as did Hob Anslow, Jack Taylor notched a single.

Saint Ste. Marie, Mich., Indians defeated North Bay Trappers 8-5 in North Bay during the only game in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group. The win edged the Indians to within one point of the third-place Trappers and Pembroke Lumber Kings.

Marcel Clements, John Raynak and Bill McCracken each counted twice for Sault Ste. Marie. Henry Backer, Dean McBride and Jack Heon rounded out the scoring for the Indians.

Don Hogan scored two for North Bay to pull his total for the season to 30 goals. Stan Maxwell, George Gosselin and Mike Sukachenki netled singles.

Hamilton meets the last-place Cataracts in Niagara Falls, while Stratford Indians play Chatham Maroons in Chatham in the OHA tonight.

Indians go to Sudbury for a game with the Wolves in the NOHA.

Steve Pranteau Leads Pack In Dog Derby

THE PAS, Man. (CP)—Steve Pranteau of Grand Rapids, Man., continues to break trail with one lap remaining in the 300-mile Canadian open dog sled championships. At the end of the third lap, the veteran was 33 miles from Flin Flon to Cranberry Portage, the total elapsed time for the Indian fisherman was 16 hours and 41 minutes.

After an overnight rest, the five mushers still in the running will set out through snow made soggy by an early thaw on the final lap to The Pas, where a $1,000 first prize awaits the winner.

Second at the end of three laps was Gilbert LaValee, Pine Bluff, Man., trapper, with a total time of 17 hours, 16½ minutes. Third was Philip Carriere, Cumberland House, Sask., 18 hours, 15 minutes behind.

Canadian Woman Speed Skater Wins Two 'Seconds' in Tourney

DAVOS, Switzerland (Reuters)—Mrs. Pat Underhill of Kitwanga says she could have done better in the international speedskating championships here if she had skates, time to get used to the altitude—2,000 feet above sea level.

Nevertheless, the 28-year-old housewife said in an interview today that she was "very pleased" with her two second places in the 1,500 and 3,000 metres events today; each time behind Randi Thorvaldsen of Norway.

Both races were much longer than her specialty, the half mile, while the 3,000, metres is nearly twice as far as the longest distance she runs in Canada, one mile. There was 800-metre sprint for Mrs. Underhill to show her real talent.

"I put here last Saturday and the races were on Tuesday," she said. "Another week to get used to the height would have helped me the difference, I think. I felt better about my breath, especially the 3,000 metres."

RUNNER-UP SPOT

Miss Thorvaldsen won the 1,000-metre event in nine minutes, 48 seconds while Mrs. Underhill was timed at 1:32.7 in the runner-up spot. Canada's other sweetheart skater was third in 2:05.2.

In the 3,000 metres Miss Thorvaldsen's time was 5:42.7 followed by Mrs. Underhill in 6:39 and Miss Roger in 6:52.2.

Mrs. Underhill is preparing for the women's title championships to be held Feb. 20 and 21 in Oslo, and, frankly, is worried.

"There will be six Russian women in the event, the defending champ who held all the records, and if they are anything as good as their men here in Davos, they are really excellent," she said. Asked if she had any hopes, she laughed and added "I hardly think so."

"The Russians and the Norwegians are the tops in speedskating. We're not in their class as much to learn from the Europeans."

FIRST EUROPEAN VISIT

Mrs. Underhill is here to do just that. The Davos races were the first in which she has taken part and is her first visit to Europe. She will leave Davos Monday for a speedskating clinic tonight at Hamar, Norway, where she will stay until Feb. 15 before returning to Calgary.

After the world championships she plans to go to Belgium for some indoor racing before returning home.

Mrs. Underhill was happy to receive a letter of congratulations from Imperial Oil Company engineer in Edmonton.

"I am all alone over here," she said, "But this time the shoe is on the other foot. Usually it's my hubby who spends a lot of time away from home."

TO HEAR SUIT AGAINST CLUB

HAMILTON (CP)—A civil suit for $10,000, brought by quarterback Stan Heath against the Hamilton Tiger-Cats football club of the Big Four Rugby Union, will be heard Feb. 15 before Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan in the Ontario Supreme Court.

Heath claimed Voyles and the club broke a no-release contract calling for $9,500 for a 14-game schedule.

The Tiger-Cats, who obtained Heath from Calgary Stampeders Football Union, cut him in October after he played in two games. The Big Four rugby star has injured right arm hadn't healed.

Heath sued for $10,000 plus another $500 for general damages. An attempt to settle the suit out of court ended in failure.

SOME GOOD NEWS

PHILADELPHIA (CP)—Outfielder Dave Philley has returned three unsigned contracts to the Philadelphia Athletics and the Philadelphia Phillies have received two contracts playing for Jim Konstanty.

The only bright news on the Philadelphia baseball scene was a telephone call from first baseman Eddie Waitkus that he was satisfied with the second contract Phillies owner Bob Carpenter mailed him.

Waitkus, a sparkling glove man, hit .291 in 8 games with the Phillies in 1953.

Philley had his finest major league season in 1953, hitting .303 for the Athletics. Formerly, who won 14 and lost 10 for the Phillies last season insists he can do much doss even better if given the chance. The switch-hitted right-hander, most valuable player in the National League in 1950, said he had a 1-04 record by mid-season, but that after the all-star game he made only two starts.

OFF TO THE YUKON

CALGARY (CP)—Eight old-time hockey players of Calgary and district will fly to Whitehorse Saturday for an exhibition game that night against the Yukon Centre's Club. The following day they will give hockey lessons and show films on hockey, the Calgary stampede and the Grey Cup game.

Making the trip will be Lorne Loney, Eddie Wiseman, Tommy Anderson, Eddie Wiseman, Art Somerville, Carl Cattrin, Cam Burke and Gord Fraser.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—There has been a suspicion for quite some time that the modern wrestling game was not entirely on the level. Now there has been some confirmation of the lardy brotherhood works from a script, and that the eventual winner of any given "match" is known before the participants begin pulling knives on one another.

There is no great shock, therefore, in coming suddenly upon Herman Hickman's essay in the current Saturday Evening Post entitled "Inside Dope on my Racket." The sound man tells of his hilarious experiences when he was hiring the hustlings 30 years ago as his All-American footballer frosh out of Tennessee.

He branded this most sacred of all sporting trusts, Herman names names, many of the nationally known in the other way, and tells how the acts are arranged.

Hickman has done well down into his narrative does the former Yale star reveal that he was ever himself finds a trifle hot to handle. This is when he says that, contrary to widespread belief, there is rarely anywhere near new about the practice of pulling on a vaudeville skit for the customers. Herman asserts it was given to him in grandad's day, if not before.

ILLUSION SHATTERED

Now, if there is anything we have accepted as gospel it is the belief that up to about a generation ago wrestling was so dogtone honest that a real fan was in danger of yawning himself to death. Every match in those good old days when such giants as Gotch and Hackenschmidt and Strytcher and Lewis roamed the landscape a genuine "shooting match" that might end in flash before their eyes.

Hickman says it simply isn't so. How he knows he doesn't say, for there was a lot of wrestling before his gladiatorial debut in 1920, but his words sounds mighty sure of himself. The only difference between then and now, he maintains, was in the method.

No change the lapse somewhat, Herman refers to certain of the stars of the past as having been good "shooters"—meaning they could really wrestle—as well as "boy workers"—meaning they knew all the facial contortions and could produce a vicious amateur ball spin upon demand. The fact that some were known as good "shooters" would seem to indicate that they must at times have engaged in genuine tests of strength and skill.

STRANGLER SUPREME

Herman says the only match of that character he ever officiated personally was one in Madison Square Garden between Strangler Lewis and Ray Steele in the early 20s. Mr. Lewis, he recalls, was so much the better that "it really was no contest" in fact, Herman suspects that Lewis was the best ever.

It is a familiar story, which Hickman recalls, that to keep pressure applied to hoard a train to his next stop the following morning he was asked what he thought of the 220-pound Steele. "Good little man," the Strangler said, "good little man."

Far from damning the modern article, incidentally, Herman says it is superior entertainment, that the customers get their money's worth and the men engaged in it are, as a rule, better than average. It's never had a gambling scandal, either, he points out, because nobody bets on wrestling.

Toronto Rink Defeats Quebec

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP)—Mrs. L. R. Woolley's extra-ending champion Toronto Granite rink defeated a 23-6 win Thursday over a Buckingham, Que. team skipped by Mrs. R. J. Walker in the first round of the 23rd annual Sewell Trophy women's curling bonspiel.

Galt, Panthers Complete Trade

KITCHENER (CP)—Galt Terriers-and Kitchener Panthers completed the first trade of the 1954 senior Intermediary Baseball League season Thursday in an exchange involving three players.

The deal, a straight player transaction with no cash involved, sent pitchers Mel Duncan and Roly Larouche of the Panthers to the Terriers in exchange for Ellis Kaiser. In making the announcement, Don Cook, president of the Panthers, said the trade will be nullified if either Kaiser or Duncan fail to report.

Chicoutimi Nips Valleyfield 4-1; Take Over Lead

(BY THE CANADIAN PRESS)

Chicoutimi Sagueneens again became undisputed leaders of the Quebec Hockey League when they turned back Valleyfield Braves 4-1 Thursday.

The Saguenens now are two points ahead of Montreal Royals who were not in action but have two games in hand. Royals have one in the leaders Saturday.

In the other game Thursday Quebec Aces blanked Sherbrooke Saints 2-0.

At Chicoutimi, veteran Jacques Locas scored two of his team's four goals. Sherman White and defenceman George Roy counted the others. Jack Irvine saved Valleyfield from a shutout with less than two minutes to play in the final period.

Goalie Gilneau shone in the nets at Quebec. He turned back 22 shots. The other goal Gerry Cosinuk made 27 saves. The three he let through were scored by Roy Kelly, Orvin Crosse and Ludger Tremblay.

'Hard Rock' Benches Goalie

WINDSOR (CP)—Coach Murph Chamberlain of the Windsor Bulldogs Thursday night decided to bench goalie Bill Durnan after the Bulldogs' Senior OHA game against Queen Standard Mercury Saturday night.

Goalie Reynolds will replace Pidsodny for at least one game, Chamberlain said it would depend on how the team and Pidsodny is back in the nets for the next game. He said he has been dissatisfied with the goalie's play recently.

Tonawanda Wins Over Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—Tonawanda beat Hamilton 71-54 in an Inter-City basketball league game here Thursday night. The game was the first of a home-and-for the Hamilton players, who go to Windsor this week-end for the Canadian Basketball Association Senior A group playoffs.

UNEXPECTED VISITOR

SYDNEY (Reuters)—Joe Fallon, 41-year-old Sydney business man, was startled on Christmas Day when the Duke of Edinburgh walked in unannounced. They were wartime buddies. They first met in the battleship Hamilton in 1940. They chatted for 2½ hours—until the duke had to dash away to a special state luncheon with the Queen on their royal tour.

National Football League Scores Win Over Canadians

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—Call it war, friendly rivalry or spirited competition on the open market, the early scrambles for professional football talent next fall has been a clear victory for the National Football League over its upstart but well-heeled Canadian opposition.

Outbid for some of the outstanding college graduates and deprived of some of the stalwarts on their own rosters in past seasons, the American clubs clearly are out to beat the Canadians to the punch by signing up all the big names in sight.

Pittsburgh Steelers threw the latest one-two punch Thursday when they corralled two all-American halfbacks on their draft list. Johnny Lattner of Notre Dame and Paul Cameron of UCLA, slanging for the former and getting Cameron to agree to terms by long-distance telephone.

Cleared the Steelers draft, under which they parcel out 300 of the best college graduates in the United States among themselves, was paying dividends. While Canadian clubs bid frantically among themselves for the big names, each also subjected aficionados to the bandishments of a single American team.

Lattner spurned offers from British Columbia, Lions of the Western Conference of Football Union and Ottawa Rough Riders of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union in casting his lot with the Steelers. Cameron turned down bids from Ottawa, Toronto Argonauts and Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

But the Canadians were taking a shellacking in across-the-border raids for professional talent as well.

Bernie Flowers, all-star end with Ottawa last season, was recaptured by Baltimore Colts, from whose draft list the Riders swiped him at the start of last season. San Francisco 49ers grabbed halfback John Henry Johnson from Calgary Stampeders and Saskatchewan Roughriders lost end-mate Herb Johnson to New York Giants.

Against that string of losses, Canada could claim one major victory—the signing by the Lions of tackle Arnie Weinmeister, an NFL all-star with the Giants last year.

It remained to be seen whether the Giants would follow through on their threat of legal action against their fugitive tackle, but previous experiences of NFL clubs in Canadian courts offered them little chance of success.

Canada, USA Mushers Enter Big Dog Derby

OTTAWA (CP)—The fifth running of Ottawa's International sled dog derby will hit the frozen trail here next week after a lapse of one year.

A record entry list of 25 top-ranking mushers from Canada and the United States will send their dogs over a 56-mile course Feb. 9-10 with drivers combining the best elapsed time in two daily 35-mile heats winning $1,000 in cash and a gold challenge cup.

Poor snow conditions forced cancellation of last year's derby. But this year the weatherman has turned a benign smile on the capital and derby committee members expect trail conditions to be ideal.

The race will start and finish on the frozen Rideau canal near the Union Station.

Canadian mushers have won the last three meets.

Bill Shearer of East Jaffrey, N.H. won the derby in 1949.

NOTED MUSHERS

Wilf Lepine, 33-year-old lanky, snow-booted mushers from Quebec city, captured the gold challenge trophy in 1950 and 1952 and Emile Martel, 41, of Lorretville, Que., won in 1951.

Shearer, Lepine and Martel all will be competing again this year.

So far, three women have entered. They are Mrs. Rusty Dunlop of Burlington, Ont., who captured the initial sweepstakes for women in 1952, Mrs. Jean Lane of Lunenburg, Mass., and a newcomer pretty 17-year-old Sandra Stiles of Ottawa, daughter of a well-known musher.

Also expected to be included among the U.S. competitors are Dr. Roland L o m b a r d, Auburndale, Mass., Dr. Charles Belford, Deerfield, Mass., and Tat Duval, 33-year-old drug salesman from East Jaffrey.

Running under the Canadian army colors will be Sgt. Denny Hayes of Ottawa, who is making his third entry in the international derby.

Other Canadian mushers entered are the Brunet brothers, Ernest and Albert of Gatineau Point, Que., Tom Tetreault, Beauchesne, Que., Don McFaul, Maniwaki, Que., and Ed Derreagh, Hull, Que.

Mayor Charlotte Whitton will fire the starting gun.

FRENCH FINE AMERICAN.

PARIS (Reuters) — A Frehch court Thursday fined a Warsaw sergeant $15 for slapping the face of a Paris cafe proprietress. Police said the brawl started when Sgt. Charles Sieben, 23, mistook Ingrid Bretons for Communists and tried to throw them out of the "jockey" bar.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

The Editor

There are little things in bridge that escape the notice of the careless players. Such as leading into the jaws of a tenace if it is the only defence for defeating the contract. As in this tournament deal:

NORTH
♠K Q 10
♥10 7 5 4 3
♦5 4
♣J 10 8

WEST
♠7 6
♥Q 2
♦10 9 7 6 3 2
♣A 6 2

EAST
♠A J 8 4 3 2
♥A
♦K Q J 8
♣Q 5 3

SOUTH
♠9 5
♥K J 9 8
♦A K
♣K Q 7 4

Nearly all the tables bid it like this:

South	West	North	East
1 H	Pass	2 H	2 S
4 H	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding is normal. South has what it takes for an opening of one heart with a count of two trick extra. So, when north shows he has adequate support by his raise, tricks enough for game show up.

South could have shown his club suit on the second round. But there was absolutely no point in doing so. With the trump suit known and no slam in sight, going to game was the practical thing to do.

The opening lead from west was spade seven. When dummy hand is flopped on the table it looks as if the contract is a cinch. All the declarer figures to lose is a spade, and a trump, and a club. Dummy covered with spade queen. East won with ace. Several east players then returned diamond queen in case west had the king to make before dummy could shuff a diamond. Effortless thinking.

The more capable defenders in east counted spades. These flung back a spade at it once into the yawning jaws of dummy king and ten. It was taken there and a return trump was copped by east ace.

Another spade from east took the starch out of south. Nothing he could now do to make his contract stand up. Ruff with king and west later gets trump queen. Ruff lower and west overruffs.

The three defender aces were not enough to beat the contract. It was the third spade that forced south in give west the winning trick. It was a knockout. Cute little thing, isn't it?

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "When man understands, he no longer fears; when he no longer fears, he loves; when he loves, there is peace."

This is the principle that will guide Lew Ayres on a trip to film the story of religions around the world. He will abandon his acting career for the global tour, which he will finance himself.

I visited Lew in his home on the peak of the Hollywood hills, where he leads an almost monastic life.

"I'm leaving Feb. 21 by air for Japan," he explained. "I'll fly all the way because it would take me two years by boat to visit all the places I want to see. An old friend, Bob Duncan, will go along and help me with the cameras and recording equipment. It would be too much for one man.

"I'll spend about two weeks in each place, perhaps longer if I find I need more time to get the material. I hope to get a variety of things. In some places, I'll record the ritual and liturgy of the major religion; in others, I'll do interviews with church leaders. I hope to present the major religions of the world without controversy. There will be no attempt to make odious comparison.

SATISFY CURIOSITY

"What I want to do this job on my own. If I accepted support from organizations or even the 'state department, I couldn't remain as impartial. I am a Christian, but I guess I belong to no particular church."

How did he decide on the trip?

"You know how I have been interested for years in the brotherhood of man. There comes a time when you have to do something; man is not a mere vegetable. So I decided to make the move. I've had 25 good years in the movie business. The producers are not exactly breaking down my door with offers, although I still make a good living from pictures.

"I like acting. I always have. But I think it's time for me to do something positive to satisfy my great curiosity about life. I have looked into every religion. Now I would like to help other people to learn."

To the layman, it would seem that the magnolia blossom from Alabama is busy enough. In the last year, she made her night club debut, appeared on everything in TV from Ed Murrow's "Person to Person" to "Hedda Gabler" to the Jimmy Durante show, wrote an autobiography that led non-fiction books for five months, and acted in a movie, "Main Street to Broadway."

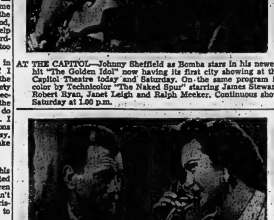
But all this is not enough for Taloo. She told me her troubles in her hotel suite, where she was battling "the actor's nightmare," laryngitis. She explained that she isn't supposed to smoke and protested to light a cigaret every other sentence.

'DARLING' NOT HEARD

"I'm not supposed to talk, either," she added. "But you know how impossible that would be for me, baby." She then poured forth thousands of words in an endless stream. She seemed to have given up "darling" for "honey" or "baby."

"I can't go on doing work in bits and pieces, really I can't, baby," she remarked. "I've got to have some steady line of work to keep the wolf from that door. Years ago, I bought a particular tremendous place in the country with a huge swimming pool and everything. I thought I would retire there and enjoy the country life.

"But I have to keep working my fool head off to afford the place! People in our business should never acquire big possessions. You become a slave to them.



FINDS TRAVEL BORING

"I wouldn't mind going back to the theatah, except for one thing—the road. I suppose if the show were a hit, I would have to travel all over the country with it. The thought of it bores me. It's all right for some stage-struck child, but I've been through all that. I wasn't happy with the revues I did last season. It was like being shot out of a cannon."

Miss Bankhead was sipping tea. She explained that she was still recovering from the celebration of her 51st birthday.

The new Twentieth Century-Fox mystery drama, which co-stars Gary Merrill, is at the McCarthy Theatre.

Thomson, Harden Lead Golf Pack At Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Australian star Peter Thomson of Melborne and Jack Harden of El Paso, Tex., scored seven-under-par 64s, led an array of 35 pacebreakers through the first round of the $10,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament Thursday.

Harden, 40-year-old club pro who limits tournament play to just a few during the winter each year, rang up seven birdies for his 32-32-64.

Thomson, 34, runner-up to Ben Hogan for the British open title last year and 1953 Australian open champion, fashioned a 33-31-64. His round included seven birdies, two bogies and a beagle 2.

Jerry Kesselring, Kitchener, making his first tour of the winter circuit, carded a two-under-par 69 to tie with eight others for 11th place. His 34-35 matched the score of Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N.C., 1952 U.S. open titleholder.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, FEB. 6, 1954

Born Today

The half-hearted, sluggish effort will attain little; it will only aggravate. Take a reasoned chance for real results this work-a-day. Big achievement ahead; seek to learn.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Time and effort devoted to the important issues will give you the extra push that puts profits in your way. Be ready to wrap up things thoroughly, creditably.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Even if things are clicking, don't relax too greatly. Use keen, clean tactics and be as eager as ever.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Your imaginative mind at work, you should find the going easier this busy month. Put your talents and ideas to work.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — With your analytical mind at work, you should find the going easier this busy month. Put your talents and ideas to work.

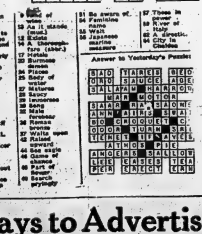
July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — No coy, easy way now. Plant your seed of desire, then put things in working order for the Big Push. All goals call for steady, patient effort. You are equal to the job! no pitch in!

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — There may be restrictions in the overall picture, but you need never be limited—especially in your love. Retyna may take time but look for ultimate attainment. Intimate affairs require watching.

September 24 to October 23 (Pisces)—Encouraging planetary vibrations should make for greater incentive; better application of well-considered plans. Well-rounded returns are yours for sincere effort.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Engineering, aviation, mining, stockraising, matters pertaining to groups and children favored. Public, government officials should progress now.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—You may have to back your way cautiously to put across ideas now. Don't be too proud or self-satisfied to seek assistance if you need it. Day can be very worth while.



December 22 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Not too many complications to hinder progress. Careful buying, trading, some new proposals can thrive with proper know-how and management. Romance will need care.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Not especially auspicious for new or extensive matters unless planned with shrewd forethought. Consult wise counsel if in doubt.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Rather generous outlook for some types of business, manufacturing, and personal services, indicating a fairly successful year pro and con, and don't be stubborn or blasé.

YOU BORN TODAY have, by nature, a lively disposition. Don't ever let moodiness or disappointment mar this good trait. Your cleverness and reliableness are outstanding. Avoid exaggerations and deceit, however. You are able to work for long periods at a time and seldom lose your temper though you do give too short answers very occasionally. Develop your capabilities. Birthdate of: Sir Henry Irving, famous English actor-manager.

No Opposition, Tito Wins Again

In Belgrade, Marshal Tito delivers a 70,000-word address on the state of the nation before the Yugoslav parliament before his re-election to the presidency. Tito said that Yugoslavia is willing to do business with all nations, including Russia and her satellites, on the basis of "non-interference in their internal affairs." Tito's parliament re-elected him president without a dissenting vote. He was the only candidate.

CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD — Dr. R. F. Richardson headed a delegation of the Campbellford Citizens' Band requesting that the town council give a grant this year of $1900, so that new uniforms may be procured. He said that the present uniforms which were second-hand when purchased about five years ago, were not serviceable in respect that they did not fit the members of the band properly. The cost of the uniforms, which will be distinctively made incorporating the Campbell tartan, is about $2,300. The band expected to be able to provide $500 of their own.

Dr. Richardson pointed out that the band is a cultural organization, and that two excellent leaders and that there is a junior section giving training to about fifteen new players. Five hundred dollars had been granted annually to the band for the past few years. Dr. Richardson said that the meeting match, the Campbellford Citizens' Band had been mistaken for the Salvation Army Band.

After considerable discussion a motion referring the matter to the finance committee to report to council was withdrawn and a motion passed granting the Citizens' Band $1900 for the coming year.

Out of "reports of committees" very little business emerged. The police committee asked that the council as a body deal with police matters in special session. An adding machine for the office was purchased and council indicated that they do not wish to purchase Mr. Birmingham's furniture and typewriter now in the town office.

Claim for damage to a car on the streets was referred to the town's insurance company.

Applications were received for the position of tax collector; these the next special meeting filled pending the recommendations of the finance committee concerning general requirements of the office as a whole.

Offers for the old hospital were then opened. Two only were submitted, that of Mr. Wilfred Spencer for $3,400 and Mr. Harry Mansfield for $3,500. Building was sold to the latter. On motion, the purchase price is to be turned over to the Campbellford Memorial Hospital for building purposes.

Mayor Locke reported on the Memorial Hospital, indicating that the total cost of building and equipping the hospital is $400,500, and that there is a deficit to make up of $45,000.

By-laws included the appointment of Mr. Wm. McComb to the Northeast Northumberland and High School Area Board and the passing of the plumbing by-law as outlined by the Northumberland - Durham Health Unit. The unit has, under the powers of the Ontario statutes, named a plumbing inspector, who has to pass on all plumbing work. The municipality is billed for this service, and in order to recover the expense from the householder a by-law is necessary.

Overgrown Herd Of Deer Will Be Thinned Out

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Deer from an overcrowded herd in Roedean park will be shot next week by officers of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests and the venison will be distributed to charitable institutions in western Ontario, D. N. Omand, district forester said Thursday.

Canada's Federal Spending Headed For Peacetime High

Taxes Not Likely to Change Much Says Finance Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's federal spending is headed for a peacetime high, possibly an all-time record, but taxes are not likely to change much.

The country won't know about tax changes until Finance Minister Abbott's budget comes down, likely in March, but it got a clue Friday in the budget speech level.

The indication was that the general tax scale won't be boosted, to any great extent, though individual taxes might be juggled to close the government's $4,631,751,000 it expects now to spend in the 1954-55 fiscal year.

This figure was just 1.3 per cent, or $58,000,000, more than the estimated total for 1953-54 now to the date.

The 1953-54 amount to date, which likely will be swelled by supplementary estimates at the March 31 end of the current fiscal year, is $4,233,466,000.

Non-budget expenses of the federal government that are not included in the estimates are capital investment disbursements, estimated to be $4,865,000,000. These are blended with the estimates to provide loans and investments by the government.

BUDGET GO HIGHER

With these and any substantial supplementary estimates, which Parliament will vote for the current fiscal year, the total easily could go beyond $5,000,000,000 and the peak of $5,322,000,000 in the wartime year of 1943-44.

The estimates indicate a slowdown in defence expenditures because the government feels the signed requirements have been met.

Direct military expenditures are being slashed by $92,000,000 to $1,909,000. Federal outlays on defence production also are being reduced. There is no change in civil defence spending. The total of reductions in defence spending in various departments is $126,000,000.

CBC to Receive Over 23 Millions

OTTAWA (CP) — The publicly-owned CBC will receive $23,644,450 from Parliament during 1954-55 to finance radio and television operations.

The estimates tabled Friday in the Commons provide for the CBC's excise tax receipts on radio and television sets and parts.

Also provision for turning over to the CBC excise tax receipts on radio and television sets and parts.

Also provision for turning over to the CBC excise tax receipts on radio and television sets and parts.

The estimated $13,000,000 will be the largest single item of revenue from Parliament for the CBC.

The CBC also will receive its annual $6,250,000 for operation of its 18 privately-owned stations which will make the revenue from Parliament for CBC domestic broadcasting $19,250,000. This is an increase of $171,550 from the $2,027,200 voted for the 1953-54 fiscal year.

Pay Increases Not in Estimates

OTTAWA (CP)—The government tossed a $4,491,751,000 spending estimate at the Commons Friday, but Parliament members can look in vain for any indication of higher pay for them.

The pay issue has been under controversy in the Commons for several days. The government proposals of increases for commons and senators that would cost about $1,500,000 a year.

Reason for the omission of the pay increases from Finance Minister Abbott's estimates:

Expenditures such as these are not needed in the spending forecasts until the approving statute has been passed. When passed, the cost will be taken up in supplementary estimates.

QUAKE WRECKS FOUR TOWNS IN MEXICAN STATE

Report Many Killed Damage Widespread

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A strong earthquake wrecked four towns in the tropical, coffee-growing Mexican state of Chiapas Friday, killed many persons and spread damage and terror over an area 50 miles in diameter, a dispatch from Tuxtla Gutierrez said today.

Many planes were reported flying doctors, nurses, medicines and other supplies to the stricken zone, in the mountainous state country centre 70 miles northeast of Tuxtla Gutierrez, the capital, and about 100 miles west of the Guatemalan frontier. Communications were disrupted.

First word to reach Mexico City came in a dispatch from Tuxtla by a newspaper correspondent in the state capital. It was offered no estimate of casualties or damage, but said the towns of Yajalon, Tila, Petalcingo and Chilon were also hit by the quake and hillsides crumbled.

Selamogrados in New York, Boston, Cleveland, Pasadena and Jacksonville in the United States had recorded a tremor at about 10:20 a.m. EST Friday.

CORRESPONDENT'S ACCOUNT

The correspondent's account from Tuxtla said:

Yajalon suffered most. Markets and other buildings in that town of 7,000 were flattened.

Petalcingo, population 1,500, was completely destroyed. Its 600 houses were destroyed and 90 per cent of the rest were badly damaged. The villagers, fearful that other quakes would follow, fled.

The town of Tila, population 4,615, was reported "virtually destroyed."

Shocks were either wrecked or abandoned in all four towns, including Chilon. Some cases of fever will be required among the relief supplies.

The picture is about the life and times of the monk who led the Protestant breakaway from the Roman Catholic Church in the early 16th century.

Lutheran Church Productions, Inc., made the film.

The council is an organization uniting 18 Lutheran church groups with more than 4,000,000 members.

Committee Says Signs Point To Economic Recovery in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)— Evidence gathered by the congressional economic committee suggests that the slump in jobs and production in the United States "has begun to level off" and will turn into a recovery this spring.

The committee, weighing the anti-depression program President Eisenhower presented to Congress in his economic report last month, took testimony from the heads of nine government economic and statistical agencies this week.

Their findings, Representative Jesse P. Wolcott (Rep., Mich.), committee chairman, said in an interview, point to a seasonal upturn in hiring and business activity in the early spring, followed by a possibly substantial business revival in the fall.

Eisenhower advised Americans Friday night to ignore "prophets of gloom" and promised them a "big brother partner in the fed- neral government."

Addressing a cheering throng of more than 2,000 at a Washington Republican dinner, Eisenhower sailed into Democratic predictions of hard times, saying that the United States doesn't need to fall."

He criticized former president Truman,who said the country now is in a recession.

Addressing a meeting of Americans for Democratic Action in New York, Truman said "the recession that started on the farms last spring has already spread to the cities and a depression would do likewise." He scoffed at the "miracles" he said were promised by the Republican party.

"I have been watching and waiting for those miracles to happen that we were promised back in 1952. But there is something wrong somewhere. There seems to be a slight delay in the miracle busi-

Pope Is Slightly Improved But His Weakness Persists

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Pius shows symptoms of a slight improvement but "the state of general weakness persists," his physician reported today.

Prof. Riccardo Galeazzi-Lisi said the Pope passed "a moderately fair" night.

The 77-year-old spiritual leader of the world's Roman Catholics lay pale and wan in his simple wooden bed in the apostolic palace, his light breakfast untouched.

A gastritis that developed Jan. 25 still an unsolved problem to Galeazzi-Lisi and two other physicians, Dr. Rafaello Cattani and Dr. Paul Niehans, a Swiss specialist in endocrinology and urinalysis, and Dr. Cesare Frugoni, a Rome internal general practitioner.

Three German nuns attend the Pope, who is nearing the end of his second year of an enervating illness officially reported to have caught him "weakened by excessive, prolonged work and public duties."

But he has temporarily lost the services of their leader, Sister Pasqualina Lehnert, the housekeeper ever since he was apostolic nuncio in Bavaria 31 years ago. She suffered a heart failure Thursday night in a fall on the floor of her papal apartment.

NOTHING TO ADD

Galeazzi-Lisi, who issued a bulletin Friday on the Pope's condition, refused to go for the second bulletin reporters at 10 p.m. he had nothing to add to it. He retired to his apartment after a visit today.

The bulletin Friday night said the hiccups which were troubling the Pope ceased three days before, and that he was beginning to regard certain x-ray examinations of both the stomach and nearby organs as "of minor original importance" indicated normal conditions.

Some 40,000 members of Italy's Catholic Action, a lay organization, have been asked to pray for the Pope, Theodore Cardinal Innitzer, Archbishop of Vienna has ordered others who called for such prayers.

Son of Convict Is Left Estate Of $6,800,000

NEW YORK (AP)—The 11-year-old son of Wayne Lonergan, cafe society figure and convict, has killed his wealthy wife in 1943 and now is serving 25 years to life in Sing Sing prison, inherited $6,800,000, less taxes.

This was disclosed Friday with the filing of the will of his maternal great-grandmother, the late Mrs. Housman in a surrogate court. Mrs. Housman, 86, died Jan. 25 in Palm Beach.

The boy, whose name has been changed to Wayne Lonergan Bond, will fall heir to the fortune as beneficiary of a trust fund set up by Mrs. Housman for her late husband, Max Bernheimer, a brewer.

The boy of Wayne Lonergan and former Patricia Burton, was found lying nude in bed in their New York apartment Oct. 22, 1943.

Police learned later that Lonergan had left the RCAF cadet's uniform he wore in New York leat week-end. His wife was arrested in Toronto and confessed the slaying after being brought back to New York.

Police said he admitted hitting her with a candlestick and choking her because after almost an argument by telling hi mshe never was going to let him see their son again.

Claims Spies At Work In Soviet Union

LONDON (AP) — A Moscow radio commentator said Friday that U.S. spies and saboteurs are at work in the Soviet Union.

Professor P. S. Chernomykin said that despite the clumsiness of the system a "class struggle" still goes on, and added:

"Imperialist states are sending into our country spies, diversionists, saboteurs and murderers. International and foreign bourgeois intelligence services are trying to enrol persons who deserve it, who are ready—politically unstable elements."

Member Charges Rates Responsible For Big Fortunes

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF member of Parliament charges that second-class mail rates partly are responsible for "enormous fortunes" being made in the newspaper field of Canada.

Frank Howard (CCF—Mackenzie) made the accusation in the Commons Friday night as he criticized Finance Minister Abbott's proposed government legislation to increase first-class postal rates by two cents.

Mr. Nicholson said that first-class mail is the only mail which produces a profit of $20,700,000 a year according to figures he said were given in the House. However, second-class mail was losing 13½ cents out of the dollar or a total of $16,000,000 a year.

He added:

"When one considers that that subsidy has been a factor in building up some of the immense fortunes made in the newspaper field I believe the government is really being fair with the Canadian people in forcing the increase on that item of mail unchanged.

"In this connection and to demonstrate my point I should only mention the Thomson paper syndicate which operates not only in Canada but which recently bought the Scotsman in Edinburgh, Scotland. The Scotsman in 1953 made $1,000,000 last year; the Southam group; the Toronto Star; the Toronto Globe and Mail; the Sifton group, and the honorable member of the Senate (W. H. Dennis of Halifax) who died recently; I do not know how much of that profit was made in the newspaper business but he certainly did not lose anything in the deal."

He said these large fortunes have been made partly "from the very low cost second-class mail I think the government has in effect in place this tax on the Canadian people by increasing the letter rate by one cent."

CIRCULATION UP

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The London Free Press announced Friday that the average daily circulation of its morning and evening editions reached a new high record of 90,845 during January. The announcement said the Free Press, Canada's largest daily newspaper in Ontario, outside of Toronto, "is now a leader in the field of more than 300,000 persons a day. In 1945 the average daily circulation was slightly more than 50,000.

PLAN TO BOOST POSTAL RATES CLEARS HURDLE

Commons Defeats Two Motions by Opposition

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's plan to increase postal rates by one cent cleared another hurdle.

The C o m m o n s Friday night voted down on the bill, once to defeat a CCF attempt to kill it and a second time to defeat a combined opposition attempt to prevent it receiving approval in principle.

For both votes, the Progressive Conservative, CCF and Social Credit members joined against the government. The votes were defeated by 76 to 59 and 76 to 58.

The Commons begins detailed study of the bill Monday, it must then receive third reading before being sent to the Senate.

The increase would bring the cost of first-class mailings for between postal districts and to five cents from three for mailings within a postal district. Extra ounces would cost five cents each.

When these rates go into effect, the government also proposes to eliminate the seven-cent domestic airmail rate, carry all first-class mail by air where that speeds delivery.

The postal debate was resumed after Finance Minister Abbott's budget speech. His estimates of expenditure for 1954-55 calling for revenues totalling $4,631,751,000.

The two votes Friday night were the latest in a series since the government first announced plans to raise rates last December. Thursday—a CCF attempt to have the bill withdrawn was earlier—manentary committee established to investigate the department was defeated.

In proposing his motion to kill the bill, CCF leader Coldwell again suggested formation of a parliamentary committee to make a "thorough" inquiry into the department.

Postmaster-General Cote, closing the debate, said that putting the bill to a committee would delay the government department as a means to meet the deficit this year would not $20,000 dollars. The rates would change the picture. That was taken from one pocket and put into another.

He declared that the closing postal savings accounts would save the $317,000 cost of operating them. The $27,000,000 on deposit was available to the government could have a voice with the West Germans, has brought it much as operation of the postal savings accounts.

'Flying Radar Station' Crashes on West Coast

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Big Navy Constellation Warning Control "flying radar station" crashed in a fog-bound San Francisco Bay today, killing all of the radar-guided crash boat rescued all 13 aboard.

The Navy said no one reported injured, one severely.

The rescue boat, unable to return to nearby Hamilton air force base because of heavy fog, landed at Alameda Naval Air Station on the northern end of the Golden Gate bridge. The Constellation, a four-engine plane, flying out of McClellan field near Sacramento, plunged into the bay about seven miles from the end of the Hamilton runway as it attempted a radar landing.

Russians Say They Have Found Way To Carry Milk Home in Paper Bag

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

MOSCOW (AP)—The Russians have come up with a revolutionary new idea—all "hydrofobization." It's so good, they say, it'll keep milk sweet and cream fit for a rainstorm and permit you to carry a quart of loose milk home in a paper bag.

The discoveries reported in the government newspaper Izvestia by Soviet Scientists at Leningrad University are credited with developing the idea.

No details are given except to say the chemicals used are of a silicious organic character which are cheap and can be produced in large quantities."

The paper claims this is an entirely new water-proofing method. It says that where rubber "mechanically" seals pores, hydrofobization prevents the molecular ties between water and fabrics and metals.

treated fabric therefore repels water.

This means you could throw your fabric raincoat away and if you had a suit and shoes treated with the stuff. Paper cups no longer have to be waxed, water colors can be washed after treatment, and "hydrofobized" fabrics will repel water as if they were made of rubber," the newspaper goes on to say that treated and untreated fabrics are indistinguishable in appearance. The chemical cannot be removed from the fabric either by boiling or chemical detergents.

Building materials, ceramics and glass all can be treated—even auto windshields which, when hydrofobized, do not get wet, the paper claims.

Leningrad University researchers, the article concluded, now are looking for a way to hydrofobize paper.

Dulles Will Ask Molotov to Solve Korean Deadlock

Wants Him to Use Influence To Arrange Peace Parley

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

BERLIN (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles has decided to ask Russia's foreign minister Molotov to use his influence with the Chinese Communists in an effort to break the Panmunjom deadlock on a Korean peace conference.

The American will make his move in closed-door Big Four talks here Monday.

At that time the question of Korea is to be brought up among the foreign ministers in connection with a Soviet proposal for a Big Five conference, including Communist China.

The United States position, diplomatic informants said, is that the U.S. government will categorically reject any five-power conference which is of such a character as to recognize the Chinese Communist regime as one of the great powers. But it is willing to deal with Red China on specific and limited issues which can only be handled in that way.

COMMUNIST CRACK-DOWN

Meanwhile, a Communist crackdown on East German workers speaking out against Molotov's plan for unification in western Germany has held attention at today's first session of the three ministers of the Big Four conference.

East German police have made scores of arrests, latest Minister Willi Stoph, directing the crackdown, warned at an East Berlin rally Friday night that the Red government "will promptly suppress every attempt to disrupt democratic development of the republic." The warning came as a caution against any German demonstrations during the week-end ceases of the Big Four.

Outbursts of opposition, all reportedly feeble, developed in five scattered East German cities in the last five days.

They were simply shouts of protest against speakers lauding the declaration by Molotov that the best way to unite Germany and establish a peace treaty would be to pattern a new united country after police-dominated East Germany.

FARLEY AT STANDSTILL

The Molotov plan, designed to kill by promising a provisional government in which the Communists would have a loud voice while the West Germans, has brought Farley Foster party to a standstill.

The three Western ministers have declared that unless the Russian foreign minister is ready to negotiate freely on German unification and free elections, there will be little value in talking further at this meeting of the foreign ministers.

The Western ministers have said they are willing to discuss any part of it, but Molotov, in his concluding word at Friday's session, has stood without further discussion of Germany's future.

Today's final session of the second week of the conference was given over to the problem.

There was little else on the day's program. By agreement, the ministers met each with three advisers, will go into restricted session Monday.

There, if concessions are made by either side, they can be made on a five-and-take basis with the results announced afterward.

Victoria Cross Winner Given New Position

OTTAWA (CP)—Late in 1950, Jack Mahony, VC, stood on a suitl pier in Seattle, Wash., and watched Canada's advance army guard sail for Korea.

He looked miserable and there was a tear in his eye. He was going to miss another war, another battle.

Ever since Lt.-Col. John K. Mahony, 42, of New Westminster, B.C., won the Victoria Cross in Italy in May, 1944, he's been trying to get back to the infantry.

There's an old army rule that says: No more fighting for VC winners. But Jack badgered his superiors until in 1951 he was given a battalion, commander in the 27th Infantry Brigade which was to see service in Germany.

He worked so hard getting his outfit into shape that his health suffered and he became assistant adjutant and quartermaster-general in western Ontario command at London.

GOES TO WASHINGTON

After his epic stand on the Melfa river which won him the VC, Mahony was made a liaison officer. He detested the job, tried to sneak back to the front.

Army headquarters announced Friday that the quiet Irishman—he doesn't smoke, drink or swear—will assume new appointment in April: Canadian Army liaison officer to the United States department of the army in Washington.

He will succeed Lt.-Col. R. S. Malone of Halifax and Ottawa, whose new appointment will be announced later.

Col. Mahony will be succeeded in charge of another British Columbian, Lt.-Col. W. G. McGuire, 38, of Salmon Arm, now executive officer to the director of infantry, Canadian joint staff in Washington. He was company commander of the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada in the Italian campaign until he was wounded and lost a leg.

Screen, Sound And Story Make 'The Robe' Great

By JACK BRETT

The latest word in motion picture entertainment, a real advance in the movie industry and—the best picture we have ever seen. Lloyd C. Douglas's "The Robe" opened yesterday at the Belle Theatre. Combining a new method of photography, Cinemascope, stereophonic sound and a wonderfully moving story, it introduced patrons to a new movie era.

Cinemascope's new wide, slightly curved screen provides pictures about three times the size of the regular image. An entirely new field of motion picture entertainment has been opened with the establishment of Cinemascope. Not only is the image larger, clearer and certainly more colorful, but it also embraces a wider field of action.

The element of depth supposed to be created with cinemascope is almost intangible. It is there and yet it is not. Nevertheless, the effect of the wide, curved screen is tremendously interesting and entertaining. But more impressive to our way of thinking is the addition of stereophonic sound which is a three dimensional description. It is a thing that has to be heard to be appreciated and without it the picture would not have won such high praise from almost all who have seen it.

The film stars Richard Burton as Marcellus Gallio, a Roman officer in charge of the soldiers who crucified Jesus; Jean Simmons as the gentle Lady Diana and Victor Mature as Demetrius, slave to Marcellus. The remainder of the talking and the acting of all the major stars left nothing to be desired.

"The Robe" is a fictional account which has a very small part of its basis founded on fact. This, however, in no way lessens the entertaining nature of the story.

Marcellus Gallio is not mentioned in the Bible to our knowledge, but Christ's robe is mentioned in the following two verses of the 19th chapter of the book of John: "Then the soldiers, when they had crucified Jesus, took His garments and made four parts, to every soldier a part; and also His coat: (The Robe) now the coat was without seam, woven from the top through out."

"They said therefore among themselves, let us not rend it, but cast lots for it, whose it shall be: that the scripture might be fulfilled, which saith, they parted my raiment among them, and for my vesture they did cast lots. These things therefore the soldiers did."

According to the picture, Marcellus won The Robe at the foot of the cross, and what happened when he threw it across his shoulders is dramatic and startling. The influence the plain homespun cloth had over Marcellus is the beginning of a fascinating story of his conversion to Christianity.

"The Robe" will be remembered long by those who have been it for a variety of reasons. Firstly, it is the premier of Cinemascope and stereophonic sound. Its story is fascinatingly entertaining. The colorful scenery at all times is beautiful.

However, there are a number of small faults. For one thing there appeared to be intermittent blurring of the image. The illusion of depth is not as marked as some of the other features of the movie. Certainly these dimensional pictures viewed through glasses give much more of the three-dimension element than does The Robe. However, these criticisms are of a minor nature and in no way detract from this marvellous production.

Mayor Ross Burtt to Retire From CNR After Long Service

TRENTON (Special) — Trenton's mayor Ross Burtt, M.M., will retire from service with the Canadian National Railways on Saturday, February 13th. When Mayor Burtt swings down from his regular run on No. 2 Highway next Saturday he will be ending an association with the railroad that began in 1913, was interrupted by World War I, and which has been continuous since 1923.

On Monday, February 15th, Mayor Burtt will celebrate his 65th birthday.

With his retirement he says that he will be able to devote all his time to the business of being mayor of Trenton.

Mayor Burtt was born in Carleton, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Burtt. His father was a builder. Ross received his education in Trenton and in 1913 was hired by the C.N.R.

During the First World War he joined the 21st Infantry Battalion, Trenton's own unit, and served overseas under the command of Colonel, later General, St. Pierre Hughes, a brother of Sir Samuel Hughes.

RECEIVED MILITARY MEDAL

Ross was wounded in action in France and was awarded the Military Medal for gallantry under fire. He was hospitalized in Belgium, but was not, permanently disabled by the wounds. His brother, Ed Burtt, now living in Toronto, was crippled by wounds received while serving in World War I.

Ross was discharged from the army after the war as a sergeant. On his return to Trenton he worked at a variety of jobs until he was rehired by the C.N.R. in 1922 as a train dispatcher. By a strange coincidence he was hired in February on Saturday the 13th, the same date on which he is scheduled to retire 31 years later.

Mayor Burtt, a strong union man and a friend of the working man, served as a councillor in Trenton almost continuously for 16 years. He was defeated for the mayor's office on two previous occasions, each time in a three-way fight, before being elected this year in a contest that saw him defeat brothers R. A. Whitley and Dick Whitley.

Mayor Burtt, who lives at 49 Joseph Street, married Eva Vantassle on his return to Canada after World War I. He has two sons, Bruce, of Trenton, and Vic, an airman in the RCAF, who is well known locally as a softball pitcher with the RCAF Flyers in the Belleville and District Softball League.

Car Hits Tree, Three Are Hurt

Three young Belleville men suffered shock and bruises shortly after midnight last night when their car went out of control on No. 2 Highway just east of the city limits and crashed backwards into a tree at the side of the road.

Taken to Belleville hospital in two Bush's ambulances were Harold Quinney, 29, Coleman St., owner and driver of the car; Glen Sprague, 23, of 16 North Front street, and Paul Bruyea, 22, of 380 Albert street.

Police said the car was westbound when near the Smith Transport terminal warehouse the vehicle went out of control and, turning completely around, crashed into the tree.

The force of the impact tore the front seat loose and the seat and the three young men were thrown into the rear seat. Damage to the late model auto amounted to about $1,200, it was stated.

Provincial Constable J. Toll investigated the accident, while Dr. D. C. McVicker of Deseronto gave first aid at the scene.

New Rates for TV Servicing To Be Announced

Increasing costs of television servicing and the cost of maintaining skilled technical help will result in a readjustment of the servicing costs for television in the Belleville district.

An announcement of suggested price increases will be made Monday by the Belleville division of the Radio Electronic Technicians Association of Ontario and the Belleville T.V. dealers who have been meeting monthly for the past few months to find ways and means of maintaining and improving qualified service.

The present schedule of T.V servicing charges in Belleville is one of the lowest in the province.

Dealers in general have stated that they have been losing money on servicing and have justified these losses on the basis of a large volume of sales. However, higher servicing schedules in other parts of the province have made it difficult for local dealers to keep their qualified technicians. Since there is a shortage of qualified help the dealers have decided that it is necessary to readjust their service charges.

The suggested price schedule, which has been drawn up by the dealers, will be published on Monday. It is being published to acquaint the public with expected costs of T.V. repairs.

Local dealers point out that in Toronto the basic charge for a home service call is $5.75, while at present the rate in Belleville for the same service is $4.50.

Dealers also point out that in Belleville free service is guaranteed for 90 days. In Toronto and other Ontario centres, many dealers make a charge, payable in advance, of $25 per service for the first three months after purchase or $40 to $50 for the first year. For example, they point out, include all servicing whether there is one or many calls.

T.V. discounts are the lowest in the home appliance line of goods, dealers say, and the cost of service the highest.

IN MEMORIAM

ARSENAULT. — In loving memory of my dear mother, Emily Asselstine, who passed away February 5th, 1946.

A beautiful memory dearer than gold
Of a mother whose worth can never be told.

Alone, alone, she stands by my side
And whispers, "Don't grieve, for death cannot divide."

For deep in my heart your memory is kept,
Of one I still love and can never forget.

And though the years may be many or few,
I will always be thinking, dear mother, of you.

How to Stop Milk Strike

By NANCY CLEAVER

"Grandma writes how relieved hundreds of mothers were when the milk strike was over. She hopes our Johnny will never lack for this quart of milk a day. She certainly would be horrified if she knew how he balks, and says, "Don't want milk!" The more I coax, scalk or threaten, the more stubborn he becomes. What will I do with him? Mrs. Jones asked wear-

By,

Refusing to drink milk can be a very perplexing problem. How should a mother cope with it? She should try to discover why Jonny does not want to drink his milk and in the future avoid this cause, if possible. Perhaps mother has been too insistent on his drinking milk and here is one place Johnny can defy her unconsciously.

FOCUSES ATTENTION

Johnny may be feeling a bit neglected because mother has been very busy with other duties. He has discovered that refusing milk is a sure way to focus mother's attention on him. Perhaps mother has been expecting Johnny to drink more milk than he can naturally desire after a hearty meal. Johnny may not be feeling very well and this situation is to ignore it. At the same time she can include as much milk as possible in the foods she is preparing. Gradually Johnny will likely forget he is on strike. The best teaching is by example. Mother and Johnny can enjoy milk together, perhaps disguised as an egg-nog, a milk shake, a chocolate drink or cocoa. Thus Johnny will have his daily milk quota, and in time will likely want plain milk also.

Mothers sometimes make the mistake of thinking of milk only as a drink, and not as a food. Part of a child's "quart a day" should be used in other ways than as a fluid —in making cereals, in soups, with vegetables and mashed potatoes, in custards, puddings, junket and ice cream. Evaporated, dried and condensed milk may be used in cooking and baking.

Because milk is precious, not a drop should be wasted. If it has turned sour, there are many recipes for muffins, pancakes, etc. which use it. Mother can follow her cook book's directions and produce cottage cheese.

Milk must have good home care because it is among the most perishable of foods. Pasteurized milk should be purchased from a reliable dairy. The bottle should be washed off and wiped dry before opening. Never leave milk standing on the doorstep (especially in the sun falls there) or open in a room. The place for milk is in the refrigerator, ice box or cellar. Mothers in rural areas and families on vacation may find it necessary to carry out milk in containers packed in ice, boiling milk for three minutes, chilling quickly and keeping it cold and covered.

Milk should be sipped slowly. It should never be gulped down quickly to quench thirst on a hot day. When this happens, the gastric juice of the stomach is apt to form milk curds which are tough. These are difficult to digest. Children love drinking through a straw. Mother can make a little game of taking small sips and pausing between them. A child likes his own special mug.

GOOD FOR HEALTH

As a parent you are likely convinced that milk is essential for good health. The proteins build bone and muscle and repair the body's wear and tear. The fats and sugar give heat and energy. The calcium, phosphorus, iron and other mineral salts help make bones and teeth, blood and nerves. The water is used by the body to carry off waste.

But in your very enthusiasm for milk, "the perfect food," don't succeed in giving your child certain quantity with every meal! The more variety the child feels, the more likely he is to oppose you.

A Lift for Living

What Is Time?

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

If we were asked, "What is time?" we would consult our watches and answer quickly. But if we were asked, "What is time?" how would we answer? There is a mystery about time which has ever fascinated the world's best thinkers.

We talk about time in common daily terms. We speak of "making time," of "saving time," of "spending time," of "killing time." We all know what we mean by such expressions. But what is time?

We say, "How fast time passes." Or, "We are passing the time in Chicago." Is time something which passes us like a stream, or is it something which we are passing in in the stream of existence?

We say, "There is no time like the present." But what is the present? We can't grasp it. The moment we try to put our finger on it, it is gone.

MAKE MOST OF TIME

Well, let us not spend any more time considering the meaning of time, but let us start with a desire which we all should have, as it was expressed by Saint Paul when he wrote to the Ephesians: "Look carefully then how you walk, not as wise, making the most of time." We all admit that it is our God given duty to make the most of the time allotted to us. How can God help us to fulfil this duty?

First of all, God can help us to budget our time. The late President Faunce of Brown University once gave a chapel talk to his students on the interesting subject, "The Pleasures of Economy." He pointed out that in games and sports, one source of pleasure is in the limitation imposed. In baseball, for example, the player is allowed only three strikes. If the batter were permitted to strike at the ball as long as he pleased, the game would become too dull for the players or the spectators.

NEVER OFF THE TIME

In golf a player is allowed one little ball and one drive at a time. If he could keep driving until he got a drive which satisfied him, nobody would care to play with him. In fact, some of us would never get off the first tee!

Similarly, life is a game which has to be played within the limits of time. Yonder is a man who is spending his time in sleep. If it is needed sleep after useful work or useful service, there is no "limiting up the rational sleep of care." But if it is just the sleep of laziness and he has no interest sufficient to keep him awake, then he is wasting time, just blotting it out.

Or yonder is a person who spends time in drunken stupor or plotting some evil deed. Such a man is not merely wasting time. He is unravelling the life achieved in the past. To do wrong is to drop the spool of life's continuing thread and thus undo what we have done.

STORING CAPITAL

When we spend time in a way that adds to the elements of life already achieved, we are not losing time. Rather we are storing up capital for the future. We are making our minutes count. It is true right is to live so that yesterday, today and tomorrow add up to something useful and purposeful.

Jesus of Nazareth was the supreme master of the art of spending time. He never let time master him. He did not give the impression of dashing about Palestine, trying to save time and keep to schedule. He knew that His earthly working days were short. Until no There was an air of urgency about Him, but there was no feverish hurrying.

FULFILLING A LIFE

He had time to sit and talk with individuals along the way. He paused to play with little children. He took time off to spend whole days in prayer. But was it time off? Or from what? Ah, He was not keeping to a calendar. He was fulfilling a life. And if we are to fulfill our lives, we must live our days to the full, put our whole selves into the moments so that the moments can become the bits of eternal life.

Some time ago I was caught in a crowd pushing through the gates to catch a train. The guard cried, "Take your time." I recalled how Christopher Morley pictures Saint Peter at the "Pearly Gates" saying to the eager entrants, "Take your eternity." What is time? Some day we shall know.

Meanwhile, we may be sure we may have heard father or some other adult sequencing a dislike for milk.

Johnny's mother has discovered that coaxing, scolding and threatening are equally ineffective. The wise mother is right way for Mrs. Jones to handle

LEANING ON THE EVERLASTING ARMS

What a fellowship, what a joy divine,
Leaning on the Everlasting Arms!
What a blessedness, what a peace is mine,
Leaning on the Everlasting Arms!
Leaning on Jesus, leaning on Jesus,
Safe and secure from all alarms;
Leaning on Jesus, leaning on Jesus,
Leaning on the Everlasting Arms!

O how sweet to walk in this pilgrim way,
Leaning on the Everlasting Arms!
O how bright the path grows from day to day,
Leaning on the Everlasting Arms!
Leaning on Jesus, leaning on Jesus,
Safe and secure from all alarms;
Leaning on Jesus, leaning on Jesus,
Leaning on the Everlasting Arms.

What have I to dread, what have I to fear,
Leaning on the Everlasting Arms!
I have peace complete with my Lord so near,
Leaning on the Everlasting Arms!
Leaning on Jesus, leaning on Jesus,
Safe and secure from all alarms;
Leaning on Jesus, leaning on Jesus,
Leaning on the Everlasting Arms.

LEANING ON THE EVERLASTING ARMS

The great religious revivals of the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries depended upon soul-winning hymns almost more than upon sermons—for their successes.

The era of mass evangelism had no more consecrated writer of gospel song than the Rev. Elisha A. Hoffman, author of "Leaning On The Everlasting Arms", and other revival favorites. Minister of a Congregational church in Lebanon, Pa., Mr. Hoffman found time to write a long and precious list of hymns and, for many of these he composed his own music—tunes man list are "Glory To His Name" which today are still ringing through gospel mission halls of America.

Most of his gospel verses sing of love of Jesus, of the Saviour's ability and eagerness to save men and women from sin, and to transform their lives, and of the peace to be found in fellowship with Christ. "Leaning On The Everlasting Arms" has been a favorite with revival song leaders ever since it was written. Often the effect of the swinging chorus is heightened by dividing worship audiences into two groups and having each section sing alternate lines of the refrain.

Other popular hymns in the Hoffman list are "Abundantly Able To Save", "I Must Tell Jesus", and the song "Is Your All On The Altar?" with the message:

Would you walk with the Lord in the light of His Word
And have peace and contentment always?
You must do His sweet will, to be free from all ill,
On your altar your all you must lay.
Is your all on the altar of sacrifice laid?
Your heart does the Spirit control?
You can only be blest, and have peace and sweet rest,
As you yield Him your body and soul."

THE CASE FOR RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION IN UNIVERSITIES

Religious instruction in schools is a controversial subject—and in no part of the world is it likely to promote more argument than in Ontario, where we have two systems of tax-supported primary schools, one system paid for by the adherents of the Roman Catholic faith and the other by persons of all other faiths, or of no faith at all.

It is, therefore, somewhat surprising to discover a statement on religious instruction which should be readily acceptable to all.

In his annual report to the University of Toronto Senate and Board of Governors, President Sidney Smith deplored "the policy, which is all too prevalent in universities throughout the English-speaking world, of evading, rather than facing, the teaching of religion within their halls."

Now it is possible to make out a good case either for or against religious instruction in primary schools. The trend in Ontario in recent years has been toward increased religious instruction in public schools, but it is not a trend which has gone unopposed. That there should be opposition is not surprising in view of the wide variety of beliefs held by the families these schools serve. But some of the opponents of the trend are members of the majority, that is to say Protestants. Indeed, in one section of Ontario the opposition to the trend was led by a Lutheran minister, who saw in it the danger of a revival of state religion.

But those objections which can legitimately be advanced against religious instruction in primary schools become less valid when the student reaches the secondary school level. And their validity disappears entirely when we consider universities, if we remember, as Dr. Smith points out, that "institutions of higher learning that obtain public support are precluded from imposing religious tests to govern either the admission of students or the employment of teachers."

No one would quarrel with that provision, Dr. Smith observed, but he added that the tolerance of religious differences is not the same thing as ignoring religion altogether.

"To the student who knows nothing of theology, much history is meaningless, much philosophy is distorted and much literature is unintelligible," wrote Dr. Smith.

Who can quarrel with that statement?

And yet, in the face of that truth, we find a policy of "not evading, ignoring or even opposing the teaching of religion."

On what can such opposition be based?

The only logical reason is a fear that exposure to religious beliefs other than his own way may result in the conversion of the student to another faith. That may be a legitimate objection if we are considering the instruction which it is permissible to give an eight-year-old. But by the time the student is eighteen his faith should be strong enough to endure in the face of accurate knowledge of the tenets of other, different faiths. And if it is not, if it is so frail a flower that it cannot stand in the sunlight of knowledge about other religious traditions, then is it desirable that it (his faith) should survive?

OH! SHOOT!

Hamilton, plagued with two million starlings, is in no position to be given the bird. But the opportunity is irresistible.

According to reports, several local Daniel Boones in the Mountain City sallied forth recently and in a four-minute shotgun slaughter, downed 4,000 starlings. The thusiasm of the startling dropped and another shoot was planned. A second shoot was termed equally successful. It is likely that a third will be organized and so on.

However, it becomes apparent that at the rate of 4,000 starlings it will take about 500 such safaris to wipe out the present starling population. At one shoot a week that job should be wound up in five years. Ten years! Well let's say two a week. Five years? What about one every night? A year and a half? Hmmm.

Can't you see these grim clad sportsmen venturing forth, through rain, and storm, and sun and snow, day after day for a year and a half to blast the starling population with shotguns? Bum.

It might also solve the problem to suggest that old age will undoubtedly wipe out a large percentage of the starlings currently soiling Hamilton before a year and one-half is up, but it is worth remembering that it is also possible that the starlings, with two broods a year, might outproduce the gunners' ability to appreciably reduce their numbers at a meagre 4,000 per shoot. Besides that the starlings are more adept at that sort of thing than the gunners are at killing them off.

At all events, we do hope that some simpler and more effective method is found at once. All that shooting might not kill many starlings, but it might frighten the remainder enough to have the flocks wing away to quieter residences. And with the prevailing winds from the west Belleville has a real stake in wishing Hamilton a quick, complete, but quiet success.

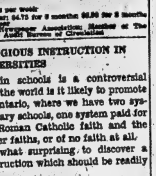
THROUGHOUT LIFE



He took with him his mother's love,
His father's pride.
To them he tried all above.
With every stride
Wher'er he went, to work or play
Their task to bore by night and day.

It did not take him long to learn,
When he stayed late,
That anxiety for his return
Awake they'd wait.
Before to manhood strong he grew,
How much he meant to them he knew.

So with us all, through every hour,
At work or ease,
Loved ones and friends we have the power
So much to them who trust we mean,
On us for peace of mind they lean.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

February 6, 1934

A half century of religious activity in this district was fittingly celebrated by the local corps of the Salvation Army on Sunday afternoon in the auditorium of the city hall when that body along with representatives of the Belleville and District Geo. O. Tice presiding, heard an interesting and informative address on "Peace and Goodwill" delivered by Commissioner Bruno Friedrich, noted international lecturer. The Salvation Army Band under the able direction of Bandmaster David Wardle, rendered a pleasing program before the opening of the meeting and also led the singing of the Citadel Songsters, under the direction of Mr. Stanley Leaske gave a delightful anthem.

The Rev. R. B. Neal, pastor of Bridge Street United W.M.S. Church, had in prayer and the Rev. A. Hilliard Jones, pastor of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church read the scripture lesson. In introducing Mr. Worship Mayor Geo. O. Tice. Adjutant Martin said that since coming to Belleville he had met many friends, but none more sincere than Mayor Tice and that it was an honor and privilege to welcome him on behalf of the Army Corps, as chairman of the meeting. On taking the chair Mayor Tice gave some very interesting history of the early days of the Army in Belleville. The main speaker was Commissioner Friedrich and appreciation of his most excellent address was expressed on behalf of the audience by Mr. Eugene Ilsley and Mr. Charles A. Cameron. The collection will continue throughout the week.

Water Troughs Of Other Days

(Ottawa Journal)

Half a century ago before steel-rimmed wheels began surrendering to rubber, when the farmers figured on hours instead of minutes for the trip to town for a load of bran and meal, the stained old water-trough by the side of the road was a familiar land mark. Usually it was located at the foot of a bank, and the water was brought through hollowed wood-en logs from a never-failing spring above; the overflow trickled down to the low end of the trough and made a little muddy stream for a few paces beside the road.

Many boys on their way to district school have figured on a few minutes' fun with the watering-trough. Green moss tendrils were thick around the inside, and when a lad pressed his face into the water and opened his eyes the dun-colored ribs and roof on the bottom resembled the gray topographical maps in the old, dog-eared geographies.

In spring boys caught frogs and kept them in the trough overnight. Occasionally a boy would capture a water-snake and place it in his new home just before a farmer with his team drove up. Then the snake was snorted and reared back the startled animal to the lowest gate. As he lifted the snake out on a forked branch perhaps he had a little thanking of service, boy, did a generation previously. Wooden water troughs are gone. Millions of cars and trucks rush along the nation's roads today. But there are many who still remember the cold spring water and how gratefully the horses plunged their noses into the trough for a welcome drink.

Literacy Wave Effects Great

(Hamilton Spectator)

Greater than the effects of the first atom bomb on the mass mind of man, was the tidal wave of literacy that before the eyes of the present generation is sweeping away ancient civilizations and getting supression in new nationalisms. Although more than half the world's population still cannot read or write, the onslaught on illiteracy, particularly in Africa and the East, is so determined that it is not too optimistic to say that within less than a generation it will have been wiped out.

Unforseen problems are arising in Africa as a result of the education drives. The old African civilizations with their codes of manners, morals and customs are crumbling away under the impact of Western ideas and into their place is springing, in many cases, not liberal enlightenment—the brightest hope of idealistic educationists—but a blind nationalism. In Africa and Asia literacy often brings intoxication with political power, a desire for "superior" employment. Nor is it possible for the West to reverse many students that modes of employment are decided by exigencies, opportunities and economic necessity and that all labor that is honorable and productive is good. Such thinking requires more than the mechanical skills of reading, writing and the memory needed to win a diploma. True education is a preparation for life and means creating immense social and economic problems for the future.

Hearts, Whales And Giraffes

(Edmonton Journal)

Medical men these days are getting to the heart of the matter. In their efforts they are being aided by the long-necked giraffe and the whale, which are not to make excuse that they are both a long-drawn-out affair and a huge undertaking.

The giraffe has been specialists studying the giraffe, according to the Scientific Monthly, and they hope to solve the riddle of how the animal's heart can pump blood all the way up to its head up there in the clouds. If they are successful, they may be able to discover the reasons for high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries in human beings.

In the case of the whale another group of doctors is out now large deposits of internal fat affect the action of the heart. The whale's seems to be a logical fellow to single out for such investigation, for fat, with all that blubber inside him, that he would make a fine, fat, round target for the doctor-look like the amount of colesterol deposits he will find there.

In any event, the specialists seem to have quite a job on their hands. Perhaps it is that the whale are not the easiest animals to work on. Perhaps the trouble with giraffe is the long awkward of the two; one can imagine the doctor's sentiment and slum shrudgery when while he is nibbling a few leaves from the head of his patient. How do they intend to study a whale? Harpoon him and put him under the bed; in frigid seas would be enough to daunt even the most determined investigator. One thing is certain—they are in for a "whale" of a time.

The scientist, however, are certain of support in their efforts from the general public are, perhaps, the deadliest of all diseases afflicting mankind. It is to be hoped, therefore, that new knowledge will be forthcoming. The researches on that further steps may be taken toward overcoming them.

Hippo Visits Queen's Room

(Wall Street Journal)

At Kampala in Uganda, Africa, there is a large hydro-electric development which is to be operated jointly by Queen Elizabeth and Elizabeth.

In preparation for the sovereign's visit, a royal reception room is being prepared.

Well, the other day a man working at the plant was fishing in the settling room and felt it necessary to report as follows:

"There is a hippo in the communus in the retiring room."

The report proved quite accurate. There was a hippopotamus there. Not only was it a hippo of great weight it would like to go to the control room, which it did. And it did. The hippo then essayed to chase it out. The hippotamus had other ideas. The chase was on.

It then ambled to the visitors' room where it contemplated the shining machinery. After getting its fill of that the animal then went back to the Nile, the total damage being the breaking of two windows.

Better Goods Are Coming

(Minneapolis Tribune).

Manufacturers of consumer goods have been wonderful. That is, industrial-ly speaking, a better mousetrap. Now they are getting ready to put out directional signs and floodlights so that the consumer will not be lost when beating a path to their door.

The translation from a writer's to a buyer's market has been under way for some months. The year 1954 apparently is going to be a year for vigorous salesmanship. That, taken by itself, could turn out to be a somewhat adulterated blessing for the consumer.

The really good news is that manufacturers are extending themselves, not only to sell hard, but to have something new and different — and, most important, something better—to sell.

There will, of course, be goods only slightly altered in a feeble effort to catch the consumer's eye and snare a fin dollar. Manufacturers, however, are reacting briskly to predictions that such goods may languish on the shelves. Their reaction is taking the practical form of new design, added usefulness, more interesting use of color.

This is the sort of thing that has been responsible for the American system as compared with a system of state control. And the Russians endure. It is worth a whole library of books extolling the virtues of free enterprise.

Molehills Formidable

(New York-Herald Tribune).

The cliff dwellers of New York are delighted to extend a friendly band of greeting to Sir Edmund Percival Hillary, the New Zealander who climbed Mount Everest and who is now visiting the United States to tell how he and his companions accomplished their remarkable feat. Most New Yorkers have had some notable experience themselves/ in climbing; some have tackled Mt. Rockefeller in the Palisades, and virtually all make a point of scaling their own homes, whether by elevator or on foot.

Although one might think that a man who had conquered Everest would be content to let lesser mountains alone, Sir Hillary shows no such tendency. Thousands of unclimbed mountains remain in the world, he points out, and lack of helpful guides is the chief obstacle in their.

Superficially, this last may seem like a puzzling statement. But it really confirms a fundamental truth in psychological men, particularly those who are always being accused of making mountains out of molehills. Seemingly minor accomplishments appear, consequently are as difficult as major ones. This is a fact well known to anyone who has ever tried to light a cigaret in the wind, or to learn to play a golf stroke. The world can well take satisfaction in the knowledge that even men from Everest has a healthy respect for molehills.

MEDICAL MISCONCEPTIONS ABOUT CALCIUM

No library is complete without a copy of Osler's Practice of Medicine, which is not merely a medical textbook but is a famous literary work, according to the literati.

Dr. Brady

The immediate cause of an attack of bronchitis (chest cold) is a virus, but to get to it most frequently enough to cause trouble a person must have had a fatal attack of angina during a fit of anger, as having given those bronchial tubes fair warning that "the life wee in the hands of any rascal who chose to annoy and cause him."

Hunter lumped up his toes at the age of 63, Osler at the age of 70. Dr. Osler's untimely departure was largely determined, I think, by his invariable belief that "calcium" is a poorly healing picture hall, for instance, had something to do with bronchitis, bronchopneumonia, pleurisy, influenzas and empyemas.

Some near-eminent physicians whose knowledge of pathology is limited, do not believe that calcium is a warning against supplementing the calcium-poor diet with an adequate daily ration of calcium — a practice which, they tell their gullible patients, may cause "deposits" of calcium in joints, arteries, liver, kidneys.

I'm afraid doctors who take this "calcium deposit" notion seriously have had poor training in pathology.

When I was an intern in a certain (cheap) hospital autopsy material was plentiful — not much from the hospital proper and from the free ward, but abundant for the aged poor, many of whom, when their feeble turned up their toes were unclaimed by relatives and had to be planted in potter's field. One young member of the medical staff, who was also an instructor in medical school, was much like Dr. Osler in his early career — he would come out to the hospital any time in the day or night to do an autopsy purely for his own and our (interns) benefit. We learned in that way that "calcium deposits" or calcification of various tissues and organs were the usual concomitants of the process of degeneration.

Of course nobody had heard of vitamin in those days and medical literature of the period contains only vague and speculative allusions to mineral metabolism or the need in the human diet for minerals in human nutrition. But recognized authorities on pathology knew then as today that perfectly well that calcium "deposits" or calcifications of artery walls, joint linings, tendons, bursae, lymph nodes, lung tissue and other tissue structures or glands of the body is the consequence of injury, inflammation or degeneration and not the cause.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

"INTO ALL THE WORLD"

In a day when much discouraging news is coming out of Iran, it is well to read this encouraging word from a missionary:

"When I first came to Iran in 1919, I was told that several years previous there had been a winter in which no rain or snow had fallen. The seed which had been planted in the fall did not sprout, and consequently there was no harvest and people began to die of starvation. The next fall there was no harvest and they began to die of starvation. The next fall there was no wheat left to plant, and the future looked dark indeed. Then the rains came and the seed was sown and lain in the ground for more than a year sprouted, and next summer there was great harvest, and the people had bread to eat.

"So it will be in our spiritual world now. For years it seems to have been sowing the good seed in the hearts of men, and in all of there has been but little harvest. Some day however in God's good time, the early and the later rains will fall, the Spirit will be poured forth on men's hearts and the seed of truth will spring into life and bear much fruit; and there will be a glorious harvest.

And this man has been as good as his word. He faces frequently able dangers every day in his ministry to the people of that country. But he is all in the hands of God and make disciples. . . ."

FIRST IMPRESSIONS

Our first impressions are the deepest and most memorable. They have an importance that is important. The pleasant clerk sells the most goods. And the salesman on the road with a clean personality, and vibrant personality, gets immediate attention, and many are the lifetime pals he finds in the market basket into his pocket is retained and left behind him when he leaves a trail of trust.

Bad first impressions are difficult to get from the mind. The first impressions that an immigrant gets of this western world—Canada and the United States—are the ones that stay. How important then they prove to be good impressions!

Student Personalities At Albert College

A weekly feature of interesting facts revealed in interviews with those young undergraduat..s who hail from countries beyond the seas.

By GEORGE H. CARVER

WILL McINTOSH ALBERT HARTMAN ARTHUR McINTOSH

From the squamarine fairyland known as the Virgin Islands where once proud Spanish galleons, and prey-seeking brigantines of Spanish Main pirates anchored, come these soft-spoken students of Albert College.

They are Will McIntosh, his brother Arthur and Albert Hartman, all born in St. Thomas, the principal island of the trio that forms this exotic Caribbean group.

They speak the musical softly-slurred dialect of the West Indies. They are handsome youngsters, who have fitted themselves easily into a northern environment, educationally and "atmospherically".

That Will McIntosh has fitted himself educationally is evidenced in the fact that he was awarded the 1953 Rotary Club of Belleville plaque presented annually to the student at Albert College from outside Canada, who is making the best contribution in citizenship.

Will, who appeared to be the spokesman for the trio, is in his second year at Albert, and was more or less instrumental in bringing Arthur and Albert to the college. Arthur and Albert are freshmen.

Perhaps the Chamber of Commerce in Charlotte Amalie, the capital of St. Thomas Island should give these fine young ambassadors a public relations plaque. For they did an outstanding job in promoting, through the media of colored pictures and verbal description, the beauties, possibilities, attractions, and general exciting of the beautiful island they call home.

The McIntosh brothers are the only sons of Mr. Leonard McIntosh, a retired United States civil servant, and Mrs. McIntosh. They have four sisters. They learned about Albert College via the "Yonsis" route. That is, a cousin of theirs was told by a cousin of his whose cousin attended Albert some years ago.

Grade 12 maximum of education obtainable on St. Thomas Island was not sufficient for these ambitious youngsters. Loyalty to a cousin, a graduate of the University of Toronto may lead Will to study chemistry and optometry in that institution of learning with Arthur taking up science.

Albert Hartman who also lives on St. Thomas is the son of Sammy E. Hartman who owns and operates a 900-acre dairy "estate." Mr. Hartman was christened "Sammy" and not Samuel" as was inferred. In fact Albert insisted upon it.

Young Mr. Hartman when his studies in Canada are over hopes to be a doctor of dentistry.

It is a far cry from the sun-drenched white beaches and sky-blue waters of their native islands to the snow-covered hills and dales of Canada with its ice-locked rivers and sub-zero temperatures. Will doesn't mind it since this is his second winter here, and Arthur and Albert shivered unconsciously when the weather was mentioned. But they do not mind it.

Will has not seen his tropical home for nearly 18 months. He spent last summer's vacation at Heron Bay on the north shores of Lake Superior.

The trio concurs with other students of Albert who hail from other countries that educational standards in Canada are among the best in the world...They marvelled at the low cost of electrical appliances, radio, etc as compared to those in the Virgin Islands. None of the boys had seen snow in toto until they came to Albert College.

"A young man can work his way through school in Canada," said Will. "This would be next to impossible in our islands even if we had advanced education.

"They were surprised when the interview veered around to the subject of their island homes. The Virgins, they explained are three small islands six hours by plane from New York. The three islands the fifty cays and islets comprise this American possession acquired by purchase from Denmark in 1917 for $25,000,000.

Discovered by Columbus in 1493, the mountainous islands have a romantic history associated with slave uprisings, pirate raids, million-dollar fires and periodic hurricanes.

Historic ruins, old haunts of departed Carib Indians and ancient towers named after Bluebeard and Blackbeard are an indication of a glamorous past.

The islands at times were the playthings of France, Spain, Holland and Denmark. St. Thomas is a great shipping centre for sugar and rum. The islands have retained all their cosmopolitan culture and are English in language.

The islands, St. Croix, 82 square miles; St. Thomas, 32 square miles and St. John, 19 square miles are situated approximately forty miles west of Puerto Rico. Snow and prostrating heat are unknown. The climate is mild 70 to 90 degrees in winter and summer. Average rainfall is forty inches a year, hence no lakes and rivers.

Few birds and small game are seen but fish are extremely plentiful for the teeming waters are never over-populated with anglers or commercial fishermen.

The entire population of the islands is 22,000. Of these 9,000 are dependent upon the land. The other 13,000 live in the cities. No one knows how, hence labor is very cheap. Sugar cane raising, cattle estates, market gardening and bay leaf culture provide most of the agricultural occupation. Government projects, shipping and city commerce furnish sketchy employment for city dwellers.

Charlotte Amalie is the capital and located on St. Thomas. A large project, Will said, is being undertaken whereby land is being reclaimed from the waterfront of the town.

All conventional summer sports are played with roller-skating being very popular. There are eleven hotels in St. Thomas, an aftermath of a huge American tourist industry drive. The Virgin Isle Hotel, the finest hostelry on the island is the only building boasting elevators.

Food prices compare favorably with those in Canada, Will said. The staple foods are "rice, fish, rice, yams, and imported Irish potatoes."

Traffic is a serious problem on the island, he said. Of the 9,000 population 1,500 have automobiles. Highways are few and there is terrific congestion. The object of the reclamation of land from the land-locked harbor is to construct more highways and thus ease this congestion.

Labor wages are low in the islands. A farm worker gets $100 a month, with a home but must supply his own food.

Many Americans lured by the increasing tourist industry, are moving to the islands and establishing places of business. This industry with that of sugar and rum production, is bringing a tremendous income.

Nostalgia might have overcome Will, Arthur and Albert when the LEAMINGTON (CP)—W. Bert Watson, 57, general traffic manager for W. J Heinz Company of Canada, died suddenly Wednesday in Leamington hospital. question which could border on the "foolish" side was asked. "Where would you rather live?"

The boys looked at each other and smiled. Then Will showed tact with a touch of diplomacy. "Well," he smiled, "let's settle for six months here and six months at home."

Varied Program Conducted By RCAF Women's Auxiliary

The R.C.A.F. Women's Auxiliary of Trenton is one of the largest and most active organizations of its kind in Canada. Started at the beginning of the Second World War by the wives and dependents of airforce personnel it has always tried to live up to its high ideal of "mutual help, comradeship, social relationships and aid to the community."

Early in September the executive committee of the auxiliary announces take over their offices at a general meeting, and immediately a variety of plans and programs are discussed and put in working order.

A comprehensive arts and crafts program, under the convenorship of Mrs. G. M. Sinclair, improved ages busy hands, and many household rug, fancy goods and woollen articles are completed for coppertoning to puppetry.

The Opportunity Shop on King Street provides a steady source of income for the Women's Auxiliary. Under the direction of Mrs. H. A. Sallis a staff of volunteer workers sorts and sells articles and Saturday morning sees many bargain hunters. Clothing, household furniture, toys, jewelry and other unwanted articles are welcomed at the shop, are sorted, priced, displayed and sold. "We will sell anything," is the proud motto of this social store, and it does!

Money derived from the Opportunity Shop has helped to equip and maintain the Canadian Forces Trenton Memorial Hospital. Other causes which have benefited include Christmas Hamper victims, the Easter and T.B. seals campaign, the flooding flood victims and Middleton Park playgrounds. Welfare work carried out by Mrs. A. L. Ashton, as social welfare convenor, also draws its financial donations from the Opp Shop, as it is affectionately referred to by members.

CHEQUE PRESENTED

The latest recipient of funds from this source was the Belleville General Hospital Building Fund. On Thursday afternoon a cheque of $200 was presented to Mr. A. M. Haig, chairman of the Belleville General Hospital Building Fund, by Mrs. Frank L. Ashton, social convenor, on behalf of the R.C.A.F. Women's Auxiliary of Trenton. Also present at this informal ceremony were Mrs. H. A. Sallis, Opportunity Shop convenor; Mrs. R. F. Murray, variety show convenor; Miss M. Frost, superintendent of nurses, and Mr. J. Vanever, of the Belleville Hospital Board of Directors.

One of the most popular and successful methods of fund-raising is the annual spring variety show, which originated several years ago at a fashion show. So successful have the fashion variety shows proved that the W.A. has been able to donate substantial sums to local causes. Proceeds from last year's show, "S.S. Quinte's Cruise," provided an electrical table for the Trenton Memorial Hospital, and books to the value of $100 for the A/C/M Brendner school library.

The auditions for this year's show proved a big success and rehearsals are well under way. Under the capable convenorship of Mrs. R. F. Murray the numerous committees are forging ahead with complete accord. Modelling, under the direction of Mrs. A. K. Ogilvie and Mrs. M. J. Smith, will again have an important place in the program. Belleville stores exhibiting fashions in the past have included Leslie's shoe store and the Georgia Salon.

"Tuneful Flight to Paris" will be produced in the drill hall at Trenton on April 1st and 2nd. Part of the proceeds this year will go to the Trenton Memorial Hospital Women's Auxiliary Committment Fund, and the remainder will be divided among the Middleton Park playgrounds and Brendner School.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

RESTING

We would find no rest at all by just standing still as a horse does in its stable, or balancing on one leg as does a canary. Yet you know your "Dickie" is really resting when he remains all night on his perch, to which he clings with one foot, the other tucked up under his feathers much as his head is tucked under one wing.

But this standing up clinging to a branch, telephone wire, or manmade perch is no effort at all for a bird. The bird is one of Nature's devices. We are reminded of a young infant's tiny digits firmly clutching one of our extended fingers.

Coming in order like the Incidents in "The House that Jack built," the weight of the bird's body on the leg bends the ankle joint, this pulls tendons which are attached to the toes, and these pulling tendons cause the toes to curl around the perch.

SLEEP UPRIGHT

Most birds prefer to keep an upright position when sleeping, but the blue-crowned parrot of Australia is said to do the toe-clamping and then swing around to sleep hanging upside down from the branch.

The majority of our wild birds rest from just after dusk until just before sunrise. The way in which they seem to melt out of sight at the approach of darkness seems quite extraordinary to us. Some perch on tranches as far as possible from observation, others stay on the ground, hidden under bushes.

One class of birds, to which belong nearly all owls, is nocturnal. They are specially gifted with unusual eyesight in order to see in the dark as well as by daylight, and with plumage designed for noiseless flight by night and colored suitably for camouflage.

PRACTICALLY INVISIBLE

Dressed in tones of browns and greys, and off-white, spotted, streaked, and mottled, owls are practically invisible in their natural surroundings, trunks and branches of trees. Dappled to simulate rough bark, they rely on camouflage, and do not fly on someone's approach, unless touched.

Some, like the short-eared, rest and sleep on the ground, depending on coloration for protection. Hundreds of times we must have passed within a few inches of an owl in broad daylight and missed seeing it. Sometimes, with one bead-like eye open, it probably saw us, and laughed at our blindness.

Banquet permits are not permitted in so-called "dry" areas.

The annexed area is "dry" and this alone makes it impossible to operate a first class hotel which will cater to conventions, public gatherings and smaller parties.

Next Wednesday — by voting in favor of all three questions — you will not only be assuring the establishment of a first class hotel on the site of the old Hastings County Home, but you will also make it possible for local groups to get together in congenial surroundings for social gatherings with the full protection of Ontario law.

The City of Belleville now has the privilege of banquet permits. Why should you as residents of the annexed area be denied the same right?

The room was beautifully decorated for the occasion with pink and white streamers, and pink and white snapdragons.

Mrs. K. Jeffery and Mrs. Fletcher Reid presided at the tea service, while Mrs. John Dunlop and Miss Shirley Potter served.

The evening was spent in viewing the wedding gifts and chatting together.

The bride and bridegroom were the happy recipients of many lovely and useful gifts.

Journey to South Africa

By Lavonia Stockelbach

RECOLLECTIONS OF AFRICA.

One often hears and reads comments on the superficial. People who go to a country, stay a month, come home and write a book or an article about it are found fault with. Is that wrong, right? The facts gathered may be neither many nor profound, but if they are perfectly correct in the result of a keen and trained observation, is not the sum total to be preferred to a complete ignorance? The knowledge is obviously elementary, but is that blameworthy? Does it not often lead to a desire for more facts?

When one goes to entirely new and foreign scenes, the sight, the hearing, all the senses are more alert than when we are surrounded by the same daily scenes, landscapes and people.

Sauntering along a narrow street of Johannesburg, a stranger could not help but be attracted by the sing-song of the men tamping the material for a stretch of sidewalk. One felt that it was like the work song we sing.

In so many factories one enters and is almost stunned by the blasts of canned music poured into the air at the request of the employees. In fact to forget the dullness of their work. In it was not a question of work, but when song so often accompanied mechanical labor? Can the music that is turned on be satisfying as that produced by the workmen himself.

It would be curious to know just what would happen if a score of men began to chant as they patted down the concrete of a Toronto sidewalk. All of the madhouse? But the ragged black men dressed their song, the black men with their tribal marks, the triangles cut out of their earlobes, the arrangement of their woolly hair or the their single garment, in perhaps another generation all these distinctive marks will be a thing of the past, and their song.

The most superficial observer could not miss that little note he could be miles the miles and miles of waste from the gold mines that are piled in heaps on the outskirts of the city and are the first greeting of the traveller entering by airplane, terraced hills of ugliness until at the hours of sunup or sundown, are not touched into beauty by the rosy light. Artists have painted them and none more beautifully than what is portrayed on the walls of the main post office. We cannot too often remind ourselves that the most beautiful art is close to our own doorstep, a source not for the trained eye and hand to record, but everyone.

It is a thrilling town, Johannesburg, with its skyscrapers, its superb book shops, its symphonic orchestra supported by the town council, its disappearing native hovels—they cannot go too quickly—and the loveliness of the avenues of jacaranda, trees of flamboyant trees and the well-planted and well tended gardens. In so many ways could that city be copied with great benefit to the attractiveness of other towns, leaving out the shacks which are unlovely.

LARGE BIRD SANCTUARY

One also recalls that within the city itself is a bird sanctuary, one of the most fascinating of the bird reservations one could want to visit. In that twenty-six acres one can find one hundred and twenty species of birds though it was not easy to take one's eyes off those white and black Sacred Ibises whether in the slow and dignified walk or the flight that shows to full effect the pattern made by the black edging to the back of the white wings. It is interesting to learn about the birds called sacred, the dove, the quetzal, the pelican, but it must be said that the old myths make very confusing reading. It is much easier to say that all birds are sacred and should be as much protection as possible.

Some of the birds are disappearing, not as a result of any wanton shooting, but because the numbers of the birds' eggs. I do not see how one can really blame them, either for eating the eggs or the birds themselves. It is extraordinary, we are told, what they eat. There are only a few agricultural products that can be stored in Africa, so the natives, before the advent of the white man, did not pay much attention to the cultivation of vegetables. It is only now, under the teaching of the experimental farms, learning any skill in that direction. It is more satisfactory for them to make beer from the grains that would otherwise rot and be lost, and to the astonishment of the missionary, the scientists found that this beer contained all the vitamins necessary for the health of humans. I judge it to be terrible stuff having a number of times got near enough to smell it.

VALUABLE SERVICE

The work of the experimental agricultural farms of the nations inverting money in these lands is beyond all praise. The natives for the most part realize and appreciate what is being done They have to fight against many odds, climate, ignorance, the innate objection to trying something new and the wild animals, the elephant and the baboon to mention only two that I came across.

An acquaintance had tenderly reared a vegetable garden and his mouth was watering for his first dish of peas when along came an elephant and trampled down the whole vegetable garden during a midnight hour, himself being asleep only a few yards away. So the work of days was undone. A hungry elephant can lay waste acres of carefully tended vegetables, maniac plantations and maize.

It is from the roots of the little manioc trees, or perhaps one should say bushes, that we get our tapioca, in which form it is definitely much tastier than the sago root plain boiled. The production of tapioca from those tubular roots is one of the most amazing of all our agricultural products.

The starch is separated from the fibrous roots and is spread, while in a moist condition, upon large plates over a gentle heat and "is lightly stirred, the starch granulates burst and the result is what we use for our puddings. From the same root we get the best starch for our arrowroot biscuits. It was sometimes my pleasure to sit beside the native women as they sat in the field of manioc plantations and covering the white roots and to admire their deft hands and their very gayly printed cotton robes.

The last visit was a few days before the elephant had been seen about a mile away. He had been dispatched, but I walked over to where he had bedded down for the night. I am very much scared of an elephant and appreciate only a herd of them and they are increasing in numbers. While a bull elephant was guarding his herd and watching us who were too close for his liking, I had his patience. I thought fearfully of all those ivory keys I had practised on as a small child but at this safe distance have no qualms, enjoy my ivory chessmen and would even consider living in the top storey of an ivory tower.

CAREFUL TRAVELLING

They are truly fearful beasts. The rear of the hippopotami make a terrific din and at nightfall we were careful not to turn on the headlights of the car. They will not hesitate to charge right into them. Perhaps one's enmity towards the elephant is because of their great devastation to all crops in the areas to marois. The hippopotamus stays in the water all day, but occasionally I have seen some towards evening after they have landed to spend the night.

There were also many of the hideous wart-hogs to be seen in the open country but apart from their ugliness made little impression on me and as for the baboon the chief recollection of one herd near a swamp was the amusement of watching some of them running with what someone called tickbirds hanging on to their backs for dear life not willing to lose any of the ticks on which they fed much to the relief of the buffalo who were pestered by the annoyance of those parasitic insects. Another alliance between these two very different creatures was that the tick birds by their calls gave warning to the buffalo of approaching enemies. It was interesting to watch.

The little egret of the Union Jack companies grazing cattle eating the grasshoppers and other insects stirred up by the cattle. In some herds decreased in numbers during the time when their plumes were so fashionable and so many were killed to help make women look more attractive. It was also thought that both the little egret and the cattle egret ate the ticks from the cattle and I have often seen comfortably standing on the backs of the cattle I could understand how easily the mistake came about.

INTERESTING VARIETY

Perhaps it is the vast variety of all kinds of life in Africa that makes it a silent land. Some more than the natives themselves. I never tired admiring the beauty of their form and the freedom, or grace, of their carriage, the many types of features, hues and their different temperaments. The contrast of the too frequent squalor with the scape, the galety of those of the Congo, the happiness of those of the Protectorate of Uganda.

So many tribes, so many languages with their complicated grammar prevent any chance of boredom. All of these will in time disappear and there will be chiefly English and French with a mixture of Afrikaans. It would be, as so few immigrant-investors have the brains and the desire to learn anything consider unnecessary.

Charity Ball Supports Sick Children's Fund

In Kingston, on February 12, the Medical Wives' Society are putting on their second annual Charity Ball. The affair is being held at the Hotel LaSalle, and will be under the distinguished patronage of the Honorable Louis O. Breithaupt, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario and Mrs. Breithaupt.

As plans for this mid-season benefit take form under the direction of Mrs. Malcolm Brown, it seems certain that the dignity and gaiety of the inaugural ball will be duplicated.

A formal French motif is being carried out in the call room, the dining room, and the salons, and this theme will be repeated in the music played by the Commodores of Belleville in the main ball room where dancing will begin at ten P.M. The Hotel LaSalle staff are busy throughout the evening in the dining room, providing buffet supper for the lavish buffet supper at midnight.

Invitations have been sent to all who supported the first Charity Ball. However the directorate of the second Ball is hoping that those people who would enjoy this gay event and at the same time enjoy the knowledge that their presence and support was helping to brighten the days of many sick child in the community or district. Further information may be obtained from Mrs. George Kipkin, Johnson Street, Kingston.

Women's Activities

CENTRE VICTORIA.
REDNERSVILLE W.M.S.

The February meeting was held at the home of Mrs. B. L. Redner, with 17 members present.

Mrs. Townsend, the president, opened the meeting by reading, "Welcome to the New Year." Scripture lesson: John 12: 44-50, was read by Mrs. Dorland.

Mrs. M. Pulver took charge of responsive program "Adoration and Praise" with confession and intercession being read in unison. Business conducted. An interesting letter from finance committee was read with allocation for the auxiliary being set at $215 for this year. Miss Audrey Cornell was to be the missionary for prayer this year. Mrs. Townsend, secretary of Christian citizenship, read the letter prepared for all auxiliaries. She spoke of wonderful response in sales by Xmas.

Collection amounted to $7.55 and several paid dues.

Mrs. Roy Giles gave a talk on Christmas Gift of the Study Book "Where'er the Sun", giving some knowledge of work carried on in South America. There are many untouched areas but Protestant churches are endeavoring to carry on. Radio is being used a great deal to send the message to many who can't read.

Mrs. Dorland closed with prayer, which helps transportation as a plane in an hour and a half can cover mileage that would take sticking with mules three months over rough and jungles.

South America is a land of vast distances and areas which are difficult to cover. There is need to give and pray to help strengthen the Evangelica in their great work.

Following the Rev. T. F. Townsend closed the meeting with prayer.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY.

When February comes round
once more,
And storms beat wildly at the door,
Our hearts grow warm in spite of cold
In loving memory of the Saint of old—

Good Valentine who taught that love
In earth below or heaven above,
Is greatest of all gifts Divine—
O thank ye Good St. Valentine!

And as each year the time comes round
We keep the day with joy profound,
And cupid speeds his little darts
In many a happy maiden's heart;
No room for hate on this fair
day
When Love o'er hearts holds kindly sway;
What need to murmur or repine,
The day is yours St. Valentine.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

Some friends of ours who move around the country a good bit, find that book shelves made by laying varnished boards on top of ordinary bricks are practical. Depending on how many books you have, it takes from about 10 to 60 or 100 bricks to make a set of these shelves . . . When you pull up stakes to move, you just tear down the book case and carry bricks and lumber off to the new abode.

Some people who find it too much of a nuisance to transport the bricks from one house to another, just take the boards along and pick up the few odd bricks when they get to their destination.

These friends of ours had just finished buying their new living-room furniture in the modern style with the light wood. It dawned on them that instead of using the ordinary red bricks, they could build a super book case with yellow bricks mixed with a few of the new glass bricks.

So, off they went to a special brick dealer who sold the poshest of bricks in procelaine and glass. When the dealer greeted our friends going to bring his car loads to be set into the house at night and book it up to his feet in bed.

"Can I help you, sir?" he replied, "Oh, I want to get some bricks and lumber."

The dealer asked him and his wife to sit down in the well-upholstered comfortable chairs in his office, offered them a cigarette and proceeded to show them samples of the finest varieties of bricks now made.

On and on went the discussion on a subject on which even the couple salesman. At last, the couple settled on a most artistic type of glass brick. The dealer checked his stock and said, "Well, sir, I'm so sorry that we haven't any of this quality right now.

"But, let me see.....," With this, he picked up the phone, asked for long distance. And before the couple realized he was making the call to the city 300 miles away for them, he asked, "Oh, how many do you think you'll need for your new home?"

Ready to hand the dealer back over his partially smoked cigaret, our friend said, "Oh, about 10, we think." It didn't take them long to apologize for the misunderstanding and beat it out of that office.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO HER HUSBAND'S LOVE?

What can a wife do when her husband is apparently losing his love for her?

I wonder how many women reading this column may be struggling to find the answer to just such a problem.

Here's a letter from one who says:

"I am 31, and my husband is 37. We have been married nearly four years and have one little girlie, one two years old and the other only a few weeks.

"It seems to me that my husband doesn't love me. He never kisses me when he leaves for work or when he gets home, like most husbands do, and even when I had my babies he never came to see me.

"When he gets paid, he cashes the check before coming home, and I don't know how much money he really gets. He doesn't like it. Other when I ask him for any, he think he has another woman, and is giving her money, because sometimes people have told me that they saw me downtown, or at a dance, my husband, but I couldn't have been me because I was at home alone those nights. Also, my husband never takes me anywhere, but always goes out alone and usually doesn't come home 'till late at night. I think he only stays with me because of our two-year-old daughter, whom he loves very much.

"I love him very much, and I wish he felt the same way toward me. I am very lonely every-thing and hope you can help me."

The first thing I might be helpful for this very young wife to do, is to think back and try to remember what the things were that drew herself and her husband together originally and made them feel they wanted to get married. Perhaps she can remember things he said to her that showed what he was about her that attracted him; certainly she can remember what the qualities were in him that made her fall for him. And what was it that made them enjoy being together when they were engaged and what interests and activities did thy share?

HOW ACCOUNT FOR CHANGE?

Having reviewed their early relationship in this way, then let her try to see if she can put a finger on anything that might account for the change from that early relationship to the present unhappy one.

For example, could it be possible that her husband got into the habit of going out alone because she was tied down with the care of the children? If this were the case, it would indicate sheer selfishness on his part, but, unfortunately, it is something that happens in many families. When it does happen, then it's time for the wife to try and figure out some way of making herself available in the evenings now and then, so that she is free to go out with her husband.

Sometimes, of course, a baby-sitter is the answer; sometimes there are relatives kind enough to take over as baby-sitters occasionally. And even if this doesn't immediately solve the problem of the husband going out alone, it gives the wife a chance to get out herself for a helpful change of scene and thought, which, if she does it consistently, sometimes results in bringing the husband back eventually.

Or perhaps the wife should try making evenings at home a little more interesting by inviting friends in reasonably often. For even a husband and wife who love each other devotedly do find that, if they are constantly alone together, they run out of things to talk about and need the companionship of others to liven things up.

Moreover, a wife in the position of this correspondent needs to make sure that she herself hasn't changed from a happy and interesting companion into a dull, complaining wife who has nothing to talk about when her husband comes home at night but the housework she did during the day, and the trouble she had with the children.

NOT EASY

It's not easy, I know, for a young mother to have a smiling face, clean and happy children, a neat and attractive house and a good hot meal to present to her husband when he comes home every night, and any considerate husband makes allowances. But it's something for a neglected wife to think about, and if she does put her mind on it, she may find ways in which she can come nearer the desirable goal.

There remains here, however, the fact that it seems quite likely there may be another woman with whom this husband is spending his evenings, and probably his money, too. This, naturally, is an even more serious matter.

I think, therefore, that after this young wife has done the best thinking she can by herself, as suggested above, it would be very wise for her to go to someone with whom she could discuss the situation in all its details and from whom she could get direct advice and guidance. She might go to her minister, priest or rabbi; to some older man or woman relative or friend whom she trusts, and knows well enough so that she can speak freely; or to a family welfare or-

Congregational Meetings

TABERNACLE UNITED CHURCH

The congregation of Tabernacle United Church met for its annual meeting and supper and review of the year's work. Rev. Ray Rowley was loud in his praise for the fine year he and his family have enjoyed at Tabernacle. The mimeographed financial report of each organization, with a brief interesting summary of their activities, were read before the people and an opportunity for discussion was given each one.

The Christian Education program is being well taken care of. Mr. George Wright attended his duties as superintendent of the church school to enter the United Church ministry. Mr. John Babiak has taken his place with Mr. Fred Jewell assisting.

The school is well organized right from infancy to the older grades. The church school treasurer, Mr. Ed. Schliverli, reported the school to be in good financial standing, having received over $1,000 and they were pleased to have been able to decorate the school's auditorium during the summer.

SPIRITUAL LIFE OF CHURCH

The Missionary and Maintenance department," the minister said, "is indicative of the spiritual life of the church," while this committee has shown an increase of over 25 per cent in giving.

Mr. Ross Irwin, the church treasurer, gave an explanatory account of the general fund and complimented the congregation for their excellent support of this fund as well the building account. An increase of $1,300 is shown in the weekly duplex envelopes. The organ-chancel account has been fully paid and approximately $5,000 has been paid toward the ceiling-decorating account.

The total raised by the church and all its organizations was $27,000.

VOTE OF THANKS

Mr. Ron Moorman, member of the Session, on behalf of the Official Board and the entire congregation extended a vote of thanks to the Rev. Ray Rowley and his family for their excellent leadership. He said: "We have progressed this year. We have installed a new ceiling and decorated our auditorium — this is a financial progress. We have progressed spiritually — our membership has increased considerably. Our Christian Education has greatly expanded. New homes have been visited. Two, a spring and autumn, visitation evangelism campaigns have been carried out by the session. We owe a great debt of gratitude and to your family also we say thanks."

Mr. Moorman threw out a challenge to both minister and congregation—"Let us not stand on our laurels — let us start planning now for the future — we have work to do—let us set our targets high—under your expert guidance, sir, we can accomplish all."

Mr. Rowley's acknowledgment was that of asking God's guidance and richest blessing upon the congregation.

FOXBORO PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The annual meeting of the Foxboro Presbyterian Church was held in the church Wednesday night.

The minister, the Rev. John Mc-Murray, occupied the chair, and called the gathering to order, and opened the meeting with a devotional period.

Mrs. Reg Skinner was appointed secretary.

Mr. Roy reported for the session; the congregation suffered the loss of one member during the year in the passing of the late Mr. John Longwell.

Mr. Herb Watt reported for the board of managers; Mrs. Hamilton for the Ladies' Guild; Mrs. Bartlett for the W.M.S.; Mrs. Chappele for the flower fund, and Miss Grace Jury for the Sunday School. All reports were most gratifying.

Mrs. Skinner the church treasurer, presented her report; all obligations met and a substantial balance on hand.

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

All officers were re-elected for another year. General business for this year was discussed.

Mr. Bartlett on behalf of the congregation voiced appreciation to the minister for his fine leadership and many fine sermons, also to the secretary treasurer for her faithful work.

The meeting was brought to a close with prayer asking for the guidance and blessings on the work for the coming year.

Refreshments were served and all enjoyed a social hour.

FOOTLOOSE AND FANCY FREE

..Yes Start Out Fresh as a Daisy, But How Do Your Feet Feel on the Journey Home?

You face forth from home, fresh as a daisy with a shopping list as long as your arm. As the day progresses you live through some skirmishes with your sister-shoppers, tangle with ruthless bargain-hunters and, as you near the end of your tour, you are ready to drop dead. You have a nagging headache, your back hugs and your feet are so painful you can scarcely walk. The journey home is a matter of side-burning agony. When will you learn?

Women give less thought and attention to their feet than they do to their old sewing machines. They seem to think that even their feet hurt like sin nothing can be done about it. Some live to middle age before it occurs to them that aching feet are not a misery to be accepted, that professional treatment can remedy the matter, and that the main trouble is in existing shoes that do not fit properly and are altogether objectionable.

Shoe manufacturers offer hundreds of models. No matter what kind of a foot you have, large or small, skinny or fat, there is a comfortable shoe for it. It should have a medium heel, supple leather uppers and a flexible, resilient sole. It should give freedom for the many thousands of movements the foot makes during the day and, at the same time, provide support. Shoes should fit snugly, but not too tightly. If they're 'nose they will form blisters. If they are tight they will bar the foot impede circulation, bring a flock of corns, callouses and ingrowing nails. You may be an earth-angel but if your feet trouble you, you are likely to develop grouches and a curdled disposition.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

THE WEDDING GUEST BOOK

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At the wedding reception, who usually takes care of the Guest Book?

Bride-to-be

No rule about this. But I do urge that someone should be very definitely assigned to this pleasant responsibility. For too often the Guest Book is merely put out on a table, with the vague hope that all will see it and sign it. The point is that often they just don't. So I hope that you will ask a gracious (and efficient!) relative or friend to take over this book, and make sure that every guest signs it. Often, and wisely I think, the guest book complete with pen or pens and blotters) is put on the table near the entrance, and to each departing guest the custodian of the Guest Book asks: "Have you signed the Guest Book? Mary and John are so eager to have a complete record of those who were with them today!"

WHEN SEPARATED BUT NOT DIVORCED

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have been separated for the past year, but we are not divorced. Please tell me the correct form of name for me to use. I have been using, and still am using, Mrs. John Smith. But lately several of my friends have told me I should use Mrs. Mary Smith. Which?

M.

Mrs. John Smith is the correct form of name for you to use.

NEVER A TITLE IN A SIGNATURE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When an unmarried girl signs a business letter or a letter to a stranger (for example, my letter to you), is it correct for her to sign Miss before her name?

Elizabeth

She must not include the Miss in the signature. . . that is, she should not sign a letter, any letter, Miss Elizabeth Brown. If you think it necessary to indicate the "Miss" in your signature, it must be enclosed in parentheses. Like this:

Yours very truly,

(Miss) Elizabeth Brown

"HONOR" AND "HONOUR" IN WEDDING INVITATIONS, ANNOUNCEMENTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Yesterday I went to the stationery department of a large department store here, to consult with them about engraving my wedding invitations and announcements. I gave the salesman all the names and so forth, and he wrote out a sample form. I was surprised that he wrote "honour" and "favour" like this (that is, with the "u"). When I questioned the correctness of this, he assured me that he was right. Is he right? Or is there a choice about this spelling for wedding forms?

Agatha M.

The salesman was completely right about this. Or, wedding invitations and announcements, as well as on reception cards — "request the favour of a reply," "honour" and "favour" are spelled with the "u". (You were fortunate in getting a salesman who knows the correct forms.)

WEDDING RING FIRST

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm bewildered—at the number of women I notice wearing their wedding ring over their engagement ring. Please tell me, is this ever correct? Or is there some significance to this I don't know about?

Bea

I'm "bewildered" about this too. It is not correct . . . the wedding ring should always be put on the finger first. This is why, during the marriage ceremony, the engagement ring is not worn on the left hand . . so that the wedding ring can be put on "the" finger first.

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . a club which my husband belongs to intend serving an oyster supper. I would give me any idea how many oysters he would have to buy, also how many stalks to serve 150 people, I would suppose each person would want two servings of soup. According to my husband this is strictly an oyster supper with the soup being the main item. Along with this they are just going to have rolls, sodas biscuits, pie, cake and coffee.

Rose C.

ANSWER:

In making oyster stew to be served as the main course for four people, one pint of oysters is used. This does not allow for second helpings but is quite adequate for four medium helpings. Using that as a basis for one helping for each of 150 people, you would require 5 gallons of oysters and 5 gallons (20 quarts) whole milk. Double these if you are figuring on two servings each. Be generous with the butter and pepper, and sparing with the finely rolled cracker crumbs

QUESTION:

. . . would you explain how to use oil for cooking purposes. I tried to but was a failure. . . I think I hadn't them long enough. Also better or perhaps they were not cut right.—E. M.

ANSWER:

Thank you for your sincere good wishes E. M.

RADISH ROSES OR TULIPS

Medium-large uniform longish radishes are best to work with. Cut off root end leaving a white little slice here 1-4 inch in diameter. With your sharpest small knife with a narrow blade cut very thin petals from root end to stem end. If you work with care you can make five—sometimes six. Place in ice water in refrigerator to "blossom." If desired for more realistic effect you may leave on a bit of stem and tiny leaf.

QUESTION:

. . .thank you for your column (please give more information about wheat germ) . . .Can the average person purchase powdered egg white? . . . or is it limited to commercial users? . . . I wonder if you have a holiday steamed pudding recipe that was in your pre-Christmas column four years ago—I think. It was quite simple and delicious and contained some suet, 3 eggs, flour, fruit, spices, etc. . .your cooking school, where? . . . I love them and wish they could have attended.—Florence LaB.

ANSWER:

In your city one of the large chain grocerias carries wheat germ as what they call "a commodity item." I have given you their name in my letter to you. I think you will have to ask your grocer to go to a bake supply house for the powdered egg white. If you are unsuccessful in getting any write to me again. I have some. The cooking school was in Kitchener and I would have liked to have met you too. Thanks for pamphlet.

HOLIDAY STEAMED PUDDING

One-half cup very finely chopped suet or soft shortening, 1-2 cup, firmly packed brown sugar, 1-2 cup molasses, 2 beaten eggs, 2 cups sifted cake flour, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cloves or 1-2 teaspoon each cloves and cinnamon, 1-2 cup cut-up dates, 1-2 cup raisins, 1-2 cup milk. Work the suet or shortening into the brown sugar until fluffy and light. Add the molasses and eggs, and beat with a spoon until thoroughly mixed. Sift together the dry ingredients, add the fruits to them then add them to the first mixture alternately with the milk. Pour into greased mold which has a cover and steam two hours.

NOTE:

If desired the fruits may be changed. You may use figs and cut mixed peel in some proportions.

LETTER:

. . .(This note is from a man who lives on Homewood Ave. It is the ingredients for his recipe for waffles.) 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 6 tablespoons shortening, 1 1-2 cups milk, 2 eggs. Thank you M. J. F. Let us help you sometime.

Kremlin Party

Children's parties at the Kremlin were a feature of the New Year season in Moscow this year. It was the first time the Kremlin was opened to the youngsters. For eight days 4,000 children a day laughed and chatted in the halls of the czars, danced, applauded acts from major theatres, and peeled oranges on brocaded benches last used for centuries by the members of Imperial Russia's court. Children's Parties at Kremlin Feature of New Year Season

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP) — Children's parties at the Kremlin were a feature of the New Year season in Moscow this year.

Parties for the boys and girls, in the Hall of the Order of Saint Vladimir, Tchaikovsky Concert Hall, palaces of culture, schools and factories, are customary during the first two weeks of the year, but this year, for the first time, the Kremlin, too, was opened to the youngsters.

There, for eight days, 4,000 children a day laughed and chattered in the halls of the czars, danced, applauded acts from Moscow's major theatres and peeled oranges on brocaded benches used for centuries by the aristocracy of Imperial Russia.

They paid five rubles ($1.25) each for this privilege.

TOP ENTERTAINMENT

Ballerinas from the Bolshoi and Stanislavski theatres, tumblers, jugglers and clowns from the circus, entertained the kids who also were led in dances, periodic deep-breathing and running exercises to keep them from getting bored.

Those attending the Kremlin parties were told to make the most of the opportunity, to walk around and take in its sights. Guides in each of the main rooms pointed out the main features and told the children about them.

To a Canadian it seemed strange that so much should be made of opening up the "parliament buildings" to the people. The Parliament buildings in Ottawa or any provincial capital can be visited any day, by anyone.

There's no music everywhere, from two or three accordionists in the basement room of the Granavite Palace to small orchestras in other rooms.

SPECIAL SONG

A new song was introduced, too, called "In the Kremlin Palace." Composed by the Pokras brothers, popular Russian song writers, with lyrics by the poet Dolmatovsky, a translation runs:

"Greetings our great Kremlin, on this best of all best days, Red-starred and golden-towered, receive your children."

Let the fir tree blossom in lights, as our dear land blossomed.

The people gave us this job, the Party gave us this joy.

The bells of the Spassk Tower chime, the whole palace is open to us.

This hour can but be compared with the most wonderful fairy tale.

We will never forget the festive fir tree in the Kremlin.

And will never forget the struggle for world peace."

Some Kremlin parties were held in St. George's Hall, whose marble walls are inscribed with the names of individuals, army battalions and navy ships honored with the highest service decoration of czarist Russia. Still over the stage is a great bas-relief of England's patron saint slaying the dragon.

Mighty-Antlered Elk Find No Safety in Numbers

By DAVE STOCKAND
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—The mighty-antlered elk in Riding Mountain National Park in Manitoba find no safety in numbers, treading as they must the narrow gap between hunger and hunters' guns.

For this reason the latest estimate on the herd's strength is still to the good front an elk's-eye view. The herd count is down three-quarters from the 1946 figure, which was a tragedy of numbers.

Most likely the 3,000 animals remaining will be able to keep their stomachs full through the winter without venturing from the 1,148-square mile redoubt where hunting is not permitted.

SAFE IN PARK

As long as the elk do not spill over the park boundaries, there is no sense in the annual open season, G. W. Malaher, director of the province's game branch, says "there is no word of any exodus."

This is different from the picture in southern Alberta, where severe cold and deep snow recently drove elk herds from the foothills of the Rockies to farms and ranches in search of food. With the advent of milder weather the Alberta elk returned to the foothills, leaving behind more than a score of animals slain by a few hunters who had been given special permits to shoot elk that reportedly had reported "substantial" losses of hay.

In times past the elk was as much at home on the plains as the buffalo. It has been crowded out by farmers since the plow began putting the scars of civilization on the face of western Canada.

Except for a few two-and-paddock specimens, the buffalo remains in Manitoba only as the provincial emblem. The elk was luckier, though not much.

DISASTROUS INCREASE

In 1914 the Riding mountain herd numbered 500 but began a steady increase under rigid protection. Too well, as it turned out. By 1946 the herd had swelled to an estimated 12,000, and there wasn't that much forage in the parkland.

Many starved. Hunger forced others down from the hilly, heavy-timbered plateau that is Riding Mountain. They moved out of the wilderness into farmlands.

And the farmers didn't take lightly to herds of hungry elk clopping through their pastures and grain fields.

The mines and resources department opened elk seasons in an attempt to reduce the population where they would no longer leave the park, 170 miles northwest of Winnipeg. It is believed that the herd now has reached that level. Since 1947 hunting has been allowed every year except 1951. There was a season in 1944 but hunting was closed in 1945 and '46.

For four winters in a row hunters have had a chance at bagging a trophy bull or a cow for meat. In the last three years 7,960 licences were taken out; 3,673 animals slain.

DIFFERENT TYPES

The elk can be divided into plains and mountain types. Those found in Riding mountain are a distinct sub-species of the wapiti, although the difference from their mountain brothers would be noticable only to a zoologist.

They carry the name cervus canadensis manitobensis and once were common from the Lake of the Woods country of Ontario through Manitoba and on into Saskatchewan.

Besides the Riding mountain herd there is a small herd in the Duck mountain area and a few playing hide-and-seek with Indian agents in the inter-lake region of the north-central part of the province. A number of "manitobensis" also survive in Saskatchewan.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was suppose to tidy up my room, and I was looking around wondering where to begin, and ma stuck her head in the door, saying, Haven't you started yet?

Yes mam, I'm making a plan of the best way, I said, and she said, I'll tell you the best way, throw all this junk out. I never saw so many useless things in my long life, she said.

Aw G. ma, I bet I could tell you a use for every single thing in here, I said, and ma said, I bet you could too, so I wont ask you. Look at that old torn liner babe, look at those broken shells. You haven't got room to breethe in here, she said.

Why haven't-t, ma? I said. None of this stuff interferes with my chest, and that's what I breethe through. I dont breethe through the fernishur, I said, and ma said, Goodness knows, you make your own rules. Now I'm going to pass by again in half an hour, and I expect to see results, she said.

Jimminies, ma I've got an idea, I said. I'll hold an auction sale among the fellows. They'll be glad to make bids to get this stuff cheap, I said, and ma said, I dont care what you do, as long as you get rid of it.

Oh boy, I'll put chairs in my room from all the rest of the house so everybody can sit down, and I'll put a sine in the front window saying Auction sale today, 2nd floor back, walk in without ringing, G. ma, I'm glad you like the idea, I said, and she said, What a gassly thought. I'll make a fild myself, I'll bild 20 cents you get rid of every thing I name, she said.

And she named pritty near everything, and I agreed to about half, the result being she agreed to bild half of the 20 cents.

Dutchies, Cubs Blank Quebec Clubs As Biltmores Wallop Jonquieres 10-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Give or take a few games, the interlocking hockey schmedule between junior and intermediate teams works out pretty even. The Ontario fares best in Quebec and the Quebec teams are defeated on Ontario ice.

Friday night ran true to form. Three touring Quebec Amateur Hockey Association junior clubs were all defeated, two by shutouts.

Quebec Frontenacs dropped a 3-0 decision to Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts and Montreal Royals were pinned 5-1 by Hamilton Cubs. The other visiting team, Jonquiere Marquis, were walloped 10-3 by Guelph Biltmores, whose victory moved them out of last place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings.

In an all-Ontario affair, St. Catharines TeePees increased their hold on first place in the standings to four points by defeating the Flyers 6-4 in Barrie.

EARLY MARKERS

In Kitchener 1,500 fans saw the Greenshirts score two first-period goals that proved enough for the victory, Leftwinger Gary Collins fired both.

The Biltmores took over seventh place by defeating the Marquis in Guelph. Goalie Ray Burton and wife, dropped to the cellar, Guelph marksmen registered seven times before the Marquis could beat Biltmore netminder Jim Isbel.

Birley Dimma and Hillary Menard, with two goals each, were the only players who could manage extra goals. John Gill, Wilfrid Para, Bill Pirie, Bo Scott, Bob Forhan and Ron Howell notched singles.

Claude Labrosse, Roger Landry and John Rousseau tallied for Jonquiere.

Denny Riggin, making his first appearance since injuring his shoulder two weeks ago, gained his fourth shutout of the season by blanking the Royals in Hamilton.

Bob Robinson scored two goals, Real Jamerson, Ken Burton and Ed Loutfi fired singles.

Barrie's loss to St. Catharines prolonged the Flyers' slump to five consecutive defeats. Four have been suffered on home ice.

Barrie pressed in the third and were within one goal of the TeePees lead but Don McLean, with his second goal of the night, clinched it 48 seconds before the final buzzer. Barry Cullen also scored twice for St. Catharines with singles going to Hugh Barlow and Wayne Schultz.

George Raneiri, Jim Robertson, Danny Poltizani and John Martan scored Barrie snipers.

GOALIE INJURED

Barrie netminder Jack Spencer was badly cut by a flying puck late in the game and was removed to hospital for X-rays. John Christie, a Barrie defenceman, finished the game.

Hamilton goes to Galt, Guelph travels to St. Catharines, Barrie is at Toronto Marlboros and Kitchener at Toronto St. Michael's College Majors tonight.

Quebec Frontenacs play St. Michael's and Montreal Royals clash with Marlboros in a Toronto doubleheader Sunday.

Marmora Redmen Score 8-3 Win Over Admirals

TRENTON (Special) — Marmora Redmen won from Carr's Admirals 8-3 here last night in a rugged inter-locking Trent Valley League game before a fair crowd of 350 people. The Redmen, holding down second place in the northern loop, overcame a one-goal advantage in the second period and then piling on six more goals as the hometown boys bashed themselves against an impregnable wall. The line of Jones-Scott and Beale collected Trenton's total.

The Redmen found the soft spot in the Admiral's defence early in the second frame. Paranick and Loveless had scored earlier. With the teams on even terms Loveless, Leonard and Paranick combined to put the iron town bruisers out in front for the first time.

Then Scott, Jones, Scott and Beale tried their best, however, to hold the mounting onslaught with a clincher one minute later. The Redmen evened the count again, before swamping the Admirals with a deluge of scoring in the fateful third.

In spite of the give-and-take policy predominating throughout, there was noticeably few of penalties. Marmora players drew the only two handed out.

The teams:

Marmora — Killean, Darragh, Leonard, Maynes, Brown, Trumble, W. Jones, E. Trumble, Manlie, Brooks, Doyle, Parnick.

Trenton—Hill, Turland, Beale, Schmidt, Jones, Scott, McDonnell, Hazel, Leavey, Johnson, Graham.

Referees—Don Free, Campbellford; Bob Scriver, Hastings.

Trenton—Scott 8.10
Trenton—Jones 15.32

Sidney Federation Of Agriculture Elects Officers

3rd SIDNEY The annual meeting of the Sidney Federation of Agriculture took the form of a banquet at Wheridge Orange Hall. Bill Reynolds led in singing grace, followed by a delicious supper tendered by the Wallbridge ladies.

Words of appreciation were voiced by Harleigh Hamilton, a director and township councillor.

Two Fined $50

TORONTO, (CP) — The Topping Company, Ltd., and its manager, K. J. Newell, were fined $50 each in police court Friday on charges under the Edible Oil Products Act of 1952.

The act prohibits the manufacture or sale of edible oil products other than oleomargarine in the province.

The company, Magistrate S. T. Bigelow found, had manufactured and sold a product called "topit" which was described as a "vanilla-flavored topping for pies and cakes and the like."

Bigelow magistrate said that "whether or not topit is an imitation of whipping cream, it is undoubtedly used in its place."

The conviction was the first against a Toronto firm under the act. Previously a Whitby man was convicted under the act at Oshawa but this case is being appealed to test the validity of the legislation.

Locomotive Co. Gets Order for 120 Steam Engines

MONTREAL (CP)—Robert H. Morse Jr., president of Canadian Locomotive Co., Ltd., said Friday work will begin immediately on a $20,000,000 order for 120 steam locomotives for India.

The order was first announced at Ottawa, Jan. 8, and Mr. Morse gave details to the company's board of directors at a meeting. He said a "firm commitment" had been received from the Canadian Commercial Corporation, crown agency of the trade department.

The company will aim to make initial deliveries in 13 months and complete the order by the end of 1955, Mr. Morse said.

The order could be readily carried out at the firm's Kingston, plant without interfering with the completion of a Canadian Pacific Railway order for diesel locomotives, he added. The company could also continue to accept new orders for diesels.

Mr. Morse said ill is possible to produce steam engines in a diesel plant but not vice-versa. Some steam e n g i n e manufacturing equipment was retained in the diesel conversion at Kingston.

The crown company placed the order as agent for the government, which is financing the bulk out of India's 1954 and 1955 allocation of credits from Canada's $25,000,000 a year contribution to the Colombo Plan.

Vancouver's Leonard Tied for Lead In $10,000 Phoenix Golf Tournament

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — It was the south against the Commonwealth as play resumed into the third round of the $10,000 Phoenix open golf tournament.

Leading the way were Stan Leonard of Vancouver, Peter Thomson of Australia, and Cary Middlecoff from Memphis, Tenn., tied at 133 for the 36 holes.

Just one stroke back was an exuberant young man from Tulsa, Okla., Bob Inman, who broke in as a caddy on this tournament site, the Phoenix Country Club, in 1945.

Thomson, 24-year-old 1952 Australian open champion and rookie carded as one of the finest young prospects in the world, followed his first-round 64 with a respectable 69. Middlecoff's 65 ushered him immediately to the front rank.

DRAWS GALLERY

But it was the competitive tour-type 64 fired by Leonard—the 38-year-old Canadian, and the most spectacular putting luck of 28-year-old Inman which drew the gallery applause and earned the 138-pound lightweight a 65.

Two strokes off the pace starting out today were Jack Harden of El Paso, Tex., the co-leader with Thomson in the first round, and Johnny Weitzel of Hershey, Pa., a frequent but non-winning pro on the winter tournament circuit. Harden had a 71 and Weitzel a 69 for 135.

Ready to strike if the leaders falter were Freddie Haas Jr., of New Orleans, with two 68s, and Jim Ferrier, another Australian, who lives in San Francisco. Ferrier's 65 was virtually overlooked in the light of the leaders' exploits.

Among Friday's qualifiers was Gerry Kesserling of Kitchener, who got together a 39-36—75 in Thursday's 69 for a respectable 144 total. He and Leonard are the only Canadians left in the tournament.

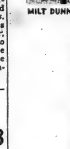
All American Flower Award for '53

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Standing out over all the others Blaze Zinnia was judged as the only new flower or vegetable with sufficient improvement to merit the award.

There are twenty-one trial stations located throughout Canada and United States, and at these stations new seeds are tested for drought resistance, lasting quality, color, yield, and many other points are considered. It is unusual that only one was selected. Growers present seeds from plants they believe outstanding in some phase, and these must be grown under the widely different climates of the stations. Through the growing season notes are kept of their performance. At the end of the year these records are compared, and rejection, or selection depends upon the results.

Zinnias have a long history. They were first found wild in Mexico and the southern states. From these the hybridizers have brought out the dwarf and tall varieties, the larger and more colorful group known as the Pumila type, Persian carpet, Fantasy and Old Mexican, Peppermint-stick, California Giants, Dahlia and the Fantasy type.



Blaze has a fine uniformity, brilliant color and immense size. They will make a fine show for a solid bed, border, or in groups in a mixed border.

The man who introduced Blaze calls it the finest flower ever created. Anyone can grow zinnias, they are counted the simplest flowers to grow, even surpassing petunias in simplicity of culture. They are said to grow better if the seed is planted where the plant is to grow, but we have found that transplanted zinnias grow vigorously, with little set back. But, new plant seeds are in short supply for at least a year. Better order your Blaze zinnia seeds early.

Blaze is the color of a flame, has curled petals like the fantasy type but is much larger, measuring up to five inches across. The feathery curled petals give it a lacey appearance unlike the heavy stiff-ness usually associated with zinnias. It will grow in full sun, or partial shade. Grow in flats for early bloom, or plant in the garden as soon as frost danger is past. The plants grow to a height of 28 to 32 inches tall, and bloom early. They would make an excellent plant for foundation planting to round out the evergreen, or shrub border and add a flash of color to the summer cottage.

A word of caution, zinnias are subject to mildew. Do not plant them too close to a building, or each other. They need a good circulation of air. Watering should be done not later than early afternoon, this allows the leaves to dry before night, when the disease spores seem to be more active. This advice goes for roses and any other plant which is subject to mildew.

Chicago Hawks Heading For All-Time National Hockey League Record

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

BACK ON TOP!

The Peterborough Petes needn't worry too much about a playoff spot. Although they have but six games left in the kitty they are out in front of the pack with 36 points, two in front of the second-place Oshawa Truckmen. The squads were stalemated up to last night with 34 points each, but the rampaging Petes, after being cooled off by the Montreal Tuesday caught fire again and pasted the Kingston Goodyears 8-5 in the Littlack City rink last night. The Goodies are in third place with 32 points and they can't be shifted. They entertain the Orillia Terriers tonight but all a win will give them is 33 points.

The Memos are hoping that Indian sign they have had on the Truckmen nearly all season still holds good tonight in Bowmanville. They are nine points behind the Peterboro who have 31 and a win over Oshawa would help the Dorac who have 31 and a win over Oshawa would help the Dorac crew no end. If they lose, the situation won't look too healthy.

BASEBALL!

The first step toward the reorganization of the Central Ontario Baseball League was taken on Friday when this department, in the official role of secretary, sent letters to baseball people in Belleville, Oshawa, Kingston, Peterborough and Watertown. If the clubs mentioned evince sufficient interest and promise representation, a meeting will be called for Sunday, February 21st.

Sports editors of the cities involved have thrown out hints the past week or two as to what is going on along baseball lines. From this, we take it, interest has awakened and there should be little trouble in getting delegates to the meeting.

It has been suggested to this corner that another team down east be invited to join the circuit. With three easterly squads and three from the west, the suggestion said the loop could be divided into two sections with an interlocking schedule. That is food for thought all right and would go a long way towards solving the long-haul problem, always a bugbear in sport down thataway. However that is something which will have to be discussed at a meeting. We merely pass it along as a suggestion.

If two American teams were entered, the far westerly Canadian squads would play week-end doubleheaders, thus saving a big cut of the transportation costs. We believe American teams would add a lot of color to the loop and be a fine box-office attraction as well. Mr. Baseball Fan likes to see new teams and new faces. The three-man COBL loop of two years ago proved beyond a doubt that Mr. and Mrs. Fan would go for the same team playing the same team twice a week.

THE OLDTIMERS

The other morning we heard a wise-cracking chappie, you know the type, mention one of the "quarter-a-dime for a bottle of wine" elite, give forth in a street-corner 'eloquence' anent the forthcoming Oldtimers' hockey game being sponsored by the Rotary and Kinsmen Clubs here on Febuary 19th.

The van-de-joie orator, in his mouthings, berated the Oldtimers. He said, and he did not know we were in the offing, "they're a buneha well-heeled bums who want to make some extra dough out of us suckers."

To enlighten our bleary-eyed friend and his pals, and possibly a lot of human beings, the Oldtimers are not reviving the years for mercenary reasons.

The years have taken their toll of these oldtime hockey players, "even as you and I". But the splendid physical condition they brought with them after doing time with the National Hockey League were ended, has stood them in good stead.

They are good Canadian citizens with a background of well-deserved hockey glamor. They formed an organization which has dedicated itself to the assistance of well-deserved charities. They play but six games a year. Physical and business demands will not permit of extra effort.

(Mike, we doubt if you can get them for the Community Centre this year at least.)

We may be wrong, but the fact that these hockey stars of years ago can go out and play a spirited game, yet, exhibitions that have attracted thousands wherever they have played and thrilled to it, bespeaks a lot for hockey.

You will see it here, Friday, February 19. The game is not by any stretch of the imagination, a comedy affair. The Oldtimers play the game for keeps.

It should be a special attraction for the young hockey fry of the city. So, along with a lot of other oldtimers, will thrill to the game as we did years ago. We do not know what rules will govern the fray, but it would be a thrill for the youngsters of today to see what the powerful-but-big fellows were in those days.

Mike Rodden will be out there tooting the whistle, along with Bobby Hewitson. If Mike develops a strange shaking of the hand when a breach of the rules takes place, don't blame it on a nervous condition. Mike will be under the impression, in view of the player environment, he is still shaking a cowbell.

Must Win Nine of 18 Games To Avoid Loop's Lowest Mark; Have Won Nine of 52 Tussles

By Jim Bastable
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Chicago Black Hawks are heading for one of hockey's all-time records. Nobody wants it.

Unless the Hawks win nine of their remaining 18 games, they will supplant the Chicago team of three years ago as the club that got the worst kicking around in the big time.

It's an unenviable situation and the percentages say the Hawks are certain to end up in it. So far this year, they have won only nine games in 52 National Hockey League starts. That's fewer than nine wins before the 70-game schedule finishes next month will give Chicago more than the lowest record of 67 defeats.

The Hawks have little consolation in the team they run up against this week-end. They meet the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs in a home-and-home series and the Leafs have been showing late-season strength.

There are two other week-end games. On Saturday the fifth-place New York Rangers clash with the third-place Canadiens at Montreal and the league-leading Detroit Red Wings entertain the fourth-place Boston Bruins at Boston. Sunday the Rangers play at New York and Detroit at Boston, besides the Toronto-Chicago return match.

The Hawks have done just about everything to chase their defeats. Nothing has worked.

General manager Bill Tobin negotiated with several NHL clubs but his money didn't talk. The Hawks ended up trying a new calling up such youngsters as Ike Hildebrand of the Western League Vancouver Canucks and Jack McIntyre of the American League Hershey Bears. They still couldn't break even on wins and losses.

Hildebrand and McIntyre will make their Toronto debut tonight. McIntyre, a tall, 20-scourer from Regina, was sold to Chicago by the Bruins nearly three weeks ago. He has produced two goals in six games. Hildebrand, a 26-year-old rightwinger from Winnipeg, was bough outright from the Canucks.

Sports Roundup

By Tayle Talbot

NEW YORK (AP)—Did you know that:

The new owners of the St.Louis Cardinals have up to now invested in whopping all cash in the baseball club's estate close to $1,500,000 in improvements on Sportsman's Park alone?

And that, at the rate they are expanding their scouting staff and building up their farm system and tapping top money on the line for promising talent, the Red Birds threaten to be extremely hard to hand without another season or two?

Had it occurred to you that the recent decision of the United States Lawn Tennis Association to permit its players to work for sporting goods firms the same as they do Australia was a meaningless gesture?

Our manufacturers served notice beforehand that they had no intention of burdening their payrolls with such talent, partly because they know that no red-blooded American net prodigy would think of signing for less than three or four times the $40 a week the Aussie amateurs draw.

Would it not be the Yankees' luck to have Ewell (The Whip) Blackwell make a big comeback and turn in his best pitching duties when it looks as though Allie Reynolds, Vic Raschi and Eddie Lopat are starting to go over the hill?

Blackwell still is only 31, and he says his right arm feels great again after its complete rest since 1952. Back in 1947 Blackie notched 22 victories for Cincinnati, including a string of 16 in succession, and was the league's ace pitcher, one of them Jim Greengrass, and $55,000 cash for him in 1953.

Is it not worth noting that Fred Haney, who had Danny O'Connell at Pittsburgh last season, said without provocation that Milwaukee's acquisition of the brilliant young infielder made the Braves a "definite pennant threat?"

Especially since he made the statement before the Braves landed Bobby Thomson, a 100-R.B.I man, and Sam Calderone, a competent catcher who can take some of the hot weather pressure off Del Crandell. It has been disclosed, by the way, that Cincinnati offered the Pirates $150,000 and six players for O'Connell, so it is worth wondering what branch Rickey really did bank in that deal.

Granites Will Represent Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto Granite rink, skipped by Alfie Phillipes, Friday won the right to represent the Toronto district in the Ontario curling championships. The Phillipes, Thurgarne downed Dr. J. Malcolmson's Toronto rink, 10-7, for their fourth straight win in the round robin playoffs. They clinched the honors when Tom Beattie's Toronto rink downed Andy Grant's Royal Canadians quartet 13-11 in an extra round. Every other rink in the playoff lost at least two games.

Tiger-Cat Prexy 'Won't Comment' On Stars Signing

HAMILTON (CP) — Jake Gaudaur, president of Hamilton Tiger Cats of the Big Four Football Union, Friday night refused to confirm or deny a recent published report that the Tiger-Cats have signed tackle Bob Fleck of Syracuse University and end Ed Meadows of Duke University.

Fleck was Green Bay Packers' second choice in the recent National Football League draft and Meadows was Chicago Bears' third choice.

The report said Bob Snyder, fired coach of Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, had submitted a list of 36 United States college football players sought by Canadian professional clubs to Bert Bell, NFL commissioner.

Of the 36 Snyder is reported to have told Bell that four, including Fleck and Meadows, have signed contracts with Canadian clubs. The other two are quarterback Jackie Parker of Mississippi State, who flunked the 17th draft choice, and end Tom Miner of the University of Tulsa, Pittsburg Steelers third draft selection. Both Parker and Miner were reported to have signed with Calgary.

Calgary recently announced that Jackie Parker would not be available for 1954 competition. Calgary officials weren't immediately available for comment.

Orioles, Chisox Pull Four-Man Baseball Trade

NEW YORK (AP)—Baltimore Orioles and Chicago White Sox pulled a four-man baseball trade Friday. At the same time, St. Louis Cardinals picked up three young prospects and seven players signed their 1954 contracts.

In the trade, Baltimore gave up outfielder-first baseman Billy Gardner, catcher Pete Nation and first baseman Dale Coogan. Baltimore signed 25-year-old Vachel Perkins, a pitcher up from San Antonio Texas club. Philadelphia Athletics announced the signing of lefthanded pitcher Morris Martin.

Eddie Shore Transfers Three Players, Suspends Seven Who Refuse to Move

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Owner Eddie Shore Friday transferred three of his best players from the Syracuse American League hockey team to Springfield in the International League and suspended seven others who refused to make the switch.

Shore announced that Bronco Horvath, Vern Kaiser and Walter Atanas had been sent to Springfield.

He suspended Capt. Keith Allen, goalie Gordon Bell, Gordon Tottle, Dan Summers, Bill Gowdie, Harry Pidhirny and Kelly Burnett.

Shore claimed that they never had failed to live up to their contracts, which he said contained clauses stating that they must agree to be sent any place at any time.

At the same time, he announced that gaps in the Warriors' line-up would be filled by eight players from Springfield and two from Johnstown, Pa., with which Syracuse has a working agreement.

BOLSTER SPRINGFIELD

Syracuse hockey fans interpreted the move as an attempt to bolster the Springfield farm club, which is last place in the Quebec League, at the expense of Syracuse, which stands fifth in the American League.

Attendance at Springfield has been reported larger than that at Syracuse this season.

Shore said he planned to test some of the club players in Syracuse during the balance of the season to find out "who can make the grade" in American League competition. He said then that he was planning for next season because Syracuse was not a strong contender for a playoff spot this year.

Called up from Springfield were Sheldon Bloomer, Don Reiford, Hal Tarallo, Ted Power, Ken Schenkel, Harry MacLeod and goalie John Henderson, and Vern Paschal.

From the International League club in Johnstown, Shore called John Horvath, a centre and brother of Bronco Horvath, and Ross Kelly.

Joey Giardello KO's Cartier In 1st Round

NEW YORK (AP)—Joey Giardello, never known as a great puncher, dropped Walter Cartier three times in the first round Friday night to win an automatic technical knockout in 2:46 of their middleweight bout at Madison Square Garden. Giardello weighed 157½, Cartier 161 pounds.

Referee Harry Kessler stopped the fight after the third knockdown in the round. Under New York state rules he had no choice.

Giardello dumped the 29-year-old New York veteran with a solid right hand shortly after the first minute of the fight. Cartier wobbled up at five but took the automatic eight-count.

The Philadelphia youngster, trying for a quick ending, bombed Cartier with another right shortly after they resumed fighting. Once more Cartier went down but he bounced up at four and again, referee Kessler tolled off the automatic eight.

Although they were 45 minutes late getting here and started the game with only eight players, the Picton Juvenile gave the Belleville gang an idea what they are up against tomorrow time for the OMHA playoffs.

Standouts on the visiting team were their captain, Fred Hassler, Mc Millan and Carl Lamont while the whole crew showed signs of being a well-coached and balanced team. They were very fast moving and they played their hockey tough but clean. Some of them had terrific shots and Charles Kingston in the nets for Belleville did well and the score as low as it was.

Pick of the homesters were McKenna, Day and Sorrows with Bob Day, one of the smallest players on the ice rink, skating his head off in an effort to stop the Picton hombos.

The Big "A" team took over undisputed position of first place in the midget league on Thursday evening by virtue of their 4-0 win over Moose Lodge. Stewart Warner, Rotary Motors and Legion all have now pulled into a second place tie with Lodge Loop. Both have ten points, two less than Big "A" and one game to play.

• • •

Bob Cruikshank became a pair of goals and assisted on another Thursday night to help his year's total to 30 goals, a high mark in the midget section. The total is made up of 15 goals and 15 assists.

His nearest rival, Bill Foster, picked up one goal to keep close behind with nine goals and three assists for 21 points.

• • •

With one more week to go in regulation play, first place has been clinched by the Bantam entry in the midget league. The Maple Leafs will finish atop the bantam section and the Belleville Hawks are sure to lead the pee wee division. Both teams have won 10 and tied one for 21 points at the time of this writing and both make one more start after this morning.

The bantam Maple Leafs are second with 15 points while the Rangers hold down runner up spot in pee wee with 16 points.

Individual scoring statistics in the bantam loop show a three way race among Earle MacDonald and John Brennan of the Maple Leafs and Gary Rowbotham of the Black Hawks. MacDonald is on top at the present time with 15 goals and seven assists for 22 points. Brennan is close behind with nine and 11 for 20 followed by Rowbotham with 17 points made up of 13 goals and five helpers.

Defenseman Bob Garrison made a bid to reach the top last week but seems to be content to less than five goals and assisted on another. This brings his year's total up to 10 goals and 15 assists for 25 points.

Gerald Ethier is five points ahead of his nearest competitor in the pee wee scoring with 18 goals and 12 assists.

As the regular season draws close to its competition we wish to box in a few words of praise for the best those who have done their best throughout the year and played by the rules may be in line for a little surprise. Most of the boys won't realize it but the BMHA held a meeting one night in December at the arena and all the managers were two gentlemen by the names of Cec Courtney and Dick Ellis.

Mr. Jones likes clean play and he has stated he would celebrate a trophy to the most sportsmanlike player in each league. Mr. Jones promptly said that he would give a silver shield to the most sportsmanlike player in each league so now as the season ends it will be interesting to see just how the coaches and managers select as the "players of the hour."

Maroons Drop 3-2 Game to Indians As Falls Tabs Cubs With 7-2 Defeat

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The line that usually shadows most goals after the game announced in pre-game ceremonies didn't find Ed Didone Friday night.

Didone, a 23-year-old native of Timmins, set up a trio of goals as Flouffe, also of Timmins, were showered with gifts in Chatham last night when 2,500 fans turned out to pay tribute to the only remaining member of the original Maroons since their re-organization in 1946-50.

The night wasn't a total success because the Indians dropped a 3-2 verdict to Stratford Indians in a regular Ontario Hockey Association senior series game when Didone didn't let the fans down.

The 5-foot-10, 170-pounder was in on both Chatham goals, scoring the first and assisting on the second.

SUPREME VICTORY

In the only other league game Niagara Falls Cubs defeated the third-place Hamilton Tigers with a 7-3 victory in Niagara Falls.

Sudbury Wolves took an 8-5 home-ice victory from Sault Ste. Maris (Mich.) Indians during the only game in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group.

Stratford struck twice in the first period once in the third to down the falling Maroons. Jimmy Flanagan, Gordie Roth and Fred Pletsch registered goals for the Indians.

Pletsch fide followed up Didone's second-period goal with the game's final marker in the third.

The loss left the Maroons eight points in front of the Cataracts who are improving every game.

A policeman was summoned in the third period when a fight threatened to break out between Hamilton's Hub Andrew and a Niagara Falls spectator.

• Bud Kemp, Murray Comfort and Andrew shared the Hamilton trial.

WOLVES CLIMB

Sudbury Wolverines moved them to within eight points of the league-leading Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds in the NOHA.

Ed Harrison led the Wolves with two goals and newcomer Pete Herceck made a successful debut by notching a single. Orval Jess scored the only goal for the Indians.

North Bay Trappers are at Greyhounds and Sudbury plays the Lumber Kings at Pembroke in the NOHA tonight. Sunday the Trappers meet the Indians at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Windsor Bulldogs travel to Owen Sound for a game with the Mercurys. Stratford is at Kitchener to play the league-leading Dutchmen and Niagara Falls goes to Hamilton in the OHA tonight.

Sunday Hamilton plays at Windsor.

Norway Students Favored In College Ski Meet

By PHIL ADLER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Seven Norwegian universities and seven colleges from the United States Pacific northwest faced typical snow conditions today as the eighth annual intercollegiate national championship meet opened on nearby Mount Norquay.

Sugar snow, caused by warm afternoons and freezing nights, threatened to make the giant slalom, initial event, a tiresome exercise.

Members of the nine teams tramped the 37-gate course Thursday to inspect its condition. The five-mile cross-country course for the relay race, scheduled for the afternoon, was marred by recent chinooks which melted many feet of snow and turned sections into water.

TEMPERATURE IN 40s

Today's weather was expected to be clear with temperatures in the 40s.

Tuesday's schedule was the same for Sunday for the down hill and jumping events.

Several European skiers were expected to provide keen competition for Canadian and Americans. They include two Norwegian born skiers, Peter Fytle and Ragnar Bakken, both members of the Wenatchee junior college team from Wenatchee, Wash. Fytle holds the Wenatchee junior jumping championship.

Washington State College, holder of the team championship for the last two years, is considered the team to beat again.

The two Canadian teams are from the University of British Columbia and University of Alberta. U.B.C. has won the team championship once, in 1948 while the Alberta group, originators and sponsors of the meets, have yet to win over-all honors.

BCI, Trenton Teams Split Hoop Honors

By BOB GALWAY

In a thrilling doubleheader basketball game played in Trenton Collegiate last night, the BCI Jr. Bombers and senior teams split two thrilling court games. The juniors lost on a last basket hook shot thrown by Burleigh of Trenton. In the second bill the BCI seniors came out on top by a 52-37 score, scoring the last basket in the dying moments of the game.

In the junior game, the strong guarding of Jim Ablarde and accurate shooting of Ted Bergholm kept the Trenton team from scoring more than a 24-23 win. Burleigh was the high scorer for Trenton with 13 points to his credit, while Hamm scored 8. Bergholm of BCI was high scorer of both teams with 16.

In the senior fixture the accurate shooting of George Parkhurst and Ablarde showed up terribly responsible for the BCI win. Gillings of Trenton was high scorer with 15 followed by Parkhurst of BCI with 11 and Bateholder of BCI with 11 and 9 respectively.

Lyndhurst's Trim Switzerland 4-2 Before 15,000

BASEL, Switzerland (CP)—Toronto Lyndhurst's, Canada's entry in the hockey world championship championships at Stockholm, Friday night defeated Switzerland 4-2 before a crowd of 15,000.

The Canadians played a faster and harder game than the Swiss but nevertheless went into the third period with the score tied 1-1.

The Toronto team then scored three goals in 10 minutes to pull ahead and win.

John Peters scored twice for the Lyndhurst's, and Ronald Conacher and William Slure each scored once.

The Swiss, playing without two of their regulars, Brothers Udi and Gebi Poltera—produced some fine teamwork in the first period to lead Lyndhurst's 1-0 on a shot by centre Schlaepfer.

Peters made it back for Canada to tie the score at the third minute of the second period. Both attempts by the Lyndhurst's to force the play into the Swiss revealed a well co-ordinated defence.

Petrol put the Canadians ahead at the beginning of the third period. Schlaepfer tied the score for Switzerland four minutes later. Neither team could make much headway for the next few minutes but a sudden gap in the Swiss defence allowed Couch to roll the puck into the goal to put Canada in the lead.

Slure scored for Canada a minute later and from then on the Swiss concentrated on staving off the attacking Canadians.

Pranteau Wins; Other Sleds Slog It Out

THE PAS, Man. (CP) — The other teams were slogging an hour or more in the rear Friday as Steve Pranteau and his huskies crossed the finish line to win the Canadian open dog sled championship for the third straight time.

Distance of the four-lap race from The Pas to Cranberry Portage is 200 miles, and the rangy, 41-year-old Indian fisherman from Cranberry Portage, Man., made the trip in an eighted time of 24 hours and 25 minutes.

Feathers for American Flytiers

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT.
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

For a great many years this department has been standing off with a periodic squawk, directed at the flytiers of the nation, because of their deplorable alteration of standard fly patterns. This always ended in futility as well as professionals.

Dakes, for example the Cahill. Dan Cahill was an engineer on, I believe, the Erie Railroad. Anyway, his run took him through the village of Callicoon, New York. During his time off he fished Callicoon Creek.

The original Cahill was—and I used the past tense advisedly—his own pattern, tied to represent a fly that is common on the waters of that region. With this he fished well. It was a great success, which no bill would be complete, but he got results in that the supply houses have mighty few feathers to sell.

SHOP FEATHERS

When the law went into effect there was a fairly large stock pile of feathers on hand and the shops began flytiers could get limited supplies of what they need. Now, however, the law is due to be ginning to pinch.

Consider, for example, such invaluable files as the Quill Gordon, Cahill (Light and Dark) and Hendrickson (also Light and Dark). All of these require wings that are made of the flank feathers of the American Wood Duck. Under no conditions are Wood Duck feathers sold, so substitutes are used—preferably Egyptian Goose or Mandarin Duck.

Egyptian Goose cannot be imported, so that's out. The law allows importation of 1,000 Mandarin skins—a mere drop in the bucket for the millions of wants of the flytiers of our country. Trouble is, the Mandarin comes from China and until matters are settled in Korea these, too, cannot be had. Nothing left but that the flytiers use dyed Mallard—a poor substitute at best.

And right there, in all probability, go five years of controversy on American dry flies. To be sure, four of these are altered patterns but they are not bad.

TREE PATTERN LAST

I mean by that that with what has on hand with the result that, in many cases, the true pattern is lost to us. I am not able to make a specialty of such thing. At the same time the anglers of the nation are deprived of a fly which, at considerable thought and study, was developed for a certain purpose. As I say, I don't like it one bit.

SHIPPING MALLARD SKINS

The Mallard Duck is common pretty much all over the world. To ship Mallard skins, the shipper must prove that the birds were killed domestically for the fur, less than three generations. Also, he must prove that they did not originate in Red China. You can imagine, under these conditions, how many people can arrange, or will take the trouble to ship Mallard feathers.

And so it goes, straight across the board. Even the Royal Coachman, whose hackle come from the Jungle Fowl, mostly,—(unless you happen to know a farmer with a Rhode Island Red Rooster) and whose tail come from the Golden Pheasant, is doomed. Sounds silly, but there it is.

mon flies can be imported and sold. Thus British, French and German flytiers can ship their flies to this country and sell them while American flytiers sit by with their hands tied, unable to compete.

EASY TO ANSWER

It seems to me that this is a war which will have to be fought out between American flytiers and supply houses and the law makers. But what about the Audubon Society and its laudable aims toward conservation of game birds? That one is easy to answer. The same thing happened during the days of prohibition.

When the amateur there run short, either they will go out and, probably illegally and during the spring nesting season, get their own supply with shotgun or snare, or they will buy from bootleg sources. We know from experience that this cannot, through legislation, thwart the wishes of more than fifteen million fly fishermen.

With all respect to the Audubon Society for food, and feathers are for flytiers, and the fact they are useful the price goes high enough. And believe me, it does. Furthermore—and I think I do—they will not at any cost be deprived of the materials for their favorite flies."

Meanwhile our fly patterns are being and will continue to suffer until some changes are made. I think that H.R. 7246 could stand a great deal of inspection and revision.

Montreal Ladies Take Over Lead

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP)
—Mrs. L. B. Unwin's Royal Montreal rink took over the lead at the end of the second round of the Sewell Trophy ladies' curling hoopiel.

Mrs. Unwin's team Friday picked up the maximum 10 points allowed by the rules in any one game by defeating Mrs. R. J. Mitchell of Toronto Ladies' Club, 15-5. Coupled with her 15-7 victory over Mrs. D. Bruce Sheerbrooke, Que., the win gave Mrs. Unwin, the 1953 champion, a total of 18 points.

The four teams which build up the most points in the standings in three matches will play off for the Sewell Trophy.

Mrs. L. E. Wooley of Toronto Granite and Mrs. F. E. Robinson of Toronto High Park each had 16 points.

FIREMEN RESCUE WOMAN

—LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Basil Brown collapsed on the floor of her home Thursday after she telephoned the fire department and police-filled basement. Firemen revived her with oxygen and hospitalized her later in her condition was not considered serious. Firemen said fumes apparently attempting to put out a small fire in some rags and "rubbish in the basement of the house where she lives alone.

Rylstone Women's Institute Celebrates Thirtieth Birthday

RYLSTONE — On Wednesday afternoon the ladies of Rylstone Women's Institute entertained the members of two neighboring institutes, Wellman's Corners, and Seymour East.

In spite of a great deal of sickness in all three communities, there were over 80 in attendance. The birthday celebration was held in the Sectional Orange Hall, Rylstone's Corners.

The Rylstone president, Mrs. Ella Jones welcomed the guests, to which president Mrs. Willian, Wallace of Seymour East, responded. Mrs. Hopkins, president of the Wellman's Corners Institute was unable to attend.

Mrs. Wanda Beckett thanked the Institute for the invitation. A letter of greetings from district president, Mrs. Horsepool, of Bancroft, was read by Mrs. Ernest Jervis, provincial board member. Mrs. Carl Clancy, Wellman's, a former, was president, extended congratulations and best wishes. Mrs. McCubbin, provincial president, sent a letter of greetings which was read by Mrs. K. Irwin, as was a message of regret from Mrs. G. McCubbin, area chairman.

REVIEWS HISTORY OF W.I.

A review of the history of Rylstone Women's Institute was given by Mrs. Carl Linn, secretary, following are a few highlights of the history: the Institute was organized on February 14, 1924, at the home of Mrs. Herbert Spencer, (now deceased); the late Miss Jean Brown of Boone Law, was the organizer.

PRESIDENTS.

The first president for 1924-25 was Mrs. Sanford Mellkeljohn, the first secretary, Mrs. Fred M. Rutherford.

President for 1926-27—Mrs. Jason Baker. Each girl who married during these two years was given a quilt; 1928-29—Mrs. Fred Barnum. Institute cookbooks were compiled and printed; first aid kits were supplied to three schools in community; 1930-31—Mrs. John Slimpson. A bale of clothing was sent to needy people in the north; 1932-33—Mrs. Ernest Irwin; 1934— Mrs. Granville Mellkeljohn; 1935-36—Mrs. Fred Barnum; 1937-38—Mrs. M. Rutherford. The Institute helped to furnish a room in Campbellford hospital; 1939-40—Mrs. Lillian Anderson; 1941—Mrs. Sanford Mellkeljohn. Boxes were packed during this time for boys overseas; 1942-43— Mrs. Hector Arnold. Several quilts were made for the Red Cross and $3 gifts were given to Rylstone brides; 1944-45—Mrs. F. M. Rutherford; 1945—Mrs. Harold Hendryson. The Institute served a banquet for Central Cheese Makers Association at the opening of the new Rylstone Cheese factory; 1947-48—Mrs. Charles Stewart. Boxes were packed for British Flood Relief. 25th anniversary of Institute celebrated with a banquet at Orange Hall, Petherick's Corners. The 30th District annual Institute meeting was held under auspices of R.W.I. in Zion Church with dinner served in the Orange Hall; 1950—Mrs. Jack Watson. Short course in modern dressmaking was held. Catered to Community Sale at Hoard's Station for first time.

President for 1951-52: Mrs. Lindsay Jefferson. During three years the Institute began raising $1,000 in aid of Campbellford Memorial hospital, by catering for the community sale, making quilts for sale, etc. Serving was also done for the hospital.

President 1953-54: Mrs. Ella Jones. The Institute finished raising their share for the hospital which was opened in August 1953. Six members attended the meeting of the A.C.W.W. in Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto.

Former presidents were asked to rise as their names were mentioned. Several were not in attendance. The balance of the program included: community singing, led by Mrs. Murray Mellkeljohn with Mrs. Percy Reid at the piano.

Reading, "Mrs. Maloney Goes to the Beatie", by Mrs. Geo. Ingram, Campbellford; vocal solo, "Don't Be Scared" by Mrs. Don Stewart, with Mrs. Ellis Jones as accompanist; guitar-vocal solo, "When You Wore a Tulip", by Mrs. Frederick Beckett, Wellman's Corners; reading, "Mrs. Harris at the Photographer's", by Mrs. Doug Clancy; accordion solo, "Blue Skirt Waltz", by Mrs. Jack Thain of Seymour East; piano solo, "Song Without Words" by Mrs. Carol Linn.

Mrs. Jack Watson, a former president, tendered appreciation to the visitors for helping make the day a success.

Games were conducted by Mrs. E. Erwin with Mrs. E. Jones at the piano. A lovely one-layer birthday cake, decorated in the Institute colors of Blue and yellow was cut by the oldest member and former president, Mrs. John Simpson, who voiced her appreciation of all the Institute had accomplished in the last 30 years and hoped for as much in the coming 30 years, which she regretted to say she could not hope to see in their end.

A silver collection was taken, and refreshments served.

RYLSTONE — Born to Mr. and Mrs. Don Reid, in Campbellford Memorial hospital, on Friday, a son.

Stewart; secretary, Fred W. Barnum; directors, William Morton, Percy Reid, Jack Watson and Roy Shortt; cheesemaker, Murvey Heath.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE ELECTORS OF EAST BELLEVILLE . . .

It has been suggested that a vote 'for' Beverage rooms in the newly annexed area would provide employment for Belleville workers, and conversely it must be assumed that a vote 'against' would deprive these same workers of employment.

This is not the case. The purchasers of the old County Home property have already convenanted to renovate the building into a hotel and to make a total investment of $315,000. in hotel and motels in three years.

This issue before the voters is not therefore, whether you are in favor of a hotel on the old County Home property. We have no voice in that matter.

The present zoning by-law can be changed unless ratified by the Ontario Municipal Board who meet on March 4th., and who will recognise any reasonable objection.

Notwithstanding all the red herrings brought out to confuse it the issue on which you are being asked to vote on Feb. 10th still is:

(a) are you in favor of Men's Beverage Rooms

(b) are you in favor of Women's Beverage Rooms

(c) are you in favor of a Dining Room Licence

in the area from McDonald Ave., to the city limits from the Bay of Quinte to Station St.

We believe that an affirmative vote would not be in the best interests of this predominantly residential area.

Milton Farmer, Two Daughters, Burned to Death

E. Laver Arouses Wife, Dies Trying to Save Children

His Begging Just Practice He Tells Court

MILTON (CP)—Three persons burned to death and three were injured late Sunday night when flames, fanned by a 40-mile-an-hour wind, destroyed a two-storey frame farmhouse eight miles west of here.

Dead are Emerson Laver, 55 and his daughters Merle, 18, and Linda, 4.

Mr. Laver, his wife and five children had gone to bed about 10 p.m., and the fire broke out shortly before midnight. Firemen said they believed high winds blowing down a chimney pipe into the stove whipped it red-hot and caused the blaze.

SAVED WIFE, LOST OWN LIFE

Firemen reconstructed this story of the blaze from survivors:

Mr. Laver awoke first. He carried his wife outside from their first-floor bedroom, then ran inside to arouse his two girls and three boys sleeping on the second floor.

He ran in a burning staircase and disappeared.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Laver had smashed a window in the bottom bedroom in which her three sons, Edwin, 20, Gordon, 16, and Keith, 13, were sleeping. She yelled to them, they awoke and jumped 12 feet down to the ground outside.

The three suffered burns and were brought to hospital in this town 14 miles northeast of Hamilton.

The boys said the only sound they heard from their father after he climbed upstairs was a muffled "Oh!" They said the girls made no sound.

WIDOW TELLS OF FIRE

Mrs. Isobelle Laver said she was awakened when her husband jabbed his elbow into her side.

"Our bedroom was full of smoke," she said. "He pushed me outside. Then he went back for the others.

"Then I ran to the back of the house to arouse the boys. I smashed a window with my fist and yelled up.

"Ed, Gordon, Keith, wake up or you'll be burned. Dad's in the house and was going to run down to the boys' bedroom but neighbors held me back.

"It was then that I learned my husband had run into the fire to get the girls and had disappeared."

Neighbors said Mrs. Laver was away from home on a date when the blaze broke out. She returned to find the house in ruins.

The fire department was hampered in fighting the blaze by a lack of water and by the high winds. It was under control by 4 a.m. when they arrived.

Firemen estimated damage at more than $25,000.

FELLOWSHIPS AWARDED

KINGSTON (CP)—Hamilton and Kitchener mechanical engineering students have been awarded Alcoa fellowships by Queen's University, each valued at about $1,000. The students are Ian J. MacDonald of Kitchener and J. G. Pike of Hamilton. They will leave for England next September where they will enter industry and take further university training in the next two years.

Stabbed, Beaten

TORONTO (CP)—Arthur Bennett of Toronto told police Sunday night he was stabbed and beaten after he had a few drinks in downtown room.

Bennett said he fell asleep after the drinks, was awakened by someone going through his pockets and was clubbed in the stomach as he leaped from the bed.

George Hamilton, who was arrested after Bennett staggered to the street and called for police, and Patrick Tighe and Frank Tighe were charged with wounding. All are from Toronto.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Mild Pacific air covers most of Ontario this morning and is producing gusty winds and occasional light snow at many points. A large storm centre moving through central Quebec has intensified southerly winds in the extreme northern sections of Ontario and this cold air is expected to continue sweeping south to cover the province early on Tuesday.

TWO AMERICANS FACING MURDER CHARGE AT SIMCOE

Held for Ax-Slaying Of Station Operator

SIMCOE (CP)—Two Americans were charged with murder Saturday night in the ax-slaying of 68-year-old Bruce Beatty. A third man is being held for questioning.

Jerry Simmons, 47, of Syracuse, N.Y., and Joe Lothary, 39, of Detroit were picked up Friday night and charged 20 hours later. Henry Hey, 39, of Detroit, was taken into custody at the same time and held for questioning. He is Lothary's uncle.

Beatty and his 65-year-old wife were found eventually Saturday in a pool of blood in their service station at Renton, four miles east of here. They had apparently been attacked with an ax which was found on a couch.

The service station had been ransacked and cash boxes were empty.

Beatty died without regaining consciousness and Mrs. Beatty still is unconscious and in critical condition in hospital in London.

FED, 11 REMAND

They were charged after interrogation by police from 3 p.m. until 3 a.m. Saturday and started again at 10 a.m. the same day. Lothary and Simmons, each charged in turn, then they awaited their turns to be questioned. They joked with police officers and smoked cigars. Simmons chain-smoked in silence.

Provincial Constable Don Purvey, 33, arrested the three after he stopped their car for a routine check on a main highway two miles from the scene of the ax attack.

Police throughout the province were on the lookout for the car, an auto with United States licence plates. They were alerted by a spokesman with caution because the wanted men were believed to be armed.

Information was obtained from Syracuse and Detroit police before the three were being questioned. Inspector D. V. Wright of the provincial criminal investigation branch was in charge of the case.

Ray Charlton, 30-year-old service truck driver who found Mr. and Mrs. Beatty, said the two other men were questioned by police. They told a reporter later that they did not recognize the men he rested.

Wildcat Strike Plan Is Rejected By Labor Group

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A demand for a wildcat strike at the Windsor plant of Chrysler Corporation of Canada to protest the provincial government's construction procedure met with quick right rejection Saturday at the Ontario Federation of Labor convention.

Sam Lore, president of the 3,000-member Local 200 Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL), urged this action between 1,000 UAW-CIO dispute with the company in negotiations for a new contract.

Bidault of France Becomes Powerhouse in Berlin

By PRESTON GROVES

BERLIN (AP) — George Bidault, once an uncertain quantity in the French cabinet, has become a powerful force in Berlin.

The dark-haired French foreign minister, who stands barely above her high, is the State Secretary John Foster Dulles, has surprised British and United Nations delegates by his stout battles with Vyacheslav Molotov.

His outspokenness has been particularly pleasing to the Americans although they keep their comments for the defenses the European army treaty he rides has been practical fire for himself at home.

He came to the conference representing the weak coalition among the Big Three. Moreover, in Paris, many Americans and a good many Frenchmen never felt sure just where Bidault stood on the EDC. Here they are not so doubtful.

"He acts like a man who has burned his bridges behind him," said one high U.S. source.

He has verbally slugged it out with Russian foreign minister Molotov day after day, defending the EDC as the only device for curbing German militarism because it means bringing Germany with "democratic peace-loving nations" in the Western sense.

If any Europeans at all has been made on Molotov during the present four conference it has been made by that argument.

The correspondents Bidault is a problem. He uses all the devices in the French language to shade his meanings and his sentences often are so minutely contorted that translation is well nigh impossible.

But in conference, according to one American, his sentences run out powerfully.

"His commas and inverted sentences disappear and the fine periods sound confidencing over

Police throughout the province had been put on the alert for an auto with United States licence plates. They had planned to approach it with caution because the wanted men were believed to be armed.

Information was obtained from the 30 before seven R.C.M.P. cars and the three were being questioned. Inspector D. V. Whitley of the provincial criminal investigation branch was in charge of the case.

Mrs. Charlotte Lavery-Clark police truck driver who found Mr. and Mrs. Beatty dead, said the men were questioned by police.

They told a reporter later that they did not recognize the men arrested.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A demand for a wildcat strike at the Welland plant of the Ford Motor Company of Canada to protest the provincial government's recollition procedure went down with outright rejection Saturday at the annual convention of Labor vention.

Sam Lore, a member of the Ford Local 200, United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL), urged this action in referring the UAW's dispute with the company in negotiations for a new contract.

Bidault of France Becomes Powerhouse in Berlin

By PRESTON GROVER

BERLIN (AP)—George Bidault, one an uncertain quantity in the French cabinet, has become a powerhouse in Berlin.

The dark-haired French foreign minister, who stands barely five feet high in State Secretary John Foster Dulles, has surprised British and United hstates delegates by his stout battles with Vyacheslav Molotov.

His outspokenness has been particularly pleasing to the American delegation. The great event time he defends the European army against the Soviet political fire for himself at home.

He came to the conference reeking with the week sister among the Big Three. Moreover, in Paris, Premier Joseph Laniel and a good many Frenchmen never felt sure just where Bidault stood on the EDC. Here there are not in doubt.

"He acts like a man who has burned his bridges behind him," said one high U.S. source.

He has certainly dogged fi ed with Russian foreign minister Molotov day after day, defending the EDC as the only device for curbing German militarism because it means harnessing Germany with "democratic peace-loving nations" in the Western army.

If any impression at all has been made on Molotov during the present big four conference it has been made by that argument.

To correspondents Bidault is a problem. He uses all the devices in the French language to shade his meanings and his sentences often are so minutely contorted that translation is almost impossible.

But in conference, according to one American, his sentences roll out powerfully.

His command and inverted sentences disappear and the fine periods of his reasoning emerge in those who can't speak French," the American said.

Some English diplomats are not as much impressed with Bidault's words as the Americans, but they agree he has been a strong fighter in the conflicts with Molotov.

So far Molotov has been unwaveringly polite to Bidault, but the French leader hasn't shown any signs of being charmed.

400 Paratroopers Undergo Sub-Arctic Warfare Tests

By DON HANRIGHT

Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP) — About 400 Canadian paratroopers are undergoing the final sub-arctic warfare tests in operation Blizzard in the shore of Kluane lake in the Yukon territory 1,400 miles northwest of Edmonton.

The paratroopers, some of them just back from Korea, are members of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. They were taken to Silver Creek, near Kluane lake by trucks and snowmobiles. They have done no jumping since leaving Calgary's Currie barracks.

The army, more concerned in Hot Dog II with what happens to this part of the country's mobile striking force once it gets on the ground, has ordered the usual weather tests of everything from boot-laces to wireless radio units.

The exercise began Jan. 5 when temperatures were hovering around 30 below zero in the mountains and the three were being questioned. Inspector D. V. Whitley of the provincial criminal investigation branch was in charge of the case.

Mrs. Charlotte Lavery-Clark police truck driver who found Mr. and Mrs. Beatty dead, said the men were questioned by police.

They told a reporter later that they did not recognize the men arrested.

Secret Police Have Quelled German Unrest

By TOM REDDY

BERLIN (AP) — Simmering unrest in the Soviet zone has been thoroughly quelled by police and communist secret police, German and Western quarters said today. A series of arrests and upwards of 500 Germans in scattered industrial areas has apparently smashed the budding outbreak of violent resistance before it had a chance to get started.

Western informants said Eastern Germans have demonstrated how Foreign Minister Molotov quietly forecast in the Big Four parleys that another June 17 revolt is impossible.

RIFLES TESTED

Included in equipment under examination are rifles and rapid-fire weapons. However, the new Belgian rifle recently adopted by the Canadian armed forces is not believed to be tested. Other reports of tests indicated the Belgian rifles have not yet arrived in western Germany.

Silver Creek is a cluster of five wooden structures which serve as the official opening ceremonies for the Alaska highway which skirts the western shore of Kluane lake.

The latest mountainous region also served as a base camp for exercise Eagle Eagle in the early month July of the Canadian-United States exercise in 1952 which experimented with airfield construction at the 2,500-foot level of the lake shore.

About 40 miles to the west are the towering St. Elias mountains, which include Mount Logan, Canada, highest peak in Canada. The snow mountains in the east are about 5,000 feet higher than the glacier-fed Kluane.

The valley forms a virtual trap for the cold air which rushes in-land from the Pacific coast and across the mountains from northern Alaska. In February, 1947, the lowest temperature, -70, about 100 miles north in the same valley, recorded an official 81 below zero.

LONG HIKES SLATED

To test clothing and weapons on the exercise, the troops will undertake several long hikes through the valley and into the mountains.

One on the first of these was almost a flop. The parachutists taking part had to call off the 50-mile hike when they met up with bitter cold and a 60-mile-an-hour wind that rushes off the western mountain peaks like a waterfall. The temperature was 40 below zero in one day, and called off the hike after they had gone 17 miles.

Another of the treks is planned later this week. The objective will be the radio base and weather station at Aishihik, a 60-mile walk eastward through the coast mountains.

The army is supervising survival tests of the Canadian Rangers, a largely obscure force of civilian volunteers who live and work in the northern mainland and the arctic islands.

French Extend Warm Welcome To St. Laurent

Newspapers Say Talks Likely to Be Helpful

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PARIS (CP)—Bowing deeply between the blue-uniformed ranks of the Republican guard, Canada's prime minister St. Laurent today placed a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier.

The ceremony beneath the huge, 168-year-old Arc de Triomphe was the start of a round of official visits that took up most of the Canadian prime minister's first full day in the French capital.

Influential French newspapers noted the visit to France on the Canadian leader's world tour and spelled his name "Saint-Laurent." But generally the press said no one is better qualified to discuss international problems arising over Indian premier Nehru's "neutralism."

Le Monde said Canada's understanding of France's reticence on the question of a European army would permit French premier Laniel and Mendes-France to "go beyond a banal and diplomatic exchange of views on the Far East."

PROFOUNDLY ANXIOUS

For the prime minister the visit to Paris was a return to the land of his forefathers, and he said he first visit to France in years filled him with "profound emotion."

The premier of France and a wide assortment of other official dian leader when he arrived late in the afternoon for the French portion of his round-the-world tour. He leaves Wednesday for Bonn, capital of West Germany.

Premier Laniel and Jean Desy, Canadian ambassador to France, were among those who joined Premier St Oriy airfield after a quick flight from London where he had spent an active week-end.

Dana Wilgress, Canadian representative at the Paris headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, was in the delegation that stood in the cold at the airfield when the RCAF C-5 landed with the Canadian party. A French naval and air force band and an air force guard of honor was on hand, and several hundred persons had gathered near the airfield's motor traffic exit to salute the Canadian visitor.

The prime minister was visibly touched by the reception, including the 21-gun salute and cheers for Canada" and "La Marseillaise," the French national anthem. During his visit gave him great pride to return once more as a grandson of France, and expressed joy at official visit to France on behalf of the Canadian people.

In London Saturday the prime minister lunched with Prime Minister Churchill and also in a private talk laid emphasis once more on the view that a Five meeting is necessary.

Viscount Swinton, also a luncheon guest, filled in the Canadian leader on information the air ministry had acquired during a recent visit to Asia. The prime minister's tour includes several Asiatic stops.

He also talked to R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, about trade improvement in Britain's exchange position, which has experienced considerable strain.

Saturday he had tea with the Earl of Athlone, a former governor-general of Canada, and the Earl's wife, Princess Alice.

Toronto Skier Buried for 5 Hours Lying in Creek Under Tons of Snow

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Buried under tons of snow while skiing, George Bornet, 38, of Toronto, had an escape from death Sunday that he will never forget.

Searching with a five-hour hunt heard faint cries from underfoot and found Bornet unconscious and over the very avalanche of snow that buried Bornet, Dr. Ross Gillespie determined. He was taken to hospital at Collingwood, 40 miles away, for treatment.

A three-inch hole in the snow was the only indication that Bornet lay place in a creek bed saved Bornet's life. It gave him sufficient air until searchers found him.

Bornet had gone to Blue Mountain Lodge near Collingwood with a party of week-end skiers from Toronto. When he was missed Sunday afternoon a search party, led by the Owen Sound skiing brothers Bill and Jack George, was organized.

After five hours of fruitless searching Bill Georgas thought he heard a faint cry. He told the others to listen and then from beneath the snow at their feet, they heard it distinctly.

"Help, I'm here."

The searchers threw a flashlight into the small hole in the snow. They saw Bornet's white face. Then tree boughs and skis that had provided implements they dug him out. He was then taken by car down to the ski lodge and off to hospital by car.

Searching for several hours in the creek bed after he was rescued, Bornet's companions stumbled down the mountainside. He was weak when dug out but searchers said he escaped freezing to death because he was lying in running water under the snow.

That and the air hole saved his life.

In at the rescue besides the Georgas brothers were Jamie Clark and Ken Ferguson, Owen Sound, George Weider of Collingwood and Donald Proudfoot of Toronto.

Big Four Holding Secret Sessions On Asian Problems

World Disarmament Talks Are Also Being Considered

By JOHN HIGHTOWER

BERLIN (AP) — The Big Four foreign ministers today met in their first restricted session of the Berlin conference to see whether they could agree on steps to promote peace settlements in Asia and on a formula for a world conference on disarmament.

They were back in the Allied sector building in West Berlin after a week in the Soviet embassy in East Berlin.

During the first two weeks of meetings, full details were made public. Today's session was more secretive. In contrast to the big delegations attending the previous meetings, each of the four powers today was limited to four persons in the room although experts on a variety of subjects were standby for consultation.

Russia's Foreign Minister Molotov had a six-man Deputy Foreign Minister Andrey Gromyko, ambassador to London Jacob Malik, and interpreter Oleg Troyanovsky.

AMBASSADOR INTERPRETS

U.S. State Secretary Dulles was assisted by state department counsellor Douglas MacArthur II, ambassador to Belgium, assistant Asiafairs Livingston T. Merchant and ambassador to Canada Charles Stanley, who acted as interpreter.

British Foreign Secretary Eden had on his staff Deputy Undersecretary Sir Frank Roberts, Roger Makins, ambassador to Washington and Selwyn Lloyd, minister of state for Far Eastern affairs, and an interpreter.

The session was called for discussion of Russia's demand for a world disarmament conference and a Big Five conference on world problems that would give Communist China official recognition as a major world power.

The ministers also were due to discuss how and when to take up the question of an independence treaty for Austria.

THREE-POINT PROGRAM

The four foreign ministers were reported determined to confront Molotov with a three-point program.

They will meet with China and Russia on Indochina and Asian issues as Korea and Indo-China, and only if the Peiping regime demonstrates good faith by cooperating first in a Korean settlement, or else in Indochina, will Communist Vietminh rebels in Indo-China.

The Big Four must fix a deadline for their fruitless discussions on disarmament and Austria or agree to modify her demands.

The Western powers attempts to bring about world disarmament must be within the United Nations, and Molotov had previously proposed that such a conference be held under the auspices of the organization so Red China could attend.

In their first two weeks of debate the four ministers have shown little noticeably shifting. The West already has given up reunification and a peace treaty for Germany as a hopeless dream for years or even generations.

Indict 6 Firms, Nine Individuals, On Fraud Charges

WASHINGTON (AP)—The justice department today announced the indictment of nine individuals and six corporations on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government in the $11-million dollar deals in surplus ships after the World War.

Among those indicted was Joseph E. Casey, former Democratic member of the House of Representatives from Massachusetts. Casey allegedly booked a groom accused by a Senate committee of making fantastic profits in postwar tanker deals.

SHIPPING MAGNATE CHARGED

Also indicted were Aristotles S. Onassis, world power in the shipping trade.

The indictment was returned by District of Columbia federal grand jury on June 12, but was kept sealed by court order pending the surrender of Onassis.

Onassis, native of Greece and a resident of Monte Carlo, presented himself today and entered a plea of innocent. He was released on $10,000 bond.

Romulo Sure Adam and Eve Were Russians

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, former president of the United Nations assembly, says Adam and Eve probably were Russians.

Since they were cold and miserable, unbelieved, hungry and misled by a serpent they must have been Russian," he declared Sunday night in a speech.

His Begging Just Practice He Tells Court

Pope Leaves Bed, Eats Solid Food, His First in Days

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Ailing Pope Pius arose from bed today and spent some time sitting in an armchair—the first time he has done this for any considerable period since Jan. 6.

Both the pontiff's private physician and the Vatican press office announced that his health is improving.

The latter, in its daily bulletin, said the doctor has advised the 77-year-old Pope "to move about some while in his chambers."

Vatican sources said the Pope ate solid food—his first eating in a week. He also took solid food—his first in many days. Previously he had been able to take down only liquids. He has been secluded in his apartment for more than three weeks with a stomach ailment of undisclosed nature.

THIRD DAY OF PROGRESS

The Pope's physician, Dr. Riccardo Galeazzi-Lisi, called improvement for the third straight day.

Prayers for his health were repeated Sunday in Roman Catholic churches throughout the world. Thousands of letters and messages have poured into the Vatican from far points expressing hope for his recovery.

Galeazzi-Lisi's report was terse: The Pope ate well and his improvement continues."

GOES SHOPPING

After Christmas, the doctor left the Vatican to go shopping in downtown Rome—an indication perhaps that less concern was felt for his patient's condition today.

The Pope is also being treated by a Swiss glandular and internal specialist, Dr. Paul Niehans. For the last several days, one or the other has been in attendance at all times at the Pope's apartment.

There has been speculation that the Pope's ailment is diabetes but his inability to retain fluids given to patients for X-ray tests has apparently led the doctors from learning the specific nature of the illness.

Stabbed, Beaten

TORONTO (CP)—Arthur Bennett of Toronto told police Sunday night he was pistol-whipped and after he had a few drinks in a downtown room.

Bennett said he fell asleep after the drinks, was awakened by someone pulling a pistol on him and was stabbed in the stomach as he leaped from the bed.

George Hughes, 31, was arrested after Bennett staggered to the street and told police Hughes and Patrick Tighe and Frank Tighe were charged with wounding. All are from Toronto.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synoptic: Mild Pacific air covers most of Ontario this morning and is producing gusty winds and occasional light snow at many points. A large storm centre moving through central Quebec has intensified and will be expected to continue sweeping south to cover the province early on Tuesday.

Scotsmen Tells Gathering of Clans Kilt Outmoded, Fit Only for Museum

EDINBURGH (AP) — A Scotsman named David McIntosh thought out loud before a gathering of the clans and caused some wailing.

"The kilt is an outmoded relic fit only for the museum," said McIntosh, speaking to the Clan Chattan Society. Present were members of the associated McIntoshes, the McBeans, the Farquharsons, the Davidsons, the MacGillivarys and some others.

"That's nonsense," said Hugh MacPherson.

"Worse than nonsense," said W. G. Kinloch Anderson.

Both make the kilt.

Down Edinburgh's Princes street, where on a busy Saturday afternoon 10,000 persons can be seen walking, you can spot at least two or three persons wearing a kilt. Tourists may not give them an extra glance, but Scotsmen do.

The kilt is Scotland's traditional garb for ceremonial and social occasions. You can hire one from Edinburgh rentals for $7.50 a day.

McIntosh, 30-year-old accountant and father of three boys who wear kilts themselves, said he had this to say:

"The kilt may be all right in the heather, but it is out of place in the modern city. Nobody knows what the physique to carry it off. They're too fat, thin, too tall or small to go zyzagging around in tartan skirts.

"How can a business man keep his mind on what he is doing when he is spending most of his time explaining that his kilt isn't too revealing?" asked McIntosh.

"Take the kilt," insisted McIntosh, "is no longer a symbol of national pride."

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Fears of a heavy death toll in the earthquake-shattered region of Chiapas state in southern Mexico were published today as new reports trickled in from the mountainous region. But 5,000 families are believed homeless following the severe shocks Friday.

The quake centred in a 500-mile-square area producing coffee 60 miles west of the Guatemalan border. Four towns were reported devastated.

State governor Efrain Aranda Osorio Sunday said telephone reports from four mayors in the hardest-hit region did not list any deaths.

Damage was estimated in the millions.

G. Graham's Trent Road Home Gutted by Fire, $65,000 Loss

Loss amounting to an estimated $65,000 resulted here early today when fire gutted the rambling one-storey home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Graham, Trent Road, three miles west of the city.

No one was home at the time of the fire, Mr. and Mrs. Graham having gone to Europe several weeks ago. The blaze was spotted about three o'clock by Provincial Constable McAlonzo as he was doing highway patrol.

Both the Belleville Fire Department and firemen from the RCAF at Trenton responded to the alarm but were able to do little to prevent the spread of flames through the house. The east end of the home was completely gutted by the blaze, the roof falling through to the basement. Part of the roof on the west end of the house remains but rooms and contents were heavily fire damaged.

Fire Chief Vance said the flames were already pouring out through the tiled roof of the house when firemen arrived on the scene.

EDWARD McFARLANE.
(Shannonville).

Following a year's illness, Edward McFarlane, Shannonville, died in the Kingston General hospital on Sunday.

He was born in Tyendinaga township, 69 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James McFarlane and has been a continuous resident of the district all blaze was discovered at 3.10 a.m. when the flames were already licking out through the roof.

Burned in the fire were, expensive oil paintings and many articles of antique furniture.

James Graham, son of the owner, said he had been living at home until about a week ago. When he left his parents' home he took the family silverware with him as a precaution against burglars.

This is the second time the Graham home has burned. About 25 years ago the home was destroyed by fire and was rebuilt on the same site.

WIND HAMPERS FIREMEN

Fire Chief Vance said a high wind hampered efforts of firemen to control the blaze. Showers of sparks were scattered among outbuildings immediately to the east but fortunately no other building caught fire.

The roof of tiles and covered with white stucco, the Graham home was one of the most elaborate in the Belleville district. This morning little more than the walls remain. The remains of fire damaged furniture were being taken from the fire damaged west end of the home and were being piled on the lawn.

In the basement firemen were still dousing spots of flames fanned up among the debris by the wind.

Safe-Breaking Attempt Made At Read

Provincial police here are investigating an attempted safe-breaking job at the post office at Read, 18 miles southeast of here. An attempt was made to burn the safe open from the side door with an acetylene torch.

Police are working on the assumption that the attempt failed because the would-be safe-cracker ran out of acetylene gas while they were attempting to burn the door off the safe.

The acetylene tanks had been loaded on a toboggan which with the tanks was found abandoned at the side of the road about a mile and a half from Read.

Two men whose names were not known were picked up by police in Belleville and after questioning were released. The men were picked up on suspicion of having stolen acetylene tanks at Sydenham, north of Kingston.

American Girls Find Hospitality In Canada Fine

MONTREAL (CP)—A couple of American girls are convinced that "Canadian hospitality is marvellous."

Anna Scharrenberg, 18-year-old student at the State Teachers College at Danbury, Conn., and her friend June Moeller are going back home after a brief sojourn in Canada "to gain experience."

Their trip was in line with the policy of the college to have students in their freshman or sophomore years try some new experience approved by the faculty.

"Some of the students," says Anna, "job off to Mexico or Florida, while others just experiment with hobbies at home. We decided to come to Canada."

She says that until recently the girls knew little about things on this side of the border. But there is a new interest in Canada among younger Americans at the moment. Anna says this has been encouraged by an increased number of articles about Canada in United States newspapers and magazines such as stories about the St. Lawrence seaway.

GOOD CO-OPERATION

The girls—they are fourth-year science students—financed their own trip to Montreal and Ottawa, but found plenty of willing helpers on arrival. The Montreal Council of Women acted as hostesses here; and at Ottawa the girls were chaperoned by Senator Cairine Wilson. The Canadian - American Women's Committee arranged a sightseeing schedul

The girls said they experienced only one disappointment on the trip—there weren't enough snow falls about.

"We didn't expect to see them on every street corner, however," said June.

So they settled for postcards featuring pictures of the redcoats.

"We're taking a lot of postcards home to show our friends."

FRIENDLINESS—A WORTHY THEME

This is White Cane Week. Jointly sponsored by the Canadian Council of the Blind and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, White Cane Week is designed to improve the lot of our blind citizens. This year the theme of the Week is "Friendliness." This theme, observes J. A. MacNaughton, national publicity chairman of the Canadian Council of the Blind, may come as a surprise. But the explanations given by officials of the Council, and of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, make it plain that simple friendliness is one of the greatest gifts which those blessed with sight can offer the blind.

Mrs. W. C. Bending, president of the Canadian Council of the Blind, recalls that when she lost her own sight in 1925 blind people were seldom seen on the streets. Canadians she adds, had not begun to realize the potentialities of the sightless and still kept them sheltered in the bosom of their families. Today that situation has changed and we can all of us readily understand how much it must mean to blind persons to be accepted on equal terms in the various phases of community life. "Their acceptance has had a remarkable influence on the blind," says R. W. Beath, chief librarian of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Perhaps, with Mrs. Bending and Mr. Beath testifying to the change in outlook toward the blind, we might think it unnecessary for the value of friendliness to be stressed during White Cane Week. But J. A. MacNaughton observes that there are still many Canadians who, though friendly by nature, are often at a loss to know how to say to a blind person or to say about offering aid. Mr. MacNaughton points out that blindness is not restricted to any particular walk of life. The sightless person you meet on the street may be a scholar, a business man or a craftsman. He may be the family lived on Coleman Street. They left here for England in 1900 and five years later returned to Canada and took up residence in Calgary. Lyndon Parker, deceased engineering profession in Alberta. He served overseas during the war and at the close he was with Calgary College in Rome to study for the priesthood. He was ordained in 1930. Since then he has worked in the Diocese of Calgary, Alberta.

Miss Louise Judge, Mount Pleasant, is home from a trip to Florida.

Mrs. Lella Totton of Toronto spent the week end here with her sister, Mrs. C. Bristo and Miss Mae Totton, Cedar Street.

Mr. Jack Cole, Niagara Falls, spent the week end here with his father, Mr. W. Hogan, North Front Street.

30 YEARS AGO

FEBRUARY 8, 1924.

Belleville Intermediates led by Bill Green defeated Peterborough in a thrilling game on the arena. Those who failed to see the game missed a rare treat, as a more hockey match; they missed seeing one man hold an entire team at bay, score three of the five goals, stand up under continuous fire from rolling poor set by the visitors, and come back asking for more. Green, the local boy, did not defend his goal-tending record, certainly gave the fans another one to remember long after this season's hockey has become history. Peterborough played goal, forward and defence all rolled into one. Many times the local sportsmen's rewards would come flashing down the ice with only Bill to beat and stick handling like champions, only to find that they had no goalie to beat. Falling flat upon the ice, battling the puck like a baseball with his stick, catching them on the fly no matter how hard they were driven, Bill put up an exhibition of defence play that has seldom been seen in amateur hockey or any other for that matter. Players: Finkle, Frechette Weir, Whelan, Hagerman and Canning were all stars and every one of them was in there fighting and put up a grand game, but Bill Green was certainly a super-star. The final score was 5 to 3 in favor of Belleville. Three of the goals were scored by Green, Hoffman, Finkle and one by Frechette. The referee was nero Matthews, a former St. Michael's star. The following composed the teams: Belleville: Nurse, Green, Finkle, Hagerman, Weir, Frechette; subs: Whelan and Canning. Peterborough: Parker, McMartin, Collins, Burgess, Jacobi; subs: Dalgleish and Ross.

40 YEARS AGO

Mr. Stewart Farrell of Kingston is spending a few days in town.

Mr. Percy Barker of Toronto is visiting friends here.

The following scores were made by members of the Belleville Rifle Association at a practice shoot at the indoor range in the 15th Regiment Armouries: J. Dodds 96, A. Ponton 96, J. H. McCaskie 97, W. J. Andrews 97, J. Thompson 91, Harri 95, C. Ellis 96, H. Day 95, R. Wrose 94, W. Ridley 93, D. Woodley 93, J. Silva 93, W. Moore 92, R. Day 92, H. Holton 92. The highest possible score is 100; the average at 25 yards.

Mr. D. J. Fairfield has on exhibition in his office a lively white butterfly which he caught early today. And this is the month of February. "Poor Butterfly."

In a hockey match played at the rink between teams representing the tinsmiths of the Mica and Lewis shops Monday the result was a score of 5 to 4 in favor of the Mica shop team. The following composed the teams: McGie team: Goodwin, Hoffman, Frechette, McGuire, Perkins. Carter and Campbell; Lewis team: Bonner, Hogle, Thompson, Geary, Deacon, Addison and Langman. The referee was Jack Gordineer. After the game the boys of both teams and some friends enjoyed an oyster supper.

Strength for the Day

WHAT IS COWARDICE?

A college boy came to a visiting lecturer one day evidently much excited and asked that he might have a word of counsel with him at the close of a service. The boy then came by the long aisle of the tense emotional strain. The boy showed the minister a letter from a girl he was in love with back home which contained this arresting sentence: "I think you are a coward, and I think I ought to tell you."

This was the background of the scene. Both the boy and the girl came from refined and respectable homes where their ways of life were definitely built on decency and religious faith. The boy had joined a fraternity, started to drink, dipped into other forms indulgence, and had come to the place where he did not have very much of an idea of what was right or wrong beyond his own personal desires. The girl back home got wind of this and she wrote him, saying, "I think you are a coward, and I think I ought to tell you."

Now there are some persons who is starting to compromise, and you tell him that he is not in an awful fool, that he is throwing happiness away with both hands and that he can never know what the real satisfactions of life are until he does an about-face and never again looks back on the old way of life? The fool does not want the right. Youthful lusts, but says, "Tee youthful lusts." Jesus never contended with the devil; he turned his back on him.

Harry Truman Slept Too Well

(By H. L. PHILLIPS in The Kansas City Star)

Harry Truman is doing pretty well for an unemployed man. He just got back from a month's vacation, part thereof, for telling a TV audience that he slept well! "I never took a sleeping pill in my life," he declared by way of the usual foundation in response to a question whether the heavy cares of the White House had ever caused a sleepless night.

Never has a politician made an admission which could cost him more support. While Harry was sleeping at night those years in Washington, millions of other folks were tossing and turning in their beds. They are pretty sore. Certainly they had a right to assume he was restless, too.

Few are the American voters who do not resent a man's boast that he has never had to count sheep. They like to think he is not well without a pill now and then can never feel affection for a man who has never felt the pangs of one. It was comforting to countless millions to know that the years of crisis and headaches to feel that the White House, too, had been touched by insomnia. People liked to think Harry, like themselves, had counted sheep, believe, hugged at the sheets, counted heartbeats and gone a trip over to the medicine cabinet.

We would have to bet all the chips we have that Harry has taken a sleeping pill on these occasions:

1. During the Korean war.
2. The night before Margaret's first TV show.
3. The night after General MacArthur's address to Congress.
4. The night of Adlai Stevenson.
5. Any night in which he had gone to bed thinking of Joe McCarthy.

The news that in his 69 years he never took a sleeping pill is difficulty accepting may have a historic significance. If he took a sleeping pill in my life," can become as attached to Truman in his making books as to Washington. "I did it with my little hatchet."

Century-Old View of Russia

(Hamilton Spectator).

The words were written 100 years ago (in the London weekly The Economist on January 24, 1854) but they are still true and worth more than a casual reading.

"How about our position with regard to Russia? . . . In the first place, the two nations are radically different and unharmonious in race . . . Individualism is the characteristic; the absence of it is theirs. We are essentially and strongly democratic; they are to a great degree Orientals and Asiatics. We are passionately fond of freedom; they are above all things submissive and loyal to established power. The free institutions which we so much prize have no charms for them . . . There is no likelihood that they and we will ever be ranged side by side in the cause of constitutional rights. On the contrary, Russian ideas of policy are to the full as hostile to ours. Russian influence will always be paramount in proportion as it appeals to ours. Russia, by right of birth, principle and creed, is the apostle of absolutism . . . The natural opposition between Great Britain, by inherent right the hereditary champion, by the baptism of her past history, is the protector and diffuser of constitutional liberty. Our missions are discrepant and intrinsically hostile. They are the two great centres and new ideas, between progress and conservation, between high civilization and aggressive barbarism, between power and freedom, between light and darkness. These are the Anglo-Saxon and Slavonic principles which are the two opposing hosts. France we may reasonably hope will be ranged with us . . . Germany oscillates and wavers. Thus, however friendly the tranquil, between high civil relations with Russia, the ideas, the predictions, the principles of the two nations condemn them to a perpetual, though it may be a peaceful, antagonism . . . An alliance with Russia can rarely be more than partial, vigilant and doubtful — based on false assumptions or on wilful blindness, and always on constant menaces and interruptions."

Trade Books For Ballet

(Ottawa Citizen)

Although pantomime is one reason for the remarkable interest in British plays and books about the theatre this past month, winter, the phenomenon seems to be but part of general cultural ferment. Dickens is especially useful to the propagandists, for in books like Dionel Twist he exposed social injustice in England of a century and more ago. Many Russians apparently believe his works reveal the unhappy lot of workers in Britain and youth, in capitalist countries.

In Moscow alone, a dozen British plays are being produced this season, before audiences of millions. They include Othello, Twelfth Night, Much Ado About Nothing, Much Ado About Nothing, and Two Gentlemen of Verona. In addition to Shakespeare's plays there are stage adaptations of Dickens' The Pickwick Papers, Dombey and Son, and Little Dorrit. Other productions are a play by Galsworthy and Widowers' Houses, Sheridan's The School for Scandal and Bernard Shaw's Candida.

The state publishing house in Moscow will publish Quentin Durward and Robinson Crusoe for Soviet children in 1954. Russian libraries are promoting a wider exchange of books with those in other countries.

A counterpart of this Russian interest in Western culture is in Western interest in Russian ballet, in view of the wide-spread popularity achieved by the ballet in recent years.

Shovels Key To Character

You can usually tell the character of a man by the way he shovels snow.

Snow shovellers fall into distinct types: The bew-to-the-liner — he's the fellow who starts out to his neighbor's line and not an inch beyond it. He has the disregards figured to the tenth of an inch and with great patience digs down to the very brown peppercorns.

The noctural scooper: This fellow never seems to get a full night's sleep. He's always out at some hours falling — whether it is 6 p.m. to 3 a.m. — he's out prontio with his snow shovel scraping away in the light of the moon.

The dawn patrol: He's a relative of the nocturnal scooper. This fellow never seems to get a full night's sleep. He's always out at some hours falling — whether it is 6 p.m. to 3 a.m. — he's out prontio with his snow shovel scraping away in the light of the moon.

'Bad Boy' Writer of Twenties And Woman Are Found Slain

NEW YORK (AP) — Maxwell Bodenheim, "bad boy" writer of the 1920s, and a woman believed to have been his wife were found slain Sunday. A 32-year-old "taxi talker" was sought today by police for questioning.

The 62-year-old Bodenheim was discovered with the woman in a cheap furnished room where drink, obscurity and poverty had sent him after a spectacular and controversial career in the 1920s and 1930s as a writer of poetry and harsh fiction.

Police today issued a 13-state broadcast for Harold Weinberg, alias Joseph Greenburg, and warned that he "may be armed." Meanwhile, detectives started a methodical search of Manhattan for clues.

One of the areas on which they concentrated was Greenwich Village, where Bodenheim had flourished and floundered.

HOT ROBBERY MURDER

Chief of detectives Thomas A. Nielson told reporters Sunday night that "this is definitely not a robbery murder."

No other motive was indicated.

The room in which police found the bodies of Bodenheim and the woman, identified as Ruth Fagan, 35, had been rented three weeks ago in Weinberg's name.

Whether Bodenheim had registered under the Weinberg name or shared the room with Weinberg was not made known by police.

Bodenheim was shot in the chest. The woman was stabbed and beaten almost beyond recognition. Both were fully clothed when found after the rooming - house proprietor sawed off a padlock which had been placed on the door from the outside.

On the dead novelist's chest was a copy of the best-seller, "The Sea Around Us," by Rachel Carson. No weapon was found.

A medical examiner said the couple had been slain in the 24 hours before discovery of the bodies.

In the 1920s Bodenheim was a prominent figure in the literary worlds of Chicago and Greenwich village. He and author Ben Hecht helped to found the Chicago Literary Times, an irreverent chronicle of Chicago before the depression.

BECAME BITTER CRITIC

Bodenheim, born in Hermanville, Miss., and without formal education, became a bitter critic of U.S. civilization.

His novel, "Replenishing Jessica," caused a sensation in 1925. Later it resulted in charges against the author for publishing an indecent work, but he was acquitted on grounds that he had received no royalties from the book's sale.

Among the novels he considered his best were "Blackguard," "Crazy Man," "Georgia May" and "Sixty Seconds." His verse included "Minna and Myself."

His peak was in the 1920s. By 1935 he was broke and on relief as an acute alcoholic. But as late as 1943 he published a novel, "Lights in the Valley."

Acquaintances of Bodenheim and Miss Fagan said she became his third wife recently.

Jersey Breeders To Hold Meeting

Jersey breeders from across Canada were on their way to Toronto today for their annual meeting Tuesday, February 9, to make plans for one of the most active years in the breed's history in Canada, which included preparations for a World Jersey Bureau Conference next summer and a campaign to develop an increasing interest in the high butter fat Jersey milk.

The World Jersey Conference to be held in Guelph, July 18th to July 24th, will be the first time representatives of the breed from different parts of the world have met in Canada. Main object of the Conference will be plans to promote and safeguard the interests and improvement of Jersey cattle throughout the world. Delegates from South Africa, New Zealand, Great Britain, the Jersey Islands, South America, United States, France, Denmark, Sweden and Eire are expected to attend.

During 1953 the breed's activity reached an all time high indicated by full participation in fairs and agricultural shows across the country. In many of the fairs held in all ten provinces there were more Jerseys shown than any other breed. Registration of Jersey cattle was the highest in several years, it was reported by Canadian Jersey Cattle Club secretary, James Brenner. Transfers of Jersey cattle were up over 1952 by 20 per cent, he said.

Europe's Cold Wave Returns With Heavy Snow

LONDON (AP) — Europe's cold wave returned with heavy snows and sub-freezing temperatures in northern Britain and Germany today.

Southern England, France and Holland had a thaw. Burst waterpipes, snarled traffic in melting ice and slush and threatened floods in some areas.

The Moulin Rouge cabaret in Paris was flooded when water pipes burst in the floor above and water poured downstairs. The manager announced an indefinite shutdown and laid off 120 employees, including the cabaret's Can can girls.

Horse racing in England was cancelled for the 17th consecutive day.

Manchester had more than five inches of fresh snow.

SEALS ON THE RHINE

In London, however, the mild-day temperature hit 43—the highest in 17 days.

Snow and 15-degree temperatures gripped most of Germany after a slight let-up during the week-end. The Rhine river now is a frozen solid for a distance of 37 miles between the Lreiel and Main—the biggest freeze-up in seven years. Police reported seals frisking about in the Rhine near Bonn. Weather men believed the animals may have been driven south by the bitter cold of the polar regions. Ice breakers worked to keep open Hamburg harbor and the Kiel canal after strong winds piled new ice along the coast. Most other North Sea ports were sealed off by ice.

Airlift continued to drop food and other supplies to residents of the Frisian islands, cut off from the German mainland by ice.

In Italy, warmer weather enabled communications to be restored with several mountain villages previously cut off by snowdrifts. Airplanes still flew emergency supplies to relieve shortages in some communities. Two "weasel" snowplow tractors borrowed from a French polar expedition worked through 10-foot drifts to mountainous Andorra, restoring communications between that tiny republic and the outside world.

Voters Ballot In Simcoe East By-Election

ORILLIA (CP)—Voters cast ballots today in a provincial by-election to decide Simcoe East's new representative in the Ontario legislature.

The by-election, the second since Premier Frost's Progressive Conservative government was swept back to power with a landslide victory in 1951, is being watched with more than usual interest in view of the disclosure of alleged contract frauds in the Fort William division of the highways department.

It became one of the major issues of the campaign and led both Premier Frost and Farquhar Oliver, Ontario house leader, to make personal campaign appearances in the central Ontario constituency.

The seat, the only vacant one in the 98-member legislature, is being contested by Progressive Conservatives, Liberal and CCF candidates. It is a traditionally Progressive Conservative stronghold and was held for the party since 1943 by Dr. John McPhee until his death last December.

Indian Troops Boarding Ship To Return Home

INCHON, Korea (Reuters)—About 1,600 Indian troops today began boarding the troopship Asturias which will take them home after 2½ months of guarding prisoners-of-war in the Korean demilitarized zone.

With them are 25 neutral nations repatriation commission administrative personnel and 12 Chinese, two South Koreans and 74 North Korean former prisoners who asked to go to neutral countries after their release last month. The ex-POWs are being taken to India where their futures will be settled.

Last members of the 6,000-man Indian force are expected to sail from here Feb. 21.

Missouri, Kansas Facing Serious Drought Crisis

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Many communities in Missouri and Kansas, wracked only three years ago by devastating floods, are faced with a different crisis today; they're drying up.

A merciless drought that lasted through the summer shows no sign of abating. It's no longer just the preoccupation of worried farmers, but has moved into the cities and towns.

The water shortage varies in acuteness but there are communities which have little more than a month's supply left.

At least one, has run dry—Olathe, Kan., 20 miles southwest of here, where the level of the reservoir has dropped below the intake pipe. Trucks will haul water from a nearby lake while this source holds out, then arrangements will be made for hauling it from Kansas City.

Dr. Warren A. Kramer, chief of water supplies for the Missouri health division, said many towns already have reached the crisis stage, and there's no immediate relief in sight.

SITUATION SAID SERIOUS

For Kansas, too, the outlook is glum. The weather bureau describes the general situation as "serious," explaining: "Good, general rains would be the only solution. But our long-range forecast doesn't indicate them."

Water for car washing and other non-essential use has been banned in some areas. Pastors are offering prayers for rain at Sunday services. Daily prayers for rain are being said at Ursuline College.

The water rate has doubled in Paola, Kan., and officials say another raise is inevitable if Paola, as is likely, is forced to import water from nearby Kansas City.

FISHERMEN STRANDED

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Twenty ice - fishermen were temporarily stranded Sunday when a stiff southwest wind broke off a vast ice field from Lake Erie's shore south of here. Eighteen of the fishermen were taken to safety by a passer-by who borrowed a boat. A coast guard skiff picked up the others.

Two Bush Pilots Rescue Six Men In Alaska Wilds

CURRY, Alaska (AP)—Two veteran Alaska bush pilots are credited today with saving the lives of six men isolated in the snow-covered mountain wilderness near here Friday when the plane in which they were riding exploded.

Two of the other 18 men aboard the United States Air Force C-47 when it left Elmendorf Air Force base near Anchorage on the ill-fated flight are known dead.

Eight are missing and bush pilot Cliff Hudson, who with Don Sheldon is credited with effecting the rescue of the six survivors, said today that there is little chance any of the others are alive.

The air force said Hudson and Sheldon saved the lives of the 12 who spent two nights and most of two days in freezing temperatures awaiting rescue after the wrecked two-engined transport was sighted.

Hudson spotted the wreckage late Friday. The following day Sheldon located the first three survivors huddled in the snow 15 miles from the wreckage where they had floated down in their 'chutes.

FLYING SNOWSTORM

Sheldon, Hudson and an air force doctor flew to the spot in a blinding snowstorm Saturday and were grounded overnight when the weather worsened.

Hudson struck off then on the arduous trek through 3½-foot-deep snow to reach the crash scene. Sheldon, meanwhile, flew his trio of survivors Sunday to Anchorage, 75 miles southwest of here. The others were picked up by helicopter.

Hudson said the survivors told him the plane exploded as it was flying between air force bases at Anchorage and Fairbanks, some 200 miles north of here.

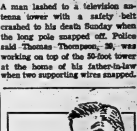
Begin Drive To Rid Grounds Of Deadly Snakes

CANBERRA (AP) — Government House authorities have begun a drive to rid the grounds of snakes before Queen Elizabeth arrives there Feb. 13.

The house, on the outskirts of Canberra, is located in one of the most notable snake haunts in the Australian federal capital territory.

A large herd of cattle has been turned into the long grass surrounding the house to remove cover for the snakes and to eliminate the danger of a bushfire.



This summer a dozen snakes, mainly deadly, have been killed in or near the Government House grounds.

FELL FROM TOWER

WILLIAMSPORT, Md. (AP) — A man lashed to a television antenna tower with a safety belt crashed to his death Sunday when the long pole snapped off. Police said Thomas Thompson, 39, was working on top of the 50-foot tower at the home of his father-in-law when two supporting wires snapped.

Most people spend large sums of money only when they know where the money is coming from. But there are some bills that you just can't plan for. Like insurance, car smash-ups, unexpected medical expenses, fires, thefts and anything completely out of your control; bills . . . that hit you like a bolt out of the blue. These large bills are often a serious concern to a family. That's when a Niagara loan can really be of help. At any rate there are a lot of letters in our office which were written by people who certainly think our service was a mighty fine answer to this difficult kind of problem. You'll find if you inquire, that friendly loans at Niagara Finance often have lower rates. Another point about Niagara, loans to $1500 are life-insured at no extra cost to you. If you have a large unexpected bill which you can't handle why not drop in or phone; we'll be glad to see you.

FRANCES SHELLEY WEES

Frances Shelley Wees, Canada's leading mystery writer, whose new story "I Am Not Guilty" is featured in the Mystery Ladies' Home Journal, is a member by marriage of the United Empire Loyalist Wees family so well known in Belleville. Her husband is Dr. W. R. Wees, head of the W. J. Gage Publishing Co., in Toronto. He is the great-grandson of David Wees and Catherine Rogers, whose wife, who lived to be 96, is Centreville cemetery. The original Wees settler was John Wees, the first white settler in Ameliasburg, whose descendants still live on the original Loyalist grant, Lot 39. A very great many Belleville and district people are related to the Wees family; the record has it that at one time there was nobody living on the road from the Carrying Place to Belleville who was not a Wees or Wees married to one. The name was originally Weese, but "the o-e-e-s phan" but in the confusion of early settlement the 'de' was dropped and the 'e' added to the final 's' added.

Mrs. Wees grew up in the west, coming east with his wife and family in 1933. Mrs. Wees began to write in the west. "I Am Not Guilty" is her 20th novel. All have been published in both Ireland and the United States, in book and magazine; some have appeared in Canadian magazines and pocket books. It is reported that for "I Am Not Guilty" Mrs. Wees was paid one of the highest sums ever paid for a one-issue serial. Set in Toronto, all characters and customs are strictly Canadian. Mrs. Wees hopes to see the Dutch Loyalist background of her husband's family and it is one novel at least in Prince Edward County.

Mrs. Farnsworth spoke on the need to send protests against the liquor ads and courtesy advertising in various Canadian magazines. There are no less than 17 liquor ads in the latest Maclean's and the ads in Canadian edition of Reader's Digest should cause alarm, for beneath the bright trappings, lies a monster.

Mrs. K. Bird presided at the piano. Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Morgan's group put on a splendid program followed by a social half hour and tasty refreshments.

Rev. Miriam Collins rendered a beautiful story, "A Friend the World."

Miss Madelaine Young gave a most informative and inspiring address on Dr. Albert Sweitzer, who holds four doctorates and master degrees in several languages; first as a nurse, has been of great help in his work.

His was a life of self-denial, strenuous labor and giving of his time, his great talents and his money to serve the lepers, the insane (for whom he built a hospital), and the needy in the Congo district.

A FULL LIFE

He made intensive study of Bach and at times built his organs, gave organ recitals, worked at his medical practice in the morning and as a carpenter in the afternoon.

Miss Young reviewed his life, he as a child was touched by any cruelty to animals; through his struggles and triumphs against desperate odds; always coming to grips with life. His life was so full that only the highlights could be given.

At one time, he and his wife were interned—a bitter disappointment, cutting short their work.

In 1939, he built a hospital for the natives with 400 beds and later he used gifts of money, his earnings from concerts and his royalties towards 250 more beds.

Rev. Mr. Collins and others graciously thanked Miss Young.

During the refreshment period, one of the recordings of Bach, by Dr. Sweitzer on the organ, was rendered, bringing to a close a worthwhile meeting.

Vocational Guidance Discussed At B.C.I.V.S. H-S Assoc. Meeting

At the February meeting of the B.C.I.V.S., Home and School Association, the feature topic was a panel discussion on "Vocational Guidance," as an important assistance to pupils in choosing their vocation in life. The meeting, which was held in the Collegiate auditorium, on Thursday, was presided over by Mrs. Lennox Smith, the president.

After the reading of the minutes and the treasurer's report, Mr. Curry gave an informative survey of the planning of the course of the new Quinte Secondary School, and also outlined the courses which are taught at the B.C.I.V.S.

PANEL DISCUSSION

The panel discussion was under the leadership of Mr. Musgrove assisted by Miss Silverster, Miss Martinson, Miss McNab and Mr. Linton Smith in absentia, all guidance leaders in the C.I.V.S.

Mr. Musgrove first pointed out that there are many more opportunities today, for the pupil leaving high school, than ever before, and that it is advantageous that the pupil follow the vocation to which he is best adapted and in which he is most interested.

An attempt is made to accomplish this by introducing aptitude tests, the studying of specific information supplied, and arranging interviews with individuals who are practisinb the vocation in which the pupil is interested.

CAREER OUTLINED

Mr. Musgrove introduced his associates, who, in turn, each cited a case of a pupil who felt that he or she might not be enrolled in the best course for him, specifically. However, the general conclusion was, that it is preferable to complete that course, if the pupil has the ability to do so, rather than to start "twiddling around" at so early a stage in his career, unless he is unhappy, as this would be lost.

This was followed by an open discussion.

Mrs. Smith graciously expressed her appreciation to the members of the staff who had so generously given their time and gram.

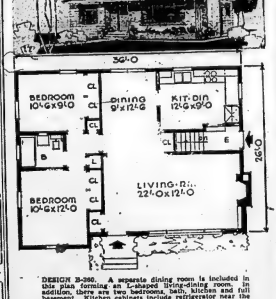
Eastern Star Birthday Celebrated

Friday evening, February 5, the Masonic Temple was the scene of a gala event, the occasion being the 85th birthday party of Belleville Chapter No. 35 Order of the Eastern Star.

The auditorium was very artistically decorated with red and gold streamers, with baskets of gold mums and ferns adorning the East.

Mrs. Audrey Elliott, the Worthy Matron of the chapter, welcomed Grand Chapter officers, Mr. Ernest Burgess', Worthy Patron, of Toronto; Mrs. Edna Anderson Associate Grand Conductress of Newmanville; Mrs. Evelyn Hadley, Grand Warder, of Trenton; Mrs. Edna Dobbs D.D.G.M. of District 12; Mrs. Roby Fleming, member of Benevolent Committee of Grand Chapter and Mrs. Burgess of Toronto wife of the W.G.P., P.D.D.G., Matrons, Past Worthy Matrons and Past Worthy Patrons of the District.

Presiding Matrons and Patrons were welcomed from Trenton, Port Hope, Minerva, Sunbeam Chapter, Oshawa, Tweed, Picton, Lakeside No. 81, Napanee and Madoc Chapters.



The visitors and members were extended the very hearty welcome by Mr. Hartley Tompkins, W. Patron of Belleville Chapter No. 35.

The D.D.G.M., and P.D.D.G.M., Past Worthy Matrons, Past Worthy Patrons and officers of the chapter conducted a "Birthday Cake Ceremony" A beautiful birthday cake with the centre of attraction and 35 blue candles mounted on discs surrounded the cake.

Soloist for the evening was Mrs. Lloyd Lovekamp accompanied by Mrs. Grace Wilson as pianist.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WILL A MARRIAGE LIKE THIS BE PREDESTINED TO FAILURE

From a young woman of 25 comes the feeling if any marriage in which one partner has had less education than the other, is automatically doomed to be a failure.

If I must answer such a question in a general way, I would at once say "certainly not!" Then I would add that it would depend entirely on the personalities, character and temperaments of the two people involved.

After putting her question in this general way, the young woman who writes the letter goes on to the specific example of her own case, explaining that her education and background are both "cultural," and that the men in whom she is interested is "a complete stranger to the cultural field.

"He is of a fine family, all the members of which are hard workers and ambitious in business, but who simply didn't go to college," she says. She adds that the man is "a sincere person," and that there is "a predictable deep love" between them; that, moreover, the two of them have discussed the situation very frankly; that he realizes his cultural limitations and consequently, that "I feel the way in many things," because of his unselfish desire to please her.

Apparently this young woman would not hesitate to marry the man if it were not that doubts, amounting to considerable apprehension, have been put in her mind by her friends and relatives. Her family definitely opposes the marriage, so that she feels if she married against their wishes it might mean a break with them. At present, she lives at home, and is deliberately exposed to criticism of the man, and growing evidence that he would not be tolerated as a member of the family.

"In my work," she says, "I see countless women who, while waiting for a man worthy of them, end up spending their lives alone, and I can't help wondering if I would not be foolish to cast aside possible happiness for no better reason than that given."

DON'T LET OTHERS DECIDE

Well, if there is real affection between this young woman and the man in question; if they are both people of character, who will be tolerant, loyal, understanding and intelligent enough to put these qualities to work in adjusting to each other; if they have a sufficient number of common interests right now to be companions, and if the probability exists that they will be able to develop more such interests in the future, then she would indeed be foolish to let others decide for her whether she shall or shall not marry him.

If she will carefully read the conditions I have just laid down, she will realize that they represent neither more nor less than should be the basis of any marriage between any two people. Moreover, what she says about this chap certainly suggests that, since he is intelligent enough to realize his limitations, and his feeling about her is deep enough to make him anxious to please her, he will very likely take steps to fill out the deficiencies in his education to a point where he can meet on her own basis, culturally speaking.

No one needs a college degree to be informed on matters of cultural. A well-selected program of reading; of learning something about music, art and other subjects—these can make any intelligent person well fitted in his own in any group in which he finds himself. It might also be well to remember that plenty of boys and girls go through college and absorb so little during their four collegiate years that practically no "culture" at all rubs off on them.

As for the family problem that apparently would confront this girl if she married against her parents' opposition, I doubt if it would prove as serious as she now feels. Certainly it would not, unless the parents themselves are lacking in true culture, which includes the ability to see and appreciate other men for what they are really worth. But even assuming has not been included in the paragraph accept others for what they are ents' cultural shortcomings, surely that this ability and willingness to if the man proved intelligent in the ways I have named above, they would give him credit and accept him for his worth.

Nothing this young woman has said about the young man gives me any fear that, basically, he is inferior to herself in any important way. If she loves him, my feeling would be that she had better marry him.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many users of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wabbled at just the wrong time. Do not let this happen to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds them more firmly so they feel more comfortable. Does not taste, gummy or pasty. Gives you confidence. GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

KIND HEARTS AND CHEERING VALENTINES

"Have a heart" is an endearing ideal to have this Day-of Hearts—St. Valentine's. So how would you like to be a thoughtful person with a kind heart, and have some charming valentines to send to less fortunate people you know who need heart-lift of some bright and warm-hearted cheer. There is that so-valiant and so-lonely mother you know whose son is far away in the service. There may be a friend in the hospital who would be enchanted to receive a bright valentine. There is the shy, self-conscious girl in the next block who is so terribly delighted when you say "Good-morning" to her. There is that dear little old lady, your mother's friend, whose lameness keeps her confined to the house most of the time. There is that diffident little girl in your Sunday School class who, you've pretty sure, never did receive a real valentine. There is . . . Just give yourself the have-a-heart joy of making your own list of persons-to-be-remembered with pretty valentines and on them some appealing verse or an all-out for good, old-fashioned sentiment." I'm thinking of you!" perhaps the best of all heart-to-heart messages. This perverted old world needs all the kindness it can get.

And no better day than Valentine's Day, the Heart-to-heart Day to give it!

A "DON'T DRESS" RULE FOR PASSENGERS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are sailing for Europe later this Spring, first class on a large steamship. At a party we went to the other evening someone began a discussion that "you don't dress either the first or the last night out." We'd never heard of it before. True?

Margret W.

Yes, it's true that passengers don't dress" on the first or last night out. And it's a good thing to know this.

"CHOOSE YOUR PARTNER" . . . BY THE ROMANTIC VALEN-TINED-WAZE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister and I are giving a Valentine party for our game-group and we have practically all our arrangements made for games, foods, etc., completed. But we don't quite know how to get the party started, and we wish you'd give us a suggestion as to choosing partners. Our difficulty is that not all our guests know the others, however,there will be an equal number of boys and girls.

Rena L.

For your first game please make a special feature of one that calls for the pairing-off of the girls and boys. . . a good way for a party "ice-breaker." And for this finding-your-partner idea for this romantic occasion it would be a natural to cut valentines—the more romantic, the better!—into two pieces, hide the pieces around the room, and then the signal is given, all begin to search for the matching pieces of the valentine he or she holds. Then these partners merrily set forth together on the first game you and your sister have planned.

Cake Treats

By Mary Moore

Our mailman arrives around three p.m. and his arrival provides a perfect excuse for me to have a cup of tea or two while I open and read the mail.

Imagine my surprise when I opened a box containing a note saying "I hope the cake arrives in time again to have with your cup of tea"—and it did. It was a delicious cake too.

It was from Mrs. W. R. W. who sent the smaller recipe for an egg-yolk cake (this was made from one I gave her for a 5-egg yolk cake). Also she finds the cake fails a little after being taken from oven. If I remember correctly the oven temperature I suggested was 325 deg. Fahr. for the 5-egg yolk sponge cake. The brown top on Mrs. W. R. W.'s cake indicated to me that the oven was hotter than this. It would be that her oven thermometer is registering too low, when the heat of the oven is higher actually.

NOTE TO MRS. W.R.W.

Thank you for the cake first. For the 5-egg yolk cake try setting your temperature regulator at 300 deg. Fahr. and bake cake at that temperature for once to see if it does not fail.

Here is a recipe for a small 3-egg yolk cake. While temperature for it is 350 deg. Fahr., I would like you to try it at that temperature the first time. However, for reasons just given, I may be you will have to reduce your setting to 325 deg. on the second trial if the first is not satisfactory.

SMALL EGG-YOLK SPONGE CAKE

Three-quarters cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1-4 teaspoon baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 3 egg yolks, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-4 cup boiling water, 1-2 teaspoon lemon extract. Sift the sifted flour, baking powder and salt together. Beat egg yolks with rotary or electric beater (low speed) for three minutes, very slowly beat in the sugar until very thick and pale lemon-color. Add boiling water and lemon extract. Beat for 30 seconds. Sprinkle flour mixture over top and fold in until all flour is moistened, but not over-beaten. Grease and flour-dust small tube pan or loaf pan, or square pan, and turn batter into it. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. —time depends on shape of pan, but the size of cake should require only about 30 to 35 minutes. Invert on cake rack to cool.

Sometimes when things happen that they did last Sunday I mutter into my front teeth "Who's running this column!" (No answer.)

. . . seems that Pete went to Zenh's (his present boy-love of 19 tender years) and she had made the prize-winning Orange Kiss-Me-Cake. Last week-end, like the dutiful son of a food editor, he turned up with the recipe, because he was so proud of Zenh's skill and the cake was so good. This cake enjoyed so much publicity a while ago it did not need my attention. But some of you might like to try it again—on Pete's recommendation.

ORANGE KISS-ME-CAKE

Grind together the pulp and peel from 1 large orange, (reserving the juice for the topping), 1 cup raisins and 1-2 cup walnuts. Sift together 3 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon each soda and salt and 1 cup sugar. To these last four ingredients add 1-2 cup soft shortening and 3-4 cup milk and beat 300 strokes by hand or for 2 minutes at low to medium speed on electric mixer. Now add 2 unbeaten eggs and 1-4 cup milk and beat 300 strokes (or all) and beat for 300 strokes or 2 minutes longer. Fold in orange-raisin mixture. Pour into well-greased and lightly floured pan—either oblong 12x8x2 or 13x9x2 inches. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 40 or 50 minutes. While cake is still warm drizzle over top 1-3 cup orange juice. Mix together 1-3 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 cup chopped walnuts and sprinkle over still-warm cake. If desired further decorate cake with attractively cut orange slices. Cut in squares to serve.

Beauty

RETAINING THE BLENDER SILHOUETTE

When the form-fitting formal is worn there mustn't be a crease or a wrinkle in it. If a woman hasn't an absolutely perfect figure, she had better stick to the bodice and full skirt type of gown and conceal anatomical defects, be they ever so trifling. The commonest problem is too much width amidships. It may be just the waistline, the hips, the thighs—or all three, in which case the displacement is considerable.

No gown is lovelier for the gala evening than the long, slim, sheath-like model. It has always been good style, is "smart today, even when the ballet style is as popular as it is now. It displays the figure and, therefore, is a favorite among the prettier who know that their outlines are graceful and flawless.

Not only because the overweight woman cannot wear such a gown, however, but because excess weight is a health menace and slows up muscular activities, she should resolve to climb up on the diet wagon and stay there. Also she must realize the need of a certain amount of corrective exercise every day. Thirty-seconds must pay heed to that extra half inch on waist-line—before the half-inch becomes a real bulge..

Try fifteen minutes of exercise daily: lie flat on the back in bed, hands under the hips. Lift the legs slowly until you are fairly standing on the back of your neck; lower them slowly three times. Relax. Take five long deep breaths, then start the leg-lifting movements again. Specialist for reducing the midsection.

"HEAVY SMOKE AND WATER DAMAGE TO PERCIVAL ANNEX"

Fire Chief Gerald Vance

As Reported in the ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER THURS., JAN. 28th, 1954

THE DAY FOLLOWING THE FRONT ST. FIRE

The chief said that an accurate estimate of the fire loss was difficult to estimate due to the possibility of estimating smoke damage in adjoining buildings. He noted there was heavy smoke damage at the McCarthy Theatre and the Percival Annex.

Smoke damage would possibly extend to the Crystal Hotel on the south and to the War Surplus store on the north, while there was also water damage in the Percival Store and in the theatre building.

Three Players Will Strengthen Lyndhurst Team

MIDLAND (CP) — George Dudley, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, announced Sunday night that three players will be flown overseas to strengthen Toronto Lyndhurst's, Canada's entry in the world hockey championships at Stockholm.

The players will be a goalkeeper, a defenceman and a centre. In addition, Bill Shill, regular forward for the suburban East York Lyndhurts who was unable to leave with the team, is expected to rejoin them in time for the tournament.

"The three reinforcements I have in mind are Ontario boys, but I haven't contacted them yet," said Dudley. "I hope to know definitely within two or three days. If any or all of them are unavailable, then we'll get three others."

SUFFERED DEFEAT

Fear that Lyndhurst, a senior B team, weren't strong enough began growing after they suffered an 11-2 beating in their initial continental exhibition game leading up to the tournament. They were beaten by a collection of Canadian-born all-stars playing in England.

Dudley's announcement followed a telephone call to him from team officials at Zurich, Switzerland, where, Saturday night, Lyndhurst's edged the Swiss national team 5-5. The Swiss team is considered one of the best in Europe.

The latest victory, third against one loss, was viewed by Red Stapleford, who travelled from London by invitation of the CAHA to size up the Canadian entry.

After the game, Stapleford, onetime Canadian player and now a coach in the English League, conferred with Lyndhurst officials, including coach Greg Currie. Then they telephoned Dudley.

"They agreed Lyndhurst's needed added strength, so we'll do what we did three years ago," said Dudley. "We sent two forwards to strengthen Lethbridge and that team went on to win the world title."

Orillia Nips Goodyears 3-1

KINGSTON — Ronnie Nelson scored all Orillia's goals here Saturday night in a 3 to 1 victory registered by Pontiacs over Kingston Goodyears in OHA Senior B action.

Nelson's first counter forced a 1-1 deadlock late in the second period, his second came at 2.10 in the final session on a penalty shot and his third was registered just 20 seconds before the game ended.

Referees Maurice Walsh and Louis Lecompte inflicted 20 penalties with the Orillians drawing 13. Twelve seniences were jammed into the middle period. Ab Brown setting the pace with two minors and a misconduct.

Courageous Life of Battling Nelson Ends in Hospital Charity Ward at 71

The former brilliant and once wealthy lightweight champion succumbed to lung cancer at the age of 71—a wasted, incoherent little man without a penny to his fabled name.

It was the end of a slide from the heights of prestige and fortune—a slide that began nearly 25 years ago for the storied "Durable Dane," whose fists earned him the world's title in the early 1900s.

He lost a half-million-dollar fortune in the financial crash of 1929 and spent his last years subsisting on the public dole and the handouts of friends.

Just a month ago he was committed to Chicago state hospital after a court found him suffering from "an incurable senile dementia" and unable to take care of himself. A week before, his wife, Edna, 45, had died.

Nelson weighed 80 pounds when he was sent to the institution.

He and Mrs. Nelson had been living in a cheap near north side hotel for several years. Periodically friends who remembered his past greatness got together purses to keep them going.

FOUGHT AT 14

The latest windfall came a few months ago when it was announced that about $2,000 had been turned over to the aging "Bat" and his wife. The money came from funds raising campaigns in San Francisco and Chicago. None of it apparently was left.

Nelson, who came to the United States from Denmark as an infant, fought his first fight at 14 against a circus heavyweight. He won with one punch but the management reneged on a promised $1 payment and it was 16 years before he collected. He sued the circus and was awarded the dollar with interest.

Thereafter, in a 22-year ring career, he fought approximately 250 times. He won the lightweight championship in 1908 with a knockout over Joe Gans, the clever Baltimore Negro, and lost it in 1910 in a 40-round bout with Ad Wolgast.

His last match, in 1917, was a 12-round no-decision affair with the then light weight champ, Fred Welsh.

Angry Marauder Students Taunt Queen's Team

Marauders defeated the visiting Gaels 58-52.

The 1500-odd students were protesting the recent ousting of McMaster from senior intercollegiate football, a move led by the Queen's representative on the intercollegiate Athletic Union. Queen's officials, supported by the University of Toronto and the University of Western Ontario, said it was financially impossible to operate a five-team league.

It was the second time the students have demonstrated at a basketball game here. Two weeks ago they adopted similar tactics when the University of Toronto played the Marauders.

The fans chant "Money, Money, Money, red, gold and blue, red, gold and blue, gold, gold, gold," while they tossed pennies at Queen's coach Frank Tindall.

During the game, 52 personal fouls and three technicals were handed out, 31 personals and one technical going to the Queen's team.

Marauders were never headed and led 21-14, 31-22 and 44-39 at the quarters.

The Gaels bottled up Marauder scoring leaders, Lorne Wrigglesworth and Bert Rajland, during the game, holding them to seven points apiece. However, John Stanley and Villa came up with 17 points each.

For the Gaels, Don Lyon and Jim Harrison were nigh men with 12 and 13 point efforts respectively. McMaster plays at Queen's next Saturday.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

ALMOST IT . . .

The ship is not sunk yet, but she is slowly sinking by the stern, and the crew will have to get crackin' if they want to salvage a spot in the playoffs. Hope is not dead but it is fast sailing-ering since the Memos have 3 games to play, Oshawa and Orillia the same and the Petes and Kingston six games.

Not trying to be a "homer," since, as we were informed, the situation affected both teams, it appears the officiating at Newmarxville Saturday night, when Oshawa Truckmen defeated our side by an 8-3 score was anything but of the kind that should be in effect in Senior "B" hockey—or any other kind, for that matter.

Referees Stan Boshler and "Sixty" Coombs, whoever they are, showed an appreciable lack of what it takes to make good officials, and that goes for the sentences handed to both the Truckies and the Memos.

A reliable source informs us that the misconduct given Vern Goyer was entirely uncalled for. The minor, which preceded it was "soup" enough, and when Goyer, the Memos' captain, asked why, he was promptly tabbed with the misconduct.

We are not trying to alibi the defeat. But it seems the OHA should at least provide competent officials, especially at a time when a game is fighting for a spot in the playoffs. This is not the first time teams in the group have expressed dissatisfaction with the work of these officials.

Meanwhile, down Whitby way, we are told they had a regular old-fashioned punchfest with no less than 20 penalties handed out, a dozen to the roaring Pontiacs, who apparently have no idea of being pushed into the discard. They whipped the Goodies 3-1 and drew up on level terms with that crew, in third place.) The Oshawa Truckmen are the guests of the Memos here tomorrow night.

HE SHOULD!

Thirty-one years ago last October a husky young giant stood at the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle Streets. It was early evening. There was the fire of battle in this young man's eyes as they swept up and down the streets as if looking for something or somebody.

Later, the young man became one of Canada's outstanding athletes, one who excelled in practically every realm of sport in which he participated. He is now a member of the Ottawa House of Commons.

Lionel Conacher, "The Big Train," when he appears here with the National League Oldtimers on February 15, will likely recall the last time he appeared in Belleville in an active sports capacity. He will remember the evening he stood on the corner outside the Hotel Quinte looking for an unfriendly cab.

For the Big Train was then a member of the famous Toronto Hillcrest baseball club, which was ousted in three strenuous battles by the then Grand Trunks. The Hillcrests won the first clash 16-2 in Toronto, lost the second in Belleville 8-5 and were edged in Peterborough 5-4 in the thrilling third battle in senior baseball semi-finals.

This piece has to do with the second game when the Hillcrests were defeated 8-5. Spectators and players engaged in a bit of a brawl and a well-known baseballer, Ritchie, who passed away a couple of years ago, bounced a baseball bat off the Conacher noggin. That caused the fourth "pump" for the "Train", oldtimers say, allowed three long flies to trickle through his fingers and bemad off the top of his head. There was bloodshed before the local gendarmes restored law and order.

Somebody told Conacher that his unknown assailant would meet him at the Hotel Quinte and the boys would do it via the Marquis of Queensbury rules. Conacher waited, but no local Joe Louis turned up to test his punching prowess. It's just as well, mebbe.

What a whale of a difference a few years make. The sportswriter, who covered the game for a Belleville newspaper, and we suspect his initials are C.D.T., wrote about the second game, "The scalps of the champion Hillcrest tribe dangle from the belt of Jack Williams, Belleville's 19-year-old southpaw from the Verona reservation." The reverse was the Hillcrest's first loss in three years.

Toronto sportswriters were dumbfounded at the unexpected setback of their haughty champions. They could not believe it. Finally, they blamed it on the "dumb playing" of the metropolitan champions, who as the Belleville scribe wrote, "were hurt mentally, physically and financially."

Forty-five hundred fans saw the Grand Trunks roar through the Hillcrests and match their prowess against the proud Galt Terriers. They took the ultimate champions from Galt to three games before they bowed in weather that was more conducive to hockey than the diamond pastime.

The city was solidly behind the club. A notice in the paper of the day of the third game in Peterborough, said: "Mayor Hanna has arranged for a civic reception for the team on their return, win, lose or draw. The band and citizens will be on hand to meet the train and a procession will be formed and march down the main street." However, the rains came and spelled the setting besides postponing the game.

The "Oh, Lettuce Be Joyful" gang was on hand, according to the press of that day. "The said the Toronto "boys from the back rooms" came down loaded with green folding stuff and attempted the "fix." But, no siree, Bob. Gad men, those loyal Grand Trunkers were not to be approached. "There is not enough money in the world to turn them from the straight and narrow, the halo'ed reporter wrote.

PROSPECTS ELIMINATED

EDMONTON (CP) — Bill Jessup and Wade Walker, both former Oklahoma Sooners, have been scratched as contenders for the Edmonton Eskimo football coaching job vacated by Darrell Royal. Al Anderson, manager of the Western Interprovincial Football Union club, said Jennings told him by telephone that he is considering getting out of football coaching and entering the oil business in Oklahoma.

Anderson said Walker has decided to join Royal as one of the latter's assistant coaches at Mississippi State.

'Rocket' Sparks Habs to Win Over Blues Before Big Crowd; Leafs Drop Back to 3rd Spot

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The difference between color and a 10-90 hockey club: 9,045 fans and plenty of cash.

In New York, Montreal Canadiens, who have always ranked among the best in color clubs, played the fifth-place Rangers in Madison Square Garden. Canadiens won the National Hockey League game 4-1 and the Garden had its first sellout in more than five years—15,025 fans.

In Chicago, only 6,776 subbed followers turned out to see the last-place Black Hawks, shackled with one of their poorest seasons in history. The Hawks beat Toronto Maple Leafs 2-1 for their 10th victory in 54 games.

The New Yorkers expected color Sunday night and they got it. Maurice Richard, Montreal's great rightwinger, was at his best. He scored his 31st and 32nd goals of the season as Canadiens cooled off the Rangers for the second straight night.

There wasn't a seat or standing room space in the Garden. The 15,025-figure is the maximum allowed by New York law. Hundreds of fans were turned away and since Jan. 25, 1940, when Canadiens and Rangers met, has there been such a turnout.

LOW-SCORING TIE

In another league game Sunday night, the league-leading Detroit Red Wings and the fourth-place Boston Bruins fought to a 1-1 tie at Boston Garden.

In three games Saturday, the Leafs blanked the Hawks 6-0 before 12,541, a record crowd at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens—Canadiens beat the Rangers 4-3 and Detroit defeated Bruins 4-2.

The Rocket boosted his all-time goal total to 379 last night with a couple of typical Richard blasts: low and hard from about 15 feet out. His total output now is 55 more than the old mark set by Nels Stewart.

Rookie Jean Beliveau and Floyd Curry scored the other Montreal goals and helped Canadiens take second-place again. Aldo Guidolin scored for Rangers.

At Chicago, the Hawks' scored twice in the first period and played good defensive hockey to win. It ended their five-game losing streak.

Bill Mosienko scored at 2:38 when Toronto was shorthanded and Jack McIntyre beat goalkeeper Harry Lumley at 7:14. The Leafs' lone goal came at 11:42 of the second period when Ron Stewart drove the puck past netminder Al Rollins.

LEAFS NOW THIRD

The loss dropped the Leafs into third place with 60 points, one behind Canadiens.

Rookie Earl Reibel's second-period goal gave Detroit the tie in Boston as the Wings lengthened Bruins a 1-0 edge.

Defenceman Doug Harvey gave Canadiens their victory Saturday night on first goal. Paul Meger and Lorne Davis, the latter recalled from Montreal Royals of the Quebec League, scored the other Montreal goal. Paul Bonny, Max Bentley and Wally Hergesheimer counted for New York.

Letwieyer Cord Hanagan led the Leafs with two goals Saturday. Harry Watson, Sid Smith, George Armstrong and Stewart tallied the others.

HILDEBRAND INJURED

The Hawks lost rightwinger Ike Hildebrand in the second period when he suffered a fractured left leg after tripping over Leafs' Ed Westerinko and crashing into the boards. It was Hildebrand's first appearance in Toronto since the Hawks bought him from Vancouver Canucks of the Western league nearly three weeks ago.

The Wings were led by Metro Prystai's two goals Saturday. Defenceman Red Kelly and Glen Skov tallied the others. Doug Mohns and Cal Gardner accounted for the Boston scoring.

No games are scheduled until Wednesday night, when the Bruins are at Toronto and the Red Wings travel to New York for a tilt against the Rangers.

'Oldtimer' Reds Defeat Whites

GUELPH (CP) — The Whites downed the Reds 10-8 in a National Hockey League Oldtimers game here Saturday.

Wilfy Fairbairn fired three goals in the third period to lead the winners. Roy Conacher and Butch Keeling scored twice each for the Whites, and Doug Smylie, Red Herron and Hank Goldup once each.

Bobby Bauer, Charlie and Lionel Conacher led the Reds with two goals each. The others were tallied by Bill Thoms and Bobby Thompson. Cy Wentworth was given the game's only penalty.

Canada Edges Switzerland 6-5 In Warm-Up Tilt

ZURICH, Switzerland (CP) — Canada defeated Switzerland 6-5 Sunday in a warm-up for the world hockey championships scheduled for Stockholm later this month.

It was the last of three exhibition games in Switzerland for the Canadians — Toronto East York Lyndhurst — and it was their toughest.

They apparently are having difficulty adjusting to the European game in which body contact plays a lesser part than in Canada.

The Swiss team got two goals in the second period while the Canadians were shorthanded and managed to get two more to tie the score 5-5 in the third period when the Lyndhurst had men in the penalty box for a total of eight minutes.

Moe Galand, 23-year-old rightwing who formerly played junior A hockey for Oshawa and Stratford in the Ontario Hockey Association, got two goals for the Canadians. His second was the winning tally and he got it with only five minutes left in the game.

Other Canadian scorers were George Saylas, Mike Petro, Carl Clement and John Scott.

Lyndhurst, who now have won three out of four on their pre-championship exhibition tour, move on to Italy for a single game, then play four in Germany before winding up in Stockholm for the championships which begin Feb. 27.

Zorica, Hockey's Top Brawl Starter, Principal in Near-Riot at Windsor

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Joe Zorica may go on to bigger and better things as a player but for the moment he can lay claim to being one who created a big ruckus in the Ontario Hockey Association junior and senior A groups in the same season.

Battling Joe was one of the principals in a fight with Wally Kullman that developed into a near riot in the third period of the OHA Senior A game at Windsor Sunday between the Bulldogs and Hamilton Tigers.

Zorica, on loan to the Tigers from the junior Hamilton Cubs, tangled with the Windsor player on the Hamilton bench and some of the 3,000 fans poured on to the ice. Both Zorica and Kullman received 10-minute misconduct penalties and the Bulldogs went on to a 5-3 decision.

A few weeks ago Zorica was involved in a rhubarb in a junior game between the Cubs and Montreal Canadiens. He was reported to have scuffled with the referee.

In other OHA senior A action during the week-end, the fifth-place Stratford Indians edged the league-leading Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 3-2 before 3,200 fans at Kitchener Saturday night while Owen Sound Mercurys ran their winning streak to three games with an 11-6 victory over the Bulldogs at Windsor.

TRAPPERS SPLIT

North Bay Trappers split two week-end road games in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior southern group, defeating the league-leading Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds 9-1 Saturday night and then losing a 4-3 decision to Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Indians Sunday night. At Penetanguishene Saturday night the Lumber Kings whipped the second-place Sudbury Wolves 8-4.

Windsor's win over Hamilton pulled the Bulldogs to within one point of the third-place Tigers.

Oshawa Truckmen Share Top Spot With Petes After 8-2 Defeat Of Memos

Five-Goal 2nd-Period Splurge Puts Game in Bag for Winners; Memos Lead 1-0 in First Set

BOWMANVILLE (Special) — The Oshawa Truckmen kept pace with Peterborough Petes by handing the Bellevilla Memos an 8 to 2 setback at Bowmanville Memorial Arena Saturday night to pull back into a first place tie with the Lindsay City crew.

It was a decisive win for the Truckmen and after the first period during which the Memos got and held a 1 to 0 lead the home forces were in control all the way. The second period ended 5 to 1 for Oshawa and they added three more in the third as against one lone Bellevilla reply.

The high scoring Duncan brothers and Doug Day were held to only one tally and that by Day, although Edwin Duncan had two assists and Erwin helped on one goal. Vern Goyer was the other Bellevilla marksman.

For the Truckmen the goals were well distributed with Gerry Scott and Jack Thaler each scoring two and George Samolenko, Bill Peters, Frank Hooper and Walley Samanski all registering singletons.

Big Vern Goyer gave Bellevilla their first period lead at 13.47 when he hit the post from about 20 feet out with a shot that never left the ice and the rubber bounced into the cards behind Les Colvin. Edwin and Erwin Duncan drew assists on the marker. The Memos had a man advantage at the time as Bob Holden had been waved off for tripping at 13.35.

TRUCKMEN TAKE OFFENSIVE

The second period started with the Truckmen taking the offensive and they never lost it during the rest of the game. George Samolenko tied it up 1 to 1 at 3.33 when he cashed a screen shot from fairly close in after being fed by Gerry Scott and Hooper. 5.43 of the frame Goyer was sentenced to a hooking penalty and had a 10 minute misconduct tacked on for arguing with too strong language to referee Sixty Coombes about it.

While he was languishing in the sin bin Ron Peters fired a long low drive from near the blue line to Erwin, the light behind Bernard. Jack Thaler upped the count to 3 to 1; at 7.46 from the close with Sinden and Wally Samanski in on the play. Gerry Scott got his first of two goals at 16.45 on a play set up by playing coach Ernie Dickens. Jack Thaler was also given an assist. Final goal of the period, which made the count 5 to 1 also came from the stick of Scott one minute and 47 seconds later when he took a pass from Hooper and skated in alone to beat Roly Sarault cleanly. Harry Sinden also received an assist on this marker.

The Memos were trying hard to get untracked in the third but simply could not seem to get going against the close checking Truckmen. At 7.56 Frank Hooper ran the count to 6 to 1 when he fired home a 25 footer after being put in the clear by Samolenko and Scott. Fred Eicher and Wally Samanski teamed up at 10.21 with Samanski pulling the trigger from just a few feet out after being set up by Eicher's pass.

PENALTY SHOT.

At 12.09 the first penalty shot on Bowmanville ice this season was awarded to the Truckmen because a Bellevilla player had held the puck with his hand in the crease during a scramble. Left winger Fred Eicher took the shot but his drive hit the post, although the puck seemed to have Sarault beaten. Oshawa scored their final counter to make it 8-1 at 17.55 in a breakaway play. Fred Eicher passed the puck to Dickens who relayed it to Jack Thaler in the clear. Sarault came too far out of his cubicle in attempting to save and Thaler beat him cleanly.

At 19.06 Harry Sinden was waved to the penalty bench for a trip, and a last minute offensive gave the Bellevilla crew their second goal at 19.51. Doug Day was the triggerman on the counter after taking a pass from Edwin Duncan, who in turn had been fed by Goyer. Sarault did not seem to form in the Bellevilla cords and the whole team had trouble getting organized. Doug Day, Edwin Duncan, Goyer and Jake Wade were the pick of the Memos. All the Truckmen were flying, with Scott, Jack Thaler and Red Peters standing out particularly for the home forces.

Bellevilla—goal, Sarault; defence, Wade, Wardhaugh, Semerk, Goyer, Bastedo; forwards, Ed Doran, Douglas MacDonald, Dave Jones, Erwin Duncan, Ed Duncan, Edwin Duncan, Day.

Oshawa—goal, Colvin; defence, Dickens, Peters, Sinden, McBeth; forwards, Scott, Samolenko, Hooper, Samanski, Thaler, Eicher, Holden, Berwick, Yourth.

Referee: Stan Boshko and Sixty Coombes.

No Fights For Marciano Before Charles

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano will not be seen in serious action again before he fights Ezzard Charles here next June reliably because his manager, Al Weill, does not feel physically up ir running a training camp at the time.

At underwent a serious operation less than a month ago and still is forced to take things easy. Otherwise, he says, he probably would have permitted Rocky to take a few swipes at Danny Buccerori next month, Rocky himself, is spoiling for a fight right now.

"Income tax positively had nothing to do with it," Weill said. "Even if it would have given us only 20 cents on the dollar, it would have been that much. Everybody has to pay income tax, but right now I just don't feel like trying to get Rocky ready for a fight in six weeks.

"Anyhow, what would a win over Buccerori mean? They would just say that Rocky was picking soft touches. We'll fight Charles, the man who really deserves the chance, and then nobody in the world can point a finger at us."

The Charles fight, as Al puts it, is "practically" made. He expects to meet with president Jim Norris of the International Boxing Club here this week and iron out the details.

"I want Charles to have the fight because you might say we ducked him for Roland La Starza last summer," Weill said. "He deserved it as much as La Starza did. Rocky wants him, too."

Except for boxing a few exhibitions Rocky intends to remain at Grossinger's, the Catskill resort where he does his training, from now right through to June.

"Right now all Rocky thinks about is keeping himself in shape," Weill said. He's out running five miles every morning.

He never lets his weight go over 190-91. The way Rocky takes care of himself I don't see why he shouldn't stay at his peak another five or six years.

Close Battles Feature Junior Games

Teeps, Marlies, Dutchies Win by Goal

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The boys in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series are apparently beginning to hit their stride. No matter whether two top teams or a top and a bottom-place club meet, victories are coming harder.

In four all-Ontario games Saturday only four goals separated the opponents.

The league-leading St. Catharines TeePees edged out the seventh-place Guelph Biltmores 2-1 in St. Catharines; the second-place Toronto Marlboros squeezed out a 5-4 decision over the fifth-place Barrie Flyers in Toronto; third-place Toronto St. Michael's College Majors fought to a 3-3 tie with the fifth-place Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts in Toronto; and the fifth-place Oshawa Cubs defeated the last-place Black Hawks 4-2 in Galt.

Sunday, however, showed that Quebec Amateur Hockey Association junior teams are still having their troubles on Ontario ice during the interlocking schedule.

In a Toronto doubleheader St. Michael's defeated Quebec Frontenacs 2-1 and Marlboros shut out Montreal Royals 5-0.

The Barrie-Marlboro game in Toronto was a see-saw battle which saw the lead change hands four times.

Sonny Larose scored twice for Toronto, including the winning marker with little more than two minutes remaining. Wally Maxwell, Dave Reid and Billy Harris were the other Marlboro snipers.

WILSON GETS TRIO

The St. Michael's-Frontenac game was much the same.

St. Michael's carried a 2-1 lead into the second period but Kitchener scored twice in the third for a 3-2 win. Chris Drury firing his second goal of the afternoon, counted the winner for Dutchies.

Jack Caffery, Logan's linemate, got the other Irish goal.

In St. Catharines Cec Hoekstra and Don McLean were the TeePee scorers. Irv Scott's clocker drive gave Guelph its only goal.

Sammy Pollock bagged two for the Cubs in Galt. Joey Zorica and Marlin McKeachnie rounded out the scoring. Rick Colin and Chick Chalmers counted for the Hawks.

IRISH IN CONTROL

St. Michael's had complete control of the play in their clash with the Frontenacs Sunday. Jack Caffery, Bill Sadeo, Ken Gribbons, Ken Linseman and Dick Duff were the snipers for St. Michael's. Dick Bouchard got Quebec's goal six minutes from the end of the game after Bob Gravel was out for tripping.

Royals gave Marlboros little opposition. Marlboro captain Wally Maxwell registered two for the winners. Gerry Larose, Sonny Larose and Bill Harris added singles. Lorne Stevenson of Guelph in tonight's only game.

Hamilton Blind Bowlers Victors

Hamilton bowlers won by 16 pins over the Toronto team, 2,514 to 2,504. Individual trophies went to Harold Mitchell of Hamilton.

Kitchener bowlers won B group title with a 2,362 total, more than 100 pins up to top London and Buffalo quartets.

The tournament will be held next year in Kitchener.

Police Quell Hockey Riot In Fort Erie

FORT ERIE (CP)—The national anthem was played twice and a squad of police called to quell one of the biggest hockey riots to break out at a game here.

The fighting broke out Saturday night in the second period and some of the 1,000 fans were chiefly responsible. They heckled the visiting Dundas team to the point of molesting them.

Twice police had to be called to clear the crowd from the ice and at one point there were more fans on the playing surface than in the seats.

Four players from the Fort Erie Spears Chevies team received misconduct penalties for leaving the bench and four Dundas players got misconduct sentences for fighting. A total of 34 penalties—17 in the first period, 13 in the second and four in the third—was handed out.

The game was a scheduled league Ontario Hockey Association Senior B encounter. Fort Erie won 6-2.

Royals Defeat Chicoutimi To Tie for Lead

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals moved into a first-place tie with Chicoutimi in the Quebec Hockey League Sunday by defeating the Saguenens 5-3.

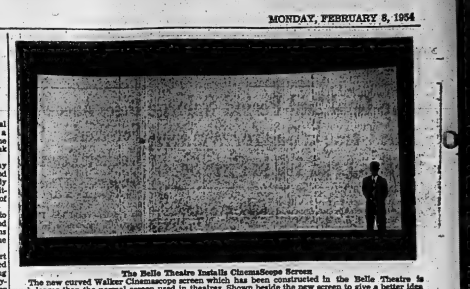
The two teams are four points ahead of Ottawa Senators who downed Valleyfield Braves 4-1 Sunday after edging the same club 3-2 in Ottawa Saturday.

Quebec Aces Sunday routed the tailpend Springfield Indians 5-2 after playing to a 4-4 tie Saturday.

In Chicoutimi Leo Laplante paced the Royals with three goals and an assist. Normand Dussault counted two of the Chicoutimi goals and assisted on the third. Other Montreal scorers were Skippy Burchell and Gary Blaine. Jimmy Moore got the other Chicoutimi counter.

Carey Middlecoff Meets Furgol In Phoenix Playoff

BY BOB MYERS



PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Cary Middlecoff, a seasoned man of many playoffs in golf, and Ed Furgol, who has never been in one, meet late today in the extra-hole round of the $10,000 Phoenix open.

The two were to tee off at the Phoenix Country Club over the 18-hole route, after a sudden-death finish of still deadlocked at the end of the 18 holes.

They wound up in a tie at the end of the regulation 72 holes of medal play Sunday and both said they would not play for an equal split of the $3,400 money, first and second money.

"The winner will get $2,000, the second-place finisher $1,400," said Middlecoff. Furgol nodded in agreement.

The Belle Theatre Installs CinemaScope Screen

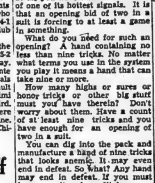
The Bridgemaster

If you have played any bridge at all you have learned or heard of one or the other of these. It is that an opening bid of two in a suit is forcing to at least a game in anything.

What do you need for such an opening? A hand containing no less than nine tricks. No matter what terms you use in the system you play it means a hand that will take nine or more.

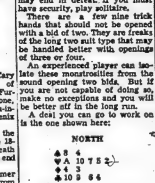
How many highs or sures or honor tricks or other big stuff must you have therein? Don't worry about them. Have a count of at least nine tricks and you have enough for an opening of two in a suit.

You can dig into the pack and manufacture a hand of nine tricks that looks anemic. It may even end in defeat. So what? Any hand may end in defeat. If you must have security, play solitaire.



There are a few nine trick hands that should not be opened they can defeat five clubs. A clever declarer, however, could make any attempt to stop the 11 tricks he needs.

Try and see how it should be done.



NEW HIGH

Canada's population passed the 15,000,000 mark for the first time in December, 1953.

AT THE CAPITOL — The stars of "King Solomon's Mines" — Stewart Granger and Deborah Kerr — again team romantically in M-G-M's new drama of action, adventure and royal intrigue, "The Prisoner of Zenda," attraction at the Capitol Theatre tonight. James Mason, Louis Calhern, Jane Greer, Lewis Stone and Robert Douglas are others in the large cast of the Technicolor production. — On the same program and having its first Belleville showing, filmed from more shocking than more shocking than "The Hours," starring Teresa Wright and Macdonald Carey.

This is how the bidding should go:

North	South
2 H	2 D
3 NT	3 D
5 D	4 C

Looking at all four hands, skilled defenders might think they can defeat five clubs. A clever declarer, however, could make any attempt to stop the 11 tricks he needs.

Try and see how it should be done.

Mountaineers Trim Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Hamilton Y Mountaineers Saturday defeated Windsor Alumni 62-47 in the first game of the best-of-three series in the Ontario Amateur Basketball Association playdowns.

Second game will be played in Hamilton next Saturday.

In a preliminary exhibition game Stanford collegiate accounted for Windsor A.K.O., four-time Ontario champions, 59-54.

Insurance isn't serious

Until you need it

An insurance policy is just a piece of paper worth only a few pennies—

—until the day you need it.

THEN this piece of paper may suddenly become worth thousands of dollars — may save you from bankruptcy, from ruin, from despair.

It takes imagination and intelligence and foresight to insure against future happenings which may bring sudden ruin.

Only smart, wise, thoughtful people carry insurance.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, FEB. 9, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — What you try today will have a strong effect on your progress during the next few days. Go along efficiently with sound purpose and sincere will and you should attain rewards accordingly.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — A generally good outlook, especially for home and personal affairs. Your planet Uranus usually assists you in research, science, forms of pioneering. Present period indicates favor here.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — You may have some quick decisions confronting you during the early hours and your innate perception and intuition could well be the deciding factors. Think smartly.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Aspiring to a mark? Go straight as an arrow, but first make a thorough survey. Don't allow your dislikes or limitations to keep you from studying before acting. Patience!

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — A fault today might be a lack of continuity or thought or failure to analyze before taking action. Don't lose interest in a project too quickly; tenacity helps.

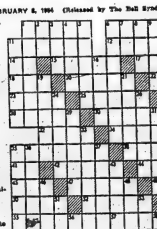
August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — You who have no much ability to surmount obstacles, to defend others against oppression should take more time to decide today's problems. A little more thought for your own affairs, too.

September 24 to October 22 (Libra)—Avoid brusque, too outspoken words, especially with business associates; you may be misjudged. Be conversely when you need clear, uninterrupted going. Respect authority.

October 23 to December 22 (Scorpio)—Your business or professional affairs will certainly be knitted with personal attitudes. Don't classify them separately. Mold them together for an overall progressive story.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—The planetary outlook warns against unwise or snap decisions, which could cause you to suffer needlessly. Stop, study first, you'll be okay.

December 22 to January 21 (Capricorn)—The start of a day in which a Jack-of-all-trades-and-master-of-noons will encounter more confusion than usual. The influence of your planet Saturn should make you plan for the ultimate good. Do so now.



January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Try not to waste your vital energy and mental ability in useless pursuits. Favorable period on whole. If you follow original and well-analyzed ideas, they may lead you to new success.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—You may be called upon to do something or make a decision that goes against your ideals. Ask God for guidance; try to compromise for good of all but never compromise with ideals and principles.

YOU BORN TODAY have a sympathetic nature, are patient, and when you follow your religious training should have little worry. While in one sense you are conservative, seldom going in for business or financial schemes, you are also progressive and may be led into wrong routes through lack of proper study of issues involved. Many inventors, artists, writers born under Aquarius.

CAMPBELLFORD

P. W. Club Holds 'International Night'

CAMPBELLFORD — The Business and Professional Women's Club of Campbellford were hosts on Thursday night to members of Cobourg, Belleville and Peterborough for the annual observance of "International Night."

Mrs. Spencer, president of the Campbellford club, presided for the meeting. Following a short period, Miss Norma Arcals, of Belleville, regional advisor of District No. 6, in the assistance of Mrs. Spencer and Mrs. Simone McKelvey, editor of the club organ, "The Ontario Messenger," conducted a candlelight ceremony.

INTERNATIONAL WEEK

Originated by Lena Madesin Phillips, founder-president of the International Federation, Miss Arkles stated that it is now the custom of B. and P. W. clubs to meet together each February as members of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club, of which the Campbellford club is now a member. All Canadian clubs, as well as clubs in other lands, meet to commemorate International Week, when the members bring to mind their obligations throughout the world, who, as members of their own federation, are working to achieve their common aims. Since the organization of the federation, women in many countries meet in convention as sisters in a common world. The federation has more than a quarter million members in 20 countries.

INTERESTING SLIDES

Following the candlelight ceremony, Miss Arkles showed a number of slides of the United Nations and points of interest in the United States and Canada.

Mrs. Margaret Davey won a gift which was raffled off during the evening.

At the close of the evening, Miss Jean Morrison thanked Miss Arkles and presented her with a gift from the Campbellford club.

Arthur R. Ford Given Citation For Fine Service

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A citation for meritorious service to the newspaper industry and profession during more than 50 years as reporter and editor was awarded Sunday to Arthur R. Ford of the London Free Press.

The award was the first of its kind presented by the Canadian Managing Editors Conference since the association was formed seven years ago.

Mr. Ford, editor-in-chief of the Free Press, is convalescing from a serious illness and was unable to attend. It was accepted for him by his executive editor, R. J. Churchill.

The citation, an illuminated address drafted by Charles Knight, staff artist of the Windsor Star, said Mr. Ford was honored:

"For outstanding service to the newspaper profession over a period of 50 years, during which he at all times exemplified its highest ideals.

"For the high standards he set, as one of Canada's ace reporters which today are an inspiration to those who have followed them.

"For his insatiable curiosity and boundless energy which enable him to inscribe a page of significance to those who have followed him.

"For his defence of the freedom of the press.

"For his achievement as editor for more than 30 years.

"For his ability to walk with kings without losing the common touch, and his faculty for making friends in all walks of life.

"For his service in the formative days of The Canadian Press and his continuing interest on behalf of this body.

"For his service to his country and to the communities in which he lived."

In a message of thanks read to the conference at the final session, Mr. Ford said his greatest satisfaction in his half-century has come from his work as a reporter.

"The life blood of a newspaper is good reporting, he said. Principles of reporting established had not changed much in 50 years but newspapers were much improved.

"There is no comparing Canadian and world news services of today with the service that was received 50 years ago. This has been largely due to the development of the national co-operative news service of The Canadian Press."

No Desire to Meet

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — There was a flurry of activity Saturday at the Canadian Managing Editors' conference when two well-known figures came within a hair's breadth of an unwelcome meeting.

While Walter Reuther, CIO and United Automobile Workers union president, was talking to reporters on the mezanine floor of the hotel, Clarence Jacobs was in the lobby.

Jacobs is the man who was named by Donald Hiltchs as the person who handed the shotgun in an attempted assassination of Reuther in 1948. Jacobs is awaiting an extradition hearing on charges preferred by Michigan authorities.

When reporter told Mr. Reuther of Jacobs' presence, he laughed and said he had no desire to meet him. He was seriously wounded by the shotgun blast through his kitchen window.

RECORD TEMPERATURE

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Hot, high winds pushed the thermometer to a record 88 in San Diego Sunday in a gusty blow that toppled scores of trees. There was also a light earthquake. There were an estimated 10,000 people at beaches.

L. W. BRADT.

M. J. Kelly, president, O'Keefe's Brewing Company Limited announces the appointment of L. W. Bradt as Assistant to the President. Mr. Bradt has been with O'Keefe's for 21 years and was formerly Sales Manager of the Company.

Reuther Says Press Has Moral Responsibility

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Walter Reuther said Saturday the free press of Canada has a basic moral and social responsibility to report the facts of collective bargaining without bias.

Speaking to the Canadian Managing Editors Conference during a panel discussion on labor-management-press relations, the CIO and United Automobile Workers' president said the press must create a climate in which labor and management can solve their problems.

"If labor is wrong, say so," said Mr. Reuther, "but if management is wrong, you must say that too."

He accused the press of the United States of an anti-labor bias but said Canadians are more objective and restrained in reporting labor news.

Canada and the United States are among the most powerful countries in the world, he said. "The power without morality is power without purpose."

The shortest route for Communist propaganda to travel is through the wrinkles of an empty belly. We must prove that bread and freedom are compatible elements in the world."

ATTACKS MCCARTHYISM

He said the United States is delinquent at times in the matter of civil liberty and termed McCarthyism evil, immoral, ugly and un-American. "You can't preserve freedom in the world by stranging it at home."

Mr. Reuther suggested a six-months moratorium on McCarthy by newspapers to let the Wisconsin senator sink into political oblivion.

Angus Monro of the Windsor Star said all labor negotiations must stand or fall on the amount of mutual confidence and trust the negotiators have. He said reporters could help inspire mutual confidence by getting all the facts and presenting them as impartially as possible.

R. F. Farquharson, director of information for the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance, outlined his work to the conference. Mr. Farquharson was one of the founders of the managing editors' conference.

He said Canada is gaining in the influence abroad and in a modest way is providing material help to other counties. The Big Three, to an ever-increasing extent, look to Canada as a leader of the middle powers.

The conference closed with a luncheon meeting Sunday during which Arthur Ford, editor-in-chief of the London Free Press, was honored for his contribution to Canadian journism. Roger Lemelin, Quebec correspondent for Time magazine, addressed the luncheon.

FELL TO HER DEATH

NEW YORK (AP)— Mary Hine, 55-year-old nurse, fell to her death Sunday from a third-floor window. Police said she apparently lost her balance trying to catch a parakeet escaping from its cage.

Low Week-End Fatality Mark In East Canada

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eastern Canada reached its lowest weekend fatality mark in months as seven persons died violent deaths in the area covered by Canadian Press survey showed today.

Ontario was the scene of five deaths, two of them on highways.

Nova Scotia, where the other two fatalities occurred, had one traffic death and one shooting.

Howard Longhurst, 35, Carleton and Leslie M. Kreger 43, of Wingham were Ontario's traffic fatalities, Longhurst is killed when his car collided with a truck 10 miles south of Barrie and Kreger died after his car, which was being towed, struck by another car near Listowel.

Two deaths were recorded in Toronto. Fred Wright, 45, died from gas fumes when a potato pot boiled over and extinguished the flames of a gas stove and Raymond Hrycyna, 10, accidentally hanged himself on a water pipe.

The other Ontario death was at Kitchener where Robert Wensel, 32, was asphyxiated after a chesterfield on which he was sleeping caught fire.

A WONDER DRUG HELPED CHANGE THIS . . .

This wheel chair is empty because of antibiotic wonder drugs. In fact the patient never used the chair and he is now back at work with no heavy hospital bills to pay, no lengthy convalescence to shrivel his savings.

And for these drugs his charge was reasonable.

In grandfather's day the same illness called for drastic measures . . . many medicines, doctors, possible surgery, nurses by day and night, and certainly a long period of convalescence. Even in his day of low prices all these costs were great.

It is only because truly staggering sums have been spent in research and development by the leading pharmaceutical houses that we can buy today's wonder drugs at all. And buy them moreover, at grandfather's prices . . . prices even he in his day would have found reasonable!

YOU CAN DEPEND ON YOUR NEIGHBOURHOOD DRUGGIST

You will always be sure of reasonable prices at your neighbourhood druggist's. He is highly-trained in the profession of pharmacy, a friendly man . . . and you can depend on him as surely as you can depend on the wonder drugs he stocks.

See him soon for whatever you need.

Baltimore Fire Of 50 Years Ago Is Recalled

BALTIMORE (AP)—Fifty years ago this week a flaming hurricane in the space of some 30 hours devoured 1,500 buildings, gutted an area of 140 downtown acres and caused nearly $150,000,000 in damage.

Twenty banks were smashed in the "great Baltimore fire." Eight hotels, nine newspaper plants and nine transportation offices were destroyed. The clothing manufacturing centre was reduced to ashes, wharf facilities were wrecked and big chunks of the wholesale, jobbing and produce districts were wiped out.

A burnt district commission was formed and when its work was finished, 12 streets had been extended or widened, a plaza had been established on the west side of the court house and modern docks and piers repaced ancient wharf facilities.

So marked was the improvement that today the only complaint you hear about the "great fire" of 50 years ago is "it didn't burn far enough."

Driver Pleads Guilty To Careless Driving

BANCROFT

BANCROFT — An accident on January 24, in which OPP Constable M. Perry was injured and his cruiser wrecked had a sequel at Magistrate R. C. Jackson's Court, when the driver of the other vehicle involved, Orville Masters, of Tweed, pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving. Evidence was given that the Master's car veered to the wrong side of the road and had started to turn back to its proper side when it struck the police car. Masters stated that the car had been giving trouble and he had to be pushed to start a short time before the accident. On coming over the brow of a hill he became excited and the car went out of control. A fine of $20 and $16.50 costs was imposed.

Conflicting evidence kept the court busy for more than two hours when Lorne Kuno, of New Carlow, pleading not guilty to a charge of failing to share the road.

The charge arose as a result of an accident on the Pinpinewi Lake road on November 29, when Kuno's car was in collision with a half-ton truck driven by Mac Prentice, of Maple Leaf. Both the driver and his wife received head injuries, whilst their four-month-old baby, carried by Mrs. Prentice, escaped unhurt.

Kuno was defended by J. A. Maloney, Q.C., and Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson, Q.C., prosecuted.

Crown witnesses stated that the Kuno car had swerved from side to side of the road before striking the truck and Prentice gave evidence that his truck was stopped well on his own side of the road when it was struck. Defendant said that he was driving in the centre track on the road and that his car did not swerve from side to side.

The magistrate registered a conviction and Kuno was fined $5 and $34.50 costs.

Election Cost Record Figure

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's 1953 general election cost a record $5,600,000.

The figure was contained in annual government estimates tabled Friday in the Commons. It compares with $4,250,000 for the 1949 general election.

Up to the end of 1953, $5,270,183 had been spent on the election. Other bills to be cleaned up by the end of the fiscal year March 31 were calculated at $329,812.

Main reason for the higher cost was an increased $60,000 in the size of the electorate between contests. Also, parliament had provided higher pay for the army of election officials running the 55,000 polls.

Labor Group Plans Support for CCF

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The Ontario Federation of Labor Friday took its first step in its political campaign for the next provincial election, which it considers may possibly come this year.

The 200,000-member labor group, largest affiliate of the Canadian Congress of Labor, decided in a vigorous debate at its annual convention to call a special convention following the announcement of the election date.

The special conference will map details for the federation to follow in support of candidates for the CCF party, which it reaffirmed as its political arm. The federation will concentrate all its energies in the political field when the election is called.

French Awaiting Imminent Attack On Laos' Capital

Vietminh Invaders Reported 25 Miles from Luang Prabang

Prime Minister Brings Message Of Friendship

PARIS (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent broadcast to the people of France tonight a message of Canadian friendship and of his belief that association for defence is the natural course toward "spiritual unity" between countries "having the same forms of civilization."

The Canadian leader, whose 10-minute address in French was broadcast by La Radio Francaise, said France, with 1,000 years of political experience, knows well the divergences of opinion inevitable between countries otherwise attached to same fundamental ideas.

"These divergences can be as frequent as relations between two partners are close and subjects of discussion consequently more numerous."

The prime minister said parliamentary democracies have historic experience which helps in solution of internal crises and the lessons may serve for solution of collective crises.

Korean Veteran Will Be Hanged For Sex-Slaying

CALGARY (CP)—Robert James Slin, 25-year-old Korean war veteran, was found guilty of the murder of Mrs. Gwenda Middleton, 22, last March 17 and was sentenced to be hanged May 11.

Mr. Justice J. McFarlane described the sex-slaying as "one of the most horrible" murders in his experience on the bench.

Mrs. Middlestad's beaten, semi-clad body was found on a railway right-of-way March 4 by a train engineer. She had been raped, her face smashed in, and she had been left alive to die six of seven hours later.

Slin's young wife, one of a number of witnesses for the prosecution, sobbed as sentence was pronounced.

10-Year-Old Orphan Hangs Self in Basement

TORONTO (CP) — A 10-year-old orphan who had tried vainly for more than a year to get through United States immigration barriers to join his foster parents in Cincinnati Sunday accidentally hanged in the basement of his guardian's home.

Raymond Hrycyna was found hanging from a basement water pipe by Michael Linycia. A rope in a shoelace was knotted around his neck.

Mrs. Linycia said the boy had gone to the basement to "play cowboys."

The boy, who has a younger sister and brother also in foster homes in Toronto, had come to Canada with his family from a displaced persons camp in Poland. Both his parents died here.

The children were placed in an orphanage and later released to foster homes.

An aunt, Mrs. Josi Harasym, Chuk of Elizabeth, N. J., visited them in the orphanage Saturday and tried to adopt Raymond. However, she was unable to get permission for him to enter the United States because the immigration quota was filled.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Colder air covers all of Ontario this morning and temperatures varied from the mid-20s near the lower lakes to around zero in the northern areas of the province. Another rapidly moving disturbance is heading southeast from central Manitoba and will affect southern Ontario on Wednesday.

CARDS ALSO WILL NEED MORE POSTAGE APR. 1

Boost Announced By Postmaster-General

OTTAWA (CP) — Post cards, along with letters, will require an extra cent postage starting April 1.

A proposed boost in the rate on post cards, to four cents from three cents, was announced Monday by postmaster-General Cote.

The news, coming during Commons consideration of a government bill to increase letter rates by one cent an ounce April 1, met opposition from Progressive Conservative and other members who accused the government of not playing fair with Parliament in withholding announcement of the post card boost.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) said the delay was "an insult to Parliament."

Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops) said the government was "not fair short . . . of false pretences" in getting Parliament's formal legislation for the letter-rate increase without letting members know about the increase on post cards.

The rate on post cards can be set by the governor-in-council without reference to Parliament. The bill covering the letter rate increase was given second reading—approval in principle—last week.

CANAL INCREASE

Mr. Cote said members should not be surprised that the government changed its mind in the rule on post cards.

He said that on Jan. 15 he told a CCF member in reply to a question that there would be a general one-cent increase in a first-class mail.

The minister said the question had dealt with rates on second-class mail and no member had asked about the increase on post cards.

"All the way along we've been assuming we were talking only about the increase in the rates on letters."

Mr. Fulton said the government had followed a "most unfortunate course" and should withdraw the legislation. Mr. Knowles said if the government will not withdraw the bill, the least it can do is promise not to raise the post card rate.

In reply to questions, Mr. Cote said that April 1 post cards, as well as first-class letters, will be carried by air where such service is available and will speed delivery. No increase was planned in the present air mail rate for second letters, including Christmas cards.

Rattles Off Code

WASHINGTON (AP)—It's been 40 years since President Eisenhower studied Morse code, you'll but he rattled off part of the dot-dash alphabet with ease Monday night.

The occasion was a White House dinner at which Eisenhower pressed a telegrapher's key to send the latest international trade fair in Seattle.

St. Laurent to Pay Visit To Canadians in Germany

BONN (AP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent will see Canadian soldiers in the front line of Western defence when he visits West Germany — third stop on his goodwill world tour.

He will discuss divided Germany's role in world affairs with Konrad Adenauer, doughty champion of the Western alliance and European unity.

The two statesmen first met last year when Adenauer visited Ottawa.

Scheduled to arrive by air at 10:45 a.m. (4:45 a.m. EST) tomorrow, the prime minister will go straight to the residence of President Theodor Heuss beside the Rhine river for a courtesy call and luncheon.

The Canadian leader today was speeding his last day in Paris. Monday he held meetings with top government leaders, including Premier Joseph Laniel.

At Bonn, after a briefing by Canadian ambassador Thomas Clayton Davis on German affairs and the progress of the Berlin Big Four conference, the prime minister will have a talk with Chancellor Adenauer at the chancellery.

Diplomatic sources said that the presence of Canadian forces in Germany and the country's links with Europe through the Atlantic pact give Canada a direct and abiding interest in this part of the world.

In the evening Adenauer is giving a state dinner in honor of the Canadian visitor.

Thursday a special train takes the prime minister to Soest, near the industrial Ruhr, for an inspection of the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade.

He will be greeted by Gen. Sir Richard Gale, commander-in-chief of the northern army group, and Brig. W. A. B. Anderson of London Ont., commanding the brigade. The honor guard will be from the Royal 22nd Regiment, and the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery will fire a 21-gun salute.

After inspecting the new barracks and viewing 1,000 troops, the Canadian leader returns to Bonn for a dinner given by ambassador Davis, at which Adenauer and cabinet members will be guests.

Friday the party leaves for Rome, calling on the way at the Canadian Sabre jet bases at Zweibruecken, on the Saar-German border, and Cree Tenguin, in France.

Molotov Levels Big Guns On German Unification Issue

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov levelled his big guns on the German reunification issue today, dominating the 14th session of the Big Four conference.

Reports from inside the parley room indicated the Russian fired off the day's talks with a resume of the German proposals of Secretary of State Dulles. With the necessary translations, it exhausted the best part of two hours.

Whether Molotov had anything more to add to the declared situation could not be ascertained at this time.

While the statesmen were gradually burying the German issue in words, Austrian Foreign Minister Leopold Figl arrived in Berlin by air to present his country's case for restored independence. The Big Four may take up the Austrian state treaty Thursday if they can't have decided to tackle the question later than Friday.

COOL TO WEST

A Western bid for the Soviet Union to join the West in bringing early Korean peace conference, meanwhile, was apparently not received a cool reception from Molotov. Diplomats familiar with the secret session said the Korean proposition was presented in the afternoon session of the parley as a possible step toward ending the Indo-China war.

Molotov, they said, made no promise. Instead, he was reported to have stuck to his plan for a big-power conference with Communist China, the Soviet Union, Britain and France.

Secretary of State Dulles of the United States, Britain's Anthony Eden and France's Georges Bidault turned down this in private as they previously had in public.

The four-hour closed-door session, first of the two-week-old conference, produced no indication stating the four had agreed to take up the Soviet Austrian proposal for a big-power conference with Communist China at the Korean settlement conference outside the United Nations.

Dulles Switches To New Tactics In Korean Tangle

By WARREN ROGERS JR.

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dulles apparently has switched to negotiations with Foreign Minister Molotov at Berlin in a new approach to peace settlement in Korea.

2. Then at least some way may be found for arranging a time, place and procedure for a peace conference without resuming the Panmunjom talks.

Dulles' continuing delay in replying to the Communist demand that Admiral C. T. Joy return to Panmunjom. The state department has announced several suggested replies and sent them to Dulles. He has not given approval to any of them but that he may try a different manoeuvre.

Dulles conferred with Western ministers, Anthony Eden of Britain and Georges Bidault of France, who reported united in opposing any meeting with Red China except on Korea. Dulles has argued for such talks, they are said to have agreed to prior show of good faith by Red China, such as co-operation in settling Korea's future.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE

Thus, if the Communists are willing to negotiate a peace through Molotov another conference away from Panmunjom may be a preliminary Korea peace conference.

Dean walked out May 12, refusing not to resume until the Reds took back a charge of "perfidy" against the United States. The Communist Chinese Communists refused. The U.S., supporting the U.N. action who fight in Korea, insisted.

Because of prestige, neither side can give in without losing face. This is a serious matter in the Orient.

The state department has consistently backed up Dean and said he should.

"There is no basis in fact for the charges" the ambassador Arthur H. Dean is being withdrawn from his assignment."

The advertisement headed "This is the Law," in yesterday's paper, was a letter written by Robert A. Rabbi Kutziner Addresses Lions On Brotherhood

Monday marked the commencement of Brotherhood Week throughout the nation and in keeping with such an occasion, the Belleville Lions Club took it as a great occasion at their meeting, Rabbi M. Kutziner, of the Son of Jacob Synagogue, Belleville.

Born in Warsaw, Poland, graduating from Rabbinical College, there, he took post graduate studies at the University of Jerusalem prior to the Second World War. After experiencing two years in concentration camps in Russia he was repatriated to Poland, later escaping to Austria, where he took post graduate work at the University of Vienna.

Introduced by Lion Joe Burk, Rabbi Kutziner gave an inspiring address on his favorite subject "Brotherhood". In those years of world conflict, many experienced the loss of freedom and the lack of brotherhood and he clearly described the results of domination and greed to the club members. He stressed the need for creating a closer spirit of brotherhood in the divided world today. Great efforts are put forth in the peace talks and for the possible destruction of mankind and similar energies could be put into converting this power for the benefit of mankind. By a greater understanding of races and beliefs, each person can contribute something to improve our brotherhood. In closing, Rabbi Kutziner left a valuable thought—"Do not unto others that which you would not like them to do unto you."

Lion Al Pinder expressed the appreciation of the club members in thanking Rabbi Kutziner for his fine address. Proof of the interest of club members on this subject was noted by the rapt attention given the speaker. During the business session, members were advised of the forthcoming project, "The Rondeauettes", a musical production, the proceeds to be used for community welfare work.

'Y' President, Staff, Delegates Going to Ottawa

General Secretary, Lloyd Skeaff announced tonight that the Y.M.C.A. board of directors had authorized Mr. W. L. Fuller Use of Schools Suggested By Board's Chairman of Finance

A suggestion that fuller use be made of school buildings as a means to cut overhead costs and thus reduce the cost of education, was made Monday evening to members of city council.

Speaking to council in support of the 1954 budget figure for the Bay of Quinte High School area board, Mr. A. C. Campbell, chairman of finance, noted that under the present school system costly school buildings were used for school purposes for only about 1,000 hours per year.

"Why do schools have to close during July and August, and why are they open only five days a week from nine until four?" he asked. "No business could operate under these circumstances."

1,000 HOURS

Mr. Campbell suggested that instead of schools being open for 1,000 hours per year they might be used for 2,500. This would greatly reduce the cost of education by making fewer schools necessary.

He said if pupils could not attend school for longer hours than at present, classes might be staggered and with the addition of a few extra teachers many more pupils could be accommodated in schools.

"What do your colleagues on the school board have to say to your suggestion?" enquired Alderman Wilbur Countryman, who in private life is a teacher at Belleville collegiate.

Mr. Campbell admitted, that he and the board members had laughed at him.

"Well I am not laughing at you," returned Alderman J. Rutherford. "I have had the same idea in mind."

Support For Handicapped Urged by Speaker

An address in support of handicapped employment was delivered by a member of the Rotary Club in the Hotel Quinte Monday by H. H. Reed, manager of the National Employment Service office.

The speaker showed a film at the conclusion of his talk entitled "Everybody's Handicapped."

In his speech Mr. Reed pointed out that there are jobs in industry and business which can be handled by handicapped persons and that they have been proved to be able to maintain, if not better, companies' safety standards.

"The crippled, the lame, the halt and the blind in early history were considered a sin and this belief has been handed down through the ages but it colors our thinking today," Mr. Reed declared. He said it is only within the past few years that organizations have awakened to their responsibility to the handicapped.

STANDS ON MERITS

During the war years, 1939-45 it was not difficult to place the aged and infirm. "Their record of production stands on its merits," the speaker stated.

Mr. Reed told club members that 31 men and women from the penitentiary have been placed in jobs in this city. He said that two of these had left town, one of whom had become manager of one of his company's branch offices.

In conclusion the speaker urged businessmen to give handicapped individuals employment. He said he was sure they would give satisfaction and employers would not be disappointed with the results.

Mr. Reed was introduced by A. L. Hill and the club's appreciation was expressed by Enos Davies.
